As to the personal property exemptions which Mr. Brake has mentioned, it is true that they are now enumerated by statute but, where we have previously in this committee and in the convention adopted the principle of personal property exemptions, we have simply left to the legislature the idea of spelling out which items will fall within the exemptions. We have already acted to accord exemptions not from taxation—don't misunderstand me—but, as a matter of principle, the type of exemption which he has suggested we have already accorded in the area of real and personal property, exemption from civil process rather than taxation. I think that the amendment does offer a valid constitutional ground for enactment, and I would ask that we do enact it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I just want to question Mr. DeVries. Mr. DeVries, if a church was to own, say an office building in which, maybe, they just had part of their offices there and there was profit being taken off it, yet the profits were to go to the church or whatever nonprofit group, would this fall within the purview of this exemption?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit yields to the gentleman from Grand Rapids for the purpose of a reply.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman and Delegate Hodges, again let me read the language. "Property held by a nonprofit corporation . . ." and so forth ". . . and used exclusively for religious, educational, charitable . . . purposes." Exclusively. I would go so far on this as: my church may purchase property in advance and everyone expects that we might gross something, and taxes are paid on this property until a church is established; so, I maintain that it has to be exclusively used for religious or educational purposes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Would the gentleman from Detroit care to yield to the gentleman from Birmingham for further reply?

MR. HODGES: Yes, I yield.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman is recognized.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Hodges, I would say that the question that Mr. Hodges raised is one of the things that concerned the committee when confronted with Delegate Proposal 1476, and the amendment in its present form has resolved that question at least in my mind.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, my question was similar to the question raised by Delegate Hodges. I have some concern about this particular type of problem. At the present time, as you know, a religious fraternal organization has purchased yankee stadium and then sold it back or, rather, leased it back to the yankee baseball organization in order to avoid taxes. This is the sort of thing which I think is very dangerous and I am not quite as sure as the delegate from Birmingham that this could not be construed under the language that Delegate DeVries submits by way of amendment. I would be glad to yield to Delegate DeVries if he wants to clarify that particular point.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Pontiac yields to the gentleman from Grand Rapids for a reply.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman and Delegate King, again I can just say that this is a statement of intent, a philosophical restriction on the legislature: what it can do and what it cannot do. And, again, it says "exclusively" used for religious, educational and charitable institutions. I do not know how you could classify the yankee stadium; how you think you could classify it as religious, educational or charitable, or used exclusively for those purposes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Pontiac retains the floor.

MR. KING: I will yield to Miss Donnelly, who indicates that she could do that.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the lady from Highland Park.

MISS DONNELLY: Well, I think a lot of people think that aiding athletic endeavor is aiding education, and I think they could aid athletic endeavor as going toward education.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: I think that we straightened out this problem following the Graystone ballroom case. At one time in the state of Michigan, any property owned by a university or a charitable organization was exempt from taxation. The University of Michigan owned the land on which the Graystone ballroom in the city of Detroit is now located, and after the lessees of the Graystone ballroom were successful after a decision by the supreme court, in avoiding real estate taxes on the ballroom, the legislature changed the law so that from that time on only property actually used for the particular religious or charitable purpose was exempt.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Detroit, Miss McGowan.

MISS McGOWAN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I rise to speak in favor of the DeVries and Koeze amendment and to ask your support of this amendment. We believe that the basic concept of tax exemption is constitutional for, after all, our constitution should lay down broad, general principles. The matter of tax exemption is not a statutory question in the sense that if the state wishes to proclaim the broad, general principle that property owned by and devoted to charitable and religious purposes should be tax exempt and it cannot be done, there is no reason why tax exemption for religious and charitable institutions should not be placed in the constitution. The extent to which this matter may be statutory is as to what functions of the religious and charitable institution shall be tax exempt. For example, if a religious or charitable institution owned stock in General Motors on which it received dividends, there is a question as to whether that income should be tax exempt; or, if a charitable institution has a private enterprise, say, someone gives them a factory where they manufacture belts, there is a question as to whether that item should be tax exempt.

That aspect of tax exemption for charitable or religious purpose is statutory, but the broad, general principle that the property of charitable and religious institutions should be tax exempt is a basic constitutional provision, and I would like to go on record as being in favor of all churches and charitable organizations.

We feel that the DeVries and Koeze amendment would most assuredly give our churches and charitable organizations the measure of security they need to augment the work they are doing for the betterment of society, and I would ask your support of this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lansing, Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, I am sure every delegate is in favor of the principle of tax exemption of property which Mr. DeVries' and Mrs. Koeze's amendment would put into the constitution. I would think, however, that we should realize clearly if we adopt this, what we will in effect be doing. In addition to making it a constitutional mandate, we will be making the supreme court of the state rather than the legislature the interpreter of that principle as to just what property used exclusively for educational, religious or charitable purposes might be. I am sure that we all agree with that principle as we interpret it, but I would wonder if it might not be best to leave this to the legislature unless there is serious danger or might be serious danger in the future of these exemptions being abolished by the legislature. I would very much like to hear more if there is such danger at the present time or if there might have been in the recent past.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman wish to yield for the purpose of a reply to the gentleman from Grand Rapids?

MR. WANGER: Yes, sir.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman and Delegate Wagner, I think there is serious danger that in the next 10 years or 20 years there might be a significant attempt in the legislature to do this very thing. There have been attempts in the past few years to do this. I would like to have it stated in the constitution as a principle this convention favors a tax exemption for these institutions, as a statement, a philosophical statement, which is what we are doing. The legislature can interpret this; so can the supreme court. They do this with other laws and constitutional provisions as well.

MR. WANGER: I yield the floor.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to propose an amendment to the amendment suggested by Mr. DeVries.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin offers the following amendment to the DeVries-Koeze amendment:

1. Amend the amendment at the end thereof, after "taxes" by inserting a colon and "Provided, There is no practice of discrimination against persons on account of race, creed or national origin".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I want to apologize for the form of the amendment. I had prepared an amendment of this sort in better form some time ago but for some reason my filing system is not working properly, so this is a rather hastily drafted amendment.

I appeared before the committee on legislative powers to discuss this subject of constitutional amendments for charitable organizations and at that time it was the feeling of that committee that this was more in the nature of a legislative matter than constitutional. The committee on finance and taxation came to the same conclusion. However, if this committee is going to consider this matter at this time, I think it is appropriate to make sure that this matter is taken up at the same time.

Tax exemption is a privilege. It is in the form of governmental subsidy to organizations rendering public service. The subsidy is in the form of furnishing government services free of charge. The cost of the government service is furnished free of charge, is paid out of tax revenue in which all persons participate regardless of their race, creed, color, or national origin. In other words, there is no discrimination of this kind in the payment of taxes. The tax money raised is used in support of these organizations through governmental subsidy or tax exemptions. Now I suggest that if tax money is to be used in the form of subsidy for these organizations, it is not fair that they be permitted to discriminate against persons on account of race, creed or color.

Now, to be more specific, there has been a rather serious problem among hospitals as to discrimination against persons on account of race, creed and color. These hospitals are granted property exemptions. They are granted exemptions from sales tax. They are granted exemptions from all forms of state taxes and, I might add, they are also granted exemptions from federal taxes and, in addition, contributions are made to these organizations that are tax exempt, or at least are tax deductible. The result is that there is a considerable amount of tax money supporting these institutions, and, if we are to grant constitutional exemption to them, I am certain that there should be a proviso that there be no discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed, and I move that the amendment to the amendment be adopted.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Austin to the amendment offered by Mr. DeVries and Mrs. Koeze, and the Chair will only entertain comment on the Austin amendment. Does the gentleman from Detroit care to yield to the gentleman from Grand Rapids?

MR. AUSTIN: I would be very happy to.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I have no objection to this proviso. However, it seems to me that we provided a strong enough civil rights section in the bill of rights. I wonder if it is really relevant to the body of the amendment, Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. DeVries, Mr. Chairman, I do believe it is absolutely necessary, because exemptions are being granted now to these institutions and they are discriminating, and it is my firm hope that if we are going to go any further in granting exemptions, certainly in providing for these exemptions, constitutional limitation and constitutional authority, that there ought to be this proviso.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields for the time.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman and Delegate Austin, now that I believe I understand your amendment, I am opposed to it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Detroit wish to speak on the Austin amendment? Mr. Downs, Mr. Stevens was recognized first.

MR. DOWNS: I will be glad to yield to Mr. Stevens.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Downs, yields to the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, we thought we took care of this in the declaration of rights. We spent enough time on it. It was passed here unanimously. It would not seem to me to be necessary to repeat this constantly through the constitution. I believe the nondiscrimination provision of the declaration of rights amply takes care of all these things.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Downs, retains the floor.

MR. DOWNS: I would like to speak in favor of the Austin amendment to the amendment and if, without violating the rules, Mr. Chairman, I can say, parenthetically, in support of the amendment itself. I believe that this is a very sound provision. It is clear cut language and I just hope that Mr. DeVries will reconsider his earlier statement on the subject matter.

This matter of civil rights and equal opportunity is of such vital importance that I would rather it were stated once too often than once not often enough. This applies to the area of charitable and religious organizations, and I believe Delegate Wanger earlier raised the question of assuring an agency was charitable. I believe that the Austin amendment does make that assurance, and I feel that the feeling of the convention is that we certainly do not want to tax churches. This statutory right very properly should be frozen into the constitution.

I think the practical question that the amendment deals with is in the area which is not strictly a church service as such but gets into the area of a charitable function that may not be sponsored directly by a specific church but a nonprofit charitable organization that may branch over many nondenominational or other type of agency. I think this is a good protection and I urge support of this and of the DeVries amendment, also.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Lansing, Mr. Erickson, desire to speak on the Austin amendment?

MR. ERICKSON: I just want to address the committee's attention to the word "creed." I am just fearful that if we let this thing go through that perhaps the Seventh Day Adventists or some other group could go into the Episcopal church and sort of take over, and I don't think that is the intention at all.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Lansing desire to yield to the gentleman from Detroit?

MR. ERICKSON: I yield to the gentleman from Detroit.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I have found the original draft of this amendment which I proposed to the committee on legislative powers, and I would like to read it because I think this will take care of some of the apprehension some of the delegates have.

> No charitable, educational or civic organization, otherwise qualifying as a nonprofit institution, which practices discrimination against persons on account of race, creed, religion, national origin, or ancestry in furnishing benefits, services, training or employment, shall be allowed an exemption from taxation: Provided, That this section shall not deprive religious organizations from giving preference, if they desire, to members of their own sects.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Lansing desire to proceed? Mr. Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: Is that offered as a substitute, Mr. Chairman, for the previous Austin amendment? I think it puts an entirely different light on our proposal.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit asks permission to offer the following as a substitute for the amendment to the amendment, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin withdraws his previous amendment to the DeVries-Koeze amendment, and offers the following amendment to the amendment:

1. Amend the amendment at the end thereof, after "taxes.", by inserting "No charitable, educational or civic organization, otherwise qualifying as a nonprofit institution, which practices discrimination against persons on account of race, creed, religion, national origin or ancestry in furnishing benefits, services, training or employment, shall be allowed an exemption from taxation: Provided, That this section shall not deprive religious organizations from giving preference, if they desire, to members of their own sects.".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, the amendment the secretary has just read will be accepted as the pending amendment. Does the lady from Highland Park desire to speak on the Austin amendment?

MISS DONNELLY: Well, I desired to speak on the first Austin amendment, in support thereto, and, if I understand all the ramifications of the second, I would support it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Grand Rapids desire to speak on the Austin amendment?

MR. TUBBS: I would say that this is still pretty restrictive, Mr. Chairman. I know of church organizations where separate organizations are formed to take care of elderly people. They do discriminate in a way; they give preference to the people of their own denomination. I think this amendment would bar that sort of practice.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Norris, to speak on the Austin amendment.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, a point was raised with regard to whether or not there is a political or civil right involved — the reason I say that that point was raised, I think Mr. Stevens made the observation that in his judgment the equal protection clause which was passed by this convention, at least its first reading, would cover the matter of the Austin amendment. I raise the question as to the validity of Mr. Stevens' observation. I raise the question because I don't believe that there is a political or civil right not to be discriminated against in any activity of a nonprofit or charitable institution. There is a very strong question in my mind as to whether that is covered, and, therefore, I think that the Austin amendment would be very much before the house as far as the merits of it are concerned.

I am not too sure, however, that the substituted Austin amendment doesn't raise more problems than the original Austin amendment, and I would ask that perhaps some reconsideration be made on that point and perhaps a stronger case could be made for the original — if only improvised — language that he offered.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair has ruled, Mr. Norris, that on the unanimous consent request by Mr. Austin, the original amendment was withdrawn and the language substituted, and that is the pending business before the committee. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Birmingham, Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I have a question for Mr. Austin, Mr. Chairman. The language which we are currently considering is language which I have only heard the secretary read and have not had any opportunity to consider it in detail. Mr. Austin, is your amendment in effect a prohibition against action by the legislature granting tax exemption to any institution practicing discrimination? Is that its general sense?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Birmingham yields to the gentleman from Detroit.

MR. AUSTIN: That is the intent, Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: If I may continue, Mr. Chairman, then, your amendment does not purport to grant any exemption; your amendment simply restricts the legislative power to grant exemptions. Is that correct?

MR. AUSTIN: Exactly, Mr. Van Dusen.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Mahinske, desire to speak on the Austin amendment?

MR. MAHINSKE: Yes, I would like to ask Mr. Austin a question here. From the reading of the amendment, it seems to me that this could be interpreted to go into the very functions of the religions themselves as opposed to each other.

Now, if you are proposing that they may not discriminate for any purpose, that is including a religious purpose. Now where do we draw the line here? We have various religions where no one may speak from the pulpit except an ordained minister or a priest. We have other religions that any member of the congregation may speak from the pulpit. Now, does this mean that, the intermingling of these people, the fact that they will not be able to speak, will be a possible discrimination?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Detroit for a reply.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Mahinske should hear that amendment again. I think he is a little confused. Would you mind reading it?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, the secretary will read the pending Austin amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary inquire first, Mr. Austin, if this is the language of Delegate Proposal 1448?

MR. AUSTIN: That is correct.

SECRETARY CHASE: This is the text of it:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 900.]

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Mahinske, does that clear the matter up for you?

MR. MAHINSKE: If the legislature should construe this type of activity as discrimination, then the legislature is not permitted to give these various religious groups any exemptions. Is this correct?

MR. AUSTIN: Only in connection with those services that are not religious, where they discriminate, do discriminate on account of race and so on.

MR. MAHINSKE: "And so on" includes religion. Now, let's assume that we have a hospital that is owned by a religious organization where you are required to go to mass to be a patient in this hospital; now if you are not of the faith of that particular hospital and you refuse to go to mass, this is a refusal on religious grounds; then aren't you being discriminated against or could this not be construed as being discriminated against?

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Mahinske, you are raising a question which, I think, the amendment seeks to avoid.

MR. MAHINSKE: Well, if your amendment does not meet any of the restrictions brought in here — in other words, these possibilities that I am mentioning are not brought within the purview of your amendment.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Mahinske, I will go so far as to say that if the amendment as drawn creates the problem that you have raised, I would certainly be willing to have any change made in the draft which will accomplish the protection that you would like to have.

MR. MAHINSKE: Well, I am also thinking of some of the non Christian religions that, on the basis of sex, divide the congregation. Now, does this feature enter in here? Are these people to lose their exemptions which they have today because their congregation is divided along the lines of sex?

MR. AUSTIN: We are referring only to discrimination in supplying benefits, service, training or employment.

MR. MAHINSKE: Well, isn't religion itself a benefit to the people?

MR. AUSTIN: That would not be my interpretation.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair would inquire of the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Mahinske, there are 2 other delegates who are seeking recognition: the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. DeVries, and the gentleman from Birmingham, Mr. Van Dusen. Do you desire to yield to either one of them?

MR. MAHINSKE: I will yield to either of them.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Birmingham, Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, I have another question for Mr. Austin. I think we are suffering here somewhat from the fact that this is a rather novel concept than one which many of us, perhaps, considered in relation to the proposal of the committee on finance and taxation which is now before us. Mr. Austin, was your proposal referred to a committee and considered by a committee?

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Van Dusen, my proposal was submitted to the committee on legislative powers. I even appeared before that committee and made a presentation, a written presentation. Later the matter was referred to the committee on finance and taxation. The committee on finance and taxation considered the matter of exemptions for charitable organizations at a time when I was absent. When I returned to the committee, I was informed that the committee had decided that the matter of exemptions for charitable organizations was legislative and not a constitutional matter and it, therefore, suggested that it be referred to the legislature and, at the time, I think I can remind you that I said I had an additional amendment to that, provided we were going to consider it; and, since we were not going to consider it, I would not raise my issue.

I feel the same way here. Since this matter has come up before this committee, I think it is appropriate to consider this along with it. Had this proposition not come up, I would not have offered — I was not even prepared for it, because I did not realize it was coming up.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Birmingham has the floor.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Might I ask, Mr. Chairman, if any of the committee on legislative powers would like to indicate the nature and extent of their consideration and their reaction to this?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Birmingham that the chairman of the committee on legislative powers, the delegate from St. Louis, Mr. Hoxie, is seeking recognition. Do you yield to him?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I will yield to him, Mr. Chairman.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, Mr. Austin did state correctly that he appeared before our committee on the proposal. I would also like to advise the delegation that at the time of the consideration of the subject matter before us, it was discovered, in the opinion of our committee, that this was not a proper subject under our rules of assignment of responsibility and work of the convention. We were only dealing with that section of the constitution which pertained to exemptions from execution which we had already passed. Mr. Austin was advised that we did refer the proposal to the finance and taxation committee where we felt it properly belonged. That was several weeks ago. I believe Mr. Austin was advised in the hearing before our committee that that was our finding.

Now, I am a little concerned with the amendment. He refers to religious organizations. I can think of many other types of organizations that are nonprofit organizations. For instance, I happen to belong to the masonic lodge and in the city of Alma we have a masonic home. We have a hospital in connection with that. The individuals that live in that home are selected because of membership in the masonic lodge. Not all members of the masonic lodge are accepted in that home and there are certain restrictions such as giving up any property that they have and conveying it to the home.

Now, I am just wondering whether or not we are going to the point in this matter of discrimination, and we discriminate in that institution because you have to be a member of the masonic lodge to be there to begin with; we do not hold the institution out as far as its hospital for public use; it is for the use of our own organization, and when we say nonprofit organizations, do we have rights, do we have the privilege of using those? And may I say, in addition to that, that every member of the masonic lodge in the state of Michigan contributes, in addition to his regular dues for maintenance of his local lodge, an annual amount toward the support of this home. I am only using this as an example, because I know there are many such institutions. We have a gleaner home run by the gleaner organization. Would they be considered discriminatory if a nonmember of that home wanted to use their facilities, wanted to live in that home?

It is my understanding that what Mr. Austin was referring to was that if they discriminate under the terms of this language, then they would lose any benefits as a nonprofit corporation in the way of taxes, and I would like to ask Mr. Austin if it is his intent that the type of organization that I referred to would be guilty of discrimination under his proposed amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Birmingham has the floor. Would he care to yield to the gentleman from Detroit for his reply?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I will so yield.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will yield; however, the Chair is forced to recognize the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Well, Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I apologize. I thought this was going to be a noncontroversial item. I think I know what the intent of Mr. Austin's amendment is, but I think when you look at the practical impact you get a little different picture. For example, the people in my church, the Christian Reformed Church, have a budget which amounts to about 10 per cent of their income. This budget is earmarked for institutions of the church. It is earmarked for Pine Rest Christian hospital, which is the third largest mental hospital in the country, privately owned. There is no discrimination against patients in Pine Rest hospital except that all of us in the church contribute to its support; so, therefore, if you are not a member of the church, you pay more money than you would if you were a member of the church. The same thing is true of the college where I teach; its tuition rates are based upon church membership and geography.

Now I think the effect of the amendment would be that somebody could come to Calvin College and say, "Well, I am not a member of this church but, nevertheless, you are discriminating against me and I want the same tuition rates." They could do the same thing at Pine Rest hospital, and Calvin College and Pine Rest hospital offer secular benefits and services and under this amendment it could be construed that way. That is why I opposed the first amendment and I oppose the second amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Danhof, to speak on the Austin amendment.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Austin, originally, I am supporting Dr. DeVries' amendment, but I am wondering if we are not trying to take one right and perhaps trample it underfoot with another. I think Mr. Norris may have had the idea when he mentioned this that we are getting into something here that is extremely delicate and difficult.

Again, to reiterate somewhat what Dr. DeVries says, it was my privilege to serve on the board of a home for elderly people for a number of years. This one happened to be composed and supported by churches who were of 2 different denominations but of very similar backgrounds and, very frankly, we limited it solely to the people from those churches, first of all, and then if we had room — it was not a large institution — it was limited to people from other protestant evangelical denominations; and this, I think, is practiced not only by the particular denominations I belong to but all other religious organizations. I think of seminaries where, certainly, before you would be allowed to enter the seminary for instruction in the religion you'd have to be a member of the church.

It would appear to me that this amendment that has been offered by Mr. Austin, while it is laudable in character, I think perhaps is creating far more mountains than we are desirous of trying to climb at this particular time.

Dr. DeVries' original amendment was a direct statement stating a principle that charitable or religious organizations of whatever type or denomination or kind or creed should be granted tax privileges. I think this is a broad statement to go into the constitution. When we begin to restrict it, we find ourselves in trouble. If there could be some way that we could consider one without the other, I think this would be very beneficial and I would ask if this would be possible. Otherwise, I would feel constrained to vote against the Austin amendment to the amendment but in support of the original amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Highland Park, Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I would like to direct a question to either the chairman of the committee or to Mr. Van Dusen. I am beginning to gather that Mr. Austin's amendment was considered by this committee, and, the next question, I would like to know if the finance and taxation committee considered Dr. DeVries' amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The lady yields to whom?

MISS DONNELLY: To either, to the one who wishes to answer the question.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The lady yields to the gentleman from Birmingham.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman and Miss Donnelly, the DeVries amendment, Delegate Proposal 1476, was considered at some length in the committee on finance and taxation and, as I have indicated, because of its detail, because of its reference to existing statute, because of the questions raised by Delegates Hodges and King, and for other reasons because of its general content, we considered it a statutory matter, and we adjudicated that it should be left to the legislature and should not be included in the constitution.

Mr. Austin is quite correct in refreshing my recollection when he points out that he was not there at the time this Delegate Proposal 1476 was considered and upon his return he indicated that he had had a proposal along the same line but, since we weren't going to consider putting the general question of exemptions in the detail contemplated by 1476 into the constitution, he was not going to raise the point in our committee. Therefore, the specific amendment which Mr. Austin now offers was never considered by the committee on finance and taxation. Does this give you a reasonable history of our consideration of the one and not the other?

MISS DONNELLY: Yes, thank you. In that event, since they both have to a degree or at least substantively been considered by this committee, I would speak in opposition to both amendments at this time, believing that the committee, having considered them a longer length of time, is better equipped to determine the legislativeness. I think they are both legislative. I certainly feel if one is going to be in, the one in the best interests of all in the thought of passing a constitution would be Mr. Austin's, but if — I think they are both subject to the same criticism — they are both legislative, then in that case I must oppose both of them unless, if we are going to have one, I think Mr. Austin's amendment is in better taste for the general public.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the lady desire to yield further to the gentleman from Birmingham?

MISS DONNELLY: I would be happy to.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, Miss Donnelly, I should perhaps amplify with respect to Delegate Proposal 1476 that we had it before the committee in the form in which it sits in writing on your desks. We did not have it before our committee in the form in which it has been offered by Dr. DeVries and Mrs. Koeze this afternoon and, as I indicated earlier, many of the objections which we raised with respect to Delegate Proposal 1476 have been obviated by the form of the amendment now presented by Dr. DeVries. I would not want to leave the impression that the committee was totally opposed to the present amendment because of its statutory character, because it has been reduced to a considerable extent to a statement of principle.

MISS DONNELLY: Is it a prohibition against the legislative act?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Well, the DeVries amendment is a direction to the legislature that it shall grant exemptions to certain organizations with respect to certain property used exclusively for certain purposes.

The Austin amendment goes the other way. It says the legislature shall not grant exemption to certain property used by certain organizations for certain purposes if they practice discrimination.

The DeVries amendment is an affirmative direction to the legislature: you shall exempt. The Austin amendment goes in the opposite direction and says: you shall not exempt.

MISS DONNELLY: Then in effect, isn't that it?

MR. VAN DUSEN: You shall not, if.

MISS DONNELLY: Yes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, I think we are in a situation where we often find ourselves in the convention when we are in substantial agreement but do not know quite how to get the language. If I am so presumptuous as to say I have the feeling that the sense of the convention — and if I say that, somebody will ask me why I can never get a motion passed — but I feel that, first, we are in agreement that churches as such should not be taxed and should have a constitutional exemption for their charitable and religious functions.

I think, secondly, there is complete agreement here that nobody wants to try to use the constitution to tell a particular church how to run its internal affairs.

I think the third point that was raised very adequately by Delegate Austin is that if we grant tax exemption, the hospital or agency of that kind getting it should not itself abuse the concept of charity by discriminating in any manner on who gets the uses of the hospital facilities. This has nothing to do with the religious functions as such.

If those 3 ideas are right, I am just wondering — I know in committee of the whole there is difficulty in recessing or adjourning, but, without going through the formalities of the committee rising and then postponing or adjourning — if there is some parliamentary move whereby we could suggest that Delegates Austin and DeVries see if they can review this matter and bring it back to us later on this afternoon; because I do feel there is substantial agreement and I am afraid we are just going to be spinning our wheels here while people are trying to get language straightened out.

That really is a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. If I am out of order, I apologize to the committee.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: In reply to the gentleman's parliamentary inquiry, the Chair would rule that the matter may be passed temporarily if the committee so desires and be returned to subsequently while we are still in committee of the whole.

MR. DOWNS: Well, I, Mr. Chairman, move the matter be passed temporarily.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: That motion will be in order. Is there any discussion on Mr. Downs' motion? If not —

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. Chairman, I would amend the motion to move that this matter be put over until the committee of the whole meets on Monday evening and take its order there if there is something that has prior attention. We can study the matter in the meantime.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, I called attention yesterday to the fact there were 10 days left and we have used pretty nearly all of one of those and there are only 9 left. This whole matter of the tax committee's material is before this committee, and I propose to move before we quit this afternoon that we stay here 'til midnight if it is necessary to finish it. I don't want anything put over having to do with this committee until Monday.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Downs' motion, as the Chair understands it, was that this be temporarily postponed and we return to it a little bit later. Is that correct?

MR. DOWNS: Yes. My intent, Mr. Chairman, was "temporarily", meaning perhaps a half hour or an hour, which would give people time to review the language. I did not mean to be rigid on that at all.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I have a suggestion.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I am wondering if we could not pass this item now and take it up in the convention after the committee rises, as an amendment to the body of the proposal.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Detroit that he can withdraw his amendment but will also require that the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. DeVries, will have to withdraw his amendment, then both will be offered in convention.

Mr. DeVries does not. The pending motion is that this be temporarily laid aside and that we proceed with the next order of business. As many as are in favor will vote aye. Those opposed?

The motion does not prevail. The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I do not want to appear to be against churches or charitable organizations, but I am going to take issue with some of my distinguished colleagues that have spoken previously. We have spent a good deal of time discussing this issue. It is clearly — and I oppose both the amendment and the original amendment on the same basis that I opposed incorporating into this constitution a prohibition against any given form of income tax earlier today.

This is clearly, unquestionably, statutory in nature. The legislature, I would remind you, has already acted in this area; there is a statute on the books now governing this. I see no reason for us to continue to try and burden this constitutional convention or the document by spending endless hours discussing matters that have already been taken care of by the legislature, matters that can be changed and amended from time to time when necessity requires by the legislature, and it seems to me that we are wasting a lot of time on this one.

The thing that I am disturbed about is that when we take up this problem — you have heard all the discussion and I am not going to state the pros and cons of this amendment or the original amendment because it would only be repetitious — but I defy anyone to show me where this has any place in a constitution, to show me where the legislature has failed to act, and to show me why it should not continue to be able to act without it being mandated in the constitution that you have to continue what you are doing now and under no circumstances can it be revised or changed throughout the life of this constitution.

Now, the final thing that is disturbing me, and it disturbs me a great deal, is there are some important issues that I am vitally concerned with that are constitutional in nature: legislative organization, the local government report, and others; and I don't want to spend all of my time debating something that the legislature has already handled very ably, and then have someone come up and try to apply a gag rule to me when we get into the question of apportionment and debating it on this floor. So, for that reason, I am making it clear that I am not against churches or charitable organizations. I support my church financially and my wife sees that I go occasionally. I want that clear. But I am opposed to both the amendment and the amendment to the amendment and I will hope that we could end the debate here and vote on the question. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. (applause)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Well, Mr. Chairman and Delegate Marshall, there was a time about October 3 when I would have believed all this about statutory language, but I will only call your attention or remind you of the section on civil service. If you can convince me that that is not statutory, and that you do not support that, then I will gladly withdraw my amendment; but I have a feeling that this amendment deals with a principle, a constitutional principle, that I would like to see in the constitution. I don't think it is statutory in the nature of some of the other things that we have adopted in committee of the whole.

MR. MARSHALL: May I reply, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If the gentleman cares to yield to you. The gentleman is recognized in his own right, but it must be on the Austin amendment.

MR. MARSHALL: Well, (laughter) I think that — Mr. Mahinske said I am ahead, stop — so I will stop.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman, in the interest of solidarity, I will yield to Mr. Marshall. (laughter)

MR. MARSHALL: Should I sing one chorus of Solidarity Forever or get him to answer the question? Dr. DeVries, it is true I supported the civil service provision. I agree with you that it is a statutory provision. It is one, though, that has been with us for a long time. Historically, it was put in by the people themselves. It was one that was necessary because the legislature repeatedly, time and time again, failed to act in this area. I say to you that the amendment that you have here, that the legislature has acted and has given no indication that it will not continue to act in this area; and where we have a situation where there has not been a problem, I see no need to debate an endless number of hours over statutory language.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Saginaw, Mr. Leppien, to speak on the Austin amendment.

MR. LEPPIEN: The Austin amendment, in my mind, is a matter that should not be considered here. The question of the original amendment should be considered here from the standpoint that the legislature has acted but in the opposite manner.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The vote now occurs on the amendment offered by Mr. Austin to the amendment offered by Mr. DeVries. Those in favor of the Austin amendment will respond by saying aye. Those opposed will say nay.

The amendment is not adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit asks for division. Is the demand supported?

SECRETARY CHASE: Sufficient number.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Those in favor of the Austin amendment will vote aye; those opposed will vote no.

The secretary will lock the machine.

Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman, for the record, I did not vote for the reasons previously stated.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Mr. Marshall abstains.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the Austin amendment to the DeVries-Koeze amendment, the yeas are 33, the nays are 90.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The amendment to the amendment is not adopted. The pending question now recurs to the DeVries-Koeze amendment and the Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: It seems to me that Mr. DeVries really pointed out very clearly why it is that I consider this a matter not for the constitution but a statutory matter when he pointed out that it has been a statutory matter for many years now and that it was very clear from the action of the legislature that this was a matter being adequately taken care of; and, also, the fact that we have had this discussion here today I think points out the problems that we are going to get into in trying to get too many details into the constitution. Thank you.

MR. UPTON: Point of information, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state his point.

MR. UPTON: Would you have the secretary please read the amendment; it has been so long since we have heard it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, the secretary will read the DeVries-Koeze amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 897.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I don't think there is much more that can be said; however, I do want to point out that this also covers property held for charitable purposes and this is a very wide range of subjects. Certainly, if there ever was a field where the legislature ought to be able to include some things and exclude other things and modify its position from time to time, this ought to be it. For that reason it seems very unwise to me to tie the legislature's hands. We all have our own charities, we all belong to churches, and so on, but this is not the thing that we ought to be doing as far as the constitution is concerned.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does Mr. Martin desire to yield to the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. DeVries?

MR. MARTIN: Yes, certainly.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, first in response to Mrs. Cushman, there have been attempts in the past few years to take away these tax exemptions in the legislature. I would anticipate there will be more attempts in the next 5 years or 10 years or 20 years.

Again, to Mr. Martin, this is a statement of intent on behalf of the constitutional convention. We state philosophically that we think these institutions ought to be tax exempt. We leave to the legislature the definition of these terms. It seems to me nothing more than a statement of our intent, a philosophical statement of our intent, in the constitution.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman has the floor.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that the philosophical intent of the people is perfectly clear in the action which the legislature has taken in the past. It does not seem to me there is the slightest possibility — Mr. DeVries says that these have been endangered, but the mere fact that bills have been introduced does not create any danger; that happens all the time, and if there is one subject on which the legislature is not likely to start destroying the exemptions, this is it; because everybody inside and outside the legislature belongs to a church and this is just talking about the remotest kind of possibility and certainly is not necessary to protect either the churches or the charities.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from St. Ignace, Mr. Dell.

MR. DELL: Mr. Chairman, I think there has been enough said on this subject. I only got up to support the DeVries amendment, and I think plenty has been said.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bay City, Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: I would like to direct one more question to Delegate DeVries, and I think I could go along with this amendment if you mean what you said. The last time you spoke I understood you to say that this was a statement of intention and that the definition of these matters will be left to the legislature. I am a little concerned about the broad language of associations for charitable purposes, and I think this is the thing: now, if you would accept as an amendment "as prescribed and defined by law," I could support your amendment. Could you accept such an amendment, "as prescribed and defined by law"? Then we would have a constitutional statement of intention and, as you have said — if I understood you — then it would be left to the legislature to define it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Grand Rapids.

MR. DeVRIES: May I respectfully request a meeting with the delegate?

MR. HIGGS: Yes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman, I want to agree with Mr. DeVries that there was some attempt in the legislature to do away with this exemption, but they did not get very far in the legislature and I still think there has been enough discussion on this. I think everyone has their minds made up on this question, and if the legislature should take this away — which I don't suspect that it will — I am sure that there would be some other con con delegate who would be willing to take his place in the legislature. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Fennville, Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I was a little bit interested in Mr. DeVries' statement that he understood this amendment to be merely a directive to the legislature to do thus and so, and so I went over to his desk and looked at the words, and I will have to take issue with him. I think that the wording that he proposes is a statement in the constitution that certain types of institutions and property shall be exempt. Any attempt of the legislature to define it or to impose a tax upon something that somebody else thought fell within the exemption would be taken to court and it would be entirely up to what the court said as to whether or not this was the kind of property that fell within an exemption defined not by the legislature but by the constitution. I don't think that his wording, as he has offered it here, is a directive to the legislature at all. I think, as Mr. Wanger, I believe, pointed out earlier in the debate, what we have here is something that will transfer this matter entirely out of the hands of the legislature and place it in the hands of the court.

Now, I don't know why we need to be so fearful of what the legislature might do and repose so much confidence in our courts. I think we should look with equal suspicion on both of them, but also with equal confidence in both of them, too. For that reason, while I — please do not misunderstand me — in the legislature would vote for bills to preserve these exemptions by legislative act, I don't think I could support any such categorical wide sweeping statement in the constitution as Mr. DeVries has offered.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Grand Rapids for a reply?

MR. HUTCHINSON: I yield.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Grand Rapids has the floor.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hutchinson, briefly, this is a directive to the legislature not to tax religious, charitable or educational institutions. That is correct.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the delegate to point out to me where it says it is a directive to the legislature. Will you read this language — or ask the secretary to?

MR. DeVRIES: I will read the amendment, if it is all right, Mr. Chairman.

[The amendment was again read by Mr. DeVries. For text, see above, page 897.]

MR. HUTCHINSON: Very well, I would ask the delegate to tell me where there is any directive to the legislature in that language.

MR. DeVRIES: I think the prohibition is sufficient, Mr. Hutchinson, that the point is in the constitution.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Exactly. It is no directive to the legislature to pass any law at all. It is right there, and any attempt by the legislature to define any one of those terms or to use its judgment as to whether under a particular situation, the situation would fall within any one of those exemptions, is something that would be decided by the courts. There is no directive to the legislature to pass any laws at all; it is a constitutional exemption. I think my statement stands.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Fennville desire to yield to the gentleman from Birmingham who is seeking recognition?

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I might say I am not quite used to this congressional practice yet. (laughter) I will yield to the gentleman from Birmingham.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will point out to the gentleman from Fennville that he may need to be some day. (laughter and applause)

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hutchinson's inquiry to Dr. DeVries has raised a question which should have occurred to me earlier. Dr. DeVries, would an educational institution operated for profit — take, for example, the typical secretarial school in the city of Detroit — qualify for tax exemption under your amendment?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Van Dusen, again, perhaps the language of this amendment should have been on your desk, "Property held by a nonprofit corporation, association, or legal entity. . . ." Does that answer your question, Mr. Van Dusen?

MR. VAN DUSEN: "Nonprofit," I take it, modifies all the types of entity?

MR. DeVRIES: That is correct.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Excuse me. I should have listened more carefully.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ypsilanti, Mr. Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: I would like to oppose the amendment, and I would like to state briefly the reason. I am aware of the wording "used exclusively for religious" and so forth, but I am still wondering about this: suppose that one of the so called exempt organizations owned real estate that it rented, leased, but used the proceeds exclusively for educational or religious purposes. There is a good question as to whether or not that would be not exempt from taxation, that property. In other words, the trouble is that we are in the legislative field when we should be in the constitutional field.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the DeVries amendment, and I want to point out to the committee that while I would rather we had also had the Austin amendment as added protection, I feel that Committee Proposal 26 that came out of declaration of rights, suffrage and elections providing for equal protection of the laws would, I think, solve the problem that has been raised here. I would prefer Mr. Austin's language, which I think was more specific.

I think if I understood Mr. DeVries right, he made it clear that the intent of his language was for the nonprofit or charitable function and not for a private or profit function that a charitable organization might have. With those 2 protections, it would seem to me that this gets at what we do seem to agree upon. It may not be the language with the amendment I would have preferred, but that notwithstanding, I will support the amendment as it has now been presented by Mr. DeVries.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, I would like to direct a question to Mr. DeVries. We have a fine institution of higher learning down in our part of the state known as the committee on political education. I wonder if this would qualify. I yield for an answer from Delegate DeVries. Does the committee on political education qualify under the terms of your amendment as a nonprofit educational institution?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Grand Rapids for a reply.

MR. DeVRIES: I would like to yield, Mr. Chairman, but I cannot think to whom I should yield. (laughter) I do not think that is a corporation or association that is organized exclusively for religious, educational or charitable functions.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is the lady from Highland Park seeking recognition?

MISS DONNELLY: I want to just add that as an attorney, I appreciate litigation when it is worthwhile; but I cannot see increasing our courts with litigation on this issue when the legislature has acted repeatedly and, I think in everybody's opinion, properly, that there is no reason to put this in the constitution and swell the problems in litigation in not only our supreme court but all the lower courts until it gets there.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman — does the gentleman wish recognition?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, this does not nullify any legislation or court decisions on the books; it establishes a principle in the constitution. I don't understand what everybody is so concerned about.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Garvin, seek recognition?

MR. GARVIN: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I do not support the DeVries amendment for the reason of the declaration of rights amendment. I am not sure at this time which would receive precedence in the case of any legal matter concerning this thing. In the DeVries amendment, there is no way out; it must be.

Now, if, in the declaration of rights, there was discrimination in a hospital, or is, which of these acts would prevail? As long as there is a question about anything that is placed in the constitution, it shouldn't be there.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Bay City, Mr. Higgs, is recognized.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, if my understanding is correct, now — and I direct this question to Delegate DeVries — you would not accept an amendment of "as defined by law" after the word "purposes." Is that correct? Did I understand you correctly before to say that this was merely a statement of intention?

MR. DeVRIES: Yes, correct. Mr. Chairman and Mr. Higgs, if you added that, you would have a redundancy and there is no need for the original amendment.

MR. HIGGS: I think I should offer this amendment at this time.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Bay City desires to offer an amendment to the DeVries amendment, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Higgs offers the following amendment to the amendment offered by Mr. DeVries and Mrs. Koeze:

1. Amend the amendment after "purposes" by inserting a comma and "as defined by law,"; so that the language will read:

Property held by a nonprofit corporation, association or legal entity and used exclusively for religious, educational, charitable or cemetery purposes, as defined by law, shall be exempt from real and personal property taxes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I was impressed, first of all, by the statements of Delegate Wanger and subsequently by the statements of Delegate Hutchinson with regard to just exactly what we are doing. I had originally been impressed very favorably by the discussion of Delegate DeVries. I had understood him to say that what he intended was to include in the constitution a statement of intention with regard to this matter. Now, I, too, share many of the sentiments of Delegate Marshall in this matter. I don't want to be on record as opposed to education or opposed to religious organizations of any kind, or any charitable purpose, but the language that we are incorporating is so broad as to not make it, I think, a matter of a statement of intention but a matter that is mandatory, not directory, and would take away from the legislature any power to define what is meant by an association. In law, an association can include so many things, as we all know, and to extend to the association such an exemption in a mandatory manner with regard to another very broad purpose, the charitable purpose, is the part of this thing that seems to me very critical. If we add after the word "purposes," "as defined by law," I can vote for this.

By the way, if this is done, we still have a mandatory direction that such institutions be exempt from real and personal property; so we are really not cutting the heart out of the thing at all, but if we do permit the legislature to define these purposes we are giving some real meaning to it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Battle Creek, Mr. Everett, to speak on the Higgs amendment.

MR. EVERETT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to oppose the Higgs amendment. I think we have certainly made a mountain, if not out of a molehill, at least out of a small mountain to begin with, into a large one. We have a very clear cut issue here: either you believe that the exemption which now exists should be written into the constitution so that it cannot be removed by the legislature or you believe it should be left to the legislature. It is as simple as that. It seems to me that you can vote yes or no on it, but with the ambiguity of Mr. Higgs' language it means, then, that the legislature could do by indirection what, on one hand, we are saying they cannot do by direction. I would submit that we should defeat this amendment and then vote on the principal amendment and vote whatever your convictions may be, but let's vote them.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Higgs to the amendment offered by Mr. DeVries. Those in favor of the Higgs amendment will respond by voting aye. Those opposed?

The amendment is not adopted.

The question is now on the DeVries-Koeze amendment. As many as are in favor will vote aye. Those opposed?

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Division has been demanded. Is there support?

SECRETARY CHASE: A sufficient number.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Those in favor of the DeVries amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The machine will be locked.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. DeVries and Mrs. Koeze, the yeas are 54; the nays are 65.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The amendment is not adopted. Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no further amendments.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 51, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read. (applause)

The gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: For the purpose of afternoon recess, I move the committee do now rise.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The motion is whether the committee shall rise. Those in favor of the motion will respond by voting aye. Those opposed?

The Chair rules the nays have it.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Division is demanded. Is there support?

SECRETARY CHASE: A sufficient number.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Those in favor of Mr. Kuhn's motion that the committee rise will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine. The committee will be in order.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the motion that the committee rise, the yeas are 57 and the nays are 51.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will be in order. Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain items on the general orders calendar of which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 51, A proposal setting up the uniform rule of taxation for providing for equalization a maximum limit for assessments, prohibiting a graduated income tax, and covering the subject matter of sections 3, 4, 7 and 8 of article X of the 1908 constitution; has adopted 2 committee amendments thereto; and recommends the amendments be agreed to and the proposal as thus amended do pass.

[Following are the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole:

1. Amend page 1, line 17, by striking out "or for alternative means of taxation of such property from taxation,".

2. Amend page 1, line 21, after "class" by inserting "or classes".]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on agreeing to the amendments as recommended by the committee of the whole. Those in favor will say aye; opposed no.

The amendments are agreed to.

The proposal, as amended, is referred to the committee on —

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, just a moment, please. We would like to get some votes on these amendments.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary inquire of Mr. Austin as to which amendments he wishes to offer?

MR. AUSTIN: All 3 of the amendments offered by the minority.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin offers, first:

1. Amend page 1, line 8, after "Sec. a.", by striking out

"The legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule governing the general ad valorem taxation of real property and tangible personal property.", and inserting "The legislature may by law authorize or impose ad valorem taxes which shall be uniform within the classes of property to which they are applied.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the Austin amendment.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, I would request a roll call vote on all 3 amendments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand supported? Those in favor rise. It is supported. Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Preferential motion, please. I move that the convention now recess for 10 minutes.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Kuhn to recess. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We will recess for 10 minutes.

[Whereupon, at 3:45 o'clock p.m., the convention recessed; and at 3:55 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

The convention will please come to order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Mr. Austin offers the following amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 906.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the Austin amendment. The yeas and nays have been demanded. Those in favor of the Austin amendment will vote aye. Those opposed to the Austin amendment will note no. The secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—42

Andrus, Miss	Follo	Murphy
Austin	Greene	Norris
Baginski	Hart, Miss	Ostrow
Balcer	Hatcher, Mrs.	Pellow
Binkowski	Hodges	Perlich
Brown, T. S.	Hood	Pollock
Buback	Hoxie	Rajkovich
Cushman, Mrs.	Kelsey	Sablich
Dade	Krolikowski	Snyder
Doty, Donald	Lesinski	Stopczynski
Douglas	Madar	Walker
Downs	Mahinske	Wilkowski
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Marshall	Young
Everett	McCauley	Youngblood

Nays—83

Allen	Haskill	Richards, J. B.
Batchelor	Hatch	Richards, L. W.
Beaman	Higgs	Rood
Bentley	Howes	Rush
Blandford	Hubbs	Seyferth
Bonisteel	Hutchinson	Shackleton
Boothby	Iverson	Shaffer
Brake	Judd, Mrs.	Shanahan
Brown, G. E.	Karn	Sharpe
Butler, Mrs.	King	Sleder
Cudlip	Kirk, S.	Spitler
Danhof	Knirk, B.	Stafseth
Davis	Koeze, Mrs.	Staiger
Dehnke	Kuhn	Stamm
Dell	Lawrence	Sterrett
DeVries	Leppien	Stevens
Doty, Dean	Lundgren	Suzore
Durst	Martin	Tubbs
Elliott, A. G.	McLogan	Turner
Erickson	Mosier	Tweedie
Farnsworth	Nisbet	Upton
Figy	Page	Van Dusen
Finch	Perras	Wanger
Gadola	Plank	White
Gover	Powell	Wood
Gust	Prettie	Woolfenden
Hanna, W. F.	Pugsley	Yeager
Hannah, J. A.	Radka

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment proposed by Mr. Austin, the yeas are 42, the nays are 83.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin offers the following amendment:

2. Amend page 1, line 13, after "assessed" by striking out the comma and "which shall not, after January 1, 1966, exceed 50 per cent,"; so that the language will then read:

The legislature shall provide by law for the determination of true cash value of such property and shall specify the proportion of true cash value at which such property shall be uniformly assessed and shall provide by law for a system of equalization of assessments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Thank you, Mr. President. I think it is appropriate for the delegates to know what they are voting on. The first — the amendment on which they have just voted — was the uniformity clause, and the one that is before them now is the 50 per cent of true cash value standard in regard to assessments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Austin.

SECRETARY CHASE: Will the delegates please clear their voting stations on the voting machine.

PRESIDENT NISBET: All in favor of the Austin amendment will vote aye. Those opposed to the Austin amendment will vote nay. The secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—43

Allen	Hart, Miss	Norris
Andrus, Miss	Hatcher, Mrs.	Pellow
Austin	Hodges	Perlich
Baginski	Hood	Sablich
Balcer	Judd, Mrs.	Snyder
Binkowski	Kelsey	Stamm
Brown, T. S.	Krolikowski	Sterrett
Buback	Lesinski	Stopczynski
Cushman, Mrs.	Madar	Suzore
Dade	Mahinske	Van Dusen
Douglas	Marshall	Walker
Downs	McCauley	Wilkowski
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	McLogan	Young
Follo	Murphy	Youngblood
Greene

Nays—84

Batchelor	Hannah, J. A.	Powell
Beaman	Haskill	Prettie
Bentley	Hatch	Pugsley
Blandford	Heideman	Radka
Bonisteel	Higgs	Rajkovich
Boothby	Howes	Richards, J. B.
Brake	Hoxie	Richards, L. W.
Brown, G. E.	Hubbs	Rood
Butler, Mrs.	Hutchinson	Rush
Cudlip	Iverson	Seyferth
Danhof	Karn	Shackleton
Davis	King	Shaffer
Dehnke	Kirk, S.	Shanahan
Dell	Knirk, B.	Sharpe
DeVries	Koeze, Mrs.	Sleder
Doty, Dean	Kuhn	Spitler
Doty, Donald	Lawrence	Stafseth
Durst	Leppien	Staiger
Elliott, A. G.	Lundgren	Stevens
Erickson	Martin	Tubbs
Everett	McAllister	Turner
Farnsworth	Mosier	Tweedie
Figy	Nisbet	Upton
Finch	Ostrow	Wanger
Gadola	Page	White
Gover	Perras	Wood
Gust	Plank	Woolfenden
Hanna, W. F.	Pollock	Yeager

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the second amendment offered by Mr. Austin, the yeas are 43, the nays are 84.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin offers the following amendment:

3. Amend page 1 by striking out all of lines 21 and 22; and by striking out all of page 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, I would like to remind the delegates that we are not voting on an income tax nor are we voting on a graduated income tax. We are merely voting to determine whether the legislature shall be prohibited at any time from levying such a tax.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Austin. The question is on the Austin amendment. Those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay. The secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—60

Allen	Haskill	Norris
Andrus, Miss	Hatch	Ostrow
Austin	Hatcher, Mrs.	Pellow
Baginski	Heideman	Perlich
Balcer	Hodges	Pollock
Bentley	Hood	Rajkovich
Binkowski	Howes	Richards, L. W.
Brown, T. S.	Judd, Mrs.	Sablich
Buback	Kelsey	Sleder
Butler, Mrs.	Koeze, Mrs.	Snyder
Cushman, Mrs.	Krolikowski	Spitler
Dade	Lawrence	Stamm
Davis	Lesinski	Sterrett
Doty, Dean	Madar	Stopczynski
Douglas	Mahinske	Suzore
Downs	Marshall	Tubbs
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	McCauley	Walker
Follo	McLogan	Wilkowski
Greene	Murphy	Young
Hart, Miss	Nord	Youngblood

Nays—69

Batchelor	Gust	Prettie
Beaman	Hanna, W. F.	Pugsley
Blandford	Hannah, J. A.	Radka
Bonisteel	Higgs	Richards, J. B.
Boothby	Hoxie	Rood
Brake	Hubbs	Rush
Brown, G. E.	Hutchinson	Seyferth
Cudlip	Iverson	Shackleton
Danhof	Karn	Shaffer
Dehnke	King	Shanahan
Dell	Kirk, S.	Sharpe
DeVries	Knirk, B.	Stafseth
Donnelly, Miss	Kuhn	Staiger
Doty, Donald	Leppien	Stevens
Durst	Lundgren	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	Martin	Tweedie
Erickson	McAllister	Upton
Everett	Mosier	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	Nisbet	Wanger
Figy	Page	White
Finch	Perras	Wood
Gadola	Plank	Woolfenden
Gover	Powell	Yeager

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the third amendment offered by Mr. Austin, the yeas are 60, the nays are 69.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. DeVries and Mrs. Koeze offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "applied.", by inserting "Property held by a nonprofit corporation, association or legal entity and used exclusively for religious, educational, charitable or cemetery purposes shall be exempt from real and personal property taxes.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I respectfully request a record roll call vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Higgs offers the following amendment to the amendment proposed by Mr. DeVries and Mrs. Koeze:

1. Amend the amendment after "purposes" by inserting a comma and "as defined by law,".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the Higgs amendment. Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: I would like to state again that my purpose in offering this amendment is so that I can vote for the DeVries amendment. If this amendment is adopted, I think that the DeVries amendment will then conform to what was the stated intention — the constitution would state the intention which he recommended. If it does not, then it takes away from the legislature the power to define what is an association or other legal entity for charitable purposes, and I think that is much too broad. In all conscience, I must — if this amendment fails — vote against the DeVries amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I urge you not to adopt the amendment. I move the previous question on the Higgs amendment and on the DeVries amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the previous question. Is the demand seconded?

SECRETARY CHASE: A sufficient number.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Shall the main question now be put? Those in favor say aye; opposed, no.

It is so ordered. The question is now on the Higgs amendment to the amendment. Those in favor of the Higgs amendment will say aye; opposed, no.

The amendment to the amendment is not adopted.

Those now in favor of the amendment by Mr. DeVries and Mrs. Koeze will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I demand the vote of Mr. Marshall.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I think you need 4 other guys to demand my vote — I am not sure — and then I think I still have a right to abstain and then I will explain my reasons for abstaining. Am I incorrect, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is he correct, Mr. Chase?

SECRETARY CHASE: Yes.

MR. MARSHALL: I don't think you want me to explain my reasons for abstaining because it would take me 45 minutes. (laughter)

MR. EVERETT: Point of order, Mr. President.

I would call the secretary's attention to rule 67, which says, "No delegate shall be entitled to abstain from voting in any roll call unless he shall have stated his intention to abstain before the voting starts." I submit that the delegate has no right to abstain.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I thought I did that in the committee of the whole. Maybe I am confused. If you want me to vote, I will vote and then explain my vote, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Lesinski.

MR. LESINSKI: Mr. President, why pick on Mr. Marshall when there are others who have not voted?

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. President, Dr. Nord would like us to demand that he vote and Mr. Norris, and I request that he vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: The machine is locked.

PRESIDENT NISBET: If you have all finished, the machine is locked and the vote will now be recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—59

Baginski	Hodges	Perras
Balcer	Hood	Pugsley
Beaman	Howes	Radka
Bentley	Iverson	Rajkovich
Binkowski	Judd, Mrs.	Shackleton
Buback	Kelsey	Shaffer

Cudlip	Knirk, B.	Sharpe
Dade	Koeze, Mrs.	Sieder
Danhof	Krolikowski	Snyder
Dell	Leppien	Stamm
DeVries	Lesinski	Sterrett
Downs	Madar	Stevens
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Mahinske	Stopczynski
Erickson	Marshall	Suzore
Everett	McCauley	Tweedie
Gadola	McGowan, Miss	Walker
Gust	Murphy	White
Hannah, J. A.	Nisbet	Wilkowski
Hart, Miss	Pellow	Youngblood
Hatcher, Mrs.	Perlich

Nays—67

Allen	Gover	Plank
Andrus, Miss	Greene	Pollock
Batchelor	Hanna, W. F.	Powell
Blandford	Haskill	Prettie
Bonisteel	Hatch	Richards, J. B.
Boothby	Heideman	Richards, L. W.
Brake	Higgs	Rood
Brown, G. E.	Hoxie	Rush
Butler, Mrs.	Hubbs	Sablich
Cushman, Mrs.	Hutchinson	Seyferth
Davis	Karn	Shanahan
Dehnke	King	Spitler
Donnelly, Miss	Kirk, S.	Stafseth
Doty, Dean	Kuhn	Staiger
Doty, Donald	Lawrence	Tubbs
Douglas	Lundgren	Turner
Durst	Martin	Upton
Elliott, A. G.	McAllister	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	McLogan	Wanger
Figy	Mosier	Wood
Finch	Ostrow	Woolfenden
Follo	Page	Yeager
Garvin

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment proposed by Mr. DeVries and Mrs. Koeze, the yeas are 59, the nays are 67.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Briefly, I want to explain by vote. I could have abstained —

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, a point of order. Does the gentleman have a right to explain a yes vote?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall may proceed.

MR. MARSHALL: I want to explain my yes vote. I could have — I disagree with Mr. Van Dusen—I think I could have abstained from voting. It's true I should have announced my intention to abstain prior to the starting of the taking of the vote. I appreciate the fact that I was singled out for the signal honor of being the first delegate to have his vote demanded on the floor of the convention and, particularly, since it came from such a distinguished delegate as Mr. Van Dusen.

Now, to explain why I was abstaining, I thought I made it clear in the committee of the whole, and I will be very brief: I am not opposed to the principle of this amendment. I am opposed to the entire provision being incorporated into the constitution. As previously stated, it is statutory in nature.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Committee Proposal 51, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 51 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The legislature shall provide by law a uniform rule governing the general ad valorem taxation of real property and tangible personal property. The legislature shall provide by law for the determination of true cash value of such property and shall specify the proportion of true cash value at which such property shall be uniformly assessed, which shall not, after January 1, 1966, exceed 50 per cent, and shall provide by law for a system of equalization of assessments. The legislature may provide by law for exemption of such property from taxation, or for alternative means of taxation of such property in lieu of general ad valorem taxation, uniform upon the class or classes of property to which such alternative means are applied.

Every other tax shall be uniform upon the class or classes on which it operates. No income tax graduated as to rate or base shall be imposed by the state or any of its subdivisions.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I move the convention do now resolve itself into committee of the whole for further consideration of items on the general orders calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley, will you hold your motion? Mr. Elliott has a comment. Then we will vote on it. Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I became so interested, Mr. President, in this byplay of words — we haven't had any today — that I forgot that there was something that should be taken care of.

Mr. President, I would like to move that Journal 70, page 439, be corrected under Committee Proposal 83, section a, and under Committee Proposal 83, section b, and that this be published in tomorrow's journal so that you can have it and save some time here, and that we strike out all language in section b, column 2.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, a point of order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I want to ask the delegate by what authority he is now amending the majority report of the committee on local government, since we have not met or voted on it at this stage. The members of the committee, I now understand, did meet on it. I was not privileged to be invited to this meeting.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Ford, I am sorry, but this has nothing to do with the action that was taken in the committee. This is to correct some mistakes that were in the original majority report. I might just as well explain that in the printing of it, on the last page, some of the language was misplaced and I am just trying to get it in its proper place in the journal, Mr. Ford.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the corrections that Mr. Elliott has asked for in his report will be made in the journal.

Is there any objection? Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I do not want to object to Mr. Elliott's changes in the language of the explanation. I will object to any change in the text of the proposal itself.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott, as I understand it, you are only correcting the committee comments?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: These are just in the comments, the comments that were made. They are not in the proposal itself. The proposal itself has a change and that will be done by amendment when it is the proper time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the corrections will be made. They are made.

Following are the corrections:

Committee Proposal 83, section a comment — delete all language following the word "changes" in line 27 of column 1.

Committee Proposal 83, section b comment — strike the words "6 through 9" in line 8 of section b, column 1, and insert the words "19 through 22".

Strike all language following line 10 of section b, column 2, and insert the following:

"the right to control municipal wages and hours and administration. It is the feeling of a majority of the committee that certain categories of municipal employees are given preferred treatment by state laws to the detriment of other employees. The committee is of the opinion that wages and hours should be set by the local governing body rather than by the legislature, except where state law deals with all persons, or all public employees. Local officials are better acquainted with their fiscal problems, and can more readily solve them than is likely to be the case with a legislator voting on a problem with which he is not familiar. The right of the municipality to decide on matters of wages and hours should be preserved in all cases except where the legislature determines that some statewide interest is involved, but its action in such cases should be limited to all persons or all public employees without favor or distinction among them.".

[Corrections made. See below, page 1006.]

The question is now on the motion of Delegate Bentley that we resolve ourselves into committee of the whole. All in favor say aye; opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Mr. Bentley.

[Whereupon, Mr. Bentley assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The committee will be in order. When the committee rose, it had completed action on Committee Proposal 51, item 25 on the convention calendar. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 26 on the calendar, from the committee on finance and taxation, by Mr. Brake, chairman, Committee Proposal 52, A proposal with reference to the taxation of certain utilities, covering the material in article X, section 5 of the 1908 constitution.

Following is Committee Proposal 52 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. THE LEGISLATURE MAY PROVIDE BY LAW FOR THE ASSESSMENT BY THE STATE TAX COMMISSION OF THE PROPERTY WHOSE AD VALOREM TAXES ARE RESERVED TO STATE AID FOR PUBLIC EDUCATION BY SECTION 1 OF THIS ARTICLE X, AND OF SUCH OTHER PROPERTY AS THE LEGISLATURE MAY DESIGNATE, AND FOR THE LEVY AND COLLECTION OF TAXES THEREON. PROPERTY ASSESSED BY THE STATE TAX COMMISSION SHALL BE ASSESSED AT THE SAME PROPORTION OF ITS TRUE CASH VALUE AS THE LEGISLATURE SHALL SPECIFY FOR PROPERTY SUBJECT TO GENERAL AD VALOREM TAXATION, AND THE RATE OF TAXATION ON SUCH PROPERTY SHALL BE THE AVERAGE RATE LEVIED UPON OTHER PROPERTY UNDER THE GENERAL AD VALOREM TAX LAW, OR, IF THE LEGISLATURE SHALL SO PROVIDE, THE RATE OF TAX APPLICABLE TO THE PROPERTY OF EACH BUSINESS ENTERPRISE SO TAXED SHALL BE THE AVERAGE RATE OF AD VALOREM TAXATION LEVIED UPON OTHER PROPERTY IN ALL COUNTIES IN WHICH ANY OF SAID PROPERTY IS SITUATED.

Mr. Brake, chairman of the committee on finance and taxation, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 52:

This section permits the legislature to continue the present system of state assessment, collection and distribution of ad valorem taxes on the property of certain utilities, described in sections 3 and 5 of article X. It avoids the detailed listing of utilities, (e.g., telephone and telegraph companies, union depot companies, refrigeration car operators) found in the present constitution. It authorizes the legislature, as does the present constitution, to treat all utilities in the same manner. It does not require the legislature to do so, however, because the disruption to the tax base of communities which for over 50 years have been taxing electric utilities, for example, locally, would be too great. It attempts to facilitate uniformity in the method of utility taxation by authorizing such taxation at the average rate of the area in which the property is located, rather than the average state rate. The use of the average state rate would greatly increase the tax of some utilities, and reduce the tax of others.

The section recognizes that the assessing function is actually performed by the state tax commission, not the state board of assessors, and reflects the distribution of such taxes through the school aid appropriation, as recommended in an earlier proposal by the committee.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I yield the floor to our committee member, Sam Ostrow.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: This is Committee Proposal 52. It is found in Journal 69, and the reasons are given on page 406.

[The supporting reasons for Committee Proposal 52 were read by Mr. Ostrow. For text, see above.]

In short, this section neither forbids anything that the former section 5 did forbid nor does it permit anything that section 5 formerly permitted.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there amendments to the body of the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hutchinson offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 8, after "state" by striking out "tax commission"; and in line 12, after "state" by striking out "tax commission"; so that the language will read, "The legislature may provide by law for the assessment by the state of the property whose ad valorem taxes are reserved to state aid . . . ."; and, in line 12, "Property assessed by the state shall be assessed at the same proportion of its true cash value . . . ."

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Fennville is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I don't believe that it is very good policy to write into the constitution the name of a particular agency of the state. If we write in the state tax commission, as such, then forever and a day we have got a constitutional agency called the state tax commission. Now, I don't think that that was the important thing in this section at all, but there it is, and I suppose somebody might say, well, why didn't you take it out in style and drafting, but I am getting a little bit edgy about that; because, apparently, somebody might think that was a substantive change, so I am bringing it up now.

I think that in the organization of the state governmental structure, from time to time, maybe an agency which would perform this function would be created which would not be called the state tax commission, and I don't think that it is important to create by the constitution an agency called the state tax commission. That is the reason for this amendment at this time, leaving it, then, to the legislature to define the name of the agency which would perform this function. It will be done by the state, obviously, by some agency of the state, but that would be left up to the legislature.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Stanton, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: I, of course, have had no opportunity to poll the committee on this, but, personally, I can see no objection to the amendment. The old constitution says that it should be done by the state board of assessors and that included the governor. Well, the state board of assessors hasn't been doing it at all; it has been the state tax commission and in the foreseeable future will be the state tax commission, but certainly it might be changed sometime. I see no objection to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does anybody desire to speak on the Hutchinson amendment? Was the gentleman from Detroit,

Mr. Lesinski, seeking recognition on the Hutchinson amendment?

MR. LESINSKI: Just a point of information, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LESINSKI: It is in regard to a reference point in your committee proposal. It states by "section 1 of this article X" — of what constitution, 1908 or— ?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will defer that point of order until the Hutchinson amendment is disposed of. Does the gentleman from St. Clair Shores desire to speak on the Hutchinson amendment?

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Chairman, I arise on a point of information that either Mr. Brake or Mr. Hutchinson can advise me on; in fact, it may be well to get it from both. Now the present language, I would assume, would put the responsibility in the executive department, because this is a natural branch of the executive department. Now, with the removal of the specific department, would there be any confusion as to whether the authority would lie in the legislature or in the executive branch? I think that this is a very important point. It may be more than a mere omission of a few words; the future responsibility of the various departments may be involved.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Fennville for an answer.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, certainly it is a legislative responsibility to provide the several departments of government. The legislature has the responsibility in creating those departments and, from time to time, it is desirable to change them and to reorganize them and so on. This reorganization has taken place before in our history. Governor Groesbeck undertook a great governmental reorganization, and so on. Now, as Mr. Brake pointed out, the Constitution of 1908 referred to the state board of assessors, and in 1908, I dare say that it was probably stated upon the floor of that convention that there was a function that was being done by the state board of assessors and in the foreseeable future would be done by the state board of assessors; but, you see, the times and the organization of the government have completely changed that, and it is actually being done by the state tax commission.

I think that, looking again into the future, we don't know how the organizational changes will come about and I think it is unwise to freeze into our constitution simply a department by name in the executive branch of the government. Mr. Snyder's point that he wonders if there might be some confusion about whether this would revert as a legislative responsibility or an executive responsibility — well, let me answer it this way. Obviously, it is an activity or function which must be performed within the executive branch of the government; but as to whether one department within that branch or another department within that branch shall undertake the duty is the responsibility, first, of the legislature to implement the organization of the government.

MR. SNYDER: Then I am to understand that the chain of command in this instance would not be changed by the exclusion of the words. Thank you very much. Mr. Hutchinson, I do not think that the record will show the nod of your head, so will you speak?

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I agree with the gentleman's interpretation.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Mahinske, desire to speak on the Hutchinson amendment?

MR. MAHINSKE: Yes. I would like to direct a question to Mr. Hutchinson. Do you believe, Mr. Hutchinson, in any way the elimination of this language would have anything to do with the existence of the state tax commission, or are you just taking away the constitutional delegation of this power to that commission?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Fennville.

MR. HUTCHINSON: In answer, Mr. Mahinske, the state tax commission is now an agency created by statute. The statute will continue to exist. The agency will continue to exist. Its functions which are now devolved upon it by statute will continue to reside there, unless and until in a governmental reorganization brought about lawfully those functions should be transferred to some other department. The removal of reference to the state tax commission out of this article at this time will not abolish the state tax commission, sir.

MR. MAHINSKE: Your argument is just in reverse that by leaving this language in we would create for the life of this constitution, at least, a state tax commission?

MR. HUTCHINSON: You are right.

MR. MAHINSKE: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Fennville, Mr. Hutchinson. As many as are in favor will respond by saying aye. Those opposed?

The amendment is adopted. Does the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Lesinski, now desire to pursue his point of information?

MR. LESINSKI: Yes. I would make an amendment if I knew how, but I don't — I can't see to what constitution this section and article refers to.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman care to yield to the chairman of the committee?

MR. LESINSKI: Yes.

MR. BRAKE: The reference to section 1 of article X is to the 1908 constitution. That is the section which specifies the basis of taxation that was to go into the primary school fund, which we handled the other day.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman has the floor.

MR. LESINSKI: I am glad that I am here today, because, if I read it 10 years from now, would I know or would I be able to find out?

MR. BRAKE: You are talking about that word "now"?

MR. LESINSKI: No. The reference. It should state 1908 constitution.

MR. BRAKE: Now I know what you are talking about. We had to say something. Style and drafting, when they decide what the section numbers and article numbers are going to be, will put in the appropriate section and article. We don't know now what article this is going to be numbered or what section it is going to be.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 52, as amended, is passed and the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 27 on the calendar, from the committee on finance and taxation, by Mr. Brake, chairman, Committee Proposal 53, A proposal to require that every tax law shall distinctly describe the tax, covering article X, section 6 of the present constitution.

Following is Committee Proposal 53 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. Every law which imposes, continues or revives a tax shall distinctly state the tax[, and the objects to which it is to be applied; and it shall not be sufficient to refer to any other law to fix such tax or object].

Mr. Brake, chairman of the committee on finance and taxation, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 53:

This section continues in part the present language of section 6 of article X. It requires no more than any taxpayer should expect, i.e., a distinct and clear statement of any tax imposed upon the citizens of this state.

The proposal eliminates the requirement that tax laws specify "the objects to which [the tax] is to be applied". This has been judicially construed to mean "the purpose for which the money is to be spent". In a complex system of taxation, when the proceeds of one general tax may be devoted to many different purposes, this seems obsolete.

The proposal also deletes the present statement that "it shall not be sufficient to refer to any other law to fix such tax". The committee believes that any question of the leg-

---

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

islature's right to refer to income determined for federal tax purposes should be eliminated. However, the committee does not intend by this to permit any delegation of the power to fix a tax or tax base to another legislative authority.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, I yield to our committee member, Dean Doty.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Grand Ledge.

MR. DEAN DOTY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I will refer you to Journal 69, page 406, the right-hand column.

[The supporting reasons to Committee Proposal 53 were read by Mr. Doty. For text, see above, page 911.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 53 is passed and the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 28 on the calendar, from the committee on finance and taxation, by Mr. Brake, chairman, Committee Proposal 54, A proposal that the power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended, or contracted away, covering the material in article X, section 9 of the present constitution.

Following is Committee Proposal 54 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. [The power of taxation shall never be surrendered or suspended by any grant or contract to which the state or any municipal corporation shall be a party.] THE POWER OF TAXATION SHALL NEVER BE SURRENDERED, SUSPENDED, OR CONTRACTED AWAY.

Mr. Brake, chairman of the committee on finance and taxation, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 54:

This proposal contains the substance of section 9, article X of the present constitution. It simplifies the language.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Stanton.

MR. BRAKE: On this proposal, I yield to our committee member, Roy Howes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Copemish is recognized.

MR. HOWES: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is also in Journal 69, on page 407, "This proposal contains the substance of section 9, article X of the present constitution, but it simplifies the language." This simplified wording of this proposal is now the exact wording of article VI, section 1 of the Hawaiian constitution.

The power of taxation should reside perpetually with the state and its corporate districts and should never be surrendered, delegated or assigned to private parties. An important development in regard to this section in recent years has been the practice of some communities to give exemptions or other special incentives to lure industry to their areas. Potential problems arise when communities promise tax exemptions of 5, 10, or 20 years to new industries. Some of these industries remain only as long as these exemptions or other special incentives remain in force, and the long run value of this special treatment for new industries is questionable. These policies to some extent involve a contracting away of the taxing power and to this extent are construed by some to be in violation of this section.

This practice was used many times in English colonial history, but is one that is normally looked down upon in the United States today. We strongly recommend the adoption of this proposal into our constitution.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal? If not, it will pass.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

Committee Proposal 54 is passed and the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 29 on the calendar, from the committee on finance and taxation, by Mr. Brake, chairman, Committee Proposal 55, A proposal to include article X, section 19 of the 1908 constitution in the new constituiton.

Following is Committee Proposal 55 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. No collector, holder or disburser of public moneys shall have a seat in the legislature, nor be eligible to any office of trust or profit under this state, until he shall have accounted for and paid over, as provided by law, all sums for which he may be liable.

Mr. Brake, chairman of the committee on finance and taxation, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 55:

The committee recommends the inclusion of the present language of the 1908 constitution unchanged. The section actually contains 2 limitations. It provides that collectors or holders of public moneys are ineligible for membership in the legislature while continuing to be collector or holder, and prior to the time when proper accounting has been made.

It also provides that collectors or holders of public moneys are ineligible for office of trust or profit prior to the time when proper accounting has been made.

The citizens research council in its comparative analysis states, ". . . these provisions exclude all collectors, holders, or disbursers of public money and thus seek to avoid any question of incompatibility of interest. The lesson of history suggests the wisdom of protecting the integrity of handlers of public money." The governor's citizens advisory committee also recommended the section be retained as written.

The committee believes this section serves a very real and useful purpose and should be retained in the constitution.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Stanton.

MR. BRAKE: For this proposal, I yield to our committee member, Dave Upton.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from St. Joseph.

MR. UPTON: I would like to refer the committee to, again, Journal 69, page 407:

[The supporting reasons to Committee Proposal 55 were read by Mr. Upton. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal? The gentleman from Muskegon Heights, Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, I would like to address a question to Mr. Upton. He used the words "disburser of public moneys." Would a person signing a warrant or a purchase order be construed to be a disburser of public moneys?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from St. Joseph for a reply.

MR. UPTON: This exact question did not come before our committee. It is a legal matter that I would not be prepared to answer.

MR. W. F. HANNA: My question, Mr. Chairman, possibly Mr. Brake, I know that it is common practice; this question is as to whether it is necessary or not for supervisors of various townships who sign warrants — by signing a warrant he is a disburser of public moneys, in my opinion. Would he then be barred from a seat in the legislature?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Stanton.

MR. BRAKE: I think what we are talking about, Mr. Hanna, is the person who has the control, the custody of the money, and until he has made a proper accounting, that he is not eligible to a seat in the legislature. Now that very plainly,

I think, would not refer to the supervisor or to the township clerk, who draw the warrants, but to the treasurer who has the money.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from St. Joseph desire to proceed? Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 55 is passed and the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 30 on the calendar, from the committee on finance and taxation, by Mr. Brake, chairman, Committee Proposal 56, A proposal to limit the ad valorem taxation of property covering the subject matter of section 21, article X of the 1908 constitution, commonly known as the 15 mill limitation.

Following is Committee Proposal 56 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. [The total amount of taxes assessed against property for all purposes in any one year shall not exceed 1½ per cent of the assessed valuation of said property, except taxes levied for the payment of interest and principal on obligations heretofore incurred, which sums shall be separately assessed in all cases: Provided, That this limitation may be increased for a period of not to exceed 20 years at any one time, to not more than a total of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation, by a majority vote of the electors of any assessing district, or when provided for by the charter of a municipal corporation: Provided further, That this limitation shall not apply to taxes levied in the year 1932.] EACH COUNTY, TOWNSHIP, SCHOOL DISTRICT OR OTHER POLITICAL SUBDIVISION OF THE STATE SHALL HAVE POWER TO LEVY THE HIGHEST UNVOTED TAX RATE, BUT IN THE CASE OF TOWNSHIPS NOT LESS THAN 1 MILL, ALLOTTED TO IT BETWEEN JANUARY 1, 1957, AND DECEMBER 31, 1961; BUT SHALL LEVY NO GENERAL AD VALOREM PROPERTY TAX IN EXCESS THEREOF, EXCEPT AS OTHERWISE PROVIDED IN THIS CONSTITUTION. THIS LIMITATION SHALL NOT APPLY TO TAXES LEVIED FOR THE PAYMENT OF INTEREST AND PRINCIPAL ON OBLIGATIONS INCURRED PRIOR TO DECEMBER 8, 1932, WHICH SUMS SHALL BE SEPARATELY ASSESSED IN ALL CASES. THIS LIMITATION MAY BE INCREASED FOR NOT MORE THAN 20 YEARS FOR TAXES TO BE USED FOR THE PAYMENT OF PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ON BONDS OR OTHER EVIDENCES OF INDEBTEDNESS OR FOR THE PURPOSE OF CAPITAL OUTLAY BY A MAJORITY VOTE OF THE ELECTORS OF THE TAXING DISTRICT WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO VOTE ON THE QUESTION OF ISSUING BONDS, VOTING THEREON AT ANY ELECTION. FOR ANY OTHER PURPOSE THE LIMITATION MAY BE INCREASED FOR NOT MORE THAN 20 YEARS BY A MAJORITY VOTE OF THE ELECTORS OF THE TAXING DISTRICT VOTING THEREON AT ANY ELECTION. THIS LIMITATION MAY BE INCREASED WHEN PROVIDED FOR BY THE CHARTER OF A MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

THE AGGREGATE OF GENERAL AD VALOREM PROPERTY TAXES LEVIED BY EVERY TAXING AUTHORITY OTHER THAN A CITY OR VILLAGE SHALL NOT EXCEED 5 PER CENT.

ALL INCREASES HERETOFORE VOTED OR PROVIDED PURSUANT TO SECTION 21 OF ARTICLE X OF THE CONSTITUTION OF 1908 SHALL STAND AS INCREASES HEREUNDER, AND AS SUCH SHALL REMAIN IN EFFECT UNTIL THEY EXPIRE OR ARE REPEALED. THE TAXING POWER PLEDGED FOR THE PAYMENT OF ANY BONDS HERETOFORE ISSUED SHALL REMAIN UNIMPAIRED.

IN ANY SCHOOL DISTRICT WHICH EXTENDS INTO 2 OR MORE COUNTIES, THERE MAY BE LEVIED AND COLLECTED FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES THROUGHOUT THE DISTRICT PROPERTY TAXES AT THE HIGHEST RATE AVAILABLE IN THE YEARS 1957 THROUGH 1961 IN THE COUNTY WHICH CONTAINS THE GREATEST PART OF THE AREA OF THE DISTRICT.

Mr. Brake, chairman of the committee on finance and taxation, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 56:

This proposal continues the substance of the present 15 mill limit on property taxes now set forth in section 21 of article X. It is intended to eliminate the present competition between counties, townships and school districts for their share of the 15 mills, and to avoid diversion of voted millage by tax allocation boards to purposes not intended by the voters. It accomplishes this purpose by establishing separate tax limits for each taxing authority, giving each unit which has participated in the 15 mills the highest millage allocated to it during the 5 years ending December 31, 1961. Townships would receive a limit of not less than 1 mill. The aggregate unvoted millage may thus slightly exceed 15 mills in some taxing districts, but this is not considered significant in view of substantial voted millages in excess of the 15 mills in most areas.

As at present, the voters of any taxing district can vote additional millage, subject to the present 20 year limit and the overall 50 mill limit. Cities and villages are excepted, as at present, from the 15 mill limit, and the only limitation to which they will be subject is that established by charter or by vote of the people.

All electors may vote on millage increases for general purposes, but only property owners may vote on taxes to retire bond issues or for capital outlay.

Saving provisions are incorporated to protect present voted millage and outstanding bonds.

The final section, dealing with multicounty school districts, is intended to answer a problem involving 60 counties of this state. It provides that in any school district which crosses county lines, the tax limitation shall be that applicable in the portion of the school district situated in the county containing the largest portion of the school district.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair would ask the gentleman from Stanton, the chairman of the committee, how he wishes to divide this proposal for purposes of discussion; into paragraphs?

MR. BRAKE: I think so, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman is recognized on the first paragraph.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, if I may, I would like to make the explanation pretty generally on the whole thing first, and then take it up a paragraph at a time. This one is not so easy. But take a word of comfort: this is the last one coming from finance and taxation committee which, as far as we know, has any dynamite in it. This one has plenty.

In 1932, when we the people decided that we wanted to limit property taxes to 15 mills, we made necessary some machinery for determining who would get the 15 mills, and what the division would be as among the units of government entitled to that money. At first it was thought to include cities, if they cared to be under it, but more recently that has meant the townships, the school districts, and the counties. The answer that was given to that problem was the town and county tax allocation boards, which were supposed to review the budgets of these 3 units and then decide upon how the 15 mills would be divided, assuming, of course, that the 3 units together would ask for more than 15 mills.

It has been something that nobody has liked, particularly the good men and women who had the responsibility for making the determination on the tax allocation boards. There have been all kinds of charges, all kinds of dissatisfaction. The county government people have quite frequently claimed that the boards were loaded in favor of the schools; the school people have very commonly claimed that the boards were loaded in favor of the county government; and townships have generally felt that they were ignored no matter what their needs were, and I think in some instances that was probably true. There has been general dissatisfaction.

---

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

A great many remedies have been suggested for the situation, and many were suggested to the committee. Many people — and this has been the object of resolutions by boards of supervisors and other bodies around the state — called for a fixed millage to each of these 3 units statewide: maybe 6 to counties, 8 to schools and 1 to townships. The committee has not been able to see how that is possible, because of the variety of situations that you have in your counties. We have one county, St. Joseph county, in this state which this year is running on 3.6 mills. We have 2 or 3 counties, Gogebic and Keweenaw are included and possibly Kalkaska, which are getting 10 mills, and if they were shut down to 3 mills or 4 mills, we would have to board up the windows of the court house. We have not been able to see how it is possible to have a fixed millage throughout the state for these units.

We came up with approval of a suggestion made by — that is, the fundamentals of it, at least — made by the municipal league, which is a fixed millage but not fixed statewide. We fully understand that we are out in dangerous territory, that we are in territory where we are going to have criticism, where we are going to have questions; but, in our judgment, it is a better answer than the allocation boards and certainly a better answer than the fixed millage statewide. What we have come up with means a springing of the 15 mill limitation in most places by a little.

The proposal that we have before you for your action would let each of the 3 units — not taking the schools or the townships countywide but each by itself — have the highest millage that it has had in the 5 years of '57 through '61. The county, of course, would be countywide; whatever year of those 5 that had the most millage would be its fixed millage hereafter. Each school district would have the highest that it had in those 5 years and the township the same. Because of the fact that the townships were denied any millage very frequently, especially until the recent change in the law, we have put a minimum in of 1 mill for the townships. If they had more than that, that would still continue.

Now, that will add up in most counties to something more than 15 mills, because the high that each unit had would not occur always in the same year, generally would not occur in the same year, probably could not occur in the same year. Some years the county would be high, and other years some township might be high, and another year the schools would be high. So that when you add those figures together you may get 16 mills, you may get 16½ — generally not any more than that — but in a few instances as high as 18 mills. So it is springing the 15 mills to some extent.

Generally speaking, it is not increasing the dollar amounts because, in most places and in recent years, the need for the funds has been such that there has been voted millage on top of the allocated 15 millage. I think I gave here, or at least I gave in the committee, the fact that the voted millage for schools, last year, I believe, was the time I quoted, exceeded the unvoted millage. In other words, they raised more money, taking the whole state together, by millage that they voted than by millage allotted to them under the 15 mills.

Now, before Dean Doty jumps up and starts making a speech, I will admit that that included capital outlay millage, not just operation. There will be some opposition to the increase but, generally, it doesn't mean an increase in dollars.

It is rigid. We thought and considered for some time the possibility of a periodic review, maybe every 5 years, but the machinery for that seemed to be as difficult to assemble satisfactorily as the allocation boards had been, and our conclusion was that the voted millage would furnish sufficient leeway. Any unit finding that its allotted millage, fixed millage, is insufficient has the power, as it always has had, to vote additional millage either for operating or for capital outlay, outside of cities and villages, up to a total of 50 mills, the same limitation that we have had in the past.

Cities and villages or other charter units, where their millage is fixed by their own charters, would not have that limitation, as I understand the interpretation of the law is that they do not have that limitation at the present time.

Well, so much for that. We have had some adverse mail. We have had quite a lot that is favorable. Most of the unfavorable response has been from people who did not understand what we were trying to do, much of it on the basis that we were saying the average, the average millage of the last 5 years, which is not the case; we are suggesting the high millage.

Now, there is a difference that you will find down in the body of the proposal as to who may vote on increasing millage, and there we have a conflict with a proposal that has come out of the committee on rights, suffrage and elections. This matter of who may vote on increased millage is covered in 2 different places in the constitution. We did not care to quarrel with the committee on rights, suffrage and elections about what they put out, but what we put out is inconsistent with it and somewhere along the line either in style and drafting — I think overcoming inconsistencies is one of their functions — somewhere that difference will need to be reconciled. The proposal that came out of rights, suffrage and elections says that to vote on any increased millage the voter must have the same qualifications as on voting on bond issues. In other words, he must appear on the tax roll or be the husband or the wife of one who appears on the tax roll.

We have gone to the same extent in this proposal as to capital outlay millage, which is likely to be long term millage, but we have not gone to that extent on operating millage, which is likely to be short term millage. The basis for the difference is the thinking that a renter while he pays is actually paying taxes in his rent but, when you come to the long term proposition — generally, a 20 year proposal — there may be many successive renters in that same property in that period of time, so that we thought there should be a distinction.

At the very end of the proposal — and we are talking about the proposal as it was handed to you this morning — we have tried to meet a problem that has been a serious one with the school people ever since the 15 mill limitation was adopted. That is the problem of school districts overlapping into 2 or more counties. As you probably understand, at the present time those school districts have been held down to a millage that they could get in the low county.

We have proposed here that when that occurs the millage may be collected throughout the district which the district had available to it in the county in which lay the larger part of its area. Now we will use there, so that everybody understands it, the outstanding illustration, I think, that we had in the committee: the Scottville school district up in Mason county, which overlaps into Lake county and Oceana county. There was available in Mason county 9 mills for schools. There was available in Oceana county 8.8 mills for schools. But in Lake county there was only available 6 mills for schools, because that is a poor county financially in its assets, taxable property, and the county takes so much that 6 was all that the schools could get. Well, that meant that throughout that entire district — most of this was outside of Lake county — they could levy for school operating only 6 mills, and every year they had to vote the 3 extra mills by popular vote. The voters went with them, but sometime the voters might refuse and then the school district would be in a very serious situation.

There are 60 counties, 60 counties in which there are these overlapping districts and some of them have 3 or 4 or 5 all in the same county. We asked the department of public instruction if they had any solution. The only solution they suggested — and they were very hesitant about it, they didn't come over here and lobby, they waited until we asked them — was a straight millage all over the state, and that we think is entirely unworkable.

We believe we have here a reasonable answer, although it means an increase in the limitation for parts of those districts. We think it is the only reasonable answer that we can find and that the problem is so acute that we must have in this constitution an answer if we are going to have a millage limitation altogether.

Now, I think that gives you the general outline of what we propose. We know it is dynamite. We hope the debate won't run any more than 10 hours.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair would inquire of the committee chairman whether he requests unanimous consent to withdraw the original committee proposal and offer the substitute at this time.

MR. BRAKE: I forgot that, Mr. Chairman. I would like that consent.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, it will be so ordered, and the pending business before the committee will be the substitute for Committee Proposal 56 offered by Mr. Brake on behalf of the committee on finance and taxation.

Following is the substitute for Committee Proposal 56 as offered:

A proposal to limit the ad valorem taxation of property covering the subject matter of section 21, article X of the 1908 constitution, commonly known as the 15 mill limitation.

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. [The total amount of taxes assessed against property for all purposes in any one year shall not exceed 1½ per cent of the assessed valuation of said property, except taxes levied for the payment of interest and principal on obligations heretofore incurred, which sums shall be separately assessed in all cases: Provided, That this limitation may be increased for a period of not to exceed 20 years at any one time, to not more than a total of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation, by a majority vote of the electors of any assessing district, or when provided for by the charter of a municipal corporation: Provided further, That this limitation shall not apply to taxes levied in the year 1932.] EACH COUNTY, TOWNSHIP, SCHOOL DISTRICT OR OTHER TAXING AUTHORITY OF THE STATE SHALL HAVE POWER TO LEVY THE HIGHEST UNVOTED TAX RATE ON PROPERY, BASED ON THE STATE EQUALIZED VALUATION THEREOF, BUT IN THE CASE OF TOWNSHIPS NOT LESS THAN 1 MILL, ALLOCATED TO IT BETWEEN JANUARY 1, 1957, AND DECEMBER 31, 1961; BUT SHALL LEVY NO GENERAL AD VALOREM PROPERTY TAX IN EXCESS THEREOF, EXCEPT AS OTHERWISE PROVIDED IN THIS CONSTITUTION.

THE LEGISLATURE SHALL PROVIDE BY LAW A METHOD OF ESTABLISHING MAXIMUM UNVOTED TAX RATE LIMITATIONS FOR SCHOOL DISTRICTS AND TOWNSHIPS COMING INTO EXISTENCE AFTER JANUARY 1, 1962.

WHERE THIS LIMITATION APPLIES IT MAY BE INCREASED FOR NOT MORE THAN 20 YEARS FOR TAXES TO BE USED FOR THE PAYMENT OF PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ON BONDS OR FOR THE PURPOSE OF CAPITAL OUTLAY BY A MAJORITY VOTE OF THE ELECTORS OF THE TAXING DISTRICT WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO VOTE ON THE QUESTION OF ISSUING BONDS, VOTING THEREON AT ANY ELECTION. FOR ANY OTHER PURPOSE THE LIMITATION, WHERE IT APPLIES, MAY BE INCREASED FOR NOT MORE THAN 20 YEARS BY A MAJORITY VOTE OF THE ELECTORS OF THE TAXING DISTRICT VOTING THEREON AT ANY ELECTION. THIS LIMITATION SHALL NOT APPLY TO ANY CITY, VILLAGE, CHARTER TOWNSHIP OR OTHER CHARTER TAXING AUTHORITY TO WHICH A TAX RATE LIMITATION APPLIES PURSUANT TO ITS CHARTER.

THE AGGREGATE OF THE VOTED INCREASES IN GENERAL AD VALOREM PROPERTY TAXES LEVIED BY EVERY TAXING AUTHORITY SHALL NOT EXCEED 3.5 PER CENT ON STATE EQUALIZED VALUATION.

THIS LIMITATION SHALL NOT APPLY TO TAXES LEVIED FOR THE PAYMENT OF INTEREST AND PRINCIPAL ON OBLIGATIONS INCURRED PRIOR TO DECEMBER 8, 1932, WHICH SUMS SHALL BE SEPARATELY ASSESSED IN ALL CASES.

ALL INCREASES HERETOFORE VOTED OR PROVIDED PURSUANT TO SECTION 21 OF ARTICLE X OF THE CONSTITUTION OF 1908 SHALL STAND AS INCREASES HEREUNDER, AND AS SUCH SHALL REMAIN IN EFFECT UNTIL THEY EXPIRE OR ARE REPEALED. THE TAXING POWER PLEDGED FOR THE PAYMENT OF ANY BONDS HERETOFORE ISSUED SHALL REMAIN UNIMPAIRED.

IN ANY SCHOOL DISTRICT WHICH EXTENDS INTO 2 OR MORE COUNTIES, THERE MAY BE LEVIED AND COLLECTED FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES THROUGHOUT THE DISTRICT PROPERTY TAXES AT THE HIGHEST RATE AVAILABLE IN THE YEARS 1957 THROUGH 1961 IN THE COUNTY WHICH CONTAINS THE GREATEST PART OF THE AREA OF THE DISTRICT.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Port Huron, Mr. Staiger.

MR. STAIGER: I would like to just back up for a minute and go through the process that our committee went through on this. One, we first had the question if a tax limitation at all on property or a millage limitation was desirable. We first determined, and I believe it was unanimous — we will have somebody standing up if it wasn't; but my recollection was that we did decide unanimously that a property tax limitation of some type was desirable, the reason being for this, I think, that basically a property tax is not the most equitable type of tax, as we all realize. In the long run, we doubt that a limitation is desirable so that a means of taxation other than property will be used.

Once we determined that, then the next question we got to was: what is the best way to handle limitations? Now, the present 15 mill puts a limitation on 3 units of government — all within the same limitation. That is, townships, counties and school districts. The problem then is how do you allocate between those 3.

We looked at the history of home rule cities where they had a separate limitation for their single unit of government. By statute a home rule city can pass a charter giving a property limitation up to 20 mills. Charters vary all the way from 20 on down to 10 mills for cities; but, by having one limitation on each unit of government, you get away, first, from the problem of how you are going to divide the overall limitation of millage. The second question that you do get away from, at least within the county, is the question of variable millage where one unit where they overlap needs more millage, and then this means that across the board the other units have to suffer. For instance, in a county if one township were to ask for 1 mill and the other townships didn't want it, there has to be some "give" there to stay within the 15 mills for the other units of government. This can mean that the county all the way across the board is only able to levy 1 less mill — or the school districts that are in the township are only able to levy 1 less mill just because one township wants it.

Now, we approached this thinking that it would be more reasonable, if we were going to have a limitation — which we felt was desirable — to put it on each single unit of government.

Going from there, as Mr. Brake said, we looked first to see if we could put a certain millage on counties across the board, another one on townships, and another one on schools. This wasn't possible, as he said, because some counties now need, apparently, from their allocation boards up to 10 mills; others are way down in the 3 point some odd per cent millage. There is a wide variance of need.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

We decided that the reasonable thing to do was to capitalize on the experience of the allocation boards that has been hammered out over the years, take what they had decided in their local areas was the millage that was needed for these units, give them the high of the last 5 years for each unit and say, "This is your millage for each unit."

From there on each unit — the school district will know what its unvoted millage limitation is, the township will know, the county will know, and the issue will be strictly or directly with the people in that area. They will realize that they have this unvoted millage; if they need more, then they will have to go to the people for it. They can increase their millage by a vote of the people.

Now again, this is not a mandate to spend, so to speak, the total millage. Certainly if the needs of a county decrease, this does not mean that they have to spend the total millage that is being given to them. Certainly, under our elected representative process, the millage that is levied would and should be cut down.

One other problem that comes up indirectly is that some units — for instance, in many areas it is the schools — when the schools are given a certain millage, they then go to the — if this is not sufficient, they are forced to go for voted millage to the people. They have this millage voted then only to find next year that they have lost part of it in the allocation back to the counties or the townships.

This will place each unit of government squarely representing its people in its area with responsibility for the taxes to be levied within that unit.

Now, it is quite a change, as you can see, and is going to cause some adjustment. It is going to go above the 15 mills in some areas.

This would depend on if there has been any variation in the last — or in this 5 year period of the millage in your area. If the allocation board has been stable during that period, then you will be at the 15 mills, except if the township doesn't get 1, hadn't been getting 1, it may go up to 16 mills.

The best information we can get on this is the highest that there will be would be 18 or slightly under 18 mills given a certain combination of township, school district, and county that a person lives in. Most of them, from the information we have been able to gather, will be considerably below that and, as I say, only the 15 mills in most areas.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: I think in compliance with the suggestion of the committee chairman, the secretary will read the substitute proposal by paragraphs and the amendments will be accepted in that order. If an amendment should cover more than one paragraph, the Chair suggests that that amendment be offered at the time when the entire proposal has been read by paragraphs and the request is made if there are amendments to the body of the proposal.

The secretary will read the first paragraph covering lines 16 through 22 on page 1.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section a.

[Paragraph 1 of the substitute was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 915.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: For what purpose does the gentleman from Fennville arise?

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I arise in order to ask Mr. Staiger, if he is the one who is handling the proposition on the floor, a question. I would then like to state the question, Mr. Chairman. With reference to this phrase "unvoted tax rate" — unvoted taxes — we are mindful of the fact that in recent years school districts have been able to bond and if the bonds are for more than 25 years and so on they don't need to increase the 15 mill limitation in order to provide the millage with which to meet the bonds. So here is some extra unvoted millage. Does this unvoted millage enter into the picture? It is unvoted millage.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman has yielded.

MR. STAIGER: I am not sure that I have your question correctly. Is it unvoted millage that has not been allocated to them by the allocation board?

MR. HUTCHINSON: No, it hasn't but — under the provisions of the present constitution and the law — the school district has gone to its property taxpayers and voters and asked them to bond the district, and they voted to bond the district and they issued the bonds for more than 25 year maturity, and, under the present constitution, it is not necessary for that school district to go to the people and ask them to increase the 15 mill limitation. The school district has the power, the school board has the power to levy whatever mills are necessary in order to pay off the bonds as they mature and the interest and so on. This is completely outside the 15 mills. It is unvoted millage. Admittedly, it isn't allocated, but the wording of the proposal here doesn't indicate that it has to be allocated to them by the allocation board. It is unvoted millage.

I raise the question seeking clarification, trying to point out a problem here where, perhaps, the committee of the whole may have to refine this language.

MR. STAIGER: Mr. Van Dusen will answer that one.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Fennville yield to the gentleman from Birmingham?

MR. HUTCHINSON: I yield; I do, indeed.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Hutchinson, the 2 key words are "unvoted" and "allocated", because this is not intended to refer in any sense to the unlimited taxing power which school districts have in support of bonds under the provisions of sections 28 and 27 of the present article X, which we have continued by previous action of this committee in this convention. This limitation refers only to unvoted millage allocated to the taxing authority during the 5 year period in question.

I think it is reasonably clear, Mr. Hutchinson, when you take it all of a piece. This language as contained in the substitute committee proposal has been reviewed by the attorney general's office and by bond counsel, and they pronounce it reasonably free from ambiguity.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would say that it would be even more reasonably free of ambiguity, then, if we made reference to the allocation in the amount of 15 mills.

I don't offer such an amendment to that effect at this time. I think, though, that if what is clearly intended is that you are talking about the unvoted millage allocated out of the 15 mill total, then that is what we should say.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, that is what is intended and, in view of the fact that the distinguished Senator Hutchinson sits on the committee on style and drafting, I think we can leave it to him to take care of it at the appropriate time.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The secretary will report the first amendment to this paragraph.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Turner, Howes, Dean Doty, Davis and Haskill offer the following amendment to this section:

1. Amend lines 6 through 16 by reinserting the stricken language which reads:

"The total amount of taxes assessed against property for all purposes in any one year shall not exceed 1½ per cent of the assessed valuation of said property, except taxes levied for the payment of interest and principal on obligations heretofore incurred, which sums shall be separately assessed in all cases: Provided, That this limitation may be increased for a period of not to exceed 20 years at any one time, to not more than a total of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation, by a majority vote of the electors of any assessing district, or when provided for by the charter of a municipal corporation: Provided further, That this limitation shall not apply to taxes levied in the year 1932.".

MR. VAN DUSEN: A point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I thought, Mr. Chairman, we had generally agreed that an amendment which was going to completely replace the committee proposal would be acted upon last. The amendment which the secretary just read would be a complete substitute for the committee proposal, and I would just like to suggest, if the sponsors of the amendment would have no objection, that we go through the committee proposal and perfect it first before considering the reinstatement of the present constitutional language.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is the pending amendment intended to strike out all of the committee proposal thereafter?

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary, I beg your pardon, failed to read the amendment in its entirety. It is as follows:

1. Amend page 1, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the page and on page 2 by striking out lines 1 through 25, and reinserting:

"The total amount of taxes assessed against property for all purposes in any one year shall not exceed 1½ per cent of the assessed valuation of said property, except taxes levied for the payment of interest and principal on obligations heretofore incurred, which sums shall be separately assessed in all cases: Provided, That this limitation may be increased for a period of not to exceed 20 years at any one time, to not more than a total of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation, by a majority vote of the electors of any assessing district, or when provided for by the charter of a municipal corporation: Provided further, That this limitation shall not apply to taxes levied in the year 1932."; and on page 2, line 28, after "available" by striking out "in the years 1957 through 1961".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: I think the point of order is well taken, and if the sponsors have no objection we will proceed with the proposal on a paragraph by paragraph basis and then the Turner amendment will be accepted when amendments are in order to the body of the proposal.

Are there any amendments to the first paragraph of the substitute for the committee proposal? If not, the secretary will read paragraph 2, which is lines 1 through 3 on page 2.

SECRETARY CHASE: Page 2, line 1:

[Paragraph 2 was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 915.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to paragraph 2 of the substitute for the committee proposal? If not, the secretary will read paragraph 3, lines 4 through 14 on page 2.

SECRETARY CHASE: Line 4:

[Paragraph 3 was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 915.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Mr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, as the chairman, Mr. Brake, indicated, the committee on rights, suffrage and elections gave careful consideration to the question of voting in elections involved here. We have come up with a definitive recommendation including a change. It is a divided committee and there is a minority report on it. I think it would waste the time of the committee to discuss this matter here. I don't know what the proper parliamentary procedure is, but I suggest that the language here accord with the language which we later decide upon when our proposal is before the committee. It would seem to me that that could be done, and we will then be debating an election matter within the frame of reference of elections rather than finance.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will have to advise the gentleman from Ann Arbor that the only issue before the committee of the whole is the language which the secretary has just read and would suggest that the committee of the whole act on this language, and then if the proposal is referred to style and drafting together with another proposal containing dissimilar language that that committee is the proper one to resolve the discrepancy.

Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Well, Mr. Chairman, I agree certainly with Dr. Pollock that these 2 must harmonize, and I am not at all fussy about which time we do it. We can pass this if it is agreeable to the delegates of the convention with the understanding that the final determination will be made when Dr. Pollock's proposal comes before us, and if it is different than we have we will make the amendment on second reading or whenever it is convenient to do so.

MR. POLLOCK: That is agreeable to me, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If there are no amendments to the third paragraph of the committee substitute proposal, the secretary will read paragraph 4, lines 15 through 17 on page 2.

SECRETARY CHASE: Page 2, line 15:

[Paragraph 4 was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 915.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is the gentleman from Birmingham seeking recognition?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Only for the purpose of a brief explanation, Mr. Chairman. I think it perhaps ought to be made clear that, of course, the present 15 mill limit is broken down into two parts: there is a total of 50 mills, of which 15 is unvoted and 35 is voted, and this simply continues that 35 mill voted limit increase.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If there are no amendments to the fourth paragraph of the committee proposal, the secretary will read the fifth paragraph, lines 18 through 20 on page 2.

SECRETARY CHASE: Line 18:

[Paragraph 5 was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 915.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Birmingham.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Perhaps a brief explanation is also in order here, Mr. Chairman. This simply is designed to preserve the taxing power which is devoted to some very old bond issues of which there are still a few outstanding which will not mature until 1965.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If there are no amendments to the fifth paragraph of the committee proposal, the secretary will read the sixth paragraph, lines 21 through 25 on page 2.

SECRETARY CHASE: Line 21:

[Paragraph 6 was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 915.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Birmingham.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Here again, Mr. Chairman, a brief explanation. This is simply a saving provision just designed to protect all currently voted increases in effect in support of bond issues or otherwise.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If there are no amendments to the sixth paragraph of the committee proposal, the secretary will read the seventh paragraph, line 26 on page 2, through line 2 on page 3.

SECRETARY CHASE: Line 26:

[Paragraph 7 was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 915.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If there are no amendments to the seventh paragraph of the committee proposal, are there any amendments to the body of the proposal? The secretary will read the pending amendment offered by the gentleman from Saginaw and others.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Turner and others offer the following amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 916.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Saginaw, Mr. Turner, in support of his amendment.

MR. TURNER: Mr. Chairman, I wish to speak in favor of this amendment.

The committee proposal does not make sense to me. First, it gives 1 mill to townships whether they need it or not. It awards those areas that just happen to raise their millage for some reason in the last 5 years and penalizes those in areas that have tried to hold their millage at a lower figure.

In Committee Proposal 56 we find that the judgments of the allocation boards of this state have been used to set the future base of the local units of government, but the only purpose of this proposal I can find is to do away with these same adjusters of local tax problems.

I find that there are 19 counties that levy over 7 mills, some are at 10 mills and, also, I find that some of these counties have not been equalized by the state tax commission in the last 10 or 12 years. I find that 4 have not been visited for 16 years. I cannot find anyone that can prove to me that we are not opening the gates to higher taxes on these properties.

We speak of limitations in the constitution. I believe in some limitation. I wouldn't want to drive my car if it had no limiting device incorporated in it. The 15 mill limitation does not prohibit but it does bring the question of a millage increase directly before the people. Believe me, I didn't come down here with the idea of increasing property taxes. I urge you to retain the 15 mill limitation.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Onondaga, Mr. Davis.

MR. DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I, too, wish to support this amendment. I might say that this general area is one in which our committee on finance and taxation has given considerable thought and time. This is one of these decisions, I think, which, like most committees have experienced, was very close. I cannot recall now how many times we had to vote in order to secure 11 favorable votes upon this matter.

I would like to compliment Mr. Brake upon his very objective talk relative to this matter as he presented the majority report from the committee.

I would like to add just a word to what Mr. Turner has said, in this respect, that I think that concern over the high level of property taxes in this state is both genuine and justifiable.

Now, I am not going to attempt to discuss the effectiveness or the ineffectiveness of the 15 mill limitation amendment, because I think that the 15 mill limitation amendment as such is well understood by the delegates within that committee.

I recognize that to those people particularly living in cities this is perhaps a relatively unimportant matter.

I might suggest that at one time in the deliberations during the formative period of our proposal which came out of this taxation committee, I made the suggestion that I was willing to remove the 15 mill limitation amendment if we were going in the direction of removing some of the restrictions from our present article X and to open this matter up, and I did so not without some pain, not because I think the 15 mill limitation is particularly good. The fact is, I don't think it really in some instances amounts to too much, and I don't have to read that out of books, I can look at my tax receipts, and that does it — however, I point out the fact that this particular substitute of the majority committee proposal is not headed in this direction. This retains a more rigid restriction than we have in our present constitution.

I am going to be brief here, but I am going to suggest a few reasons as to why I believe it preferable to return, as long as we are going in this direction, to the 15 mill limitation amendment. In the first place, the 15 mill limitation amendment is more flexible. It does allow by the use of the allocation board for adjustment at a local level. I recognize that in many instances there are arguments on allocation boards and that sometimes that is phrasing it too mildly; nevertheless, in my judgment, the work of the allocation board is not entirely bad.

I talked the other day with some of the people across the street over here, who are particularly knowledgeable in this matter and are familiar with it, and they said that while they recognized there were areas of opposition, in their judgment the allocation boards as such in the state of Michigan had been functioning in a very good manner generally speaking.

The third point which I would make is this. The people did vote for the 15 mill limitation amendment. The 15 mill limitation amendment is psychologically meaningful to many people in this state, and its removal will be viewed with concern by many.

I suggest that the amendment does provide for one of the problems for which we were seeking a solution in the committee by adding to the 15 mill limitation amendment the paragraph at the end which does provide for the problems which these fractional school districts have had in our state.

But this point is one in this connection which I consider quite important. The 15 mill limitation amendment is understood.

Questions have been raised relative to this committee report. They have been legitimate questions, and I am not going into all of these, but it would be less than truthful to say that we have been engaged in some problems in finding answers to some of these; and so, in conclusion, I am going to say this, that when we weigh the balances, weigh this matter in the balances, in my judgment it is preferable to return to the 15 mill limitation amendment and keep it in our constitution than to go to this substitute which is offered in the majority committee report.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Petoskey, Mr. Spitler.

MR. SPITLER: I wanted to ask if this amendment was simply returning to the old provision that was in the old constitution. I believe that has been answered that it does return to the old one; is that right, Mr. Davis?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields the floor to the gentleman from Onondaga.

MR. DAVIS: Mr. Chairman and Delegate Spitler, this does replace the 15 mill limitation amendment which is in our present constitution, as written now, with the addition of the paragraph at the end of the majority report which provides for this exception in the case of fractional school districts, and that particular wording, I think, is quite self explanatory and it is in the majority committee report.

MR. SPITLER: Well, then, I would like to support to a large extent what Mr. Davis has said here. I am in sympathy with what the taxation and finance committee has attempted to do. I know some of the problems that are involved as far as an allocation board is concerned, perhaps as much as anyone in this delegation here. I have dealt with allocation boards from the time they were formed until about 3 years ago, and I have sympathy for the members who have served on these allocation boards. They have a real problem and it has created a problem within all of our communities. It has set county against school district, school district against county, and feelings have been very, very tense at times. Anything that could do away with the county allocation boards and could solve the question — I would be very much in favor of it.

I certainly want to approve what the committee has done here in its effort to do away with them; however, I think there are some limitations, and I think Mr. Brake has indicated those in the explanation of it at the beginning of the presentation.

We have counties that have received as low as 3 mills. We have counties that have received as high as 10 mills. We have schools that have received as low as 3 mills. We have had school districts that have received as high as 11 plus millage. The unfortunate part of that is that those school districts that have been receiving the high millage are the wealthy school districts. If they are in a county where the valuation is high, then the county needs to levy a small millage in order to take care of the county expenses and, as a result, that school district may get a high millage.

But in the counties — and we have many of them in the northern part of the state and in the upper peninsula — and I would say to you people who are from the upper peninsula that you had better consider this very carefully, where you have those mines that may not be operating — in the northern part of the state where we have counties of low valuation, it has been necessary for the county — at least, they have thought so — to spend a large millage, and, as a result, the school districts had a very small millage.

We had this problem on the allocation boards, as Mr. Brake has indicated. There are some county allocation boards that are county minded. There are some county allocation boards that are school minded, and the amount of millage that they have been allocated over the last 4 or 5 years doesn't in many cases indicate the need of either the school district or the county, and we are freezing the school district at 3 mills or the county at 3 mills if that was the top millage that they had during the last 5 years. If the top millage that a school had was 11 mills and a county was 10 mills, we are freezing them at that 10 or 11 mills. You say they can vote extra millage. They can, but if that is done then you are exceeding the 15 mills by that much more.

There are other things that enter into this. Two or 3 school districts combine, organize a new school district. How is that to be covered? Also, if a school district annexes a township or a section of the county, if they have different millages, how are they to be covered? Not in different counties.

Then, there is still another where a large industry moves into a township or a county or a school district, or a large industry that has been operating within a school district or a township moves out and the valuation changes by millions of dollars in just a few days.

I would have to oppose this amendment because I feel that there are too many complications in it. I wish that I could go along with it, because it does remove the allocation board which presents a problem, but I am afraid that in removing that problem we are entering into so many more problems that we just cannot take care of them.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Copemish, Mr. Howes.

MR. HOWES: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I have up to this point in this convention supported the proposals of our taxation and finance committee almost 100 per cent. I believe we have approved many sections that have been improved by this convention, which will more justly apply our tax laws and improve the financial situation and business climate of the state of Michigan, but this proposal to rigidly set the amount of millage which each department of government can use without a vote of the people, I cannot support.

In our committee hearings and from many other sources, we have been urged to give more flexibility in the management of funds than we have had before, and this we have tried to do. This proposal instead of giving us more flexibility would take all the flexibility which we have now from us at the county level by removing the allocation board and setting a rigid amount for the schools, counties and townships forever in our constitution.

I have served both as president of the school board and as chairman of the county board of supervisors, so that I hope and I believe I am looking at this proposal in fairness and without bias. I believe this proposal is supported by some county people and some school people who feel that they have not fared as they themselves felt that they should have at the hands of their local allocation board. I believe that in the great majority of cases the local county allocation boards have been fair and impartial in their work.

I see nothing in the 15 mill limitation which would prohibit the legislature from dividing the 15 mills among the units of government and abolishing the allocation board at any time that it deemed wise, and I say the authority to do this should be left with the legislature and not be frozen for all time in our constitution. The only thing which has been done here which the legislature could not have already done if it deemed wise is to change the section so that it can no longer be called the 15 mill limitation.

It has been said that the delegates here might far better be color blind than not to be able to tell a good law from a bad one, and I urge you now to take a good, long look at the color of this one before you help to write this complicated strait jacket into our constitution in place of our 15 mill limitation with its flexibility of funds governed by the county allocation boards.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Ledge, Mr. Doty.

MR. DEAN DOTY: Mr. Chairman, we have been moving along at a comparatively rapid rate here and I would like to see it continue. My chairman wants to finish this section tonight and I am anxious to help him do it.

I just want to read briefly here the law as it applies to allocation boards:

> Each local unit as defined in this act shall prepare each year a budget containing an itemized statement of its proposed expenditures and estimated revenues covering all its departments and activities. Such budget shall cover that fiscal year for the local unit the expenditures in which year are to be met wholly or partly from the next tax levy. Items of proposed capital outlay, items for the payment of interest and principal on obligations incurred — and it goes on with the requirements of the allocation board in explanation of their budget. Then it goes on with the duties in the allocation of the millage:

> If the board shall find that the total of all such taxes which would be required to be levied on property located within the area of any local unit exceeds the net limitation, it shall proceed accordingly.

Now I jump a portion of this and it says:

> The board shall divide the balance of the net limitation tax rate between all the local units after due consideration of the needs of the several local units and the importance to the public of functions of local units which might have to be curtailed.

Now in conjunction with this, I would like to point out in my own county that this has been the case. The county has gone from 5¾ up to 6¼ and back to 5.6, 5.8, and down to 5¼. There has been a definite trend here to work according to the budgets submitted to the allocation board.

I am very much concerned about the allocation boards' duty to review these budgets, and we propose later for a public hearing on these budgets. I am very much in favor of it. It will be coming up next. But I still feel we need this allocation board to study them and study them carefully.

Now, with all due respect to our chairman, who referred to the importance of earmarked funds and what they meant to the people, I repeat that the 15 mills means something to the people. With due respect to all the members of our committee who have been looking for flexibility, I repeat: there is flexibility with an allocation board that will not exist when these figures are frozen into the constitution. I think that the efforts of the committee have been well meant. I recognize what they are trying to accomplish, but I am afraid that the problems we will run into will be greater than the problems that we had with the 15 mill limitation and the allocation boards.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Romeo, Mr. Rush.

MR. RUSH: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I was away the day that this vote came up in committee and I was very much pleased at the decision the committee made. I felt that we had made a step to do something really constructive. I think it is a step in the right direction.

I have talked to many people in my home district. I have served on county boards of education, the local board of education, and I am now on the welfare board; so I should probably be inclined to view this as fairly as anyone, because I can see both sides of it, the county's needs and the school's needs.

I would like to say this for my friend, Carl Spitler, who is concerned about what may happen to the schools. I have seen this happen where schools have gone to the people for extra millage only to find that next year the allocation board would give away part of that millage to the other units of government. I think this is a protection for the schools. I think it is a step in the right direction.

Now, in regards to the new districts that somebody mentioned, that is treated in the first paragraph at the top of page 2. It provides for the legislature to take care of a newly formed district; so that the rigidity that they speak of is not going to treat any new district unfairly. Frankly, I think this is a step in the right direction.

Also, I would like to say that I have the figures from our county and the increase is only a fraction over the 15 mills. The highest millage, taking the 5 year highs for the 3 units of government, would only come to 15.48 mills.

I know in some areas it would come a little larger than that, but I think we can afford to give a little bit on the 15 mills in order to accomplish what this does.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I talked about this kind of a solution to the problems which we have had with friction between the various units of government in Kent county over the activities of the allocation board. I talked to various people who were involved in some of that friction during the campaign, and it was my impression that this type of solution that is proposed here would be most welcome to those various units and that it provides them a flexibility which they do not have at the present time, and particularly would relieve the situation involved in the constant squabble and struggle over who gets what portion of this 15 mills.

It seems to me the committee has done an admirable job of working out a better solution than the one we have now and that this is a good provision, one that is well worth putting into the constitution in place of the old provision which is proposed to be reinstated by Mr. Turner's amendment. I therefore would support the committee's position.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Stanton, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I had hoped that we could finish all of the finance committee's proposals tonight, but I find we have conflicts — something else has been set — so I move the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the motion that the committee shall rise. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed?

The committee rises.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain items on the general orders calendar of which the secretary will give a detailed report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 52, A proposal with reference to the taxation of certain utilities, covering the material in article X, section 5 of the 1908 constitution. It reports this proposal back to the convention with an amendment thereto, recommending the amendment be agreed to and the proposal, as thus amended, do pass.

[The following is the amendment recommended by the committee of the whole:

1. Amend page 1, line 8, after "state" by striking out "tax commission"; and in line 12, after "state" by striking out "tax commission".]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on agreeing to the amendment as proposed by the committee. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is agreed to.

Committee Proposal 52, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 52 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The legislature may provide by law for the assessment by the state of the property whose ad valorem taxes are reserved to state aid for public education by section 1 of this article X, and of such other property as the legislature may designate, and for the levy and collection of taxes thereon. Property assessed by the state shall be assessed at the same proportion of its true cash value as the legislature shall specify for property subject to general ad valorem taxation, and the rate of taxation on such property shall be the average rate levied upon other property under the general ad valorem tax law, or, if the legislature shall so provide, the rate of tax applicable to the property of each business enterprise so taxed shall be the average rate of ad valorem taxation levied upon other property in all counties in which any of said property is situated.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole, Mr. President, has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 53, A proposal to require that every tax law shall distinctly describe the tax, covering article X, section 6 of the present constitution; Committee Proposal 54, A proposal that the power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended, or contracted away, covering the material in article X, section 9 of the present constitution; and Committee Proposal 55, A proposal to include article X, section 19 of the 1908 constitution in the new constitution. It reports these 3 proposals back to the convention without amendment and with the recommendation that they do pass.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Committee Proposals 53, 54 and 55 are referred to the committee on style and drafting.

For Committee Proposal 53 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 911.

For Committee Proposal 54 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 912.

For Committee Proposal 55 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 912.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole, Mr. President, has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 56, and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on executive branch will meet in room C, tomorrow at 1:00 o'clock p.m. John Martin, chairman.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet in room I, tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. Richard Van Dusen, chairman.

Mr. Norris requests excuse from tomorrow morning's session, and Mr. McAllister requests leave of absence from the session of next Monday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection they will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the items on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

We are adjourned until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

[Whereupon, at 5:45 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 9:30 o'clock a.m., Friday, February 9, 1962.]

SEVENTY-SIXTH DAY

Friday, February 9, 1962, 9:30 o'clock a.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this morning will be given by the Reverend Charles E. Jacobs, of the Epworth Methodist Church, of Saginaw. Will you please rise.

REVEREND JACOBS: Let us pray. Eternal God, our heavenly Father, Thou who are the supreme ruler of us all. At the beginning of this day, we humbly bow in Thy presence. Because of Thee, far reaching values and consequences are the product of this day. We are conscious of our need of Thy help. Thou art the God of righteousness and of justice. Thou art full of wisdom and we, being human, have limitations. May righteousness and justice prevail. Endow the members of this convention with right understanding and noble purpose. Enable them in all of their deliberations today to rise above all self seeking and party zeal into the larger sentiments of public good and of human brotherhood. Because of the great possibilities both for good and for evil in this our day, we recognize the need of wisdom in this hour.

We appreciate so much the beauties of our great state and that which we share together that makes for so much of good and we desire its preservation. So grant to this body, we pray, wisdom in laying the foundations for a future that will be happy and productive of all human good. So endow each one with particular wisdom and with a sense of brotherhood that they need today. May Thy blessing rest upon this august body, in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior, we ask it. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted?

PRESIDENT NISBET: I'm glad to see the lights go on more rapidly. Please vote if you are here.

SECRETARY CHASE: The machine is locked, and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Absent with leave: Messrs. Anspach, Barthwell, Bledsoe, Faxon, Habermehl, Leibrand, Norris and Stamm.

Absent without leave: Mr. Marshall and Mr. Wilkowski.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates are excused.

[During the proceedings, Mr. Norris entered the chamber and took his seat.]

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no communications.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no resolutions on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day. The Chair recognizes Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of certain items on the general orders calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Bentley. All in favor say aye. Those opposed?

The motion prevails. Mr. Bentley.

[Whereupon, Mr. Bentley assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The committee will be in order.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole last evening had under consideration Committee Proposal 56, A proposal to limit the ad valorem taxation of property covering the subject matter of section 21, article X of the 1908 constitution, commonly known as the 15 mill limitation.

An amendment to the proposal had been offered by Mr. Turner and others.

For last previous action by the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 56, see above, page 915. For text of pending amendment, see above, page 916.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Stanton, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, the 4 gentlemen from the committee who yesterday presented the amendment have laid down the issue very clearly: whether or not we wish to continue with the 15 mill limitation as we have had it, or whether we wish to try the new plan submitted by the majority of the committee.

Mr. Turner mentioned one thing that I think I must answer — the question of a township that gets the millage under the new plan if it doesn't need it. There are very few such townships. If they need nothing else, they need some money for their local roads. Some of them have been generously stepping aside in favor of the schools, even when they had a legitimate need for themselves. There may be some hereafter who have that same attitude, but the machinery is already there. While their declining to take their 1 mill would not give it to the schools, they have the statutory power to turn over township money from the contingent fund to schools. True, it takes a vote of the people, not just of the township board; but the machinery is already established.

When you come to look at the 15 mill limitation as we have had it, just about everything is wrong with it that you could have wrong. In the first place, it "ain't what it used to be." It doesn't mean what it was intended to be used for. One justice of the supreme court, in a rather recent decision, said that it had been chipped away until there was practically nothing left; and it has been primarily the supreme court that has been doing the chipping away.

When we wrote that into the constitution, we said 15 mills on assessed valuation. Now, those were not unknown words. We had used the term assessed valuation for generations. We thought we knew what they meant. But in the course of time the supreme court said, "You didn't know what you were talking about when you said assessed value. You didn't mean assessed value, you meant state equalized value." So just at one stroke the 15 mill limitation became about a 30 mill limitation. And so the process has been going on, with different units taking out from under it.

The committee on finance and taxation has leaned to the conservative side. We think that is the proper leaning for a committee on finance and taxation. On everything else that we have proposed to you we feel that we have been on pretty safe ground. In this instance, we have gone farther out into the experimental field than we have on any other proposal that we have suggested. We think we have offered an improvement on the 15 mill limitation.

But the issue is perfectly clear for your decision. It's the 15 mill limitation, or it's something which admittedly will not be 100 per cent perfect, but in the judgment of the committee is better than what we have.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair wishes to announce that when the committee rose yesterday the following gentlemen were seeking recognition and, without objection, will be recognized in this order: the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth; the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Yeager; the gentleman from Charlevoix, Mr. Shanahan; the gentleman from Traverse City, Mr. Sleder; the gentleman from Lapeer, Mr. Haskill; and the gentleman from Marshall, Mr. Hatch.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. First, I have a stop watch in my hand I'm going to give to Bob Hodges. And time me, Bob, as I don't want to spend over 5 minutes. But I do have something to say about these 2 proposals that are before us now.

I would like to make it clear from the start that I'm speaking in favor of the amendment which is a substitute for the committee proposal. That of course is not an easy position to take, because it's always easier to go along with the committee recommendation, as all of you know.

But in this case I think we should quite clearly analyze what the 2 of them would do for us. So if you would just think with me for a moment. The committee certainly had a tough job. I was in their committee room at the time they were trying to make some of these decisions, and they were having a tough time even getting a vote so that they could come out on the floor with something. We all appreciate that.

Now, it seems to me they were objective. Their aim was, first, to have an effective limitation on millage, quite similar to what we had before, and they have accomplished that. And they were endeavoring to do that and at the same time dispense with the controversial tax allocation board.

Now, I think that the committee report, as against the amendment, accomplishes these 2 things. I have no argument at all with the very slight difference between the committee report's limitation and the former 15 mill limitation. The millage is so slight in so few areas that no one can take exception to that, and I certainly would agree with Mr. Brake that the thing is not very effective anyway.

Now, both reports — both the proposed amendment and the committee report — are a distinct improvement in the one regard, in clearing up this thing of fractional school districts going over to another county. That certainly is sound and workable, and makes good sense. It is included in both of these choices that are before us.

As I see it, then, we get down to this. The committee report, as it was mentioned yesterday, certainly freezes the millage allocation to the units of government. Mr. Brake has discussed this briefly with me, and he admits — and he doesn't like this feature of it, I know — but he simply said, I believe, "We just haven't found any way to subject this thing to review."

So, admittedly, it freezes the allocation to the highest that unit of government had in a base 5 year period. Now, I want to say to you folks this morning that that not only freezes that, but, brother, it deep freezes it! You couldn't have frozen it any more solid if you had buried it at the north pole. That's there for all time until you change it with a constitutional amendment.

Now, that being the objective — to do away with the allocation board, plus the limitation — I submit to you that the old language we had does a better job of it. And I say it for this reason. If you want to get away from the allocation board, the only thing you have to do, in my opinion, is to go to the legislature and say to them: now, look, we have an argument about this thing every year, which we don't like. So would you please pass a law for us that says we are going to take a 5 year base, and we are going to take the highest millage that we had in any one of those 5 years, and that will be it. But in 5 years from now we would like to come back and review it with an allocation board.

I think then, Mr. Brake, you might have the flexibility you would like to have. Use the same language you have, use the same limitation, but instead of going to your allocation board every year, say to them, we're going to have it every 5 years or every 10. But don't deep freeze. Just don't deep freeze that allocation to the particular units.

I would certainly have to support the old language, which is the amendment, because I think it is much more flexible by statute.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to address a question to Mr. Brake. Under the committee report — and I believe this is repetition — it provides that the millage is decided for each of the 3 units, and it is arrived at by taking the highest in a defined 5 year base period. And as a result, I believe you stated yesterday that the total millage for some areas could go to 18 mills. Would this additional 3 mills have anything to do with the 50 mill total limitation? In other words, would some areas be entitled to say 53 mills under this, because the proposal, the majority report, on page 2, lines 15 through 17, says, "The aggregate of the voted increases in general ad valorem property taxes levied by every taxing authority shall not exceed 3.5 per cent"?

MR. BRAKE: You're right, I think, Mr. Yeager. I think it would be possible, because it's 3.5 above the voted millage. However, that is not, as we view it, a serious thing. The places that are exceeding the 50 mills are cities, where their charter fixes that at 20 mills, for instance, and then they go on up from there. I wouldn't think there would be, frequently, a place where the 50 mills would be reached, outside of an incorporated city. And there are only a very few places, as I understand it, in the state, where it would go to the extent of 18 plus 3.5. Generally it would be 16 or 16¼, right along in there.

MR. YEAGER: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Charlevoix, Mr. Shanahan.

MR. SHANAHAN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, others before me have very eloquently expressed what I had in mind when I originally asked for recognition. I do favor the amendment.

Mr. Farnsworth has mentioned what I was going to mention about freezing the 15 mills in such a way that it would literally require a constitutional amendment to let any particular local unit change the allocation within the 15 mills, and it would not be uniform throughout the state at all.

I'm against it also because it does further fracture the 15 mill limitation. It is a little protection to the property owner, but this would further erode this particular bit of protection. And I cannot see a reason for shifting a local responsibility — I'm talking about the allocation board right now — to the constitution, simply because the allocation board has a difficult job. I don't believe that anybody is required to run for the office that eventually puts him on the allocation board. That is one of the things he does have to assume if he wants the office that he holds. So I will just conclude by saying that I very strongly favor the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Traverse City, Mr. Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: I would like to address my fellow delegates in opposition to the amendment. I feel we are missing one point in the amendment in reestablishing an allocation board. With the use of an allocation board dividing the 15 mills, we develop a contest between the board of supervisors and the school districts. And then we take 3 members off from each one of these teams and select 3 more at large to act as a referee. So then each team develops the best offense they can in the preparation of a budget that is many times unrealistic. Therefore, they try to prepare something that they can sell to the allocation board.

The allocation board is definitely in a very precarious position, and I must say on behalf of all allocation boards and all people who have served on allocation boards that they have done a tremendous job and they have done a good job.

However, we have missed the one point that I feel is important. We have taken the responsibility away from our elected boards in setting the tax millage. And I feel under the majority report we are replacing or putting the responsibility on the people we put into these positions in placing the millage where they are responsible for it.

I, as a taxpayer, can go to the man that I placed on the board of supervisors or upon the school board and say that you are the man that is responsible for the millage that you are charging me on my taxes, not the allocation board. He cannot come to me and say: "Well, I had nothing to do with this; this millage was set by the allocation board." And I feel that we should, in view of good government, place the responsibility on the officials that we place on and elect to these boards.

In conclusion, I would like to say that if we are to establish harmony back in our local governments, this is the place we must do it. Because we have created an atmosphere in many counties where the board of supervisors are very, very critical of the school men, the school men are very critical of the board of supervisors. One is looking at the other and criticizing him for the amount they are paying for wages, when they buy a new fire truck or when they hire new teachers.

I think our local units of government should operate in cooperation, and I feel with the majority report each unit of government is responsible within their own limits of where they can set that millage, and they certainly can and certainly will set it lower if the people and the voters know they are responsible for setting this millage. And it will recreate a harmony among our governing units in our local government. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lapeer, Mr. Haskill.

MR. HASKILL: Mr. Chairman, I want to speak in favor of the Turner amendment. I'm not in favor of freezing this millage out here to the schools, the counties and the townships. I feel that there should be some flexibility left out there for those to decide. I've discussed this problem for quite some time with the people in my community, my area and my school district. There have been some arguments through the allocation board, I'll grant you, but so far there have been no fatalities. They have generally come out, maybe, with a few scratches, but they still understand the school budget, they understand what is going on, where the money is being spent.

It no doubt would be very good to have the hearing where the public can come in, but from what I have observed, most of the public that do come in are still very few in number. There's very few of the public that really attend these local meetings to see where the money is being spent. They still leave it up to the allocation board or to the supervisor.

One of the other things I'm certainly opposed to is the breaking of the 15 mill limitation. In some areas it doesn't break it, but in other areas it does break the 15 mill limitation. As Mr. Brake said, it doesn't mean much of anything today, but it still is a deterrent. It still is like a ditch along the road, and if you want to get over it, the people have to vote to get over and beyond that 15 mill limitation. That is one of the things that the people from my area certainly have felt has been of some help to them.

As far as farms are concerned and as far as a lot of this other property is concerned, they certainly feel that taxes have gone as high as they should go, as high as they really can go. If you continue to put much more on property, people are going to be more or less in a hurry to get rid of this property. So I'm going to urge you to vote for the Turner amendment. I believe that it has been proved in courts; that if there's any argument, that has been taken care of; and we certainly feel that it will still continue on in a very orderly manner.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Marshall, Mr. Hatch.

MR. HATCH: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that the issue here is very clear, and I'm not going to take any more of the committee's time. I think that we are all about ready to vote on the matter.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Haven, Mr. Stafseth.

MR. STAFSETH: Mr. Chairman, I might say that I was on the committee, and I support the committee's proposal and oppose the amendment. I'll say that in the beginning I voted twice against the committee proposal, and eventually I voted for it to get it on the floor, because I wasn't sure. This was a change; this was a substantial change. But when I went back and talked to some of our people in government — supervisors and school superintendents — and explained the workings of this thing, they said this was acceptable. The only problem you run into is that some of the units that probably didn't have as high a rate as they would like are going to gripe because they weren't high enough.

But this is just like the cities have now, in their charters. Any unit of government, the township or the county or the schools, can vote whatever millage allocation they want under this provision. This is what a city does when they adopt a charter. They can go up to 20 mills. They can vote either 10 mills, like the city of Grand Rapids, or more. In this case here, within the reasonable limits of the 50 mill limitation, or the 35 above the unvoted, they can vote whatever millage they want to use. It gives them flexibility.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Seyferth.

MR. SEYFERTH: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, as a member of the finance and taxation committee, I speak in favor of the majority report, for these following reasons, in the main. First of all, the 15 mill amendment as proposed by the majority of the committee did not, in its origination, find reasons for increasing the 15 mills. The formula that we have adopted is the result of much study and much research to provide for the units of government as fair a limitation in millage as possibly could be conceived. This, admittedly, exceeds in some instances—and in most instances—the present 15 mill limitation by ½ a mill or possibly a mill on an average.

Also, it was not the intention of the committee by this action to eliminate the allocation board, even though we feel in the majority instance that the allocation board procedure is not in the best interests of the units of local government. But in applying the millage freeze, as the term has been used, the allocation board automatically ceases to exist.

Now, the basic premise of the thought behind the presentation of the majority of the committee is to provide for local units of government, and I have heard on this floor many times the desire of the local units of government to have more freedom, to have more individuality, and to have more control. This certainly is a step in the direction of providing for local units of government just exactly that which they feel they should have. But, by the same token, we are going to impose, if this is adopted, a sense of responsibility.

Now, the cities in the state of Michigan have been operating under this very system for a long period of time. Their charters freeze in their operating millages, the same as we are proposing in this majority committee recommendation that the local units of government — the schools, the counties and the townships — will have their millage frozen at a level which we believe in the best interests of the units of government will best permit them to operate. Now, if they want more, they vote for more. That is what we have been asking for — to put the responsibility back at the local level. If they do not need that which is given to them under this so called freeze, then let them act in the same manner as the cities do, and reduce their millage — and, believe me, cities do reduce their millages less than the charter requirements — and if they need more, they increase it.

So it boils down to being nothing more than a proviso to give to the schools and the townships and the county governments more individual freedom and expression and control. I support wholeheartedly the majority opinion, and urge you to vote against the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: Mr. Chairman, I hope I am mature enough to be able to agree with Hale Brake and his committee when I think they are right, and disagree with them when I think they are wrong. In this instance I think they have done a pretty good job. I agree that this whole business is a compromise, and perhaps will always be that way. But at least the units will know what they can do with this section.

A few years ago we had the situation in Grand Rapids where the county of Kent suddenly was faced with a large welfare addition to its needs, and the board of education needed more money. An additional mill, divided between the 2 units, would have meant the difference between meeting their budgets and not. So it was submitted to the people for a vote. The people out in the country weren't interested in education; the people in the city weren't interested in welfare; and it was defeated. If the matter had been put squarely before the taxpayers involved, the people in Grand Rapids would undoubtedly have voted additional millage for schools, and the other way around. I think this is not perfect, but I favor the majority report.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. Goebel.

MR. GOEBEL: Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak against the amendment and for the majority proposal. Now, I appreciate that this does represent a change from what we have had, but sometimes a change can be good, and I believe that this is a good change. And I know that in my contacts with the various people who have had some experience with the allocation board, and officials of the 3 governing units that have been subjected to allocation boards, many of whom have a very conservative viewpoint, they state that they feel this is a good change. They approve it.

I want to talk specifically to Mr. Farnsworth's remarks, and I do not wish to say that Mr. Farnsworth is wrong in what he said, but he perhaps might have left an impression which may not be justified. First, that this freezes allocation. Now, I know what you meant, Mr. Farnsworth, and I think that in the main you are right. But it does not allocate. It only sets the limit of taxation for each of these 3 bodies, and then the governing board of the individual units sets the tax rate within that limitation, not the allocation board. Mr. Farnsworth also remarked that it would take a constitutional amendment to change this freezing of allocation.

Mr. Farnsworth, that could be done that way, you are correct. But there is a much easier method, under the proposal submitted by the committee, to do this, and that is by a vote of the people who pay the taxes within the 3 governmental units, which is a much easier way than changing the constitution.

And I agree with Mr. Seyferth in his remarks that all we are doing here for these 3 governmental units is setting a limitation beyond which the governing body cannot go, unless the people raise that limit — just exactly as is happening in the incorporated cities of the state of Michigan right now.

Mr. Shanahan said something about shifting the responsibility of the allocation board. This does shift the responsibility from the allocation board, and brings it right down to the governing boards of the 3 governmental units.

I want to say that I agree wholeheartedly with my friend, Mr. Sleder, when I say, as he says, that it does away with the irritations and feelings between these 3 governmental units in determining their millage under the allocation board. It will improve relations among 3 governmental units where cooperation is good in the best interests of all of the people in the county. And, to me, this is home rule in its purest sense. The people themselves decide the tax limits that are going to be imposed upon them — not the allocation board, but the people themselves.

For these reasons and many others I object to the amendment, and ask that you give the committee proposal your full hearted assent. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Quincy, Mr. Knirk.

MR. KNIRK: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I rise to support the Turner amendment, because I feel — and I would like to ask Mr. Brake a question — that the majority report would absolutely give the privilege of increasing our taxes. Isn't that correct, Mr. Brake? The majority report, Mr. Brake, absolutely gives the local units of government the power to increase our taxes automatically without our consent?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: In some places, it makes available the highest millage you have had in those years 1957 to 1961. Now, that may in your particular instance — and it may not in some other instance — permit an increase. That is not a compulsory increase. You don't have to go there if you don't wish.

MR. KNIRK: Well, I have had the privilege of appearing, Mr. Brake, before the allocation board for the past 4 or 5 years, and in our particular county we have changed from where the county was getting 7½ mills to where now the schools receive 8.3 mills, all within the last 6 years, and then the township's was 1 mill.

I called the local people in my county on this, and the very comment that came from one of the officials in the courthouse was: "Well, that would certainly do us a lot of good. We could have 7/10 of a mill more money to spend than we have had in the past." Yet just last year they had a $23,000 addition to their surplus. I'm referring to the schools. And when we appear before the allocation board, we take in our budget absolutely as we operate under, not padded. And I think any school or any segment of government that does differently is just kidding itself. And we have to vote 3, 4 mills extra operating millage.

Now, this 7/10 of a mill difference between the 15 and what the sum total would be in our particular county could, as I see it, go entirely back to the county, and the schools would still stand exactly where they are. Is that right?

MR. BRAKE: The fact that one unit did not use its millage would not give it to another unit. The townships can turn it over to the schools if they wish.

You are to be commended if your budget has never been padded. Unfortunately, a lot of the budgets that go to the allocation boards are padded, on the theory that they will get a cut anyway, so they might as well ask for what they want.

And, on your statement that that will give your county more than they have had, they don't have to spend it.

MR. KNIRK: I know they don't.

MR. BRAKE: And if I know boards of supervisors around the state, it will be a pretty hard job to find anybody more economy minded than those boards of supervisors.

MR. KNIRK: I wish I could agree with you on that, Mr. Brake. I just can't. I think it just absolutely would increase our taxes, and consequently would increase waste. And I would like to use one other example. Many of our townships in my community have received the 1 mill, and then they have made donations to every cause you can think of, including band uniforms in my own school — and I do not believe that is the way we should be spending this 1 mill.

MR. BRAKE: Well, you might go a little further than that and say you don't believe it is legal for them to do it. But it is legal for them to turn that extra money over to the schools.

MR. KNIRK: We go in for the fight, and I mean it's been a real tough battle. I would rather see the 15 mill limitation be retained, and then we will present our budget to the people, because we haven't lost on a single millage increase in our community for quite a number of years, rather than having an increased tax in the county and the township, and then still have to go to the people to get our millage.

That's what I feel is going to happen. Therefore I would certainly object to the majority report.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Saginaw, Mr. Turner.

MR. TURNER: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentleman of the committee, I agree with Mr. Brake that the committee on finance and taxation is conservative, and I like it. And it has been proven that the committee is conservative, since Committee Proposal 56 could not get enough approval to get out of committee until some of us changed our vote so we could get it out to meet the deadline.

I agree that the 15 mill is not utopia. And I will not be satisfied with my work at this convention until I can find some way to improve the tax structure of this state. We have lived with the 15 mill limitation for some time, and it has been proven. And, believe me, ladies and gentlemen, we are putting our future in a capsule that is destined for the unknown if we go with Committee Proposal 56. Proposal 56, in my estimation, has not been thoroughly researched, and we cannot foresee all of the ramifications of the problems that we will be confronted with.

At this time I would like to yield to Mr. Leslie Richards, if possible.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Negaunee.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I want to thank you, Herb, for giving me this opportunity. Probably Herb was aware of the fact that I would support his amendment, and he was very gracious in yielding.

I feel I'm a little behind in words with some of my fellow delegates, and I like to have an opportunity on occasion to rise and let you know I'm still here.

But, definitely, I do oppose the majority report. I feel, something like my good friend Jim Farnsworth, that we are freezing into the constitution the amount of millage, and to the fact that I don't believe any of us here can determine what the economic changes will be in the near future, and while this may be workable today in a certain area, when I think of our own upper peninsula I'm a little bit disturbed.

As our delegates yesterday went on record approving this 50 per cent of true cash value, probably realizing the need of industry for some of this recognition, I can also realize what that will do to our upper peninsula.

And as some of our people say, we are going back to local control when we place this directly in the constitution. I can't quite interpret it. I believe it's more local control when you do go down to your allocation board and discuss these things. And when the economic conditions change, you have a chance to vary these millages, and I think that's very important. Probably today the majority of the people and governments would benefit by this, but what would the situation be tomorrow? I believe that our economic situation could change.

By the action of these delegates, supposing we went to county home rule, where those people could get more money. If that did happen, with their extra millage they still could retain this millage in the constitution, and once again we would be in trouble due to the fact that I don't think it should be in the constitution. It has been on the statute books since 1932. It's been workable, with a little irritation. The biggest concern that everybody seems to have is this problem with the allocation board, where people get in each other's hair and discuss things. But, by the same token, folks, we have all gotten in each other's hair here on the floor, and if we're going to base it on that principle, we should not discuss things here. We should decide by voting, without discussion. By getting in each other's hair once in awhile and having a good healthy discussion, we make a more honest determination.

I would still retain the allocation board and the 15 mill distribution by that board. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Petoskey, Mr. Spitler.

MR. SPITLER: Mr. Chairman and delegates, first of all I would like to ask a question of Mr. Brake, and then make a very short statement, because I think that this has been clearly debated pro and con, and I think we are about ready to vote upon it. In talking to some of the members of the committee, Mr. Brake, I've gotten different statements. In your earlier statement, in which you clearly explained this, did I understand you to say that the tax commission, the attorney general and the department of public instruction had approved of this plan? Did I understand that, or not?

MR. BRAKE: The attorney general would not be asked and was not asked whether he approved of the plan. He was asked to go over the language — as were some bond attorneys, and so forth, who were interested in this kind of thing — to see if we had said what we meant. We didn't ask either the bond attorneys or the attorney general whether they liked the general idea. I think some of them did express themselves, but that is out of their field. That wasn't what we were asking for.

MR. SPITLER: And on the other 2, the tax commission and the department of public instruction?

MR. BRAKE: Some of the members of the committee I think talked to the tax commission. The committee did not do that officially.

MR. SPITLER: I've got conflicting reports on that conversation with the tax commission. I just wondered —

MR. BRAKE: I wasn't there. You will have to talk with those who were.

MR. SPITLER: The same thing holds true for the department of public instruction?

MR. BRAKE: I think the same thing is true. I think some members talked to somebody over there about it. And of course some of us talked to your M.E.A. representatives. And the last conversation I had in that respect —

MR. SPITLER: They are not my M.E.A. representatives, Mr. Brake. (laughter) I would like to make a short statement, and let me say this, that as far as my own local school district is concerned, the one in which I have worked for many years, they would be very happy to have this. So if I were speaking for my own school district, I would support the majority report.

But I am supporting the Turner amendment, because I have worked in this field for many years and I know the implications that are involved. I want to be on record in this convention as opposing this majority report, so that anything that comes up in the next 5 or 6 years, I will be on record as supporting the Turner amendment.

And especially for the reason that Delegate Farnsworth has given here. You are writing into the constitution the freezing of millage from 3 mills to 11 mills. You can't justify that difference in millage. You're freezing it into the constitution. If this were to be done, I would agree with Delegate Farnsworth, let the legislature do it. Let it try it. Then it can be adjusted from year to year.

I've heard so many statements in this convention that we shouldn't be legislating in our constitution. And I certainly would agree with you on this point. I want to take the stand that if this is to be done, it should be done by the legislature, where it can be corrected; that you are writing something in here on which there are going to be many complications, many implications.

And I think if you were to confer with the tax commission, with the department of public instruction, they would support that. I'm going to support the Turner amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Saginaw, Mr. Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, we have heard a great deal on this proposal, plus the amendment.

I keep hearing it repeated and repeated and repeated that the budgets of the units will be reviewed at a public hearing. I wish to respectfully point out that questions asked by the allocation board, based on the experience of some 15 years with allocation boards, convince me that should the questions be asked of the representatives of the units involved — the city board of education, as we call it, the county board of supervisors, and township boards, as represented by whoever appears on behalf of those units — at a public hearing, you would have a riot within a very short time. Because no public hearing is controlled as to parliamentary procedure and as to the right person speaking at the right time, and in a public hearing, which is undisciplined, you would just naturally have chaos.

Would I be able to say: "a plague on both houses." Because I firmly believe that the committee has not come up with the tax solution that this convention should come up with for the state of Michigan for the future years.

Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I want to support wholeheartedly the amendment proposed by Delegate Turner and his people, for the reason that, with so much freezing, the preparation of budgets cannot be looked into by public hearings, and all the things that go with it. Mr. Chairman, I support the Turner amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Port Huron, Mr. Staiger.

MR. STAIGER: I think we have spent plenty of time on this, and we are probably all ready to vote, but I just would like to make a couple of comments. One, with regard to the question that this could be handled by the legislature, that was clearly the first view we took when we took a look at it. But, in examining the 15 mill amendment, these problems are created by the constitution. I think it's obvious that the particular solution we have given could not be done by the legislature. When we reviewed it, we would have liked to stay within the 15 mills. In doing that, we ran into more problems than we were solving in trying to stay underneath the 15 mills and get some kind of an equitable limit on each unit of government.

On this variable millage problem, the legislature's hands are tied on that by the constitution and by the 15 mill amendment and the other provisions in the 1908 constitution.

If you are going to have a solution at least as good as the one we have here, you cannot do it with going under the 15 mills or doing it by statute. The problems are caused by the constitution, and this is the place that we are going to solve them, and we are going to have to try to solve it.

Two, on the question that Mr. Leppien raised regarding the public hearings, we do have a provision coming out that will require all public boards to have public hearings. It's coming up next. I will only point out that in considering that in connection with this, in almost every charter that has been written since 1935, cities have been required to have public hearings. They feel it serves a valuable purpose. The committee concurred in that, and they haven't had, as far as I know, any disturbances or riots in these public hearings.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I couldn't help but remark, after having watched that clock over there for the past half hour, that I hope that the cloture rule isn't invoked this morning because of the long winded, one sided debate.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentleman of the committee, I am reluctant to talk on this subject, and it is not my intention to present any argument — just to impart some information. We have word this morning that there is some apprehension among the supervisors in Wayne county about the committee proposal, and the indication is that they would prefer that the status quo be retained until something else can be worked out; and the preference would be to remove the 15 mill limitation altogether. But the word from the supervisors is that they would prefer to retain the status quo.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. Goebel.

MR. GOEBEL: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Staiger has said what I intended to say, with one exception. I would like to take just a couple of more minutes of your time, if I may, to reassure Mr. Knirk about his concern for the fact that the governing bodies might levy up to their limits in taxes, and thus dissipate the taxpayers' money. Now, if the governing body takes up to the limit and does not need that money, and levies those taxes upon the residents in the governing unit, and levies taxes above what that governing unit needs, I submit to Mr. Knirk and you gentlemen that the remedy is in the hands of the people themselves; not the allocation board, not the legislature, but in the hands of the people themselves. The people themselves can remove by vote the members of a governing board which levies taxes in excess of what they need.

Now, I agree with Mr. Brake 100 per cent in his statement where he said that the great majority of boards of supervisors are very frugal in levying taxes beyond what they need, and certainly the history in a great many of our cities which are operating under charters, as you know, is that most of them do not take up in taxes the limitation which is allowed them under their charter. I therefore again ask that you vote down the amendment, and vote on behalf of the committee proposal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, my purpose in rising is to ask Mr. Austin to clear up the "status quo." Mr. Austin, I'm not clear which you are indicating that the Wayne county board of supervisors is in favor of, the amendment or the majority report.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: May I make one correction, Mr. Chairman. I did not want to convey the impression that there had been a vote taken in the Wayne county board of supervisors. This is just a consensus that was taken to get some idea as to what the feeling was down there. The second point is that it would seem that the amendment would retain the status quo.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Saginaw, Mr. Turner, and others. As many as are in favor of the amendment will respond by voting aye. Those opposed?

The Chair rules the ayes have it.

MR. BRAKE: Division.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The chairman of the committee asks for a division. Is the demand supported? There's a sufficient number. Those in favor of the Turner amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, could we have the amendment read?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, the secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment offered by Mr. Turner and others is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 916.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The machine will be locked. The committee will be in order. The difficulty at the desk in reporting this total is this. Some of the delegates have changed their votes without so indicating, and so the secretary is not certain that he has the correct total here.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Can the board be cleared and the vote taken again?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, the board will be cleared and the vote will be rerecorded.

SECRETARY CHASE: Will everyone first clear their voting stations.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed, no.

The machine will be locked. The committee will be in order.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment proposed by Mr. Turner and others, the yeas are 84 and the nays are 35.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: And the amendment is adopted. Are there further amendments to the body of the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Powell offers the following amendment to the language that has just been adopted:

1. Amend page 1 (in the amendment) after "assessing district" by inserting "who have property assessed for taxes in any part of the district or territory affected by the result of such election or the lawful husband or wife of such person"; so that the language will then read, starting in line 13: . . . by a majority vote of the electors of any assessing district who have property assessed for taxes in any part of the district or territory affected by the result of such election or the lawful husband or wife of such person . . . .

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Ionia is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. POWELL: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, attention was called yesterday to the fact that there was a discrepancy between the provision in this regard in this report and the report of the elections committee, which will be coming up shortly.

When the 15 mill amendment was first initiated, the requirement for raising millage above the 15 mill limit was a 2/3 vote of everyone, without regard to property owning qualifications. Later, when there was a liberalization of the provisions and the time was lengthened, the vote was cut down to a simple majority, but it was still left a simple majority of just the electors, without regard to property owning qualifications.

Now, it has always seemed to me that when you can vote to raise the millage above 15 for as long as 20 years as the result of one election, that is just as much an obligation, a virtual mortgage, if you please, against the real and personal property of the district affected as would a bond issue be. But the constitution in article III, section 4, if I recall correctly, has provided right along that the qualification for voting on a bond issue or the direct expenditure of public money was that the person had not only to be an elector in that district, but had to be a property owner or the spouse of a property owner.

And so, I think, to make it consistent, that this provision should be written in at this place, so that the same qualifications would prevail and provide in the case of raising millage above 15 as would apply for the approval of a bond issue. Because only those who have such property owning qualifications are the ones who will be responsible for making those payments over the term for which the rate has been increased.

MR. YOUNG: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. YOUNG: On the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will be recognized as soon as the gentleman from Birmingham has been recognized.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to suggest that we deal with Mr. Powell's amendment, if he has no objection, in the same fashion as the conflict between the proposal of the committee on declaration of rights and the committee proposal were dealt with yesterday.

I have some technical objections, as well as substantive objections, to Mr. Powell's amendment. We discussed them briefly when he presented a similar amendment in the committee. I don't believe it does exactly what he thinks it does, but that's a matter of style that we can discuss at great length here without really making progress.

Mr. Powell, would you not be willing to let the decision on this abide the presentation of Dr. Pollock's report?

MR. POWELL: Yes, I have no objection to that. However, I want everyone to remember that this matter was raised now, and it is not something that we can take care of in style and drafting. This is very definitely a substantive matter which should have consideration on the floor here.

If it will, in your judgment, expedite procedure, I will be willing to withdraw the amendment at this time. I think everybody will agree that I have occupied very little time at this microphone. I have had plenty of things on my mind that I would have liked to have said, but other folks were saying them, and saying them at great length, so I have been staying away. But this is something that is tremendously important to me, and I do not want to see it neglected. However, I am willing that it be handled first in the other committee report. So I withdraw the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Before the chairman recognizes the unanimous consent to withdraw the amendment, he will ask the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Young, if he desires to speak on that subject.

MR. YOUNG: Mr. Chairman, I merely wanted to make the point that Mr. Van Dusen made. I'm in agreement with withdrawal.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, the amendment will be withdrawn. Are there further amendments to the body of the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McCauley offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 6, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the committee proposal and inserting "The legislature shall by general law fix limits on the rates of ad valorem taxes which may be levied by counties, townships, school districts and other political subdivisions, except where such limits are provided by charter or other applicable home rule provisions.".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Wyandotte, Mr. McCauley, is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, the amendment means exactly what it says. For the sake of brevity, flexibility, and looking ahead 50 years, we are attempting to do something here that we can all be governed by.

By giving the legislature this power, I think that we will avoid some of the arguments that we get here as far as freezing things into the constitution. I realize politically this is bad for a lot of people, but there are a lot of things that are in this constitution that are politically bad, and I would just as soon try this thing. I feel confident that if we leave the legislature this power, it in its wisdom will grant to townships, counties and school districts sufficient millage to meet their operating expenses.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Birmingham.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make it clear that I speak now only for myself, and not for the committee on finance and taxation. But I would like to support strongly the amendment offered by Mr. McCauley. I think the present 15 mill limit is an abomination. It doesn't protect the taxpayer from excessive taxation. It doesn't do what it says. It creates problems in terms of municipal finance far beyond any worth which it has in protecting the taxpayer. It's just a nuisance which should be removed from the present constitution.

Now, I felt that the proposal of the majority of the committee was a sound and progressive step in dealing with the matter. I feel that Mr. McCauley's amendment is an even sounder and even more progressive step in dealing with the matter. I heartily support it, and urge all of you to do so.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Ledge, Mr. Doty.

MR. DEAN DOTY: Mr. Chairman, Mr. McCauley has just offered an amendment that gives us something to look at and something to think about. Now, if you want to take this amendment and adopt it — and I like the idea — let's go on back and take the road funds, the school funds and all of the rest of the earmarked funds and treat them in the same manner. Let's start right in again and clean house. I won't guarantee we will pass the document, but I believe in it in principle. And if this is what they want, I'm all for it.

Now, as far as Mr. Van Dusen's statement is concerned, I support the position of the committee in their attempt to do something. But I'll go for 20 mills before I'll go for something that is so full of legal entanglements that even most attorneys turn and say, "What does it say?"

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Seyferth.

MR. SEYFERTH: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, the McCauley amendment is a duplicate of mine, which is on the secretary's desk; and I, too, speak as an individual, and not as an official delegate of the finance and taxation committee.

The statement was made about the board of supervisors of Wayne county, and I quote from a letter received dated February 6:

> The board of supervisors of the county of Wayne today has endorsed and urged your most careful consideration of the principles embodied in the attached draft of 3 sections suggested as appropriate for the taxation article of the new constitution.

Section 1 has been taken care of by this committee, and we have debated it at long length. Section 2 will, I know, come up later on; and section 3, the amendment that is now before us, which is exactly as Mr. McCauley has presented, is the one that we are now considering.

I wholeheartedly support the approach that we are now giving or considering giving to the counties, townships and school districts in the same manner as I specified in my last presentation at this microphone. We are now putting them on the same level as the cities, giving them the power to tax and the power to control. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, I must speak in opposition to this amendment. I agree that we should not have any earmarking of funds in our constitution. But the committee has not found itself to be in that position. Therefore, at this time I will vote against this amendment. I'm still hoping that maybe on the second reading we can change that thought and go forward. But as long as we are going to have an earmarking of funds, we must have this limitation in our constitution.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bloomfield Hills, Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: When Mrs. Cushman offered her amendment that we eliminate the earmarking of highway funds, I supported that proposition vocally, and I raised my hand for a division. I think that the McCauley amendment should be supported.

I think that Mr. Dean Doty is right that we are retaining language in the constitution that in some instances is not meaningful and represents a sacred cow approach that becomes an obstacle, and that we should eliminate it and that we should provide this flexibility.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I would be the first to agree that the 15 mill limitation is not a very workable or a very effective instrument in the way of controlling taxes. I think any of us that know anything about government would recognize that.

It has been said on many occasions, however, that what people think about what we do here sometimes is going to be just as important as what we actually do, and it is on that basis that I speak in opposition to the pending amendment. People have in their minds that the 15 mill limitation does something for them. You take that out of the constitution and you're going to meet, I submit, a great amount of unnecessary opposition to whatever you do here. Again, I repeat, what people think sometimes is more important than what it actually does for them.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from East Lansing, Mr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I came this morning to this convention hall with the feeling that when we had finished Committee Proposal 57, I should like to say something that weighs heavily on my mind. Now, in view of the discussion before us, I am going to say it now, and make it fit the amendment before us.

I had the notion when we were talking about the calling of a constitutional convention that the chances of our writing a constitution in the best interests of all of the people of this state for the decades ahead would be greater if the members of this convention were not elected on a partisan basis.

What has been happening in this convention in recent days convinces me that the history to this point in the convention indicates that that's true. There are some issues that are not partisan political: education, taxes, many others. There are some issues before us that may be. Everyone has to pay taxes, regardless of his political suasion or his color or anything else.

What I had hoped to say was when we finished Committee Proposal 57, that the leadership of both parties in this convention get together between now and the time that this whole section comes back to us on second reading and see if they can't come up with some kind of an agreement that will answer or make it possible for this state to answer what has been its number one problem for more than 10 years, and that is some sort of an equitable taxing program.

In my view, the best talk made before this convention was the one made the other evening by Charlie Davis on this same subject, but he was then talking not about the 15 mill amendment, but about earmarking of school funds.

I would like to subscribe to the point I made Monday afternoon when we were talking about the earmarking of highway funds, when I indicated that in my view Mrs. Cushman had made a useful contribution in raising the question that she had raised, and when we crossed that bridge, we crossed it, and the tail might as well go with the hide.

Now, to make these remarks apropos. I would urge that we vote down the amendment now before us; that we go on with Committee Proposal 57; that the whole business go to the style and drafting committee, and then hope that the Republican leadership and the Democratic leadership might get together on some words that would make it possible to put into this constitution what's required to give the governor and the legislature the opportunity to solve this tax problem. Thank you. (applause)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I rise to argue briefly in favor of the McCauley amendment. I would just like to read one short paragraph:

> Inflexible overall tax rate limitations, such as that contained in section 21, article X of our present constitution, require impractical allocations among competing taxing districts. This amendment was adopted in the depths of a serious economic depression following an unprecedented real estate boom, and no longer represents an appropriate or effective control of property tax levies. Certainly it is unlikely to prove effective for the conditions which lie ahead during the probable life of the new constitution. Such inflexible restrictions commit the property tax to a more burdensome role in financing government than future conditions may indicate as desirable. Instead, limits on property taxes imposed by different units of government should be fixed by law so they may be changed by the legislature as conditions change.

I believe that this paragraph reflects my sentiments very well, that it would be better to leave this matter to the legislature.

And I would like to remind the delegates that in suggesting earlier that we reject the committee proposal, it was my feeling at that time that we should remove the 15 mill limitation altogether, but that retaining it in its present form was better than what the committee offered. I support the McCauley amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wyandotte. As many as are in favor will respond by saying aye. Those opposed. The Chair rules the nays have it.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: A division has been demanded. There are a sufficient number. Those in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wyandotte will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The machine will be locked. The secretary will announce the results.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. McCauley, the yeas are 60, the nays are 58.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The amendment is adopted.

Are there further amendments to the body of the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If not, the proposal will pass. Committee Proposal 56, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: From the committee on finance and taxation, by Mr. Brake, chairman, Committee Proposal 57, A proposal to require a public hearing on all budgets of local units of government before the budgets are approved. Amends article X by adding a section.

Following is Committee Proposal 57 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. ANY MUNICIPAL CORPORATION, COUNTY, TOWNSHIP OR SCHOOL DISTRICT EMPOWERED BY THE LEGISLATURE OR BY THIS CONSTITUTION TO PREPARE BUDGETS OF ESTIMATED EXPENDITURES AND REVENUES, SHALL ADOPT SAID BUDGETS ONLY AFTER A PUBLIC HEARING UNDER SUCH TERMS AND CONDITIONS AS THE LEGISLATURE SHALL ESTABLISH BY GENERAL LAW.

Mr. Brake, chairman of the committee on finance and taxation, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 57:

This proposal, new in language and substance, is self explanatory. A review of the budgets of the counties, townships and schools will no longer be required before the allocation board, if the committee's recommendation concerning the 15 mill limitation is adopted, which emphasizes the need for this requirement of a public hearing before adoption.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Stanton, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I yield to Herb Turner.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Saginaw is recognized.

MR. TURNER: Mr. Chairman, I am slightly confused here. I understood that this language was to take care of the necessities for the original Committee Proposal 56, and now I would like to yield to Mr. Brake. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Stanton, the chairman of the committee, retains the floor.

MR. BRAKE: So far as I can see, Mr. Turner, the fact that the committee has been completely overturned in connection with the 15 mill does not do away with the necessity of a provision requiring public bodies that fix budgets to notify the public when that decision is going to be made or notify them before it is going to be made, so that the public has a chance to be heard.

The cities quite generally take care of that item under their charters. The public does have notice, and interested parties can appear. Some of the other units do, but most of them do not. And perhaps the worst offenders of all are the school districts. I think it will be a very healthful thing if all public bodies that have budgets to adopt are required to give notice of a time of hearing before that budget is adopted, and that any interested citizen shall have the right to appear and be heard.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 57 is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: From the committee on finance and taxation, by Mr. Brake, chairman, Exclusion Report 2028, A report recommending the exclusion of sections 3, 4, 5, 7 and 8 of article X.

Following is Exclusion Report 2028 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee on finance and taxation recommends that sections 3, 4, 5, 7 and 8 of article X of the present constitution be excluded from the new constitution.

Mr. Brake, chairman of the committee on finance and taxation, submits the following reasons in support of Exclusion Report 2028:

The committee on finance and taxation feels that the subject matter of sections 3, 4, 7 and 8 of article X of the 1908 constitution is all covered by Committee Proposal 51, offered by the committee.

The committee feels that the subject matter of section 5 of the 1908 constitution is covered by Committee Proposal 52, dealing with the matter of taxation of certain utilities.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The chairman of the committee is recognized.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, those sections are the ones that were combined in the section on uniform taxation, which we passed. All of the material that is needed from the 4 sections was included in that section which has been approved by the committee.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to the exclusion report? If not, it will pass.

Exclusion Report 2028 is passed.

In accordance with the decision of the committee of the whole last Friday, the secretary will report item 5 on the general orders calendar.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 5, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 81, A proposal pertaining to county government. Amends article VIII, sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 12, 13, 14 and 15.

Following is Committee Proposal 81 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. Each organized county shall be a body corporate, with such powers and immunities as shall be established by law. [All suits and proceedings by or against a county shall be in the name thereof.]

Sec. b. No organized county shall be reduced by the organization of new counties to less than 16 townships as surveyed by the United States, unless in pursuance of law a majority of electors voting on the question in each county to be affected thereby shall so decide. [When any city has attained a population of 100,000 inhabitants, the legislature may organize it into a separate county without reference to geographical extent, if a majority of the electors of such city and of the remainder of the county in which such city may be situated voting on the question shall each determine in favor of organizing said city into a separate county.]

Sec. c. There shall be elected [biennially] FOR 4 YEAR TERMS in each organized county a sheriff, a county clerk, a county treasurer, a register of deeds and a prosecuting attorney, whose duties and powers shall be prescribed by law. The board of supervisors in any county may unite the offices of county clerk and register of deeds in one office or separate the same at pleasure.

Sec. d. The sheriff, county clerk, county treasurer, judge of probate and register of deeds shall hold their offices at the county seat.

Sec. e. [The sheriff shall hold no other office. He shall be elected at the general election for the term of 2 years. He] THE SHERIFF may be required by law to renew his security from time to time and in default of giving such security, his office shall be deemed vacant. The county shall never be responsible for his acts[.], EXCEPT THAT THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS MAY PROTECT HIM AGAINST CLAIMS BY PRISONERS FOR ACCIDENTAL INJURIES RECEIVED WHILE IN HIS CUSTODY. HE SHALL NOT HOLD ANY OTHER OFFICE EXCEPT IN CONNECTION WITH CIVIL DEFENSE.

Sec. f. A board of supervisors, consisting of 1 from each organized township, shall be established in each county, with such powers as shall be prescribed by law. Cities shall have such representation in the boards of supervisors of the counties in which they are situated as may be provided by law.

Sec. g. The legislature may by general law confer upon the boards of supervisors of the several counties [such] powers of a local, legislative and administrative character[,] not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution. [, as it may deem proper.]

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

Sec. h. The boards of supervisors shall have exclusive power to fix the salaries and compensation of all county officials not otherwise provided for by law. [The boards of supervisors, or in counties having county auditors, such auditors, shall adjust all claims against their respective counties; appeals may be taken from such decisions of the boards of supervisors or auditors to the circuit court in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.]

Sec. i. No county shall incur any indebtedness which shall increase its total debt beyond [3] 10 per cent of its assessed valuation. [, except counties having an assessed valuation of $5 million or less, which counties may increase their total debt to 5 per cent of their assessed valuation.]

Sec. j. No county seat once established shall be removed until the place to which it is proposed to be removed shall be designated by 2/3 of the board of supervisors of the county, and a majority of the electors voting thereon shall have voted in favor of the proposed location, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. k. No navigable stream of this state shall be either bridged or dammed without permission granted by the board of supervisors of the county under the provisions of law, which permission shall be subject to such reasonable compensation and other conditions as may seem best suited to safeguard the rights and interests of the county and the municipalities therein. [No such law shall preclude the state from improving the navigation of any such stream, nor prejudice the right of individuals to the free navigation thereof.]

Sec. l. The board of supervisors of each organized county may organize and consolidate townships under such restrictions and limitations as shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. m. THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF ANY COUNTY WITH A POPULATION OF 1 MILLION OR MORE SHALL HAVE THE POWER BY ORDINANCE TO ESTABLISH A MERIT SYSTEM FOR COUNTY EMPLOYMENT. THE ORDINANCE OR ANY AMENDMENTS THERETO SHALL BE APPROVED BY THE ELECTORS OF THE COUNTY.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 81:

These proposed 12 sections of the article on local government provide for the government of counties. They apply to all counties except as provided in another report of this committee covering county home rule. We have taken the first 15 sections of article VIII in the present constitution as our point of departure. Our procedure has been: (1) To exclude those provisions which (a) have no application, or (b) are unnecessary in the light of legislative power; (2) To retain with the least possible change those provisions which are fundamental to our present form of county government.

Section a comments: The committee recommends the retention of this section with the deletion of the last sentence of section 1 in the interest of brevity and simplicity, and because the language is superfluous, adding nothing to meaning or legal effect.

Section b comments: The first sentence of section 2 of the present constitution is retained in the belief such assurance is desired by the citizens of many counties. Embodied in it is a remedy for situations where the retention by a county of 16 townships becomes unfeasable, the decision resting in the hands of the voters of the county. We assume this provision does not prevent consolidation of 2 or more counties if desired by the people. The second sentence is deleted. This provision, originally placed in the constitution in 1850 with the population minimum increased from time to time, has never been used.

Section c comments: This section remains the same as section 3 in the present constitution with the one change of extending the term of the elected county officers from 2 years to 4 years. The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, having concurrent jurisdiction, offers no objections.

Section d comments: This section remains the same as section 4 of the present constitution.

Section e comments: The first sentence of section 5 of the present constitution prohibits the sheriff from holding any other office. This has been modified to permit him to hold an office in connection with civil defense. The second sentence of section 5 was deleted as repetitious (see Sec. c.). To the last sentence of section 5 was added an exception permitting the board of supervisors to protect the sheriff against claims by prisoners. Such protection by the board of supervisors appears to be necessary as a means of reassuring the sheriff in his risks against accidental injuries to prisoners in his custody.

Section f comments: This provision is the same as the present section 7 in the present constitution.

Section g comments: This section is the same as section 8 of the present constitution except for elimination of unnecessary language.

Section h comments: The power of the board of supervisors over salaries is retained. The sentence with respect to claims against the county has been deleted because it is covered by statute.

Section i comments: The limitation in section 12 of the present constitution on the power of the county to incur debt is increased from 3 per cent to 10 per cent of its assessed valuation. The exception relating to counties of an assessed valuation of $5 million or less was deleted because there are no longer any such counties. The committee has increased the debt limit to give counties greater flexibility to meet current problems. Our counties are now extending their credit for both primary and secondary purposes. Secondary obligations are incurred by placing the full faith and credit of the county behind bonds of cities and townships to enable them to borrow at the lowest possible interest rate for the construction of water and sewage systems and other public works. The county also backs revenue bonds for airports. This secondary debt may easily exceed the 3 per cent limitation set in the present constitution. Such secondary debt is payable out of the revenues of the water works, sewage fees, airport activities, etc. The committee on finance and taxation, having concurrent jurisdiction, has no objection.

Section j comments: This section is retained as in section 13 of the present constitution.

Section k comments: The committee felt that the first sentence of section 14 of the present constitution should be retained. The last sentence has been deleted. The committee believes the phrase, "No such law shall preclude the state from improving the navigation of any such stream" added no power to the legislature it does not already possess and that it was highly unlikely the legislature would ever divest itself of such power. The committee believes the last phrase of the paragraph unduly restrictive in that it may prevent the use of streams for a public purpose of greater importance than navigation. The committee believes the rights of navigation can be adequately protected by statute.

Section l comments: Section 15 of the present constitution was retained in its present form.

Section m comments: This section transfers control of the merit system in civil service in counties of 1 million or more population from the legislature to the county's governing board upon approval of the electors of the county.

Following is minority report A to Committee Proposal 81 as offered, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Delegates Sharpe, Hatcher and Madar, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following minority report A to Committee Proposal 81:

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

A minority of the committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

When [any] A city IN ANY COUNTY has attained a population of [100,000] 500,000 inhabitants, the legislature may organize it into a separate county without reference to geographical extent, if a majority of the electors of [such city and the remainder of the county] THE COUNTY voting on the question shall [each] determine in favor of organizing said city into a separate county.

Delegates Sharpe, Hatcher and Madar, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following reasons in support of the foregoing minority report, which accompanied Committee Proposal 81:

The minority report will allow the city of Detroit, at the present time, and other growing cities in the future, the opportunity to use taxes paid by the city to benefit its residents.

At the present time between large cities and the county in which they are located there is much overlapping of functions and much waste.

In the Detroit-Wayne county area the following examples may be pointed to: 1) the county sheriff; 2) the county road commission; 3) the county general hospital. In each of these cases the city of Detroit provides adequate services for its own residents. However, the city which pays the bulk of county taxes must support these activities in areas of the county outside of the city limits. No benefit accrues to the city from these expenditures. What is being done is to use Detroit tax money to subsidize programs which are of benefit to the outcounty population.

The committee proposal takes away the right of a city to organize into a separate county when it has attained a certain size. The minority proposes to put this right back into the constitution. Moreover, the right of veto which the outcounty area retained in the present constitution, if it voted against the question of creation of a new county, is removed. The supporters of the minority report are of the opinion that a large city should not have to support projects from which no benefit accrues to it.

At the present time the city in effect is being used by the outcounty area for its own benefit in many areas. The city does receive benefit from county services, but these do not compensate for tax moneys paid where there is no benefit. The city can adequately provide for those services it would lose if it became a separate county.

Following is minority report B to Committee Proposal 81 as offered and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Messrs. Madar, Baginski and Mrs. Hatcher, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following Minority Report B to Committee Proposal 81:

A minority of the committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

THE LEGISLATURE SHALL PROVIDE PROCEDURES BY WHICH ANY COUNTY MAY, BY A MAJORITY VOTE OF THE ELECTORS, ADOPT A COUNTY SYSTEM OF ASSESSMENT. THE METHOD OF SELECTING A COUNTY ASSESSOR OR BOARD OF ASSESSORS SHALL BE DETERMINED BY LAW UNLESS OTHERWISE PROVIDED FOR BY THE CHARTER OF COUNTIES HAVING CHARTERS.

Messrs. Madar, Baginski and Mrs. Hatcher, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following reasons in support of the foregoing minority report, which accompanied Committee Proposal 81:

We believe the constitution in article VIII should provide for a county assessor system on a permissive basis. Michigan is one of the few states in the union that does not use the counties, or the cities and counties as assessing units. In many parts of the state, we rely primarily — and unnecessarily — on an outmoded, often amateur method for deriving the valuation of real and personal property. Assessing, in fact, is primarily a technical task that should be performed by experts, for that is the only way that equity can be accorded to all. It would be a great mistake, if not a tragedy, should we write a constitution for the next generation or more and continue in effect assessment practices based on a social system characteristic of the nineteenth rather than the twentieth century.

The purpose of this minority report is to urge upon the convention the importance of adopting a professional, equitable, modern system of assessment, using the county as the assessing unit.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, the chairman of the committee, is recognized.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, it would be an understatement to assert that the deliberations of the committee on local government were difficult. Behind each one of our proposals lies endless hours of research, testimony, debate, as well as soul searching. From the very beginning our entire committee displayed a keen insight into its many responsibilities, and endeavored to discharge those responsibilities in the best interests of the state of Michigan.

We approached our work from 3 basic standpoints. First, we recognized that with modern Michigan's rapid sociological changes, an effective constitutional provision on local government demanded a realistic approach toward the autonomy of local units of government. We felt that it was our responsibility to provide in the constitution that degree of autonomy which would enable local units to provide the most effective possible service to the community. In addition, we felt that any committee action in this regard should provide a flexibility that would stand the test of time.

Secondly, our committee, like all other substantive committees, was faced with the responsibility of eliminating from the present constitution many cumbersome provisions which have outlived their usefulness. This also applied to the wording of our proposals. In every instance we attempted to communicate the intent of the provision clearly and concisely, without room for ambiguity or misinterpretation.

And, finally, we felt that one of the major committee responsibilities was to positively reflect Michigan's growing problem of urbanization. This is something that was of relatively minor concern in the Constitution of 1907, but since that time the growing concentration of most of the state's population in urban communities has created unique problems that must be recognized in any effective constitution. This we endeavored to do.

And so, as we begin deliberations on these local government proposals, I would say only this. They are the product of a dedicated group of men and women who rose far beyond the call of duty, willing to give much of their time and effort to measuring up to their responsibilities. The proposals before you are the result of that dedication. Their desire has been to strengthen each unit of local government in a way that Michigan can move forward as rapidly as possible. As chairman of this committee, I'm proud of the work that they did.

The procedure that we will follow will be that the chairman will yield to various members of his committee, first to the subcommittee chairmen, and they in turn will yield to members of our committee who will discuss the proposals and the particular section in question.

It's with a great deal of pleasure that I yield at this time to Mrs. Judd, who is the subcommittee chairman on the county portion of our article.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Before the gentleman yields, the Chair would like to ask the chairman of the committee if it is his intention to deal with the proposal in its entirety or on a section by section basis?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: The chairman feels that it would be better to deal with it on a section by section basis.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: In other words, section a is under consideration at this time?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: That is correct.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make a parliamentary inquiry.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. YEAGER: I notice that we passed over item 4 on the calendar without reference. Could you explain that, please?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Detroit that in accordance with the decision adopted last Friday by the committee of the whole, it was decided that the first items on general orders for today would be the various proposals on local government. That was a decision taken in the committee of the whole last Friday.

MR. YEAGER: By vote?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: By vote. The gentleman from Pleasant Ridge yields to the lady from Grand Rapids.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee of the whole, it is with a great deal of pleasure that on behalf of the committee on local government I present to you these first sections of our present article VIII with respect to county government.

The citizens research analysis reminds us that the Northwest Ordinance of 1787 authorized the territorial governor to create counties and townships. The organization of counties began in Michigan in 1815, and by 1891 the 83 counties were organized. The territorial laws of 1825 and 1827 established the government of counties, with the townships, providing for the election of township and county officials. This form of government was first inserted into our constitution in 1850—apparently it was assumed by the Constitution of 1835—and it was repeated in the 1908 constitution. In fact, that convention made quite a good deal of the fact that in the revised constitution the old framework of government is most carefully preserved.

If you accept our proposals for the government of Michigan's 83 counties, we also of the 1962 convention can make much of the fact that the old framework of county government is most carefully preserved.

Let me make this very clear. Every county that is satisfied with its present form of government would, under our proposals, continue under the same form of government automatically, without any action required by their citizens to do so.

The committee policy in writing these sections has been: first, we have taken the sections in article VIII, the first 15 sections, as our point of departure. We have excluded those provisions which either were no longer applicable, or were unnecessary in the light of legislative power. We have retained, with the least possible change, those provisions that are fundamental to our present form of county government.

Mr. Chairman, would the secretary like to read the first section, section a, and then I will discuss it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, the secretary will report section a.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section a.

[Sec. a was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

MRS. JUDD: This article established the county as a quasi municipal corporation, with only those powers conferred upon it by the legislature. That is, it has now and it will have under these provisions no powers which it may exercise of its own volition.

The last sentence in the old section, "All suits and proceedings by or against a county shall be in the name thereof," we have deleted, since we have been advised by the attorney general's office that the sentence is superfluous, it being, to quote the opinion, "characteristic of a body corporate that it can sue and be sued according to law."

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 81? If not, it will be passed.

Section a is passed. The secretary will report section b.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section b.

[Sec. b was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield the floor to Mr. McLogan.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Flint is recognized, Mr. McLogan.

MR. McLOGAN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, the first sentence of section 2 of the present constitution is retained in the belief such assurance is desired by the citizens of many counties. Embodied in it is a remedy for situations where the retention by a county of 16 townships may become unfeasible, the decision resting in the hands of the voters of the county. We assume this provision does not prevent consolidation of 2 or more counties if desired by the people.

The second sentence is deleted. This provision, originally placed in the constitution in 1850 with the population minimum increased from time to time, has never been used. For that reason we recommend the deletion.

SECRETARY CHASE: Pursuant to the minority report of Mr. Sharpe, Mrs. Hatcher and Mr. Madar,

1. Amend page 1, lines 14 through 19, by reinserting the stricken language amended to read as follows: "When a city in any county has attained a population of 500,000 inhabitants, the legislature may organize it into a separate county without reference to geographical extent, if a majority of the electors of the county voting on the question shall determine in favor of organizing said city into a separate county.".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Detroit seek recognition?

MR. MADAR: Now, Mr. Chairman, all we are doing here in this minority report is taking the 100,000 population out of the portion which they asked to be excluded and changed that to 500,000; and then, where it states that the county and city, voting separately, shall determine in favor of organizing said county, we changed that to, "the county voting on the question shall determine in favor of organizing said city into a separate county."

Now, the reasons for this are many. I realize that the city of Detroit is the only city in the state of Michigan that has a population of over 500,000, so naturally this pertains only to Detroit.

If you have your copy of the brochure that I submitted several days ago, I want to read to you from page 1. That's just to take care of those who were so busy the last few days on taxation that they didn't get a chance to read it. I want to give you an idea as to just exactly what we have in Detroit and Wayne county, and why we in Detroit should get an opportunity to become a county in our own right. I'll start to read here from the paragraph marked 1. Specifically, in the Detroit-Wayne county area the obvious duplications are:

> (1) The city police department performs about the same functions that the county sheriff's office has. The city police department is a much larger organization. It must handle many more problems of a police nature. The sheriff's office devotes a great deal of time to the service of the courts. This function is not significant in the city police department.

However, we can take care of any courts in the city of Detroit from and through our police department.

> (2) The Wayne county road commission has functions that are very similar to the department of public works. Both departments are responsible for building and maintaining streets and roads, removal of snow from the streets and roads in the winter season. Each department builds bridges or contracts for their construction. The county road commission has taken on other functions which the department of public works does not handle such as maintaining a park system. In later years it has taken on the function of distributing water to numerous smaller communities outside the city of Detroit.

Now, I read this in its entirety to show what may happen between cities and counties, or between the cities in counties, such as we have in the city of Detroit.

I believe that those of you who read further found out what happens to a city like Detroit wherein the outcounty and the highway commission decided to build a water system at a great expense to the city of Detroit, which the county would control and place in competition with Detroit's water system, where the rates are the lowest of any in the United States. In fact, they are even so low that other municipalities and units of government could build city halls — oh, they don't call them city halls, they call them water department buildings — out of the profits they make on the water that they buy from us. Of course, I might add, too, that you will find that the people who pay these bills in these other communities are told that Detroit charges an enormous amount for water rates, so those particular people over the years have been led to believe that we are monsters with many hands out to take everything we can from them, while the officials of those various municipalities and other local units of government can build up a wonderful reputation on how they save money for the communities by putting the charges into the water bills.

Now, I started telling you about what happens to us when they start building water systems at the expense of the city of Detroit. To give you an idea, the board of supervisors a few years ago decided that they ought to have a water system in the southwest portion of the county. This water system was to cost approximately $50 million to build. And $26 million of it was to come from revenue bonds, and $24 million of it from taxes levied on the taxpayers of the entire city of Detroit. At that time Detroit was paying 2/3 of the taxes, which in effect meant that the city of Detroit was paying $16 million to provide a water system for the outcounty.

Now, at the same time the city of Detroit was building a filtration plant on the west side of the city at a cost of $8 million to take care of the necessities of those other communities outside of the city of Detroit. Of course, the building of this was only being done so that they could eventually say, "Well, let's all get together now. We'll throw in our water system, you throw in yours, and we'll have a metropolitan water system." This is a good idea. I've always wondered whether or not I could get some bankers to go along with me and maybe they would take me in and throw in their banks and just call me a partner.

Since they started this, the city of Detroit of course has had to do something because of the fact that they were having troubles in building this system, and today we are buying back that water system at a cost of $58 million over a period of 30 years. Now, this isn't just the fault of the board of supervisors, because all of this information was given out at the time this was going on. I don't know why the taxpayers of Detroit couldn't get more information about this. In fact, I didn't see much in the newspapers about it either. There I felt it was their responsibility to show the taxpayers what was going on. However, at the time, even the newspapers advocated a favorable vote on the bond issues.

Now, to go on further, to give you an idea of other things that we have in Detroit that we are paying for outcounty, we each have a health department. And I can assure you that our health department is second to none in the United States. We have so many plaques for having the best health department that I don't believe Dr. Molner has room enough on one wall to hang them all.

We have a treasurer's office. We have a city clerk. We have everything that is necessary to operate a county. We just give them different names. And I don't believe that we should have to pay all these moneys to the county of Wayne when the moneys should stay right in the city.

To give you an idea how this can affect the entire state, let me point out to you that if the city of Detroit weren't paying this 2/3 of the cost of our Wayne county government, the state of Michigan wouldn't have to be supplying the moneys that we are asking for right now on welfare and other things. We would have the money.

We have our own hospitals. We don't need the others. However, if we have to remain as part of the county, Detroit is going to pay the majority of it — and for something that we don't need. We each have a welfare department. And we have every department represented. We have a library. I think you all heard about that the other day, and you heard quite a bit about it. We have a board of education that covers the entire city. Why we are paying for one in the county I don't know. Why we are paying for anything else out of the county I can't understand.

And I think that you who believe in fair government, you who don't like to have to pay taxes to support someone else when they should be made to support themselves, when they can, if they would; I know if you believe in this — and I'm sure you do — you will vote for the minority report amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair is going to ask the gentleman from Detroit whether or not his pending amendment is confined strictly to section b.

MR. MADAR: It is confined to section b.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Thank you. Is the gentleman from Ann Arbor seeking recognition?

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I should like to ask the committee a question first before I make any further observation. Did I understand the reason given by the committee for the deletion of the last part of this section is merely because it had never been used?

MRS. JUDD: Would Mr. McLogan like to answer that?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Flint.

MR. POLLOCK: You had no other reason than that?

MR. McLOGAN: That was the only reason given, Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Thank you. I find myself, first of all, in agreement with Mr. Madar on this very important point which under his amendment, as I understand it, would restore in a somewhat different form, with just a change I believe in population, the part which has been recommended to be deleted by the committee.

I simply can't understand how people interested in economy and efficiency are not willing at least to permit the elimination of what is obviously sheer duplication. Mr. Madar's point, it seems to me, is irrefutable. And for us in the constitution to eliminate a provision which, if the people are willing, could result in the elimination of this expense and duplication, is to me inconceivable. I think, therefore, that this amendment should prevail.

I should like to go even further. I should like to ask the committee another question; whether they gave careful consideration to the problem of the consolidation of counties in Michigan, not merely the consolidation of the city of Detroit and the county of Wayne. Was any consideration given to this matter?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the lady from Grand Rapids.

MRS. JUDD: May I yield to Mr. Allen?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Kalamazoo.

MR. ALLEN: Dr. Pollock, yes, the committee did give consideration, and we were informed that consolidation would be possible under the present constitution. Now, I could go on and get into other points on this matter.

MR. POLLOCK: In other words, you could point to a specific section in the constitution that makes possible the consolidation of counties?

MR. ALLEN: No. There is nothing in the constitution that would prevent the legislature from allowing the consolidation of counties, so we are informed.

MR. POLLOCK: But you do not give that power to the electors of the individual counties?

MR. ALLEN: Yes. Whatever the legislature would provide as to a manner of consolidating counties is not prohibited by the constitution.

MR. POLLOCK: So the legislature may provide by law for such consolidation?

MR. ALLEN: Right.

MR. POLLOCK: The reason I raise the point, of course, is that it is quite conceivable within the life of the document that we are drawing that the counties we have will not be necessary. I'm not so sure we need 83 now. The last census showed I believe as many as 18 counties in Michigan losing population. If this continues the county areas as we have them now not only are outdated today, but will be exceedingly outdated 25 years from now.

And I just wanted to be sure that there was some adequate way not prohibited by the constitution by which such consolidation could be brought about if circumstances required it. You can assure me that that is the case?

MR. ALLEN: I can, Dr. Pollock. And there are other things I would like to say in connection with the committee rationale, though I don't know whether it is in order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will be recognized in his own time to speak on the pending amendment. Not immediately. There is one preceding speaker.

MR. POLLOCK: Well, I will simply conclude my own observation by saying that I strongly support the amendment proposed by Mr. Madar. It is permissive in nature. I see no reason why this opportunity should be denied the people in the metropolitan area of Wayne county.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Yeager, is recognized to speak on the Madar amendment.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I rise to respectfully disagree with my colleague, Dr. Pollock, and would oppose this particular amendment. It seems to me that there has been no provision made under the Madar amendment for the cities which are included within the confines of the city of Detroit, such as Hamtramck, Highland Park and Grosse Pointe. If the city of Detroit is to become a separate county, these other cities within the boundaries of Detroit are going to be closed off from the rest of the county, geographically.

There is another part of this that is not quite clear, and it perhaps does not particularly apply to Wayne county, but since we are writing this in the constitution I think it should be considered. There is no stipulation as to the balance of the county's population requirements, since it will apparently be another county. In other words, you are making the city of Detroit into one county and the rest of Wayne county into another.

I do not agree that the water problems which Mr. Madar has referred to are as severe as he has pointed out. I know a couple of people on the water board in the city of Detroit, and that system is run quite effectively. They have never lost a nickel, so far as I can tell. If anything, I think they have made money on the situation. I think really that this problem can be better solved if we have a meaningful permissive home rule section for Wayne county, and allow Wayne county to set up a form of government that can meet all of these problems, without making Detroit a separate county.

As a resident of Detroit and Wayne county, I respectfully oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Kalamazoo is recognized to speak on the Madar amendment.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I hesitate to take on such an eminent political scientist as Dr. Pollock. However, speaking for the majority of the committee, I would like to disagree, and give some reasons in support of the majority proposal and against the Madar amendment.

The Madar amendment would create an eighty-fourth county in Michigan. In the committee discussions on it, it was felt that the direction that we ought to go in Michigan is not to more governmental units. We aren't seeking necessarily to eliminate existing governmental units, but we aren't anxious to encourage more fragmentization than we have now. That was one reason.

The second reason is that in this whole field of county government, metropolitan government, and so on, while there still is a lot of uncertainty about it, there is at least one thing most people do agree on. That is, we have had experience in the United States in several cases where a city has withdrawn and separated from the county to which it was attached and was a part of.

Now, we have had this experience in Denver, in San Francisco, in St. Louis and in Richmond, Virginia. And if there's anything that people who have studied the matter agree on, it's this: that it just plain doesn't work. It may be all right for a couple of years, but as time goes on it creates more problems than it cures. And I refer you to the pamphlet which was put out for the convention delegates, pamphlet research paper 5 on metropolitan government, and I'll read you a little statement from it on page 7:

> After reviewing the experiences of these other cities, in none of these cases has city-county separation proved the answer to the problem of government in the expanding urban area.

Then, also, to quote from a booklet put out by the council of state governments, of which Michigan is a member, which reviews this whole problem and talks about the experience in these other cities, it concludes by saying this:

> Separation usually increases the number of governmental units. Even more important, it removes the city from a position of influence in the county, which is a larger local government area.
>
> Yet, in practically every instance, the county from which the city has separated is now a part of the same metropolitan area. As an act of withdrawal, city-county separation is a step backward from attainment of governmental jurisdiction of metropolitan scope. It cannot be regarded as a generally effective approach to the metropolitan problem.

Now, I appreciate the frustrations which Delegate Madar has, coming from the central city. In a smaller way I have experienced some of the same. But I think we would be taking the wrong step, as the committee discussed this, if we took the step of breaking up an existing county into 2 units. We just live too much together. It doesn't work. It creates all sort of problems for both units. It would make an eighty-fourth county.

It has the further disadvantage, I think, in this case, that the vote by which it would be arrived at would be a vote of the county, and it happens in this case that the city of Detroit apparently has more votes than the balance of Wayne county. But that isn't the primary objection. The primary objection is that where this has been tried, and there has been enough experience, it hasn't worked.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Mrs. Cushman, to speak on the Madar amendment.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I, too, rise to oppose the Madar amendment. As a resident of Wayne county, I feel that the most encouraging things that have been happening in a governmental sense in Wayne county are where we are working more closely together, rather than being more and more divided.

I would like to point to a couple of instances of where we are working together. Detroit and Wayne county joined, for example, in this city-county building, which is an example of the fact that we are working together down there.

We have a water system which actually is in the process of becoming a joint system. Detroit had its water system through various political events which are of no interest here. Wayne county then started to develop its own water system. It became evident that this duplication was not a wise one, nor an economical one. Therefore, it has been worked out now so that the city of Detroit has been taking over the Wayne county system. It will be completely owned by the city by the year 2000. This apparently is a solution which is satisfactory to the city of Detroit, because they didn't have to do this. It is something that has worked out jointly, and they apparently don't feel they are losing any money. I believe the records will show, in fact, that the city of Detroit water department has been a money earner.

I would also like to point, for example, to the projected consolidation of the city and county health departments. At the present time we have the same man serving as the health officer for Wayne county, for the city of Detroit and for the city of Dearborn.

This is an indication of what we can look for in the future, in my opinion, and it seems to me a very wholesome trend. I certainly would not want to see us do anything that would tend to discourage this trend.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Eau Claire, Mr. J. B. Richards, to speak on the Madar amendment.

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman, delegates, I wish to support Mr. Madar's position. It seems as though the delegates in 1907 and '08, in their wisdom, thought that larger cities should have an opportunity to become individual counties. It seems as though perhaps cities, as they grow in size, would probably be more independent and be able to do their work much better and serve their people much better if they were set aside. I think you will find that in some of the sections coming before us soon we will have put before us an opportunity to vote on the right to contract between all local units of government.

I also have another motive, and I would like to illustrate this by a story. There was a farmer who died, leaving a will in his own handwriting. His neighbor was named the executor. And since this neighbor was a farmer, the day he came over to settle the estate he brought with him a cow, and tied it to the fence. They went along, doing quite well, because they had specific instructions. The farmer said that since he had 3 sons, one who was very ambitious, one who was just kind of lazy, and one who was very lazy, that he wished to divide his goods according to their ambition; and so he asked that one be given ½ of his goods, another ⅓, and the other ⅙.

When they came to the cows, I don't know what a lawyer would have done in this case, but the farmer, the executor, had the answer — There were 17 cows, and you can't divide that by ½, without butchering, of course, or ⅓, or ⅙ — So he brought in his cow and put it with the farmer's cows, and now they had 18. Then he divided them into ½, and 9 cows went to the son who was ambitious. Six, ⅓, went to the son who was not quite so ambitious. And 2, ⅙, went to the other son, who was quite lazy. And so the executor took his cow and went home. (laughter)

Now, my point is this, 83 counties can be divided by only 2 numbers, 1 and 83. If Detroit would become a county, we would have 84. And because I would like to see the senate apportioned on a county basis, and if 83 is too many and 1 is too few, it could be divisible by 2 or 3. (laughter) I certainly support Mr. Madar for many of the reasons he gave, and for this.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ypsilanti, Mr. Lawrence, to speak on the Madar amendment.

MR. LAWRENCE: I merely would like to address an inquiry to someone. First, I think I should say that if it's permissive, I can see no objection to it. But I would like it explained to me how, if Detroit became a separate county, it would result in a lessening of duplication of services. I can see how, if the facilities Detroit furnishes perhaps to the entire county were suddenly cut off, it might cause more duplication.

But I don't quite understand how there would be say fewer city halls, or fewer fire departments, or fewer other municipal things in Wayne county and Detroit as 2 separate units rather than one.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman desire to yield for a reply to his question?

MR. LAWRENCE: Yes, I would.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Detroit.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I don't believe that it is just exactly a reduction in the manner that Mr. Lawrence speaks of. Actually it is a reduction in the tremendous cost to the taxpayers of the city of Detroit, so that they wouldn't have to go to the state for a handout, but could use those moneys that they are supplying for outcounty to take care of their own needs within the city of Detroit.

After all, ⅔ of the cost of Wayne county government is an enormous amount of money, and we could very easily use that in the city of Detroit. And this would be a great reduction, Mr. Lawrence, and it would take an awful lot of taxes off of the outstate people, too.

MR. LAWRENCE: Then, as I understand it, it is not claimed that there would be a reduction of duplication of facilities, but just of costs to the city; is that right?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I might point out that our committee carefully considered this matter, and had exactly the same type of discussion that is going on here on this floor. After we had observed what had happened in other states with this kind of situation, and after we realized that the city of Detroit and the county of Wayne are combining services and are attempting to combine even more so they can avoid duplication and thus cut costs, it became perfectly clear that to retain this in the constitution would merely be a move in the direction of more confusion, rather than in the direction of less confusion. And it was for that reason that the committee voted almost unanimously to leave this sentence out of this portion of our article.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman desire to yield to the gentleman from Ann Arbor, who is seeking recognition?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Yes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I was of course using the Madar amendment as the only proposal before us to discuss the question not of creating new counties, but of providing for city-county consolidation.

I, of course, recognize the points which Mr. Allen raised, and the Madar amendment in this respect I presume could be called defective. It was, however, a substitute for what was in the constitution, and if you took out what you felt was a defective instrument in the constitution, why didn't you put in one which was permissive of city-county consolidation? This is the point where there is clear avoidance of duplication.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman has yielded the floor. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from St. Clair Shores, Mr. Snyder, to speak on the Madar amendment.

MR. SNYDER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I think we have here before us a very clearcut issue, and I want to say that I am speaking in support of the amendment, although when I do speak in support of the amendment I am not agreeing in full with some of the arguments that were advanced by the author of the amendment.

I feel that I should delineate my position on the thing, and at the same time not weaken my position on a matter that will be discussed at a later point, a matter that is being considered by the committee on local government, and that is the matter of the municipal payroll tax. I feel that we have here a reiteration of language that was inserted in the constitution a great while ago, and there have been several revisions. The minimum has been stepped up from 20,000 to 100,000. The present proposal would set it up to 500,000.

Here we have a question of the right of a group of this size to organize as a county. I do not think that we delegates can take away from a large segment of our population of 500,000 the right to organize as a county if they feel that they have the desire to do so.

I feel that the amendment also provides that the voters, when they act upon the matter, will factor into their decision the additional responsibilities that they will assume by going as a separate county. I'm sure that the proponents of the amendment will agree that although there may be some advantages to becoming a separate county, there are also additional responsibilities that they will assume.

I think that we have sufficient checks and balances so that, when we permit the voters to evaluate the situation, we will come up with something that will be good for the people in that community.

I do not feel that the action would be detrimental to the balance of the state. Because if Detroit does have these problems that they feel they can resolve by combining into a county, then by all means they should be given the opportunity to work out their problems. It is the American way of doing things to work out your own problems.

Now, just one very brief comment on the question of related community services. I feel that this is not an argument on this specific point. Because the example that was used, the Detroit water department, depends in part upon the fact that it can amortize not only upon its own residents, but in 51 participating communities. As a result of this, their bonds are classified as AA in the brokerage departments, and I think that this is a very good rating. I think it is the amortization provided by the 51 communities that does make this possible.

I would sincerely request that the delegates give Detroit the right, if they should so desire — not only Detroit, but let's put it this way — give any community that has 500,000 inhabitants or more the right to organize into a county if they so desire to pick up the additional responsibilities and burdens that go along with the title of being a county.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Highland Park, Miss Donnelly, to speak on the Madar amendment.

MISS DONNELLY: I would like to object to the Madar amendment, for numerous reasons. Initially, I think it is going in the wrong direction. It is going up to 500,000, and I think it should go down to about 40,000.

Now, Highland Park is surrounded by the city of Detroit. We may wish to become disassociated therewith. The direction this amendment goes does not give us this opportunity.

Now, we could perhaps build many tall apartments and get 500,000 eventually, but it would take a bit of time. So, being surrounded by this city — which incidentally does not supply us any water, any libraries, anything at all that I know of; we are rather self supporting — I think we should have the right to vote on the issue. The Madar amendment will not allow the individual cities and outskirts involved to vote, and I think we should have this right.

And I think the number should be reduced, so that we can go along and suggest that the city of Highland Park become a county, and we'll have lots of counties down there.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I rather feel that the committee, as a whole, has heard the arguments on both sides.

I might point out to Mr. Madar and to the committee that in this consideration, this elimination does not make it impossible for the city of Detroit at any time to become a county if legislation so provides and if the people then support that. And it also does not prevent the legislature from making it possible to have hundreds of counties, if they should so desire. So that actually what we are doing here is not only removing something from the constitution which has not been used, but we are not preventing the proposition that Mr. Madar has suggested. I would urge that we now vote.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar, to speak on his own amendment.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, what I want to do is just get a little opportunity here for a little rebuttal. I think I should have the right, so I decided to ask for permission to speak on this again.

To begin with, the remark was made that I had said that the city of Detroit's water system was not making money. That isn't true. I never said any such thing. I did say that we were being taken advantage of by the outcounty, in trying to build them a water system at a cost of $16 million to the taxpayers of the city of Detroit, and we wouldn't receive one single drop of water from that system.

Actually, in buying this system at $58 million over a period of 30 years, we are not going to have another water system. Actually, this is just a standby system. We can't even use it. We couldn't use the intake. Actually, the intake is so filthy, so dirty, from the sewage that floats down from all the others — yes, and some of ours — that it's going to be almost prohibitive to make the water potable if it's drawn from that particular source.

And, incidentally, I may say this so that it could be published. Because a lot of things haven't been printed that should have been. Because though newspapers have asked for freedom of the press, I have yet to see them take up all their responsibilities in giving all of the news all of the time. And I want to say this. Before this water system was started, health departments notified the county highway system and the county that they should not use this particular portion of the river. This isn't just idle talk; this is fact.

Now, let's see just what the philosophy of some of these people who spoke on this is. I know that one of the delegates, Mr. Allen, will be asking for the people to have a chance to vote on county home rule. All I have heard from Mr. Allen over the last month and a half or 2 months in local government was, "Let the people decide." Well, Mr. Allen and the rest of the delegates, that's exactly what I ask here. Let the people decide!

And Mr. Allen says, well, we have more voters in the city of Detroit than they have outcounty. Well, though I am sort of ashamed to say it, never at any time, even when it hurt the people of the city of Detroit, have the taxpayers of the city of Detroit outvoted the outcounty.

Now, I can understand how the rest of the speakers felt. Those who spoke against this amendment — who are they? The outcounty. You haven't heard but one speaker who spoke against this who lived outstate. You will find that those people who live outcounty certainly are going to worry if this amendment goes through. Because if the people of the city of Detroit took advantage of it, and they did vote as they should vote, then the outcounty would start having to meet their responsibilities. They would have to start paying taxes, as the taxpayers of Detroit have. This is what they are afraid of. And I say to you people outstate, cut down your taxes, so that you won't have to be paying for a lot of things in the city of Detroit that we could pay ourselves if we didn't have to pay the outcounty's share of their problems.

Now, I want to say to you again that I understand what the problems are for Hamtramck and Highland Park — and they do have problems. I might tell you this, that we haven't been trying to merge, we haven't been trying to annex, we haven't gone out and tried to take factories away from any of the outcounty. No siree, we don't do that. We don't believe in it. We believe in giving them a chance to live. All we are asking is that we be given the right to do the things we ought to. And even if we did try, you aren't going to get those big frogs in those little ponds to give up that dough that they're making, not on your life. You're not going to be able to do it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Before the next speaker is recognized, the Chair thinks it would be desirable at this time to have the secretary read rule 25 of the convention.

SECRETARY CHASE: Rule 25 of the rules of the convention reads as follows:

> Rule 25. While the president is putting any question, or while the roll is being called or taken by the secretary, no delegate shall walk out of or cross the constitution hall; nor in such case when a delegate is speaking, shall any delegate entertain private discourses or pass between the speaker and the Chair.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman, I was not intending to speak on the exact subject you just mentioned a minute ago, but I will, in any event.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman is recognized to speak on the Madar amendment.

MR. NORD: I will speak on that, but first a point of order.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. NORD: As I understand, the rule that was read applies to the convention, and not to the committee of the whole.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The rule applies to the committee of the whole where applicable, and the Chair will so rule. The gentleman will speak on the Madar amendment.

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman — or should I say Mr. President, because the text read related to the president.

Mr. President, I support the Madar amendment, not because I believe Detroit is dying to disassociate itself from some place else, or not that I know they have any wish or desire or right to do so, or that they are being injured. That is not the question. And the question isn't whether it is a good idea for Wayne county or some other county or for the city of Detroit or some other city to disassociate. That is not the question.

The question isn't, as some people have raised it, whether we should be in favor of that or against that. That is not the question.

The question is whether the city or the county that is involved should have the power to do a certain thing if they should see fit. That is the question. If they should see fit, should they have the power to do so? Not whether they should see fit. But, only if they should see fit, should they have the power?

I have heard no discussion which says that if they should see fit, they should not have the power. The only discussion has been of 2 kinds: one, they have not seen fit so far. To me that's irrelevant. They may see fit in 50 years. The other one is they should not see fit. I think that's also irrelevant. Let each case be judged by the people involved at the appropriate time.

For my own sake, I do agree that metropolitan government is better than separating into counties; but, as I say, that is not the issue. The issue only is this, should the people of a certain area of the state, which may include many other areas of the state within the next 50 years, have this power, or a power of this type, which they have had before? I have heard no reason why this power should be removed, except one, and that is that it hasn't been used. I don't understand that that is a reason to remove a power — because it has not been used. The question simply is, if it ever should be desired to be used, why remove it?

Now, some arguments have been raised during the course of the debate which were not in the majority report. Some arguments have been raised that we ought to increase the number beyond this, or decrease the number, or do something else different. That's perfectly okay. If anybody has those ideas, I assume they have brought that to the committee in question, and the committee has considered it, and a minority report has been asked. And if it has not been asked, and has not been given, I think we should not discuss it in any detail here. But the amendment that's before us by Mr. Madar was heard by the committee, I understand. It was heard by the people on the committee who deliberated for a number of months.

And although they are the minority, I think their position should not be attacked on the ground that it is not a perfect position. If somebody has a better position, or had one, they should have brought it to the committee. They should not detract from a position that is the best one that this minority could bring forward.

Now, another argument that was raised during the debate is this, that there's no need for having this right or this power in the constitution, because the legislature has the power anyhow. It seems to me this misses the point by a great distance. The legislature has the power, but that requires a majority of all the people of the state, in essence, to accomplish this result. But why should we need the majority of all the people of the state to determine whether some part of the state should have freedom to do a certain thing?

What you are requiring there is that somebody else who has no direct concern, really, with the issue, must decide. It seems to me it is better to leave the constitution as it is, basically, or the Madar form of that, because there the people that are concerned are the ones who decide, and not somebody else.

Basically, what you do when you say that only the legislators can do it, and not the people of the area concerned, is you make it more difficult to do. You make it almost impossible to do, perhaps.

There is no reason that I can see for introducing another straitjacket into the constitution. There was a little bit of flexibility in this area before. It hasn't been used much—not at all, actually — but there was some flexibility. The people of a certain area had the right to do a certain thing.

Now, the direction that we are moving is in the opposite direction. People in a certain area won't have the right to do that. No reason is advanced for doing that except that the people have not actually exercised that power, and that you don't think they ought to exercise that power; that if you were them, you wouldn't do it.

It seems to me neither one of those is a good argument. I think we should allow freedom of the people concerned to do what they please in this matter. We should allow flexibility, and not introduce more straitjackets. I support the Madar amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Mr. McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I just rise to straighten out a few things that Mr. Madar has said. In the first place, you know, I don't think that the outcounty really have tried to take advantage of the city of Detroit. I would like to point out to this committee that the city of Detroit has 62 per cent of the population, it pays 62 per cent of the taxes, but receives 75 per cent of the benefits. Now, this can be borne out by the latest audit report of the board of supervisors.

Secondly, on this controversial water intake, I would like to point out to Mr. Madar that the board of supervisors, with the exception of 3 votes — namely, the supervisors from the city of Detroit — were opposed to the county selling this to the city of Detroit.

I further point out to the member from Detroit that the water intake that has caused so much controversy in his mind certainly has been a boon to the city of Detroit moneywise as well as the rest of the county, because at a certain time in Wayne county's development, as far as the water resources are concerned, at one end of town you could flush your toilet and you wouldn't be able to get a drink in the other end of the county. (laughter)

I would like to point out to the gentleman from Detroit that things that are benefiting outcounty through industrial development certainly are going to benefit the city of Detroit. And I would hate to be in the position of attempting to save Detroit from themselves, but if we permit this Madar amendment, that's the position that I'm going to have to take.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Mr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I merely want to say, Mr. Chairman, that my purpose in supporting Mr. Madar was not that I felt that it was a completely effective instrument. I wanted to indicate that we were taking away something that was in the constitution without the committee substituting something better. In other words, the whole idea of city-county consolidation now goes by the boards. This is an effective instrument to be used, and if they felt this one was defective, they could easily have put another one in which they felt was sound.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: There is an amendment on the secretary's desk.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The secretary will report the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford offers the following amendment to the Madar amendment:

1. Amend the amendment after "electors of" by reinserting "such city and the remainder of"; so the language will read:

> When a city in any county has attained a population of 500,000 inhabitants, the legislature may organize it into a separate county without reference to geographical extent, if a majority of the electors of such city and the remainder of the county voting on the question shall determine in favor of organizing said city into a separate county.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. FORD: The result of this amendment would be to reinstate the language of the 1908 constitution, with Mr. Madar simply changing the 100,000 figure to 500,000, so there would be no question in anybody's mind that we were talking about Wayne county and Detroit only.

I would like to support Art on this, but I don't believe that there's any great ground swell of opinion in Wayne county that says that Detroit wants to cut loose from the rest of us. But I'd like to support Art if he would give the outcounty the opportunity, as Jack McCauley suggests, to save Detroit from itself by vetoing any attempt by Detroit to secede from the rest of the county.

I was inclined to go along with Art entirely at the beginning, but he has persuaded me somewhat that we have a golden goose laying golden eggs here, and I would hate like the devil to let it get away from us now. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: May I ask the Chair how many other speakers there are on this subject?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: There are no other speakers listed at the moment on the Chair's desk.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Does the secretary have any other amendments to this?

SECRETARY CHASE: This is the only one to this section.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: If there are no other speakers, I am then not going to make the motion that I was going to make, and maybe we can resolve this one before I make it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The lady from Detroit, Mrs. Hatcher, is recognized to speak on the amendment offered by Mr. Ford.

MRS. HATCHER: No, that's not it. I wanted to speak on the Madar amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: I think we'd better dispose of the Ford amendment first. Without objection, the secretary will read the amendment to the Madar amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 937.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The vote occurs on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Ford, to the amendment of the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar. As many as are in favor of the Ford amendment will respond —

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I wish to speak on the Ford amendment.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is whether the committee shall rise. Those in favor say aye. Those opposed, no. The committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain items on the general orders calendar on which the secretary will give a detailed report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary will report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 57, A proposal to require a public hearing on all budgets of local units of government before the budgets are approved. It reports this Committee Proposal 57 back to the convention without amendment, with the recommendation that it do pass.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Committee Proposal 57 is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

For Committee Proposal 57 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 929.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole, Mr. President, has also had under consideration Exclusion Report 2028, A report recommending the exclusion of sections 3, 4, 5, 7 and 8 of article X. It reports this exclusion report back to the convention with the recommendation that it be adopted.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the exclusion report. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no. Exclusion Report 2028 is adopted and referred to the committee on style and drafting.

For Exclusion Report 2028 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 929.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole, Mr. President, has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 56, A proposal to limit the ad valorem taxation of property covering the subject matter of section 21, article X of the 1908 constitution, commonly known as the 15 mill limitation. It reports this back to the convention with the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 6, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the committee proposal and inserting:

"The legislature shall by general law fix limits on the rates of ad valorem taxes which may be levied by counties, townships, school districts and other political subdivisions, except where such limits are provided by charter or other applicable home rule provisions.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of —

MR. KUHN: Mr. President, is this the McCauley amendment?

PRESIDENT NISBET: It is.

MR. KUHN: I ask for the yeas and nays.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand for the yeas and nays seconded? There is a sufficient number. The Chair recognizes Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I was on my feet to make the same request. I would like to comment very briefly that our finance and taxation committee wrestled with this problem of the 15 mill limit for months, and they came up with what was known as the majority report.

However, after that, we then very carefully debated at length, and there was favorable action on the Turner amendment for a time. The vote, if I recall, on the Turner amendment was 84 to 35. That was an amendment to retain the present 15 mill limitation. That was a vote of well over 2 to 1 in favor of retaining our 15 mill limitation.

Then, with a minimum of debate, and I think a good bit of snap judgment, we adopted the McCauley amendment by a vote of 60 to 58, and if my arithmetic is correct, there were some 26 people not recorded, either absentees, or out of the room, or something.

And so I feel that we very definitely should have a record vote at this time, and I think you all know that personally I hope we will not accept the McCauley amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Davis.

MR. DAVIS: Mr. President and delegates, in connection with this particular matter I would just like to make this statement, and it will be brief. If we in this convention, as Republicans, as Democrats, whether we are from the rural or from the urban, are willing to take the attitude of removing restrictions relative to finance and taxation, I stand ready to do it. I have taken this position in the committee. I will go farther than I did in the committee.

But if there is an attempt to remove the 15 mill limitation amendment from this constitution, which in my judgment is very meaningful, and justifiably so, to many areas in rural Michigan, if there is an attempt to discriminate in this matter, then I certainly will oppose it.

But I will say this: that if we together are willing to face the future on a basis of equality, I will vote to remove the 15 mill limitation amendment.

If we are ready to go forward on the same basis with regard to the schools, the highways, and other matters in this constitution, then I stand ready to do it. And if we don't, then I don't like what we did this morning, and I'm going to vote to keep the 15 mill limitation in here until there is manifest on the part of this convention a desire to look at this thing in its entirety. And when we are ready to go in that direction, I stand ready to support it. And up until that time I will oppose it by picking this particular thing out as a method of doing it.

I support the request for a roll call vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: I move the previous question, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The demand for the previous question has been ordered. Is there a sufficient number up?

The question now is: shall the previous question be put? All those in favor say aye. Opposed?

The previous question has been ordered. The vote now is on the amendment. Mr. Chase, will you read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 938.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Those in favor of that amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay. The machine will be locked, and the vote recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas — 65

Allen	Garvin	Pollock
Andrus, Miss	Hanna, W. F.	Rajkovich
Austin	Hannah, J. A.	Romney
Baginski	Hart, Miss	Seyferth
Balcer	Hatcher, Mrs.	Snyder
Binkowski	Higgs	Spitler
Brown, T. S.	Hood	Staiger
Buback	Iverson	Sterrett
Conklin, Mrs.	Judd, Mrs.	Stevens
Cudlip	King	Stopczynski
Cushman, Mrs.	Krolikowski	Suzore
Dade	Lesinski	Tubbs
Danhof	Lundgren	Tweedie
DeVries	Madar	Upton
Douglas	Mahinske	Van Dusen
Downs	McCauley	Walker
Durst	McGowan, Miss	Wanger
Elliott, A. G.	McLogan	Woolfenden
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Millard	Yeager
Figy	Mosier	Young
Follo	Murphy	Youngblood
Ford	Nord

Nays — 53

Batchelor	Greene	Powell
Bentley	Haskill	Prettie
Boothby	Hatch	Pugsley
Brake	Heideman	Richards, J. B.
Butler, Mrs.	Howes	Richards, L. W.
Davis	Hubbs	Rood
Dehnke	Hutchinson	Rush
Dell	Kelsey	Shackleton
Donnelly, Miss	Kirk, S.	Shaffer
Doty, Dean	Knirk, B.	Shanahan
Doty, Donald	Koeze, Mrs.	Sharpe
Erickson	Kuhn	Sleder
Everett	Leppien	Stafseth
Farnsworth	Martin	Thomson
Finch	McAllister	Turner
Gadola	Nisbet	White
Goebel	Page	Wood
Gover	Plank

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the McCauley amendment, the yeas are 65, the nays are 53.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is adopted.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would like to tell Mr. Davis that I completely agree with him, and my vote yea was an indication that when we get another chance, we're going to make this thing a flexible constitution. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: The next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Turner now offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the committee proposal and inserting:

"The total amount of taxes assessed against property for all purposes in any one year shall not exceed 1½ per cent of the assessed valuation of said property, except taxes levied for the payment of interest and principal on obligations heretofore incurred, which sums shall be separately assessed in all cases: Provided, That this limitation may be increased for a period of not to exceed 20 years at any one time, to not more than a total of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation, by a majority vote of the electors of any assessing district, or when provided for by the charter of a municipal corporation: Provided further, That this limitation shall not apply to taxes levied in the year 1932.

In any school district which extends into 2 or more counties, there may be levied and collected for school purposes throughout the district property taxes at the highest rate available in the county which contains the greatest part of the area of the district.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the Turner amendment. Those in favor say — Mr. Turner.

MR. TURNER: Mr. President, I think the sentiment has been shown here, and I would much rather withdraw my amendment and go back to work to find a much better way of constructing a better tax picture in this state. Thank you. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is withdrawn, and Committee Proposal 56, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 56 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The legislature shall by general law fix limits on the rates of ad valorem taxes which may be levied by counties, townships, school districts and other political subdivisions, except where such limits are provided by charter or other applicable home rule provisions.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole, Mr. President, has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 81, has considered amendments thereto, and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I move that the convention now recess until 2:00 o'clock.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Higgs. Those in favor say aye. Those opposed.

The motion prevails. The convention is recessed until 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 12:20 o'clock p.m., the convention recessed; and, at 2:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened. Vice President Hutchinson assumed the Chair.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention will be in order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to the noon recess, Mr. Page filed a request with the secretary asking to be excused from the afternoon session.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, Mr. Page will be excused. The Chair hears no objection, and it is so ordered.

The Chair recognizes the delegate from the fourteenth district, Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. President, I should like to move that Committee Proposals 79 and 80, the report of the committee on legislative organization, be made a special order on general orders for next Wednesday.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: You have heard the motion of the delegate that the reorganization proposals, Committee Proposals 79 and 80, be placed on the order of general orders for next Wednesday.

MR. STERRETT: Point of information, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: There is a general calendar that lists 79 and 80, but we received the general calendar today, Friday, February 9. What numbers would they be on that general calendar?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: These are proposal numbers. What are the order numbers on the calendar? Can the secretary advise?

SECRETARY CHASE: They are not on the calendar for today. They are Committee Proposals 79 and 80, which were items 59 and 60 on the previous calendar.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion made by Mr. Hannah. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The ayes have it, the motion prevails, and it is so ordered.

The Chair recognizes the delegate from Gratiot, Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I would like to make a statement under personal privilege.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: You may state it.

MR. HOXIE: At the time we had under consideration Committee Proposal 56 in the committee of the whole, I voted against the McCauley amendment. At the time the vote was taken on the amendment, after the committee rose, I had been called from the convention floor to the legislative powers committee room on official convention business. Had I been present, I would have voted against the amendment and for the retention of the 15 mill tax limitation on real and personal property.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The statement will be entered in the journal.

The Chair recognizes the delegate from the fifteenth district, Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I move that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for further consideration of items on the general orders calendar.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is on the motion of Mr. Bentley. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The ayes have it, the motion prevails, and the gentleman from the fifteenth district, Mr. Bentley, will preside.

[Whereupon, Mr. Bentley assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The committee will be in order. When the committee rose this morning, the Chair was preparing to recognize the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar, to speak on the amendment offered by Mr. Ford to his amendment. Does the gentleman desire recognition at this time?

MR. MADAR: Yes. I would just like to state that I would be willing to accept Mr. Ford's amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Ford, to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar. As many as are in favor of the amendment to the amendment will respond by saying aye. Those opposed.

The Chair rules the ayes have it, and the amendment to the amendment is adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Division has been demanded. Is the demand supported?

SECRETARY CHASE: There is a sufficient number.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The secretary will read the Ford amendment to the Madar amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 937.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Those in favor—

MISS DONNELLY: Point of order.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The lady will state it.

MISS DONNELLY: If Mr. Madar accepted Mr. Ford's amendment, which I gather he did, then are we now not voting on a joint amendment to the committee proposal?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the amendment to the amendment. The amendment offered by Mr. Ford is the question before the committee.

MISS DONNELLY: Not on Madar's?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: No.

The gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, during the recess Mr. Wanger called my attention to the fact that in attempting to reinstate the language of the 1908 constitution, I overlooked a deletion in the minority report in line 5. The word "each" would be deleted by Mr. Madar's amendment, and it was my intention to reinstate the language in toto as presently exists in the constitution, except for the 500,000 figure.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without objection, the Ford amendment will be so corrected.

The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, with the correction I cannot accept the amendment. This is nothing more nor less than a veto.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question recurs on the amendment offered by Mr. Ford, and the secretary will again read the amendment as perfected by Mr. Ford.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford's revised amendment is as follows:

1. Amend the amendment after "electors of" by reinserting "such city and the remainder of"; and after "question shall" by reinserting "each"; so that the language will read:

> When a city in any county has attained a population of 500,000 inhabitants, the legislature may organize it into a separate county without reference to geographical extent, if a majority of the electors of such city and the remainder of the county voting on the question shall each determine in favor of organizing said city into a separate county.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Those in favor of the Ford amendment to the Madar amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay.

MR. MADAR: Is this on the Madar amendment, or on the Ford amendment?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: This is on the Ford amendment only. The question is on the amendment to the amendment.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I don't believe that everybody understands this; that when they vote for Mr. Ford's amendment right now, all they are doing is killing the entire amendment. Because it doesn't do any good at all.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will restate the question for the last time. The vote is on the Ford amendment only to the Madar amendment, not on the Madar amendment. The machine will be locked.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the Ford amendment to the Madar amendment, the yeas are 75, the nays are 35.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Then the amendment to the amendment is adopted. The question now occurs on the Madar amendment, as amended, and the Chair recognizes the lady from Detroit, Mrs. Hatcher.

MRS. HATCHER: Mr. Chairman and delegates, as a cosponsor of the Madar amendment, I rise in support of the amendment, for the same reasons that Mr. Madar pointed out. As a resident in the city of Detroit, I believe that for a number of years we have been faced with many problems, of which certainly Detroit as a city alone has not been able to solve, as a city, or one of the 16 cities in the county. I believe that this type of move would offer an opportunity for the citizens of Detroit to enjoy the services that they are presently paying for. For that reason, and for other reasons that I do not care to take the time of the committee at the moment to state, I fully support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I would merely like to remind you of the discussion we had before we recessed, and the comments made by Mr. Allen, by Mrs. Judd and others of the committee, and to remind you that what you now have is exactly the language which our committee worked on for quite a long time and decided in its wisdom should be deleted from the constitution. I urge you to oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question occurs on the amendment, as amended, offered by the gentleman from Detroit,

Mr. Madar. As many as are in favor will respond by saying aye. Those opposed?

The amendment as amended is not adopted. Are there further amendments to section b?

SECRETARY CHASE: There are none on file, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If not, it will pass.

Section b is passed. The secretary will read section c.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section c.

[Sec. c was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The lady from Grand Rapids is recognized, Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to Mr. Finch for this section and the following section.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Mattawan is recognized.

MR. FINCH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I don't think this section needs any long winded explanation. I think it is perfectly clear. The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections had concurrent jurisdiction, and they offered no objection. I move its passage.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to section c of the committee proposal? If not, it will be passed.

Section c is passed. The secretary will read section d.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section d.

[Sec. d was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to section d of the committee proposal? The gentleman from Mattawan.

MR. FINCH: This is not a change; I just want to say this is left the same as it is in the present constitution.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: If there are no amendments to section d of the committee proposal —

The gentleman from Muskegon Heights, Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, through the Chair, I would like to address a question to Mr. Danhof. It's been my understanding — and I may be wrong — that the judiciary committee has recommended or is about to recommend that probate judges not be considered county officers, but be considered state officers; and the legislature be permitted to have probate judges sit on a circuit basis. If so, I would believe that you should delete "probate judge" from this provision as a county officer, and leave him over in the judicial section by itself.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Hanna, the recommendations of the committee have been that in the wisdom of the legislature, they may district or circuitize probate courts as they have circuit courts. This particular matter was not discussed in great detail, but it was felt that perhaps it was harmonious in that, if and when the various counties were banded together in a judicial district, the requirement that the probate judge be at the county seat would not necessarily be in conflict. However, I think that perhaps if we finish the deliberations of this committee on the judicial article and the recommendations of the committee are adopted, any area of conflict could I'm sure be reconciled if Mr. Elliott would so agree.

We don't know for sure that we are going to adopt what has been recommended by the judiciary committee, and until we get through the first reading of these things, we may have certain conflicts that will develop. We would hope that the committee you serve on, Mr. Hanna, might find some of these. And this is one that we have noted. We noted it before we passed our article, but we felt that until we passed everything, we would have to do some of it this way.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Fennville, Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, speaking to the same matter, I was going to raise the point from this angle. That in section c, we name these county officers who are to be elected for 4 year terms, and then in section d here is another officer who, heretofore, at least, in this article of the constitution, has not been mentioned; namely, a judge of probate. From that standpoint, it would seem to me as though the judge of probate could well be stricken from section d, and where he should hold his office and so on could better be handled in the judicial article.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is the gentleman from Mattawan seeking recognition? Mr. Finch.

MR. FINCH: I'd just like to say that the committee did discuss this somewhat. I don't know whether the fact that he is mentioned in the foregoing section or not makes too much difference. But they did talk about the possibility that if the probate judge was in a district of several counties, he should still have his office at the county seat.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to section d of the committee proposal? If not, it will be passed.

Section d is passed. The secretary will read section e.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section e.

[Sec. e was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Grand Rapids, Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, we have made quite a little change in this, and I would like to yield the floor to Mr. Brake, who can explain these changes to you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Stanton, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, taking the old language, the first statement is, "The sheriff shall hold no other office." Generally speaking, that is certainly a good provision. The office of sheriff is sufficient in and of itself to keep him busy. But there are some counties in which the sheriff is very certainly the logical person to head up the civil defense organization. He has the radio communication, generally has radio cars, he has personnel around the county, and he is the one who ought to have it. Now, that's not true in every county, but in many counties it is true. So the language here will permit the sheriff to act as director of civil defense if that is advisable in his county. It is not compulsory. The provision as to his security I think is perfectly plain. The sheriff has to give a bond, and the bond runs to the people of the state of Michigan. So that anyone having a cause of action against the sheriff has the protection of that bond.

Now, the matter of his responsibility. "The county shall never be responsible for his acts." What they had in mind I'm sure when they put that statement in the 1835 constitution and carried it forward through the other two was that the sheriff, if the county were responsible for his acts, would constantly bring on the county lawsuits for false arrest, false imprisonment, and what have you, and it would be a very dangerous thing for the county to have liability there. So they make the sheriff give the bond, and they say the county shall not be responsible for his acts. I think that is entirely correct, as far as that kind of thing is concerned.

But there is another situation in which the sheriff is partly helpless. The board of supervisors, for instance, can tell him that he must take his prisoners and go out and work on the road, cutting brush, or whatever it is to be done along the roadside. If one of those prisoners gets hurt and can see some reason for saying the sheriff was negligent — maybe he put a city boy, not knowing how to handle a sharp axe, to cutting brush, and he cuts his foot — anything of that kind where there is a possible liability of the sheriff, he can bring a lawsuit against the sheriff. We have had numerous lawsuits in recent years. In one instance, the prisoner was washing windows, I think, or possibly painting on the outside of the jail, and the scaffold broke, and the man was hurt. I think the lawsuit was for $40,000. There have been other instances where the sheriff has been sued.

Now, all this asks is that the county be allowed to protect him by insurance. At the beginning of this series of lawsuits there was no insurance policy available for that particular liability, but the sheriffs' association got one of the companies to draft a policy on purpose for the protection of sheriffs. Some of the county boards of supervisors evidenced a willingness to protect the sheriff and to guarantee him against loss for that kind of injury. But their prosecuting attorneys promptly ruled that they had no right to do it. And it is for the express purpose of permitting the county to pay for the insurance that this change is made.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Will the gentleman from Stanton yield to the gentleman from Lansing, Mr. Wanger, for a question?

MR. BRAKE: Yes.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Brake, the words "the board of supervisors may protect him against claims" I take it then do not authorize the board of supervisors to pass an ordinance or a rule which would give the sheriff immunity from suit?

MR. BRAKE: No indeed. That should not be done and is not done.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Will the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Fennville, Mr. Hutchinson, for a question?

MR. BRAKE: Yes.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mr. Brake whether the cost of the bond that the sheriff must now furnish is to be paid for by the sheriff personally, or does the county pay that premium?

MR. BRAKE: Quite generally the county pays it.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Now, then, if the county can pay the premium for the sheriff's general security, why is it that they couldn't, without this additional language, pay the premium on the kind of insurance that you are talking about now?

MR. BRAKE: Well, I think the fact that that bond is the public's protection against the sheriff, and that there's no authority to sue the county at all, is part of that answer. The prosecuting attorneys, of course, have been the ones that have raised this point, claiming that the county couldn't pay for the insurance, in connection with the statement that the sheriff shall never be responsible for his acts.

MR. HUTCHINSON: That is, that the county shall never be responsible for the sheriff's acts.

MR. BRAKE: Yes.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Thank you, sir.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Will the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Norris, for a question?

MR. BRAKE: Yes.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Brake, isn't the proposition that the county shall never be responsible for his acts, with the categorical statement "never," too strong, under the circumstances, and may not such responsibility be a matter left to the legislature?

MR. BRAKE: I think not. This puts me in a little strange position, but I wouldn't want the sheriffs down here lobbying on the legislature to change that. I think it should be in the constitution, and stay there solid.

MR. NORRIS: You mentioned that the purpose of the "never" in there is to cover such contingencies as may arise out of false arrest and false imprisonment?

MR. BRAKE: That is exactly what it was intended to cover, I'm sure, in the first place.

MR. NORRIS: Well, aren't there some debatable situations, to say the least, under which there might be occasions when the county ought to be responsible for lawless acts on the part of law enforcement agencies?

MR. BRAKE: No. I think the sheriff should be liable, and his bond should be liable; and I think that's enough. I don't think the county should be.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Will the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Hancock, Mr. Heideman, for a question?

MR. BRAKE: Yes.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. Brake, I was going to ask the same thing. Why isn't this statutory language? Why cannot this be kept in the statute, and out of the constitution, and thus help streamline the constitution?

MR. BRAKE: The people in connection with 3 previous constitutions thought they better put it where it wouldn't be changed, and I agree with the people.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to section e of the committee proposal? If not, it will be passed.

Section e is passed. The secretary will read section f.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section f.

[Sec. f was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Grand Rapids, Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield the floor to Mr. Farnsworth.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, as you recognize, this is the same language as you have in your present constitution. The committee felt that this arrangement had been working rather well, and saw no reason to change it. I would be glad to answer any questions you might have.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are there any amendments to section f of the committee proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. W. F. Hanna offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 12, after "consisting of 1" by inserting "or more"; and in line 13, after "township" by inserting "and city"; and in line 14, after "Cities" by inserting "and townships"; and after "such" by inserting "additional"; so the language will read:

> A board of supervisors, consisting of 1 or more from each organized township and city, shall be established in each county, with such powers as shall be prescribed by law. Cities and townships shall have such additional representation in the boards of supervisors of the counties in which they are situated as may be provided by law.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna, is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, over a period of time a serious discrepancy has crept into this old provision with regard to the large suburban townships. There are not many of them in this state, but we do have the peculiar situation where a township of considerable population has only one representative, when a city of the same population may have 5, 6, 7 or 8.

For example, in the township of which I was supervisor, we have a population now approaching 20,000. Only the supervisor is a member of our county board. Out of that township, as originally surveyed, has been taken a city a mile square, and with its very meager population it has 2 representatives on the county board of supervisors. This is obviously unfair. Certainly the large townships surrounding the cities are entitled to equivalent representation with the small cities that exist throughout the county.

This merely allows the legislature to prescribe such additional representation after the initial one has been assigned to each city or township in such manner as will be prescribed by law, and will allow them to do as they have done with cities in the past: to classify counties so the boards of supervisors do not become unreasonably large. But it will treat the suburban township in the same manner.

Secondly, when the legislature was trying to create the chartered township act, the fact that they could do many things to free the chartered township and make it an intermediate step or an optional form of township government for those suburban townships that were neither all city nor all rural, but which needed an intermediate position while they were considering their metropolitan problems and their urban problems, the legislature found that they could not grant to chartered townships additional representation on the board of supervisors because of this prohibition in the old 1907-'08 constitution.

Certainly, the intermediate step of chartered township should be entitled to equal representation on the board of supervisors with those cities now organized or as may be hereinafter organized.

The local government committee has not seen fit to grant township home rule, but I assume that chartered township government will be permitted, and this will erase one of the serious discriminations as concerns township boards of supervisors. The cities are adequately protected. The small townships are adequately protected. But the in between townships are definitely discriminated against.

I urge the adoption of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King, is recognized to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I have, also, an amendment on the secretary's desk which is very similar to Mr. Hanna's, and if the secretary would read it and Mr. Hanna would be agreeable, I think we could merge our 2 amendments, and perhaps save some time.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. King has filed the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 12, after "1" by inserting "or more members elected"; and in line 13 after "township" by inserting "or city".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Muskegon for comment?

MR. KING: Yes.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. King, if I understand the import, you are simply adding the word "elected," is that correct?

MR. KING: That's correct.

MR. W. F. HANNA: I have no objection to the merger of the 2 amendments.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is there objection to the 2 amendments being so merged? If not, it is so ordered and they are so merged. Is there objection? The chairman of the committee, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I think you moved a little faster than I could get out of that chair. I think because of the discussion that was had in our committee on this particular provision, I would like to ask that they not be merged.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Objection is heard, and the 2 amendments will have to be considered separately.

MR. KING: In that event, Mr. Chairman, I will speak in favor of the Hanna amendment at this time, and depending upon the results of the committee's decision in that area, I will perhaps revise my own amendment. I think it is extremely important that we all recognize this great inequality with regard to representation of large townships on boards of supervisors.

Now, I'm not from a township. I'm from the city of Pontiac, and I represent no township. But I think that this is a situation whereby all people who believe in a degree of democracy can agree that townships of the size of say Mr. Kuhn's township, Waterford township, which is over 50,000 people, and Redford township, which is very close to the size of Pontiac, believe it or not, should be entitled to something more than the same amount of representation accorded a small township in the same county.

Now, I do think that every township ought to have at least one representative, and I don't have the apportionment planned for the counties any more than I do for the states, but at least let's untie the hands of the legislature so that if these inequities, as time goes on, become more and more severe, let's let it look into this situation and come up with a solution. I don't have the answer. All I ask is that large townships not be restricted to one member only. And I think that that is a reasonable request on behalf of the large townships. As I say, I don't represent one, but I think it is important.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar, is recognized to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I'm speaking in behalf of the committee report and committee recommendation. We discussed this at great length in the committee, and I can't understand why Mr. Hanna or Mr. King might think that these large townships can't get more representation on the board of supervisors. In fact, nowhere does it say that they shouldn't get more representation. It's provided for, and has been, in our constitution and in our statutes, that the large urban townships can get as much representation as any other city of its size. All they have to do is become a city—and they do have the right to become a city. This is just one of these cases where we want to have our cake and eat it, too.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Madar, one of the problems of the suburban township is that it doesn't know for sure whether it wants to become annexed to the core city, whether it wants to be foolish and become a city of its own, or whether it wants to be less foolish and become a chartered township, or whether it wants to remain totally wise and remain a township. They are in a period of transition. And if they are not entitled to fair representation on the board of supervisors during this period of transition, they are like the newly organized counties back in 1850, about which you might have said a newly organized county should have no representation in the state legislature. But, if you recall, when Michigan was going through this transition period, it clearly provided that newly organized counties would have representation in the legislature.

All we are asking is, while they are in the transition period, before they become a city and while they are still a township, that they have fair representation on the board. If you are a supervisor of a metropolitan township, you simply cannot assume a major committee post or any other position, because you have to spread yourself so thin, because you have no one to backstop or help you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I would like to speak in favor of the principle of Delegate Hanna's amendment. I believe that the matter of whether a unit of government is a township or a city should be considered separately from the matter of representation on the board of supervisors. I do have some amendments that are being drafted which will apply to Committee Proposal 89 dealing with the matter of change in charter home rule government. But, in the meantime, I do believe that the thinking of Delegate Hanna would permit a more representative and as a result a stronger and more responsible form of county government.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair would advise that he already has 10 members on the list seeking recognition on this amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. Kuhn, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Hanna amendment. As you know, we will be speaking about county home rule shortly, and there are plans devised which will have the board of supervisors come up with some recommendations which the people of this county or any county should adopt if they want this county home rule. I think it is only fair then that the board of supervisors be made up according to the population of that particular county, since they will be the ones drafting this charter that they would adopt.

I have an amendment pending which is very, very similar to Mr. Hanna's, and I'm wondering if he would accept the last 2 sentences as an amendment to his, which would do away with mine, and then we could do away with another amendment. I ask the secretary to read it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kuhn's amendment is as follows:

1. Amend page 2, by striking out lines 12 through 16 and inserting:

"Sec. f. A board of supervisors, consisting of at least 1 from each organized township and at least 1 from each city, may be established in each county, with such powers as shall be prescribed by law. The balance of the membership of the board of supervisors shall be selected upon a population basis as may be provided by law.".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is there objection? Does the gentleman desire to object?

MR. KING: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I think the wording "upon a population basis" would create further controversy.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Objection is heard.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, I thought if you amended a person's amendment, it was up to the person who offered the amendment. But if I'm wrong, I will accept your ruling.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question still recurs on the Hanna amendment. The Chair recognizes the lady from Grand Rapids, Mrs. Judd, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MRS. JUDD: I would like to yield the floor to Mr. Farnsworth on this.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, the committee would object to putting the 2 together. We would like them separately.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Livonia, Mrs. Conklin, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MRS. CONKLIN: I would like to rise in support of the Hanna amendment. I don't live there, but I represent Redford township, with 72,000 people, and I don't choose to decide whether they should become a city in order to get more representation on the board of supervisors. I would like to support the Hanna amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Madison Heights, Mr. Walker, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. WALKER: I rise to support the Hanna amendment. I find it most heartening to see Mr. Hanna, Mrs. Conklin, and all of our other distinguished delegates here supporting the principle of population as a means of representation rather than just area. I feel that in going along with this they are going to make it a possibility that this constitution will be acceptable to all of the people of the state of Michigan.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Mr. Allen, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to rise and speak in objection to the Hanna amendment. Let me say at the beginning that I think that this discussion actually is going to be a little apportionment fight. That's what we found it was down in the local government committee. We really hashed this over backwards and forwards, and we got into all kinds of inconsistent positions.

Now, traditionally, county government has always been recognized as having its representation on sort of a district or area basis, and not on a population basis. This is why, for example, in Kalamazoo county, where my city has almost half the population, we only have 12 supervisors out of a board of 32.

Now, if you are going to start changing this concept—and this is what the Hanna amendment does; it changes the concept towards the population formula, but it doesn't change it all the way to the population formula—you can say that we get into some terribly inconsistent positions politically.

The Democrats—because they don't go all the way and have a population formula. If they did, Kalamazoo would have half the members of the board of supervisors. And the Republicans—because they don't stand on the position of the area or geographic representation.

Now, in addition to this problem that is raised, we get this. Let's take my county, for example. We have about half of the population. We have 12 supervisors. There are 16 townships. They have approximately the other half of the population. They have 16 votes, we have 12. Now, 2 of these townships are 20,000 or 21,000. When you start granting more, as the Hanna amendment would do, you see, what you do is increase the imbalance that exists.

And I think you will find in every county where this is done, where there is a large metropolitan township, the problem that the central city has is aggravated in the membership of the board of supervisors. Now, we tried to work it out in local government, but what you get into is the diversity in your 83 counties. There isn't a single formula that we could devise here, ladies and gentlemen, that would work for every county. The legislature has implemented the 1908 constitution so that the existing arrangement, while not totally satisfactory to everyone, isn't too bad. And it has taken a lot of effort.

Now, the Hanna amendment, you see, would do an imbalance to this; and it would create an additional representation from the metropolitan townships, and diminish the proportional amount that the cities have. Well, someone will say: "All right. The legislature can change the formula, and allow greater representation for the cities." Now, this would pull the thing back perhaps if the legislature would do it, but you run into the next objection. Our boards of supervisors, generally speaking, are getting too large across the state. That is, in the heavily populated counties. So that if you add more supervisors from the metropolitan townships and don't have the legislature increase them for the city, you create a greater imbalance. If the legislature corrects it by adding the representation to the city, you get more supervisors. And already in Wayne county you have a 108 man board. Oakland county, I think, is something like 65. In other words, you get too big and too cumbersome a board of supervisors.

Now, it was the conclusion of the local government committee, for these reasons: you either run into the objection that you are going to diminish the fair representation which a city should have, or you run into the objection that you are changing the classical formula of area representation—and if the Republican party now wants to go to a straight population on this matter, that's another matter—or you run into the objection that in order to compensate for the added representation of the metropolitan township, you then have to add members to the city, and you get too large a board, and they are too large generally speaking anyway. You run into so many problems that you are left with what we have. It is not completely satisfactory, but at least it's been worked out. And it's for these reasons that I support the committee proposal and oppose the Hanna amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Ford, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. FORD: I want to support the Hanna amendment. First of all, in answer to some of the points that Glenn has just raised, these were all raised in the committee. Those of us who support this proposition don't purport to rewrite the present formula in any way. All we do is remove the restriction that is now on the legislature that absolutely prohibits a consideration of population for townships.

There is a population formula for cities. Now, all we are asking is that citizens of a county be considered as citizens of a county, and not as citizens of a township, village or a city when you are talking about the government of that county.

Glenn Allen happens to be one of the foremost exponents of a form of county home rule that would have a board—a much smaller board; perhaps a council type of situation—which I'm sure Glenn does not anticipate would be elected all from one city or all from cities or all from townships, or using city or township lines, for that matter. He wouldn't want to put that kind of rigidity into it. He talks for flexibility. This, he says, for example, is a small apportionment fight. Well, this is a small flexibility fight, too. Because all we are asking you to do is take the restriction out.

The language, the way it reads now, is tantamount to a restriction which says you can give the city as many representatives on the board of supervisors as you wish, but you can only give one to a township, regardless of whether you use area, population, or whatever you use as the formula. Just to give you a quick example, in Wayne county we have on our board of supervisors 108 people. Now, you can argue that 108 is too large, and 105 would be better. Some people would argue that 111 isn't too much, but that's the amount we have in the legislature. But I want to tell you what is going to happen in Wayne county if we don't change this. As it now stands, we have 14 townships left in Wayne county that are actual governmental townships. Two of those townships are almost totally taken up by a village, and there's another proposal to take care of those.

But, historically, in the last 20 years townships have not incorporated, in the majority of cases, in toto, as a single city. I give as an example Ecorse township, or what was left of Ecorse township. Ecorse township has been broken up into the city of Lincoln Park, the city of Ecorse, Melvindale, Allen Park and Southgate. Now, because this one township went from a township to all of these cities, and the cities have a population formula, and the city of Detroit is guaranteed by the population formula in effect that so long as it has a majority of the population of the county of Wayne, it shall always have a majority on the board of supervisors, by the incorporation of these cities, every time you add 3, which is what happens when you are dealing with these 30,000 population cities, you automatically add 4 to Detroit. So you put 7 people on the board of supervisors to replace 1.

And this is going on, and at the present rate of incorporation of townships, within the next 10 years the Wayne county board of supervisors will have 150 members, using the present formula. But, in the meantime, townships such as Nankin, which in the 1960 census had 96,000 people, have the same representation as the city of Belleville, with 1,921 people. This doesn't seem to make much sense on any basis. The 96,000 people in Nankin township are county citizens who pay county taxes and who want to participate with equal voice in the government of county affairs. They are not asking for the right to interfere with the affairs of Livonia or any other incorporated city. But they are asking, on the basis of governing their county affairs, that they be given equal voice.

And this is all that the Hanna amendment would make possible. The legislature will have to come up with a formula that could take care of our problem in Wayne county without interfering with the interests that Glenn wants to protect in Kalamazoo, and certainly this could be done if we left it to the legislature and we took this rigidity out of the section, making it possible to do so.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, I'll be very brief, because Mr. Ford mentioned most of the things that I wanted to point out with regard to what Mr. Allen had to say. We don't purport nor propose to change a single thing. We are devising no formulas. We are only suggesting that we free the hands of the legislature so that they, if the time comes when they deem it necessary, can do this. And as far as his comment that the present system isn't too bad, I submit that that's a point of personal opinion. Some people think it's pretty bad.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Traverse City, Mr. Sleder, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. SLEDER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I should like to speak in opposition to the Hanna amendment. We have involved here a philosophy of county government, and we must realize that each township and each area receives a service from the county government. And when we distort the representation in the county on the board of supervisors, we then distort the type of service that each area shall receive from this county. Likewise, within a county, we may have an organized city. This city may have a population of say 5,000 people. They have provided their own fire protection, their own street repair, their own street improvements, their own police protection.

In the surrounding township there may be twice this population, 10,000 people, and the county is providing them with their roads, their streets, their fire protection and police protection. We therefore then give this area more representation than we have the city, which is providing its own services, but we have doubled the representation on the board from the township. Therefore, we get a distorted effect on the board of supervisors, in that this one township can and possibly would divert more services to their particular area than the remainder of the county, or the services that are being provided under an incorporated city.

Therefore, on this basis, if we are to adhere to the principles of the standard form of county government, you must defeat the Hanna amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Niles, Mr. Boothby, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the Hanna amendment, and also to make plain my position on this matter so I will not be charged with inconsistency a little later on. The board of supervisors is actually a unicameral legislative body, and this has been so of course for many, many years.

What we actually have in the Hanna amendment is a recognition of a principle to which I completely subscribe, and that is that we will give to each unit of government, both the city and township, an individual representation on this legislative body; and also, in addition to that, we will allow population to have representation also. So it will allow the people that live within the city and township units to have a representation for their own individual problems that arise out of a consensus problem of the particular unit of government. It also recognizes the problem which the people at large residing in the county have, and I feel that this has a great degree of merit.

What I am surprised to find is that Mr. Madar wants equal representation only for the city people, and not for the township people. And this amuses me, to a great extent, and I'm wondering what his position will be later on.

I would like to point out just in my own county what the problem is. Niles township and the city of Niles of course are adjacent to one another. Niles township has 11,934 people living within its boundaries. The city of Niles has 13,842. They are very similar in their population. Niles township has 1 representative on the board of supervisors, and the city of Niles has 5 representatives. A little further down in Berrien county we have the city of Bridgeman, with a population of 1,454 people, with 1 representative.

I cannot understand Mr. Madar's position. I do support the Hanna amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman desire to yield to the gentleman from Detroit for a reply?

MR. BOOTHBY: Yes.

MR. MADAR: Thank you very much. I so far haven't said anything about not giving any of the townships representation by population. I think that all of you heard me say that I felt that we should all have representation by population—not alone in townships and in cities, but also in counties—yes, the state of Michigan, where we are getting a much fairer representation from the federal government than we in Wayne county are getting from the state. All I said was that the townships could get representation by population by incorporating, by becoming a city.

I'm sure that you have had enough schooling—in fact, you have had more than I, I'm positive of this, because as I understand it you are a college graduate — but when I went to school, what I said meant that they could get representation by population. All they have to do is become a city to get it. Now, that isn't too tough to do. The only thing is, you must be fair and willing to pay your fair and proportionate share of your taxes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, I, of course, for the committee, would have to oppose the Hanna amendment. I'd like to say that we on the local government committee are quite well pleased to find that we have so many friends of townships here at the convention. We like that. This is like getting back into the committee work again. This has been gone over and over in committee. I would urge each and every one of you, when we vote—which I hope will be soon—that unless you have good and compelling reasons based on knowledge and fact, that you support the committee in their position, and vote down the Hanna amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Escanaba, Mr. Follo, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. FOLLO: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I don't get up very often to oppose or support anything, but I find in the last couple of days I've gotten up twice now to oppose amendments by Mr. Hanna, and I assure him this is not on account of any personal animus.

I feel this way. Much of what I was going to say has been said by Glenn Allen and Julius Sleder, but we have a problem up in Delta county. The city of Escanaba and the city of Gladstone have over 2/3 of the population of the county, and yet we have less than half of the membership on the board of supervisors. I'm afraid that what Mr. Hanna's amendment would do would be to throw it farther into imbalance. For this reason I would like to oppose the Hanna amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mattawan, Mr. Finch, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. FINCH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I would like to support the Hanna amendment. I would say that this sounds like committee room A back a few weeks ago.

Also, one other thing. That is that some cities in our area with I believe only 850 population have 2 members on the board of supervisors, and with Glenn Allen saying that some townships in his area with 20,000 or more only have 1, I think that there isn't any reason why this Hanna amendment couldn't pass.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Sheridan, Mr. Gover, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. GOVER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I want to go on record as supporting the Hanna amendment. In our committee on local government I had a proposal in there to give representation on the board of supervisors to villages, which the committee saw fit to defeat. Many of these villages are large size, and they increase the population of the township. I was told on my proposal that the supervisors would represent all the townships that need to be represented. For that reason I've got to go on record as being in favor of the Hanna amendment, so that some of the larger townships can get more representation on the board of supervisors.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bay City, Mr. Higgs, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I would like to speak in favor of the Hanna amendment. In particular, I would like to call attention to and support the argument that Delegate Hanna made in favor of the principle of the township which is in the transient stage, so to speak, unable to decide whether it should or should not become a chartered township, whether it should or should not become a city, for fear of tying itself to a form of government in a fairly permanent form.

Now, I say this although in my township of 107,000 I myself live in the city, and our city includes probably more than a majority of the inhabitants of the county. But I come here not as a representative of the city, but as a representative of the entire county. And I do know that there are several townships adjacent to my city that do favor and would look sympathetically upon permitting this flexibility, permitting the legislature to attempt to solve this problem.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I assume, Mr. Chairman, that you have others to recognize on this thing. May I just urge the delegates of this committee of the whole to be careful, and unless they have new ideas to add to something that has been cooked over now for a half hour, that we move on, because we have some other items, and I know there are other amendments on the floor.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Mrs. Cushman, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I have an amendment to the Hanna amendment which I wonder if I could present now, and speak on it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Mrs. Cushman, the secretary advises me that your amendment is not properly an amendment to the Hanna amendment, since it is to add a proviso to the end of the section, and the Chair would suggest that you offer your amendment at the appropriate time.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I wanted to add it to this business of "1 or more."

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The secretary will read your amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Cushman's amendment is:

1. Amend page 2, line 16, after "law" by changing the period to a colon and inserting "Provided, That each unit of government shall be entitled to representation in proportion to population.".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will reverse his ruling and rule that the amendment to the amendment is in order, and Mrs. Cushman is recognized in support of her amendment to the amendment.

MRS. CUSHMAN: What I think my amendment to the amendment does here is point out the issue fairly clearly. The issue is one of whether we are going to stick with the type of representation in the county that we are used to at the present time, which is a combination—it's really an area basis for the townships and a population basis for the cities, limited—or are we going to go to something that is really on a strict population basis? I have heard a lot of discussion here from people favoring the Hanna amendment, which indicates that they favor a straight population basis. This would be achieved by this amendment.

Now, I don't claim that my amendment is very perfect. I haven't had much time to work out the details. It might lead to a few problems.

For example, we have in the state of Michigan 1,258 townships, as I recall. Now 129 of those townships have populations of less than 300 people. One township has a population of as little as 27 people. This township is still entitled to 1 representative on the board of supervisors.

Now, as I would see it, if we were going to take that particular county—and I can't recall now which county it is—as our sample county, then you would have to work it out so that if you were going to give that 1 unit of population in that township, 27, a representative, then you would have to give every other group of 27 in that county 1 representative.

Now, this would lead, I think, to quite a few people on the board of supervisors, but it would be strictly in proportion to population. And I think that this is apparently the intent of the people who have indicated that they want a straight population basis.

Now, as I say, it has some real problems here. But what I am trying to point out to you is that if you go to a straight population basis, you've got to consider the fact that we've got some mighty small townships which are now getting a full representation, as well as some mighty big ones.

The way that we have hoped that we could work this out, if the counties wished to, was through a real home rule type of situation, where they would be free to set up the type of government that they would need for their county, and set up their board of supervisors in such proportion and with such numbers as would most fairly represent the people of their county. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is now on the Cushman amendment to the Hanna amendment. The secretary will again read the Cushman amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The Cushman amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the lady from Livonia, Mrs. Conklin, desire to speak on the Cushman amendment?

MRS. CONKLIN: Mr. Chairman, I'm not sure. I have a question that I would like to ask. I didn't mean to get involved in an apportionment problem here. I just simply can't seem to get an answer yet. I would like to direct the question to Mr. Allen, if I may, as to why cities should be handled any differ-ently than townships. I think we've gotten awfully far afield from what I think the intent of the Hanna amendment was, in my opinion, and I would like to find out why cities should be handled any differently than townships.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The lady yields to the gentleman from Kalamazoo for a reply.

MR. ALLEN: The reason, Mrs. Conklin, is that the constitution provides for 1 from each township, period. That's all that is in the constitution. Now, in order to get representation from the cities, this has been handled by legislation. And because your cities are generally much larger than townships, the legislature set the matter up this way.

While I'm answering, I might say that if there are those who feel that cities are overrepresented, particularly your small towns, the correction is not here in the constitution, but is over at the legislature. There they have some flexibility.

MR. KUHN: Point of order.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Will the gentleman state it.

MR. KUHN: The way I understand the Cushman amendment, it is completely out of order, based on the Hanna amendment. The Hanna amendment says there shall be at least 1 supervisor from each township and city, and hers says that it must be strictly according to population at the end. This could leave a township or city without any, and therefore I say that it is inconsistent.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the lady from Dearborn, Mrs. Cushman, desire to speak on the point of order?

MRS. CUSHMAN: Yes. I don't see that it would leave anybody without representation. In fact, I specifically put in there that every unit would be represented according to population. I don't see that there is any implication here to the contrary.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair rules that the amendment is consistent with the Hanna amendment, and the point of order is overruled.

Does the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Stevens, desire to speak on the Cushman amendment?

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, it seems to me quite simple that what Mrs. Cushman is attempting to do will be provided for, I suppose, in a later proposal for county home rule. I don't see how you can get any thing as complicated as this in any other way. It would change the whole present system of county government.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth, desire to speak on the Cushman amendment?

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, I would, thank you. Now, I would like to get the Cushman amendment squarely before the committee. The Cushman amendment was to put the selection of the board of supervisors strictly on a population basis. So let's do a little arithmetic. We take 1 from each township. That is settled. We are all in agreement with that, that there will be 1 from each township.

So let's take this township that has 300 people in it. They would get 1, wouldn't they? Then let's take the township with 3,000 people, and they would get 10. Now we have this city that you have been talking about with 30,000 people in it, and they would send 100 people down there. Now, just how large a board of supervisors do we want? Don't you see how inconsistent some of these things get when you start tinkering with them! So I say, again, to you: vote down the Cushman amendment.

I hope it gets to be a habit with you, so that when you get to the Hanna amendment, you will vote that one down, too. (laughter) And, again, I must say to you, unless you have good and compelling reasons, based on facts and knowledge, let's vote these down and get going.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King, desire to speak on the Cushman amendment?

MR. KING: Yes, I do. I also suggest that we vote down the Cushman amendment. I'm afraid the distinguished lady from Dearborn is using a devious means to kill a very worthwhile amendment, the Hanna amendment. And I suggest that we vote down the Cushman amendment, but not confuse the two. I think there is a great deal of merit in the Hanna amendment, because he is not proposing any formula or any apportionment or anything like that. We are merely giving to the legislature a power which I think any of us who believe in constitutional government would agree that they ought to have.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. Kuhn, desire to speak on the Cushman amendment?

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, I would have to speak against the Cushman amendment, because I don't understand it, and because of the fact that I do not think it does what you are trying to tell me it does. Therefore I'm against it. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna, is recognized to speak on the Cushman amendment.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman and delegates, the Cushman amendment would completely change the present representation on the board of supervisors, not only as to townships, but as to cities. The representation by cities is by class of population, not in proportion to population. All the Cushman amendment does is scramble the eggs, but good. What my amendment did was to say in effect that the legislature shall have permission to classify townships of 5,000 to 10,000 population in the same bracket as cities of 5,000 to 10,000. I would trust the wisdom of the legislature. But to attempt to put them on straight population, as the Cushman amendment does, is to scramble the eggs of every board of supervisors, and not erase the discrepancies that exist because the board of supervisors is a representation of governmental units, as well as people.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question occurs on the amendment to the amendment offered by the lady from Dearborn, Mrs. Cushman. As many as are in favor of the amendment to the amendment will respond by saying aye. Those opposed.

The amendment to the amendment is not adopted.

The question now occurs on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna. The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Hanna, as chairman of the committee on local government, I would be constrained to urge a no vote on the Hanna amendment—not because I don't believe that the intent of Mr. Hanna's amendment is a sound one, because I think that in his approach he was trying to reach a solution which our committee debated for a long time. We went through every argument that you have heard on this floor, and a few that I'm afraid you may hear before we rise, and when we got through we could not come to a decision. And we had the amendments that Mr. Hanna has introduced within our committee, and they were defeated. Finally, when we became fully aware of the fact that the problem was as complex as it now seems to be, we voted on retaining section 7 of article VIII of the 1908 constitution as it was, and our vote on that motion was unanimous.

MR. FORD: Point of personal privilege, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. FORD: As a member of the committee on local government, this must have been one of the meetings I wasn't invited to, because we did not vote unanimously at any time on the consideration of this issue.

MR. FINCH: Mr. Chairman, a point of personal privilege, also.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. FINCH: The same thing is true. This was not a unanimous vote by my vote.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I should have clarified it. Mr. Ford, Mr. Finch, I'm sorry; what I meant to say was that in the vote that was taken on this, in the final reading, the vote was unanimous. I could check to see whether these 2 gentlemen were there.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. MADAR: I just want to make a correction here. All of the committee members have always been invited to all of the meetings. It is a matter of record.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Grand Rapids, Mrs. Judd, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MRS. JUDD: I just want to second what Mr. Elliott has said. I think the experience on the floor has proved that it is impossible to write a formula in the constitution that will be satisfactory to every county. It would be equally impossible, I think, or almost so, for the legislature to write a general law that would be satisfactory to every county. This is a problem that has to be worked out in each county, and which could be done under a home rule amendment. This is the reason we have recommended this proposal. We know it isn't particularly good, but it is the best that we could work out for all counties.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna, to speak on his amendment.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, I would like to address Mrs. Judd. Will you consent to changing the language to "there shall be 1 supervisor from each city and 1 supervisor from each township"? Because if it's so difficult to work out a formula for the metropolitan township, certainly the legislature, as you have classified them, could never work out a formula for the cities. The poor dears over there would struggle with it, and would never be able to arrive at any formula. Certainly, if they are intelligent enough to approach it as to a formula for cities, they are intelligent enough to approach it for the 100 townships or so that are faced with this problem. (applause)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the lady from Grand Rapids, Mrs. Judd, for a reply.

MRS. JUDD: Of course, I have a great deal of respect and hope for the legislature, Mr. Hanna. However, I think that I will stick by the committee proposal, and I think it's just up to the convention to decide which one they like.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. Kuhn, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, first let me say that I agree 100 per cent with Bill Hanna. We are not attempting to write any formula. This is the same provision that is in the constitution today, except for one small, minute change, and that is: we take away the restriction that townships shall be limited to 1 member on the board of supervisors. We are not doing anything else but taking away that restriction.

The constitution today does not set a formula for the legislature as to how they should set up boards of supervisors as to city people. We are not asking them to do it now.

I would like to reply to one thing that Brother James Farnsworth had to say. He said that this committee had agreed we should follow the majority report, and gave great emphasis on the majority report. Several other delegates of that committee said the same. Then I happened to see on my desk a minority report from this same committee. I'll agree it's on another subject, but I understand that Mr. Farnsworth is also one of the leaders of that minority. (laughter) And I would like to add that not only did Mr. Farnsworth sign this minority report on Committee Proposal 89, but also Glenn Allen, James Farnsworth, Dorothy Judd, Julius Sleder and Charles Follo, all the people that spoke against the Hanna amendment. (applause)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The committee will be in order. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Traverse City, Mr. Sleder, to speak on the Hanna amendment.

MR. SLEDER: Fellow delegates, I feel we are losing the philosophy on county government. We are being carried away with an area here that doesn't apply to the standard form of county government.

And again I must refer to the fact of the reason why we have a county government, and that is for a certain type of service. And we must keep these services in balance. As soon as you distort the representation on the board of supervisors from the areas that supplement and support this form of government on the same basis, you are destroying the standard form of county government as we've known it in Michigan.

And this is important. As soon as we get more representation from one township that can ask for and receive more services from that same county, we then are spoiling our county form of government. Now, this is important, and this is what you must remember. And this is why you must defeat the Hanna amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question occurs on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna. As many as are in favor will respond by saying aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendment is adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: A division has been demanded. There is a sufficient number. Those in favor of the Hanna amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine.

SECRETARY CHASE: The vote on the adoption of the Hanna amendment is yeas, 52; nays, 58.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The amendment is not adopted.

The secretary will report the next pending amendment to section f of the committee proposal.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kuhn has offered the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, by striking out lines 12 through 16 and inserting "Sec. f. A board of supervisors, consisting of at least 1 from each organized township, and at least 1 from each city, may be established in each county, with such powers as shall be prescribed by law. The balance of the membership of the board of supervisors shall be selected upon a population basis as may be provided by law.".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. Kuhn, is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. KUHN: I won't have very many words to say on this, except that this would put the townships on an equal basis with the cities in our county form of government.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is there discussion on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pontiac? The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order that that is essentially the same as what we just voted down.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Pontiac desire to respond to the point of order raised by the gentleman from Allegan?

MR. KUHN: I raised the same point of order on Mrs. Cushman's amendment, and you told me that it was in order. And I tried to get my amendment up earlier, and you told me I was out of order. So I would think it goes without saying that we should have a vote on my amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair finds that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. Kuhn, contains these words, "The balance of the membership of the board of supervisors shall be selected upon a population basis as may be provided by law," and feels constrained to overrule the point of order. The amendment is accepted as being in order.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, in other words, you are saying that you were mistaken earlier when I raised this question? (laughter)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair has ruled that your amendment is in order, and the gentleman may proceed.

MR. KUHN: Thank you. I have no further comments.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Allegan.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, for the same reasons that the committee has opposed the other amendments, they likewise would oppose this one, and urge that you not adopt it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The vote occurs on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. Kuhn. As many as are in favor will respond by saying aye. Those opposed say no.

The amendment is not adopted.

MR. KUHN: Division.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman demands a division. Is the demand supported?

SECRETARY CHASE: Ten.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: There's a sufficient number. Those in favor of the amendment by the gentleman from Pontiac will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Kuhn, the yeas are 28; the nays are 75.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will report the next pending amendment to section f.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. King offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 12, after "1" by inserting "or more members elected"; and in line 13 after "township" by inserting "or city"; so the language will then read, "A board of supervisors, consisting of 1 or more members elected from each organized township or city, shall be established in each county. . . ."

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King, is recognized in support of his amendment.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, point of order.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. FARNSWORTH: We have just had the language of 1 or more from a township. We just got through voting on it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair would have to rule that because of the insertion of the word "elected" the amendment does not contain the same language you just previously voted on, and overrules the point of order.

The gentleman is recognized.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the delegation, I don't know just how to approach this problem, because we obviously have turned down the idea of any more than 1 supervisor being allowed from a township, no matter how large; and if we won't grant any kind of reasonable representation, I guess it would be quite a lot to expect that we allow the people to select these people. But I'll carry on anyway.

I really believe in the representative type of government that we have here in America, and I think it would be a nice idea if we could elect our representatives.

Now, in my city of Pontiac, I don't know my supervisors, and they don't know me, and I'm sure that they are not going to put themselves out to report back to me, inasmuch as I didn't put them on the board. They are appointed by the city commission, and they know who they are responsible to; they are responsible to the city commission. Maybe that's a good form of government, I don't know.

But, seriously, the argument that is going to be raised is that the cities and the counties ought to have the same people serving in both places. Now, our mayor, of course, is also on the county board of supervisors. I don't think this is a valid argument. I think we ought to have a separation between levels of government. I don't think that the supervisors should necessarily sit in the legislature. I don't think the governor should sit in the United States senate. I think that we ought to keep separate these various levels of government.

I think that the members of the county board of supervisors ought to be elected by and responsible to the people. And inasmuch as you have already decided that we are not even going to permit the legislature to have any kind of apportionment, I would like to withdraw these words "or more" and just leave the word "elected," if I may. I don't want to confuse the issue.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman that he be permitted to revise his amendment? Hearing none, it is so ordered.

The secretary will read the amendment as revised.

SECRETARY CHASE: The language of the amendment now offered by Mr. King is, "A board of supervisors, consisting of 1 member elected from each organized township or city. . . ." Is this what you are after, Mr. King?

MR. KING: That does point out the problems you get into when you try to deal with the degree of inequality between cities and townships, but that is not what I'm after.

Maybe I better sit down and try to draft it, but what I would like to say is that we ought to elect all of the supervisors, and I guess it's the decision of this group here that cities will be entitled to 1 or more, and townships will be entitled to 1 only. That's what I'm trying to arrive at, because I don't want to be paying for a dead horse, and Mr. Hanna's horse has already died. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth, is recognized.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, I must say at this point that the committee is somewhat confused as to exactly what Mr. King would like to have us vote on.

Mr. King, are you asking us to vote on the proposition as to whether we elect, as against appointment of city representation of supervisors?

MR. KING: Yes.

MR. FARNSWORTH: That is what you would like to have us vote on?

MR. KING: Yes.

MR. FARNSWORTH: All right. I understand it completely, now. Thank you very much.

Mr. Chairman and members of the committee: I might say, again, that this was explored at quite some length in the local government committee, and quite a lot of testimony was developed that some of the better members of the boards of supervisors coming from cities certainly are the appointed members. It was also brought out that in many, many cases these men would not be available to the boards if they had to run for election.

However, it is a good question, it should be settled, and we are quite willing to put it to a vote. But, again, we urge you, unless you have good and compelling reasons based on knowledge and facts, that you go along with the committee and vote down the amendment.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Stevens, on the King amendment.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I should like to know what we in Wayne county, in the city of Detroit, would do if we had to elect over 60 members of the board of supervisors. Until such time as a board of supervisors is made smaller, it seems to me an impossible task. If you don't know your supervisors now, those of us in Detroit certainly would not know the candidates who might be on the ballot.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, our committee spent almost as much time on this particular subject as we did on the one which we have just discussed. There is, however, one bit of information that Mr. King didn't tell the committee, which I think is important, and that is this: that those appointive members of the board of supervisors are only appointive because the charter under which their city is operated so states, and that those people that Mr. Kuhn was talking about were the ones that adopted the charter; and therefore it would be possible that any time any community wished to have an elective board of supervisors, they have the means available for them to so do.

And so, after all of the discussion was heard in our committee, we arrived at the decision that this section was as nearly proper as we could make it as it now reads in the 1908 constitution.

MR. PRETTIE: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. PRETTIE: As I understand it, the parliamentary posture is that Mr. King has withdrawn his amendment, and we have nothing before us to consider.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman has not yet asked permission to withdraw his amendment. Does he so ask permission?

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, I'm sorry for this confusion. I have straightened the matter out and have given the proper wording to the secretary. I did not intend to withdraw it. I merely meant to try to sit down and clarify it, which I have done. And I think at this time, if the secretary could read my new amendment, it would clarify the situation.

MR. PRETTIE: I will withdraw my point of order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. King's amendment, as revised, is now as follows:

1. Amend page 2, line 14, after "such" by inserting "elected"; so the sentence will read, "Cities shall have such elected representation in the boards of supervisors of the counties in which they are situated as may be provided by law.".

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman to withdraw his amendment and insert the new language? Hearing none, it is so ordered.

The gentleman from Kalamazoo, Mr. Allen, is now recognized.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. King, let me ask you a question before I make some comments, to be sure I understand. I was a member of the board of supervisors, and still am. I was elected a city commissioner. By virtue of being a city commissioner, I went to the board of supervisors under our charter. Now, under your amendment, am I elected or not elected?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, under my amendment you would qualify.

MR. ALLEN: I would qualify?

MR. KING: Yes.

MR. ALLEN: All right. I raised the point because the same thing happens on a supervisor. A supervisor is elected a township supervisor. He is not elected a member of the board of supervisors. He is elected a township supervisor. By virtue of the statute he then is entitled to sit on the board of supervisors. Now, since we are only talking about people who are appointed from the city to the board of supervisors under your proposed amendment, as distinguished from their election, even though they may be elected as city commissioner or mayor or something like that, I think the committee should know that the charters of most of the large cities in Michigan, adopted by the people, have provided for appointed members. These are not by any means the majority. They are the minority. Our charter, for example, in Kalamazoo, provides that the city assessor and the city attorney are appointed members of the board of supervisors.

If your amendment prevails here, you are undoing the charters of the various cities. Now, maybe that's all right to do. But I want the committee to know it.

Secondly, I would like to say this. That in our case our city assessor is one of the most valuable members of the board of supervisors, particularly when it comes to equalized values, the valuations, assessments and county equalizations, and our city attorney is, too.

And thirdly, I know one city right now which has had such a dismal experience where they have elected their supervisor to the board of supervisors—he is not elected as a mayor, but he is elected as a supervisor—they have so little interest in the election, and so on, that they are thinking of revising their charter to go to some other system.

Now, I think this is the kind of problem that you run into under your amendment. You bar out the appointed member, and often that appointed member is there in a very, very useful and trained capacity.

MR. KING: Will the gentleman yield?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Do you yield to the gentleman for a reply? The gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King.

MR. KING: My only point in this regard is it seems as though what you are saying, Mr. Allen, is that regardless of how the counties want to run themselves, or how they think they ought to be run, or how the people in the counties want to run themselves, that the representation from the cities is up to the cities and up to the city charters. Now, I don't personally agree with this. But if you will assure me that we have some chance of getting some decent home rule, I'll withdraw my amendment and fight it out in my own home county.

MR. ALLEN: It depends on whether you accept the minority or the majority report. (laughter)

MR. KING: I don't accept the majority report.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. Blandford, is recognized to speak on the King amendment.

MR. BLANDFORD: Mr. Chairman, my points have been pretty well covered by Mr. Elliott and Mr. Allen. This is strictly a problem with cities, and the problem can be simply handled by cities, as has previously been mentioned, by changing their charters. It certainly should not be a part of this constitution.

We in Grand Rapids have a combination of methods. We elect some and appoint some. And any city can do the same thing if they merely change their charter.

This, I feel, certainly should not be a part of this constitution.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Grand Rapids yield to the gentleman from Pontiac for a reply?

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, I think that I have seen here today some of the reasons why we need home rule. Because of that, I'm going to withdraw my amendment, if there's no objection, and let's have it out on home rule and come up with something so that these problems can be solved.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman asks unanimous consent to withdraw his amendment. Is there objection?

MR. DOWNS: I object.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Objection is heard. The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Yeager, is recognized to speak on the King amendment.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, I can't help but ask the question, what has happened to all of the advocates of "one man, one vote"? It seems to me they are very silent on this question. You'll pardon the expression, but I think it boils down to whose gore is being oxed. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Downs, is recognized to speak on the King amendment.

MR. DOWNS: I believe, Mr. Chairman, that my comments will answer the question raised by the earlier speaker. In fact, my raising the objection to withdraw the amendment was so that I could express myself rather freely, and I hope not too long.

I do, as I told the committee earlier, have some amendments which Miss Hart and I are in the process of preparing and having the research department review, which will be presented on Committee Proposal 89.

I do want to call to the delegates' attention that what we are talking about is a very basic element of government. A board of supervisors is a legislative body. The question here is, should a member of the legislative body be elected or be appointed? I stand 4 square that anybody serving in a legislative role should be elected to that position. And I further support the concept that he should be elected on a "one man, one vote" basis; and I will even go so far as to say: to assure it's a responsible form of government, it should be on a responsible partisan party basis. That may be beyond the immediate amendment.

But I believe that Mr. King's amendment is sound, in that it is a step in the direction of strengthening county government, and strengthening the board of supervisors. And I call the delegates' attention, particularly, to the fact that we are talking not only about a board of supervisors as we now have, but one that may have extended powers—powers to select the members of the executive branch of the county, the clerk, the treasurer, and so forth—and it is even more important that we see there is a board of supervisors that represents the people and is responsible to the people.

If the delegate from Kalamazoo wants assessor technicians, fine. You can hire them. But have them hired by a legislative body that is elected.

I do in fact think it would be an interesting constitutional question, and I don't believe it has ever been before the state supreme court, as to whether our present board of supervisors is in fact a constitutional body when there are members of that legislative body that are not now elected.

I hope I have made myself clear to my fellow delegate from Detroit that I favor an elected board of supervisors; I favor it on "one man, one vote." Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman from Detroit care to yield to either Mr. Stevens or Mr. Wanger?

MR. DOWNS: I will yield to Mr. Wanger, and then to Mr. Stevens.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Downs, I just wanted to ask, as I understand this amendment as it is now before us, this applies just to cities. That is, all the supervisors that come from any city must be elected, in such way as will be provided by law. Well, I just wondered. Our largest city is the city of Detroit, and during the campaign for the constitutional convention, and since then, we have heard about the bedsheet ballot, a long, long ballot, in our bigger cities. Now, everybody doesn't have this problem, but some of the big cities do. And I just ask, will this amendment, if adopted, increase that problem in the city of Detroit?

MR. DOWNS: Well, you give me a moment's pause on this one. Your question, as I understand it, is: if we elect supervisors from Detroit, would it make it a longer ballot or a shorter one? It could do it either way. I think this should be clear, and I would yield to Mr. King if I do not quote his amendment correctly. I spoke briefly to it.

As I understand, this would mean that the person would need to be elected, but if he were an elected council member, he could by virtue of that office also serve on the board of supervisors. The key would be election; it would not be appointment.

Now, if we went further and got equal representation, I think it would be up to the charter commission on the home rule situation to define how the areas would be divided. For example, if the city of Detroit were entitled to the same number of people on the board of supervisors as there are state representatives, each state representative district could also elect a member to the board of supervisors. This would make a longer ballot. I, for one, think a longer ballot is a small price to pay, in preference to having somebody appointed to serve in a legislative capacity. Does that answer your question?

MR. WANGER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman yield to Mr. Stevens?

MR. DOWNS: Yes, I yield to Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Downs, so long as we have the conventional type county government, and so long as we must—even if about 12 officers serve ex officio—elect something like 50, do you still, for that time and under these conditions, favor election by the people of Detroit?

MR. DOWNS: I am wondering, through the Chair, if I could ask for the question to be repeated. I was not quite sure on the 50 and 12.

MR. STEVENS: I was being approximate. We have something like 62 supervisors, or members of the board of supervisors, on the Wayne county board. About 12 of them are ex officio. They are elected. That's the councilmen, the mayor, the city treasurer and city clerk. The rest of them, or at least most of them, are appointed by these persons who are ex officio. If they were all elected, we would have approximately 50 to elect. You speak about a commission type or a home rule type government, which obviously would probably reduce that number very considerably.

MR. DOWNS: Yes.

MR. STEVENS: I'm asking you, do you favor it under the present conditions?

MR. DOWNS: Let me put it this way. I always favor elected legislative officials over any form of appointed legislative officials. I want to make that clear.

Now, I think that the county of Wayne—and I believe it will be coming up on our later proposals—as other counties, should have the right to reduce the size. I believe there are now about 111 members on the board of supervisors of Wayne county. Personally, I think that's too big. I think that should be reduced. I think counties should have a maximum of flexibility of the size or the number of the members of the board of supervisors, but they should all be elected. But I am supporting—and I believe this is consistent with Mr. King's recommendation—that council members could no longer appoint members to the boards of supervisors.

MR. STEVENS: To go a little further, what I'm talking about is a present condition. I understand we are talking about the standard in conventional townships, not a township under home rule. That's something else. If the Wayne county voters want home rule, and want to set up a small board of supervisors, then what you have in mind is something else.

MR. DOWNS: Yes, I believe that the King amendment is limited to the matters of boards of supervisors representing cities; and, as such, this would simply provide that those would need to be elected, and could not be appointed. I believe the language is "elected as may be provided by law." It does not spell out the method, and that could be done by appropriate legislation.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the lady from Port Huron, Miss Andrus, to speak on the King amendment.

MISS ANDRUS: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I asked for recognition long, long ago, and I think Mr. Allen pretty much answered what I wanted to ask. Then I thought this was going to be withdrawn. I understand it is not being withdrawn. I would like to ask Mr. King this question again. Perhaps Mr. Allen answered it satisfactorily or sufficiently, but I would like to know a little more. In my community we have 11 elected supervisors from precincts, and then we have 6 who are provided in our city charter, 3 of them ex officio—the city assessor, the city treasurer and the city attorney—and then the mayor appoints 3.

Now, in the past the mayor was always very modest. He didn't appoint himself. And as I have attended meetings of the board of supervisors, other communities had the mayor there. The townships had the supervisor. The supervisor is the administrative officer, and he could speak for his township. We had no one speaking for the city. Finally one mayor got up courage enough to appoint himself. We have been doing it since, and it has been much more satisfactory. It has made a much better representation on the board.

Now, the supervisor of the township is the administrative executive officer. Should you elect someone else to represent your township on the board of supervisors, or would you say the person who is elected—and we call him a supervisor—as an administrative officer should represent the township on the board?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The lady yields to the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King, to reply.

MR. KING: I am perfectly happy, as long as somewhere, somehow, at some time these people are responsible to the citizens.

MISS ANDRUS: I mean, would you have 2 people elected? One is your township administrator, and then one to represent the people on this legislative body?

MR. KING: As a matter of personal opinion, I'm satisfied with the present system. My amendment does not touch in any way this present situation with regard to townships.

MISS ANDRUS: I thought that's what you meant. You elect somebody to be your county administrator, assessor and so forth, and then you will also represent the township on the board of supervisors. Now, in this matter of election of supervisors in the cities, would you expect that people who are elected or chosen by the city to be the mayor, to be the assessor, and to do things like that, would also serve on the board, or would we elect people especially to represent our city on the board?

MR. KING: Well, as long as they were elected mayor, then I would have no objection to their serving on the county board. But if you have an appointed assessor or an appointed city attorney, then I would object to that.

MISS ANDRUS: In other words, the township can have their assessor on, but the city couldn't unless they had them elected. Thank you.

MR. KING: Did you ask a question? Did you want a reply? Or did you just want to comment?

MISS ANDRUS: I thought you answered it. You said if an assessor were elected, he would be on; but if he were appointed, he would not serve.

MR. KING: That's right. If the supervisor in the township is elected, he would also be eligible to serve on the county board.

MISS ANDRUS: But an assessor in the city would not, unless he were elected.

MR. KING: That's right.

MISS ANDRUS: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I only want to call your attention again to what you are endeavoring to do here, and I don't believe this was the intention of Mr. King when he made the amendment, but it has this practical effect, it has the effect of restricting every city charter in the state of Michigan. It is attempting to do something that the legislature in its wisdom has not seen fit to do in over 50 years. Now, do we want to do that?

Mr. Downs is concerned somewhat about the people really having a choice. Now, they have expressed that choice through adopting a city charter, and under that city charter they have in some cases said that we will elect these supervisors; in other cases they have said we will appoint them, for various reasons.

Again, I want to emphasize that what you are doing, if you vote this amendment in, is restricting the option that local people have to frame their charters. We urge a vote against it.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King?

MR. FARNSWORTH: I yield to Mrs. Judd from Grand Rapids.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to develop just a little further the point that Mr. Stevens was talking about. I think we've gotten away from our realization that we are talking about the 83 counties of Michigan under the present form of government. We are not talking about a new form of government under home rule, under which a county might undertake to become not merely the administrative arm of the state, but also carry on municipal functions with a policy making job ahead of it.

Now, when you get into that kind of power, that is when you do need a policy making body accountable to the people. But we are still talking about the county as it is today; chiefly, the administrative arm of the state. Consequently, the question of election is not as vital as it would become under the changes that may be suggested later.

When we drafted this about 2 months ago, the convention was in a mood to accept all of the old language in the constitution, so we thought this was going to be a cinch. But you can see there's a new mood in the convention, and this is part of our difficulty. May I yield to Mr. Elliott?

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman from Allegan still has the floor. Does he desire to yield to his chairman?

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, I yielded the floor.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Nord, to speak on the King amendment.

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman, my point has been made, and I will pass.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar, to speak on the King amendment.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, my remarks will be brief, because I think that part of my statement was given by Mr. Allen when he said that you can get better members of the board of supervisors when you appoint heads of departments and men who have had a lot of experience, as we have had them in the city of Detroit, than some of those that we have elected.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Rogers City, Mr. Radka, to speak on the King amendment.

MR. RADKA: Mr. Chairman, my remarks will be quite brief. I have heard it very wisely said that sometimes speakers are inclined to exhaust their audience before they exhaust their subject. I would just like to say that I'm exhausted. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bloomfield Hills, Mr. Woolfenden, to speak on the King amendment.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Can the committee of the whole operate without a quorum? If not, I ask that there be a count of the delegates.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Are you making a point of order that no quorum is present, Mr. Woolfenden?

MR. WOOLFENDEN: I question whether there is a quorum present. I just counted a few moments ago, and there was less than a quorum.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will count.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, point of order.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The gentleman will state it.

MR. KUHN: It has always been my impression that when you're in the committee of the whole you don't need the quorum that you need when you're in convention. I would like you to rule on that.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are 83 members present.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: A quorum, 83 members, is present. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King, who is seeking recognition.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, I still think I had a right to withdraw this. I'm disappointed that we are bogging down on this issue, and I would just as soon fight it out under the home rule section. So I think I have a right to withdraw it under rule 46, even though you ruled me out of order before.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Do you make a point of order against the Chair's previous ruling?

MR. KING: Yes, I do.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The Chair will sustain your point of order. He was quoting from Mason's, but upon being advised that rule 46 permits the withdrawal without a request for objections, the amendment is withdrawn. (applause)

Are there any pending amendments to this section?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the last amendment that has been filed to this section, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: Without further amendment, this section will pass.

Section f is passed. Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I now move that the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN BENTLEY: The question is on the motion that the committee rise. All those in favor will respond by saying aye. Those opposed?

The committee has risen.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain items on the general orders calendar, of which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 81, A proposal pertaining to county government. It has considered a number of amendments relative thereto, and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, on behalf of the committee on judicial branch, I ask unanimous consent to file with the secretary a committee amendment and the reasons therefor to Committee Proposal 96, so that it may be printed in the journal, with the explanation. The amendment is on the secretary's desk.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be printed.

For the committee amendment and reasons therefor, see below under date of March 9.

Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. President, a question of parliamentary procedure. I would like to renew my amendment in the convention. Should that be done after this is completely gone through and reported out, or at this time?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Afterwards.

Are there any announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following announcements:

A meeting of the committee on executive branch scheduled for 1:00 o'clock today has been cancelled. (laughter)

The committee on style and drafting will meet in room K, February 13, next Tuesday, at 8:00 o'clock p.m. William B. Cudlip, chairman.

Notice of your convention record photograph appointment time has been placed on the desk of each delegate. Please make every effort to be punctual. If everyone keeps his appointment, no one need be absent from the floor of the convention for more than 10 minutes. Your full cooperation is earnestly requested.

We have the following requests for leave from convention sessions: Mr. Lawrence requests that he be excused from the meeting of Monday; Mr. Suzore requests to be excused from Monday's session; Mr. Wood requests to be excused from Monday's session to fill a speaking engagement; and Mr. Kirk requests to be excused from Monday's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the excuses will be granted.

Mr. Shanahan.

MR. SHANAHAN: Mr. President, I request to be excused from Monday's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be granted.

Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President, I expect to be late for Monday's session, in that I will be taking the train, and it doesn't come in until 4:12.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The request will be granted.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

We are adjourned until 4:00 o'clock Monday. Have a good weekend.

[Whereupon, at 4:10 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 4:00 o'clock p.m., Monday, February 12, 1962.]

SEVENTY-SEVENTH DAY

Monday, February 12, 1962, 4:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation for this session will be given by one of our own delegates, Robert Danhof of Muskegon. Will you please rise.

MR. DANHOF: Let us pray. Our eternal and heavenly Father, we come unto Thee again this day, mindful, O Lord, that Thou art the sovereign God of the universe and the Master of all mankind.

We thank Thee, O Lord, for the freedoms and for the opportunities that Thou hast given unto us in this land and especially for the opportunity that we have to gather here together as free men and free women to make determinations which shall affect all of the citizens of this state.

And now we ask, O Lord, throughout the days and the weeks to come that Thou wilt give unto us courage and wisdom and insight so that the decisions that we make may be in accordance with Thy will and in accordance with Thy eternal plan.

Watch over us throughout all this day and the weeks to come. Forgive us for all of our sins. In Jesus' name we ask it all. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The machine is locked and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave: Mrs. Koeze, from today's session because of illness; Messrs. Heideman and Seyferth, from today's session, Mr. Seyferth to attend a city commission meeting; Mr. Martin from this evening's session; Miss McGowan indefinitely, due to illness; Mr. Page, because of emergency business developments and also the continued illness of Mrs. Page, has asked to be excused from the sessions of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Dade, Garvin, Heideman, Kirk, Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. Lawrence, McAllister, Miss McGowan, Messrs. Page, Seyferth, Stamm, Suzore and Wood.

Absent without leave: Messrs. Bledsoe, G. E. Brown and Donald Doty.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates are excused.

[During the proceedings, the following delegates entered the chamber and took their seats: Messrs. Bledsoe, G. E. Brown, Donald Doty, Garvin, Lawrence and Seyferth.]

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, I rise on a matter of personal privilege and I'd like to just make a brief statement.

While I have made a decision of a political character over the weekend, I premised it on completely fulfilling my responsibilities as a delegate to this convention and I will not depart from that commitment.

I still consider my responsibilities as a delegate superior to any other responsibility or consideration. And I still consider the results of this convention more important than any other single thing that can be done to insure the future welfare of this state. And I believe all of us are equally dedicated as delegates to the accomplishment of our task on that basis.

I am also more concerned about adequate and sound constitutional revision than in meeting a timetable. I think it's much more important for us to do a complete job and to take the prudent time required to do a complete and sound job than to permit any deadline to affect the quality of our work.

I believe the revision that we effect must be so significant that it will command the support of both political parties and of the citizens' groups who played such a key role in bringing about this convention. And I will do all I can to enable us to apply ourselves as conscientiously as we can in producing a document that will command the support of the people of the whole state. Thank you very much. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Ladies and gentlemen, as we start another week—and I know it is going to be a difficult week from the standpoint of time and discussion—I wonder if I could be allowed to make a few comments on the work of our convention.

I know that I am an optimist and an enthusiast. I believe that I am usually hopeful and confident as to the results of projects in which I find myself.

Today I must admit, however, that for the last 2 weeks, I have been less certain and a little more apprehensive as to the result of our convention. Somehow I had the feeling that we were losing some of our high dedication to the task before us; that we had become a little too personal in our thinking and discussion; that we were failing to keep the high objectives of our work.

But Friday as we closed a busy and difficult week, I sensed a new spirit emerging, a more constructive outlook, and a willingness to depart from old concepts and go into new imaginations and higher objectives. I hope I was right and I hope you as delegates felt that way too.

Three things have happened to me as a delegate since this convention started: one early in the convention; the second a few weeks ago; and the third only recently.

When I came to the convention, I knew the problems that needed to be solved. They were the problems of my city of Fremont and my county of Newaygo and really the only reason we had these problems was because the rest of you caused them for us. But I soon learned that other communities had their problems too and maybe to a greater degree than mine. And that solving my problems was not enough, or even if mine were solved, it might create even greater ones somewhere else. So I quickly had to adjust my thinking away from my own problems to that of our state of Michigan and its almost 8 million people. My outlook and vision had to be broader, and I had to give up selfishness for the good of all our people. I am very certain that all of you shared with me that same experience. We think bigger than we did 4 months ago.

Second, when I came here I wanted to satisfy the people of my district. I would vote for what they wanted. I would endeavor to protect their personal interests. But today I am endeavoring to think bigger because I have learned more about Michigan than I knew before, and I'm certain the people of my district would think as I do today if they had had the opportunity that I have had. I am not so sure that I can or should serve their interests alone.

What was it that made the Madisons and the Hamiltons, the Clays and the Calhouns, the Websters and the Adams, the Jacksons and the Marshalls? It was not that they were serving Virginia or New York or Kentucky or Carolina or Massachusetts or Tennessee. It was because they were representing their people—not for themselves alone, but to build a better and a stronger United States.

These were big people who have lived through our history because their objectives were greater than the purely local interests. They became, as someone wrote recently of Moss Hart, whose death left a void in the theater, "For in the theater and behind the scenes, with friends and with family, he left footprints wherever he went, and they were too deep or too large to fill or disappear". That opportunity is ours in this convention if we will but accept that responsibility.

Third, I came to this convention to write a constitution that would include that material that would be acceptable to our Michigan citizens and on which we could get a favorable vote. Friday, I began to wonder; maybe, I thought, our duty is to write a document that is best for our people; that we definitely put principles of good government ahead of appeasement; that we put the right above the acceptable; that we put the long range good above the immediate advantages, so that even if the people of our state are not ready to accept this, it will set the standard for future progress. We have already seen some evidences that this is good.

This is, has been, and must continue to be a deliberative body. We can only accomplish as we are willing to compromise. Do any of us doubt that the problems brought to this convention by Mrs. Butler or Mr. Leslie Richards are different than those presented by Mr. Ford or Mr. Norris? That the problem of sections of our state are different in kind and amount? And the problems of both areas are very real; and the same solution is not sufficient for them. Both are honest in their thinking and right in their efforts to find a solution. But our problem is to find an answer for each.

We must find that answer of what is best for Michigan, not for the Democrats or the Republicans, not for Fremont or Detroit, not for education, labor, industry or agriculture, but what is best for our almost 8 million Michigan citizens. Our dedication must be to a larger thing. We must be able to find it and to see it. Someone has written:

To every man there openeth
A way and ways and a way
And the high soul climbs the high way
And the low soul gropes the low
And in between on the misty flats
The rest drift to and fro.
But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low,
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go.

Which way will we choose for the rest of this convention?

To me Friday was a "change day". In the vernacular of the advertising slogan, now is the time for us "to come up, to come all the way up" to writing a document that will be a monumental one, one that will be a credit to the great people of this convention, one that will stand in our Michigan history as the foundation stone of a great state. Will you pray with me for guidance as we say:

Our kind and gracious heavenly Father, as we approach the critical time of this convention, give us wisdom to see our duty; give us knowledge to perform our tasks; give us confidence to think constructively; and give us the courage to do what is right. Give us guidance as we make the supreme effort to travel the high road of citizenship responsibility so that our state and its citizens will be forever grateful and appreciative of the work we do here. We have come near to the end of our own strength. From here on we need and ask for Thy guiding hand so that our duty and obligation will be adequately filled for our great state of Michigan.

Ladies and gentlemen of this constitutional convention, I urge that as Lincoln, whose birthday we celebrate today, said, "Let us take increased devotion" to this task before us.

That job can be done and we can do it if we only keep our mind and our effort on our real obligation, the welfare of Michigan and all of its citizens. Thank you very much. (applause)

The Chair recognizes Mr. Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. President and fellow delegates, as president of and on behalf of the historical society of Michigan, I have the honor to present this little booklet which has been placed on the desk of each one of the delegates. The title is, The Abiding Lincoln. It is appropriate to do this on this February 12, 1962. It is an address, in fact, the last major address of one of the great orators of America, Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, beloved by the people of Michigan in his lifetime and remembered by thousands today. It would please Dr. Jones to know that this address has been placed with each delegate of this convention and I am sure that somehow he will know. The little booklet is a collector's item and if you do not wish to keep it, I am sure that your local library will be pleased to add it to its collection. This address, The Abiding Lincoln, will fit in well with the splendid remarks made by our president just now.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much, Mr. Bonisteel.

Returning to our order of business, reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on style and drafting, by Mr. Cudlip, chairman, submits Report 2 of that committee, reporting back to the convention Committee Proposal 1, A proposal pertaining to the inclusion of section 1 of article XI in the constitution; with the recommendation that the style and form be approved.
William B. Cudlip, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 1 as reported by the committee on style and drafting, see below under date of April 18.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The committee proposal is placed on the order of second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on style and drafting, by Mr. Cudlip, chairman, submits Report 3 of that committee, reporting back to the convention Committee Proposal 12, A proposal pertaining to exemptions as a substitute for all of article XIV; with the recommendation that the style and form be approved.
William B. Cudlip, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 12 as reported by the committee on style and drafting, see below under date of April 30.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The committee proposal is placed on the order of second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on style and drafting, by Mr. Cudlip, chairman, submits Report 4 of that committee, reporting back to the convention Committee Proposal 15, A proposal to amend article II pertaining to the declaration of rights; with the recommendation that the style and form be approved.
William B. Cudlip, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 15 as reported by the committee on style and drafting, see below under date of April 26.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The committee proposal is placed on the order of second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on style and drafting, by Mr. Cudlip, chairman, submits Report 5 of that committee, reporting back to the convention Committee Proposal 19, A proposal to provide for a state militia; with the recommendation that the style and form be approved.
William B. Cudlip, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 19 as reported by the committee on style and drafting, see below under date of April 30.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The committee proposal is placed on the order of second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on style and drafting, by Mr. Cudlip, chairman, submits Report 6 of that committee, reporting back to the convention Committee Proposal 26, A proposal for a section in the declaration of rights incorporating in the declaration of rights an "equal protection" clause and a guarantee against discrimination in civil and political rights because of race, religion, sex or national origin; with the recommendation that the style and form be approved.
William B. Cudlip, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 26 as reported by the committee on style and drafting, see below under date of April 26.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The committee proposal is placed on the order of second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits to the convention the following budget information and requests that it be printed in the journal. Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, this is a report regarding our present expenditures and anticipated expenditures as projected until May 15. It is filed by the committee on administration for information purposes. I move that it be considered read and placed in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be considered read and placed in the journal. Hearing no objection, it is so ordered.

Michigan Constitutional Convention Budget

Item budgeted	Amount Budgeted	Amount Expended	12/31/61 Balance	Estimated 3/31/62 Balance	Estimated 4/30/62 Balance	Estimated 5/15/62 Balance
I. Salaries and wages—delegates	$1,080,000.00	$432,000.00	$648,000.00	$216,000.00	$ 72,000.00	———
II. Other salaries, wages, contractual services, supplies, materials, rent and equipment
A. Rental, lease and purchase of equipment	149,622.64	145,520.31	4,102.33	2,216.33	1,584.33	1,255.33
B. Office supplies and printed matter
1. Delegates' stationery (Wellman Press)	2,011.83	2,492.99	—481.16	—629.46	—629.46	—629.46
2. Journal (Speaker-Hines and Thomas)	76,950.00	12,115.90	64,834.10	24,665.10	10,665.10	2,665.10
3. Office supplies	15,675.00	11,203.12	4,471.88	971.88	—228.12	—828.12
C. Rental and lease of building
1. Civic center	111,200.00	77,838.55	33,361.45	—1,482.53	—1,544.41	—1,575.35
D. Other contractual services
1. TV—closed circuit	4,200.00	2,700.00	1,500.00	525.00	225.00	25.00
2. Sound system	12,000.00	4,264.00	7,736.00	2,435.00	182.00	—821.00
3. Clipping service	500.00	228.22	271.78	—88.22	—208.22	—268.22
4. Freight for chairs, etc.	1,158.48	1,115.70	42.78	42.78	42.78	42.78
5. Convention reporter	20,000.00	2,514.95	17,485.05	4,493.05	—6.95	—2,256.95
6. Police	15,600.00	9,321.37	6,278.63	2,478.63	1,178.63	528.63
E. Postage	15,000.00	8,100.54	6,899.46	6,599.46	6,299.46	6,149.46
F. Telephone	15,000.00	3,843.70	11,156.30	6,656.30	5,156.30	4,406.30
G. Fees and compensation	2,000.00	1,745.57	254.43	254.43	254.43	254.43
H. Maintenance services	1,950.00	1,342.63	607.37	307.37	207.37	107.37
I. Travel and subsistence
1. Delegates—2 monthly trips	46,012.40	19,750.00	26,262.40	6,494.80	—94.40	—3,389.00
2. Reimbursement for committee trips	5,000.00	2,642.00	2,358.00	2,358.00	2,358.00	2,358.00
J. Educational supplies and library
1. Purchased for library	2,203.90	———	2,203.90	———	———	———
2. Additional materials	200.00	76.00	124.00	24.00	———	———
K. Insurance and bond
1. Fire 2. Comprehensive general liability 3. Bond for finance clerk and secretary of the convention 4. Workmen's compensation on employees	4,455.00	1,963.25	2,491.75	2,491.75	2,491.75	2,491.75
5. Social security—employer	9,879.20	2,489.58	7,389.62	2,871.16	1,337.88	571.24
L. Other salaries and wages	329,306.52	112,805.60	216,500.92	74,958.42	27,333.42	3,520.92
M. Contingency fund balance	60,388.13	320.30	60,067.83	60,067.83	60,067.83	60,067.83
N. Office of public information	17,557.05	5,364.05	12,193.00	1,605.00	535.00	———
O. Constitutional convention handbooks	2,086.60	2,086.60	———	———	———	———
Eisenhower fund	43.25	43.25	———	———	———	———
Sub Total—Category II—12/31/61	$ 920,000.00	$431,888.18	$488,111.82	$200,316.08	$117,207.72	$ 74,676.04

SECRETARY CHASE: That's all of the standing committee reports.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar for today.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no resolutions on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no special orders for today.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Pursuant to the provisions of rule 8, the president designates Mr. Bentley to perform the duties of the Chair during such time as the Chair may be absent from today's session.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I would like to move that the president's remarks made just a few moments previously be printed in the journal.

PRESIDENT: All those in favor, please say aye.

It is so ordered. Thank you. This is rather embarrassing.

Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, before we go into committee of the whole and apropos of your very magnificent remarks and the reference in Mr. Romney's remarks to the same thing, I was wondering if something couldn't be done in the proper parliamentary or other way, to give effect to your thought that our first job is deliberative and not rushing. I am sure that many delegates feel as I do, that there has been entirely too much pressure and I feel that now that we are in a strictly deliberative stage, we don't need that pressure. I don't think it will make a bit of difference when we adjourn, whether we say we're going to adjourn now or some other time as long as those tentative deadlines, which I remember Mr. Van Dusen calling very flexible in the beginning, seem now to be bearing down upon us pretty hard and causing, I think, unnecessary tension. That's one point.

The second point is that I think now that we are concerned with calendars so much, I've been confused and I know others have been confused in knowing just exactly what was coming up and when. We made special orders of a couple of important issues—in the case of one of them, local government—without, I think, giving delegates adequate time to study the proposals, since they were thrown in at the very last minute.

I would like to suggest, therefore, that something be done to explain more clearly to the delegates exactly what is coming up and some means be ascertained, some means be devised to make the order on the calendar and the reasons for the order a little bit clearer.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, if I may comment briefly on Professor Pollock's suggestion, which is an eminently wise one. The committee on rules has had under consideration the question of the order in which matters are to be taken up. Each of the committee chairmen has now submitted his list of proposals which remain before us on the calendar and the order in which they should most logically be considered by the committee of the whole and has asked the secretary to prepare a tentative calendar reflecting these suggestions and that calendar will be considered by the rules committee tomorrow; and the rules committee is meeting at 8:00 o'clock tomorrow morning and it will have an opportunity, I think, to present a complete calendar showing the entire business remaining before us on general orders at tomorrow's session.

In addition, I think it's perfectly clear that in order to conduct the work of the committee of the whole in an atmosphere of deliberation it is going to be necessary to extend the work of the committee of the whole beyond the February 21 date, which is presently scheduled. But until we have before us the schedule of the work remaining in its entirety and arranged in order, we won't know exactly what date should be suggested as the date for completion of the work of the committee of the whole. However, Mr. President, both of Professor Pollock's suggestions are good ones and the committee on rules and resolutions has taken steps designed to accomplish both the suggestions he has made.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: It occurs to me since Mr. Van Dusen's remarks, that something might well be done to explain to the people of the state the attitude of the convention with reference to what I have always felt was an artificial deadline. If we are not going to meet the deadline, people in the state don't need to feel that everything is going to go to pot; that there is a way out. And I see no reason why the rules committee or some appropriate committee, which I am sure has this matter under consideration, could not come out with some such statement.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, I am happy to see that we have undisputed testimony on the record that now the candidate for the majority party, the manager, and one more member acknowledge that it is not the minority party that's dragging their heels. Thank you very kindly.

PRESIDENT NISBET: May I say that since this is a parliamentary inquiry by Dr. Pollock, this will be referred to the rules and resolutions committee.

General orders of the day. Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of certain items on the general orders calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. DeVries. Those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Mr. DeVries.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order.

When last this committee met it was considering Committee Proposal 81, A proposal pertaining to county government; from the committee on local government. We had completed discussion of section f.

For the last previous action by the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 81, see above, page 929.

Pursuant to the request of the committee chairman on local government, we are considering this report section by section. The secretary will now read section g.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section g:

[Section g was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, chairman of the committee, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mrs. Judd.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I would remind you that we are in the process of writing the first few sections of the article on local government, these sections with respect to the government of all of the counties of the state. You may recall that I indicated last week that in writing these sections, we attempted to stick as closely as possible to the present form of county government, making some changes in the section to exclude matters that were no longer applicable or that were taken care of by legislation. Other than that, if you have your constitution handy, you may be interested to see how closely we have adhered to it. You will find that there are to be a few exclusions among these 15 sections of the present constitution and they will be treated later.

We are now looking at section g in the committee proposal and I would like just to read to you what the citizens research analysis has said about this section.

> This provision is a broad grant of power to the legislature to deal with the details of county government. It is the core of the legislature's power to deal with the civil subdivisions of the state. All other provisions dealing with county government are in effect limitations on this broad grant of power to the legislature.

We have kept it the same as it is in the present constitution except to omit the last 5 words, "as it may deem proper" because we didn't think the legislature would ever do anything that isn't proper.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section g? If not, it will pass.

Section g is passed. The secretary will read section h.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section h:

[Section h was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to yield the floor to Delegate Kuhn.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the language used here is the same as the first sentence in section 9 of the present constitution. It was felt that this power is properly in the board of supervisors and should remain there.

The second sentence of section 9 of the present constitution has been deleted due to the fact it is now covered by statute.

I recommend that this section be passed.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section h? If not, it will pass.

Section h is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section i:

[Section i was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, on this section, I'd like to yield the floor to Mr. Buback.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Buback.

MR. BUBACK: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the present constitutional limit on power of the county to incur debt is increased from 3 to 10 per cent of its assessed valuation. The exception relating to counties having an assessed valuation of $5 million or less was deleted because there are no longer any such counties. The committee has increased the debt limit to give counties greater flexibility to meet current problems. Our counties are not extending their credit for both primary and secondary purposes. Secondary obligations are incurred by placing the full faith and credit of the county behind the bonds of cities and townships to enable them to borrow at the lowest possible interest rate for the construction of water and sewer systems and other public works. The county also buys revenue bonds from airports. This secondary debt may easily exceed the 3 per cent limitation set in the present constitution. Such secondary debt is payable out of the revenues of the water works, sewage fees, airport activities and so forth.

The committee on finance and taxation, having concurrent jurisdiction, had no objections. We move that this be adopted in the present constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask Mr. Buback a question. How did the committee come to the figure of 10 per cent over 3 per cent, which is over 3 times as much?

MR. BUBACK: I'll leave this to the chairman of the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Buback yields to the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: We had the distinct advantage of having Mr. Brake on our committee and whenever you are arriving at a figure of this type, Mr. Yeager, you have to do it based upon certain judgments. There is no rule of thumb by which you go. And it was the general consensus of the committee that increasing this amount to 10 per cent was proper and Mr. Brake, in review of this in his own committee, found this to be true.

We also had a controlling factor here, one I think is important, and that was that right at the present time many of our counties are finding themselves in the situation where the 3 per cent obviously is not meeting the requirements and in discussion both within the committee and outside the committee it was felt that the 10 per cent limitation, measured against the total assessed valuation, would accommodate those future needs even including the secondary obligations.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask Mr. Brake how he arrived at 10 per cent.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: It is to some extent arbitrary but we do have the precedent that that is the limit for the cities. And what is good for the cities ought to be good for the counties.

MR. YEAGER: That's so. Thank you. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Bessemer, Mr. Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: Mr. Chairman, I would just like to ask Mr. Elliott one question on this. By "assessed valuation" I take it that the committee on local government is referring to the state equalized valuation?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: This is correct.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Thanks for the promotion. Mr. Chairman, my question was on the last section that we passed so quickly. I think that it should be made clear in the record that I have no contention with regard to this matter but we passed very quickly over the last section on which we had considerable discussion in the committee and I think this record should be very clear as to our intent. If I could have the consent of the body, I'd like to discuss the preceding section, the language that has been deleted.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is there any objection to returning to section h? I hear none. We shall return to it.

MR. FORD: The language that concerned one or two of the lawyers besides myself on the committee, at least briefly, was in the last sentence, which is the sentence which provides that credit against the county will be considered by the auditor or board of auditors. That part is not much of a problem. But this sentence is a constitutional right to appeal from the decision of the county officials directly to the circuit court and it is provided that the appeal will be in a manner as prescribed by law.

Now, Mr. Tweedie stated that in the opinion of the committee an appeal to the court was provided by law but it is my fear that the kind of appeal that we have as a matter of right is by certiorari, which does not go into the record or go into the merits but merely passes on the legal formality of the proceedings, and I wonder if Mr. Tweedie could for the record tell us whether the statute does provide for the appeal or merely provides the manner of taking a constitutionally provided appeal from the board of auditors to the circuit court.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Port Huron, Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: Would you repeat that question, please, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Is it your belief that the present statute that you referred to in the comments of the majority report provides for the appeal or merely provides for the manner of the constitutionally provided appeal?

MR. TWEEDIE: The statute which I referred to is MSA 5.331 and it covers the auditing part of the sentence which we have deleted.

MR. FORD: Is it your opinion that that statute will continue the right to an appeal to the circuit court carte blanche from a decision of the board of auditors on a claim against the county?

MR. TWEEDIE: I would say not necessarily the circuit court but an appeal to some other body possibly, if necessary, a board or some administrative officer.

MR. FORD: Who does the statute provide an appeal to?

MR. TWEEDIE: It doesn't provide for the circuit court, if that's what you are asking.

MR. FORD: Does it provide for an appeal to anyone?

MR. TWEEDIE: I don't have the statute in front of me, Mr. Ford. I'd have to look it up. It would be up to the legislature to allow an appeal in this case.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Detroit, Delegate Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if I might likewise direct a question to Mr. Tweedie on this proposition. I wondered if it was the intention of the deleted section here to in any way alter a recent supreme court decision regarding governmental immunity. I am concerned whether or not the regarding of this matter as legislative means that a claim against the county might be met with the defense that the county might not be able to be sued.

MR. TWEEDIE: I'll yield on that, Mr. Chairman, to someone who can answer the question.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Tweedie will yield to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Norris, I can't give you the legal interpretation but I can tell you that our committee fully discussed that particular phase of it too, and it was not felt that the deletion of this in any way changed the picture on the immunity interpretation by the courts. Is that the answer that you—

MR. NORRIS: I am quite concerned and I appreciate your opinion on it, sir, but I raise the question as to whether or not a court in construing this section at a subsequent time might not feel that not only the appeal was weakened, as Mr. Ford suggests, but that the right to present and have a claim adjusted might itself also be made infirm by this deletion, particularly in view of the fact that you say that it is now statutory and if the legislature should feel that it now being statutory, it might attempt to remove the prospect of presenting a claim and get back to immunity and overrule recent decisions.

Now, here you have, if not explicit, at least implicit, the proposition that an injured person might present a claim against the county and not only have an opportunity to present the claim but also have the matter heard on appeal by an appropriate body which is named in this deleted section. I am quite concerned about this. I am not prepared to offer any amendment but I did want to make inquiry and throw the attention of the body to something here that in my judgment means more than just meets the eye.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Norris, I appreciate your concern and I would again reiterate that the committee did give this thorough consideration and in addition, I am quite confident that the records will show that the matter was referred to our legal department for an opinion and that this deletion was after that legal report had been returned to the committee and we had had an opportunity to weigh that in making our final decision.

MR. NORRIS: I appreciate that point and I would like to have the opportunity of consulting the same document and if necessary, raise this point at a further reading.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Port Huron wish to comment on this?

MR. TWEEDIE: No. I have the attorney general's opinion which we requested in this matter if anyone wants to see it or hear me read it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: I suggest it be read into the record.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Tweedie, the request is that you read the attorney general's statement into the record.

MR. TWEEDIE: The attorney general's opinion reads as follows:

> The provision on auditing is repeated in MSA 5.331. The statute does not depend on this section but if the provisions were dropped, the legislature could allow some other body or officer to pass on claims and could provide for appeal to other than the circuit court.

I believe that answers Mr. Ford's question. However, I am not sure that it covers Mr. Norris's question.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section h or any further discussion of this section?

The lady from Highland Park has filed an amendment to section h. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 23, after "law.", by inserting "The boards of supervisors shall adjust all claims against their respective counties; appeals may be taken from such decisions of the boards of supervisors to the circuit court in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: In view of the discussion that has been conducted today on this issue, I believe that we should not leave it in the air. It is very important to every citizen of every county to know how their right of appeal may lie. If there is any question of it going to one board from another as opposed to the circuit court, I believe the constitutional right to have it tested in that court should be preserved. Therefore, I offer this amendment to reinstate the constitutional language originally giving this claim of appeal and eliminating the question about auditors.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Donnelly amendment to section h. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly's amendment, as the secretary understands it, is to reinsert the stricken language from lines 23 to 27, with the exception of that pertaining to county auditors, which language reads:

> The boards of supervisors shall adjust all claims against their respective counties; appeals may be taken from such decisions of the boards of supervisors to the circuit court in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the Donnelly amendment. The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, as I recall our discussion in committee on this, the omission of "state boards of auditors" might make some difficulty. I believe that in Wayne the board of auditors does settle these claims at the present time. Isn't that so, Mr. Baginski? So if we are going to reinsert this language at all, perhaps we'd better reinsert all of it. Now, I may be wrong on this and perhaps you ought to communicate.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Port Huron seek recognition on the Donnelly amendment?

MR. TWEEDIE: Yes, Mr. Chairman. Once again, by the Donnelly amendment we are restricting the legislature and what they can do by setting out in the constitution that appeals can only be taken to the circuit court. Perhaps the legislature would like a chance to say that the appeal can be taken to some other body or officer. If we are going to go in the general field of not restricting the legislature too much, this amendment should be defeated.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Miss Donnelly, I hate to speak against Miss Donnelly's amendment but as chairman of the committee, I would feel that I would be neglecting my duty. We spent a lot of time in study on this and I guess that I didn't make that perfectly clear. The questions that have been raised were discussed in committee. We did get an attorney general's opinion. We did get opinions from the research and drafting department here in the convention. We also had the opinion of our own research consultant, Dr. Adrian. We feel that this language can be deleted from the constitution without endangering any of the rights and I urge the defeat of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I think we should make it very clear that what is referred to here as an attorney general's opinion is an informal opinion from the deputy attorney general not subscribed to by anyone in charge of the office and not in the general form or usual form of an official opinion. It is a part of the series of comments by an assistant attorney general on a number of points. It is not supported by any kind of a brief or any case citations and the problem that arises now is the same one that we brought up in the committee.

Mr. Elliott indicates that we spent a lot of time considering this. We spent so much time down there that perhaps there was some confusion but it is my recollection, at least on the occasion when I was present when it was discussed, that when the subcommittee was asked why they deleted it, the first answer was, "Well, we couldn't think of any reason why we might need it." And the attorney general has indicated that the same thing could be done by statute. But if you listened carefully to what Mr. Tweedie said, the statute does not now provide an appeal. The deputy attorney general is merely saying that the legislature could provide for an appeal.

Mr. Norris has talked about one type of claim but I don't think that this is the kind of claim involved. I took the occasion to talk to someone in the civil division of the Wayne county prosecutor's office and the kind of claim that is contemplated here is one that is now pending and there has been newspaper publicity recently between the city of Detroit and the county of Wayne over alleged welfare funds due from the Wayne county general hospital fund for outpatient treatment given to county residents at Receiving hospital. This claim now has accumulated to several millions of dollars and realizing for one moment that you have a situation described to us the other day as to rural versus the core city problem of who has control of the board of supervisors—I didn't want to get into this but I am somewhat apprehensive about what might happen when there is a claim that affects only the core city and its bankroll and the legislature doesn't get around to providing an appeal as a matter of right between the time that that claim is presented and finally allowed and the time has run out for taking it into the court subsequently when they pass a law to provide for the appeal.

Now, several millions of dollars could be voted upon by the board of supervisors or by the board of auditors and if it's not clear that you have a right to take their decision to the circuit court, I wonder where this leads to. This is why some of us are apprehensive about taking language out unless there is a real sound reason for making a deletion of something that's been there so long.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the author of the amendment, Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I would again like to state the reason for putting my amendment in. Mr. Tweedie's answer to me was not sufficient as to preserve the rights of any litigant to have an appeal to the circuit court. And to leave it to some other place that may be concocted eventually, disturbs me. I feel that the circuit court being the highest court that any county has in that county is the most logical, proper place to go in such litigation as this. And to visualize it going someplace else is very disturbing to me. If Mr. Tweedie can reassure me that my fears are groundless, I would certainly be more than happy to remove my amendment because of the fact that I would like to support the committee reports always.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Donnelly yields to Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman, Miss Donnelly, I can only tell you that we have to have a certain amount of trust in the legislature and that certainly they will provide for some appeal. If they feel it properly should go to an administrative body or some particular officer rather than the circuit court, why, I think we should allow them this leeway. Naturally, I can't say for sure, but I feel sure that they will provide for an appeal to some agency.

MISS DONNELLY: What type of appeal do you visualize in this, Mr. Tweedie? Are you talking about de novo or what?

MR. TWEEDIE: Well, I don't think I need to distinguish the type of appeal. Just say general appeal. If you would want to get into a legal discussion, this is not the place to have it. Let's go out in the hall and talk it over. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: I'm not sure that this is adding anything that is of importance but I favor the committee report. I have had some litigation with various municipal bodies, among others, cases against the county. You don't appeal from anything. You start suit all over again. It's just as if you had a claim against the county of any other kind for defective highways or anything. And I think since the supreme court has opened the door to litigation against all municipal bodies, you may as well sue a city or a township or a school district. You start suit and let it go through.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Harrisville, Delegate Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I'm disturbed about this deletion also. There are many kinds of claims against the county. There was a time when the decision of the board of supervisors on some of those claims was final and this was put into the constitution. I don't have any doubt that the legislature could pass a law allowing an appeal but if this is taken out, there is nothing to compel them to pass such a law. The possibilities may be that they will pass a law leaving the decision to the boards of supervisors open to an appeal but the difference is that by putting it into the constitution there is no question about it. By leaving it out we do raise the possibility that there will be no such statute.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Saginaw, Delegate Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I'd like to request some information from Mr. Elliott. That is by deleting the language with reference to county boards of auditors, would that eliminate the county board of auditors adjusting the claims in the normal run of business and turn it over to a committee of the board of supervisors?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: You have a case where a lamb fears to tread because I think you are asking for a legal interpretation. But in looking at the language as introduced by Miss Donnelly, I would think that perhaps what you are saying is correct unless there were some law added at some later date which would make it possible. But very frankly, I'm not sure.

Let me say this again to the committee. I've learned another lesson in parliamentary procedure. Once something is passed, leave it there and get it at some later time, because we have now been 20 minutes on this one particular subject. This was not treated lightly in the committee. This was given thorough discussion. These points were taken up. This was something that was done a long time ago in committee because it was at the early part of our article but it was given full attention.

Mr. Ford had the unfortunate responsibility of being also an important member of the judicial committee and therefore he had to divide his time between these 2. Sometimes, when I make these reports and indicate they were a full committee report, it may have been at a time when he unfortunately couldn't be there. But I would bring to the attention of the floor again that this was a full committee report and it was our considered judgment, having listened to the comments by Dr. Joiner and Dr. Adrian, the comments from the assistant attorney general—which were not, of course, formal comments, but merely an answer to the request which we made—that this could be eliminated without in any way destroying the effectiveness of this right.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman, with the permission of the Chair, I should like to direct my question to the proposed amendment by Delegate Donnelly regarding her remarks as to the deletion of the word "auditors" which affects the question that I raise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Leppien yields to Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: Delegate Leppien, if I understood and recall clearly your question, I think that it went into the boards of auditors particularly. The reason why I eliminated that was that I thought that was what the attorney general's opinion quoted to us was on and I could understand why that could be very clearly eliminated. It did not seem to me that it clearly set forth a right of appeal to the circuit court from all claims as I understood this language to be. This was what was concerning me and I wanted the circuit court to be the body to hear this. And I thought that this constitutional provision should be maintained. Frankly, my elimination of the "board of county auditors" was based on the committee report. That's my reason on that. I have no quarrel with it one way or the other. I was just going along with the committee on that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I'd like to ask Miss Donnelly or I'd like to pursue this thought that Mr. Leppien brought up. I think by excluding the reference to the county auditors we are cutting into the flexibility in those areas where we have both auditors and supervisors. The small claims, as I understand, are normally handled by the auditors. Without the auditor reference here we would have to go directly to the board. I think possibly in the small claims area, you'd get settlement a lot faster here.

MISS DONNELLY: Perhaps I read it too quickly but it would seem to be that within this, the board of supervisors should be able to delegate. Now maybe they can. Are you saying they cannot delegate to the auditors?

MR. MAHINSKE: I think we are bringing up enough questions here that this thought could be brought in if we exclude this language.

MISS DONNELLY: Well, as I say, I haven't studied this and perhaps I shouldn't say anything. But my quick reaction was that the supervisors could delegate to the auditors. But the point I want here is eventually to have a right to appeal any decision definitely de novo to the circuit court and I don't want any question on that issue. Now, if there is some reason that this delegation of authority could not be made — I can't understand why it couldn't be made, either within the charter or the home rule in a broader section later. Now, I may be just destroying all of this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the lady from Highland Park yield to the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott?

MISS DONNELLY: Yes, unless Mr. Mahinske wishes to finish it, and I believe that was his question.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, the committee has no desire to eliminate anything from the constitution that should be needed. May I suggest that inasmuch as this is something we came back to, that we pass over this for the moment. Let Mr. Tweedie contact Dr. Joiner and Dr. Adrian in the meantime, and see if we can get a review of this statute and come back with a clearer picture to the committee of the whole on this particular thing a little later on in our proceedings today.

I am not saying pass this, you understand. What I am saying is to pass over this section h for the moment and go on to sections i, j, k and l.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott moves that the committee of the whole pass temporarily section h. All those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

Section h is passed temporarily and the secretary will read section i.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section i:

[Section i was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady fram East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, we did already start discussing this. Mr. Buback presented it to the committee. I can't recall how far we got in it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section i? If not, it will pass.

Section i is passed.

The secretary will read the next section.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section j:

[Section j was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to yield the floor to Mr. Gover.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Gover.

MR. GOVER: Mr. Chairman and delegates, this section of the constitution is left just the way it was in the 1908 constitution. The comment coming from our committee is that the section be retained the same as section 13 in our present constitution. I recommend this section be passed.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Bessemer, Delegate Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: I have just one question. Assuming that there is a different method of selecting under the home rule provision for counties which will be introduced, as I understand it, Committee Proposal 89, will this have any effect on the method of changing the county seat?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Pellow yields to Delegate Gover.

MR. GOVER: That is a question that I would have to yield to some other member of the committee on. Mr. Brake, could you answer that?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: It would have no effect whatsoever. It wouldn't apply to it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section j? If not, it will pass.

Section j is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section k:

[Section k was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to yield the floor to Mr. Sharpe.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Judd yields to Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee:

[The supporting reasons for section k were read by Mr. Sharpe. For text, see above, page 929.]

We urge the passage of this section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section k? If not, it will pass.

Section k is passed. The secretary will read:

SECRETARY CHASE: Section l:

[Section l was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to yield the floor to Mr. Burton Richards.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Judd yields to Delegate Richards.

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, this is section 15 of the present article VIII. There are no changes. It's the same authority we've had since 1908 and I think before that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Question, Mr. Chairman, of Mr. Richards. Would that prevent the people of 2 adjoining townships from consolidating by local vote or referendum?

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: It is my understanding that this would have to be approved by the board of supervisors. I think that later on we will come to a place where they can contract together. It is still up to the board of supervisors.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Did the committee consider at all allowing townships to consolidate by their own vote?

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: No, we did not.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section l? If not, it will pass.

Section l is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section m:

[Section m was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 929.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, by the size of the print you can see that this is new material and I would like to yield the floor to Delegate Baginski.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Judd yields to Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman and delegates, this is new matter and the wording, of course, is:

[Section m and the supporting reasons were read by Mr. Baginski. For text, see above, page 929.]

We in Wayne have had a civil service or merit system for 19 years and it has been a success and we ask for the same privileges in our county civil service that we have in our state civil service. We want protection in the constitution so that there is no possibility of endangering our merit system in Wayne. I urge the adoption of this section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section m? Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, a question to Mr. Baginski. By the usual construction of such matters, would this exclude counties of under 1 million from adopting civil service or should this permission be specifically granted so that it is not clear that by establishing civil service for counties of 1 million or over, that you have forbidden the legislature from allowing civil service to be established in counties of lesser population?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Hanna and fellow delegates, it was the impression that we received in the committee that no other county cared to come under this provision. Therefore, we set the figure at 1 million.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Then you agree with the construction that the legislature could not under this provision provide for civil service either on a local option basis or otherwise for counties of under 1 million?

MR. BAGINSKI: The construction now is that it be set up and controlled by the board of supervisors.

MR. W. F. HANNA: But only in counties of over 1 million?

MR. BAGINSKI: That's right.

MR. W. F. HANNA: In counties of 1 million, the legislature could not grant to that county the power to establish civil service?

MR. BAGINSKI: Not according to the words here.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: A question for Mr. Baginski or any other member of the committee. I notice the final sentence of section m says, "The ordinance or any amendments thereto shall be approved by the electors of the county." Now, first of all, the electors — well, taken literally, I suppose that would mean all voters of the county. And again taken literally, that would mean a majority vote was not enough. You'd have to get a 100 per cent vote. Most places in the constitution, I think, always say by a majority of those voting on the subject. I just wondered what the intent was behind the committee proposal and what the consideration was behind this aspect of the committee proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Baginski and Mr. Wanger, it just goes to prove to you that you need a committee of the whole (laughter) because this is not the intention of the committee at all to make this the requirement, the majority vote of all the electors, but merely of those voting on the issue. Whatever language Mr. Wanger or some member of our committee could submit to the Chair, I'm sure would clear that up once and for all.

Speaking on the other issue, if I may, as long as I'm on my feet, the question of Mr. Hanna from Muskegon, I do not concur in the report that Mr. Baginski gave because while he is correct that this says that they shall have the power by ordinance to establish, it was not our intention in the committee by this language to prevent the legislature from passing any general law which would make it possible for any county to establish a merit system should they want to.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman, I stand corrected.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Eau Claire, Mr. Richards, seek recognition?

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, we first started this off with 300,000, thinking that probably there might be 6 or 7 or 8 counties in the state who would be interested in having a civil service or a merit system for their employees. There seemed to be no interest and so the population was moved up to a million to take care of it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I think it is quite clear that the language as now contained in the committee proposal does exclude any county which has a population of less than a million from having a merit system. I know that we have an amendment on the desk which would bear on this if it might be read.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Martin, Dr. Pollock, Mr. Faxon, Mrs. Cushman and Mr. W. F. Hanna have all filed the same identical amendment as follows:

1. Amend page 3, line 20, by striking out "with a population of 1 million or more"; so the language will read, "The board of supervisors of any county shall have the power by ordinance to establish a merit system for county employment."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the author of the amendment, Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: The amendment would make it possible for any county, regardless of population, to establish a merit system if it saw fit to do so, if its board of supervisors saw fit to do so, and if it were approved by the electorate of the county.

It would seem that we have to look a long way ahead in drafting this constitution. We are talking about 40 or 50 years perhaps and certainly many of these counties, before that time rolls by, will want to have a merit system in their counties. It seems undesirable to have any limitation by population as to whether a county can or cannot do it. I think we should leave this question to the judgment of the board of supervisors and the electors of the county. If they don't want it, they have no necessity for having it. But if they do want it, they certainly ought to have it possible to set up such a system and provide the necessary mechanics for making it work.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Was the delegate from Pontiac, Mr. King, seeking recognition on the Martin, Faxon, et al, amendment?

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, I would support the amendment. I just would like to state for the record that I do not agree with the interpretation that Mr. Baginski has placed upon the present language nor that that Mr. Martin has placed upon it, but rather that Mr. Elliott has placed upon it, that this does not preclude the legislature from acting in this area with regard to smaller counties. In the event that this is defeated, I think we ought to make that very clear on the record. But in the meantime I'll support Mr. Martin's amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: I would like to explain to the committee a little bit as to how we finally arrived at this proposal. We did start in talking about making it permissive for counties of every population to have civil service but then we also began going back to the policy we had been pursuing of making these provisions with respect to all 83 counties just as they are in the present constitution and leaving these privileges due to aspects of government, civil service and other matters that will come up later to those counties that might wish to reorganize their form of government under home rule.

We finally arrived at the Wayne county problem due to the difficulties that the county has had with its some 7,000 employees under civil service with the legislature changing their system in various details for many years. Therefore, we wished to transfer it to the Wayne county board of supervisors. It certainly was not our thought that that sentence would make it impossible for any other county to have civil service. If the best legal advice indicates that we were wrong in this assumption, I think we would be quite open to changing it later.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman and delegates, as one of the proponents of this section, we would have no objection to the amendment offered that is on the desk to include all counties. Our concern here was that we would protect the 7,000 employees in Wayne county. However, if you care to amend it as the amendment is proposed, we have no objections.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Fennville, Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I want to raise this line of thought with regard to this proposed section and the matter comes into more striking attention in my mind in view of Mr. Martin's amendment. It is that at the present time, with nothing in the constitution on the matter, we will concede that the legislature has the power to pass laws which provide for merit systems in counties. The fact of the matter is they have done it as to Wayne county. It is the purpose of this proposal here to take that power away from the legislature and to vest it in the county boards of supervisors. Now then, suppose then that we left similar powers to create merit systems by county ordinance in the boards of supervisors of all counties in the state. This matter then will be completely taken away from the legislature with the result that there will be no uniformity of county merit systems. Maybe that isn't at all important now and maybe it wouldn't be in the future except that it occurs to me that in the future — let us keep in mind Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, for instance — it would seem as though it might in the future become desirable to have it possible perhaps to transfer seniority as between counties and among counties within the merit system. I don't know, but it might come about, particularly in the metropolitan areas of the state where the county lines are not quite as important, I think perhaps as maybe somewhere else. Well, then, if you vest a constitutional power in each one of 83 different boards of supervisors, they can write their merit systems completely independent of any other board of supervisors, with the result that there may be a complete lack of uniformity throughout the state, a complete lack — in fact, no ability whatever in the legislature to require a uniformity or to require any kind of a reciprocity or anything of the sort. Now this is the kind of a constitutional rigidity which I think we should steer clear of. I think in my own mind, we'd be much better off to leave this within the power of the legislature. I am aware of the fact that Wayne county perhaps is impatient from time to time with bills that are introduced in the legislature to change the details of the merit system down there but nevertheless, I think it is important to keep in mind this other aspect of it: that in the future, we may find it very desirable to have a uniformity as between these various municipal systems. That uniformity I think will be destroyed and any ability to make it uniform will be destroyed by this provision.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: This problem again also received considerable consideration within our committee. The problem of the merit system involving all 83 counties is a difficult one to decide and it became very evident it should not be constitutional in nature. On that point, we agree completely with Mr. Hutchinson. The point, however, that brought this to the committee's attention in the first place was that the legislature in its operation over the past several years had from time to time by law changed the merit system provisions in such a way that they have affected Wayne county and its employees to the detriment of the system. At least, there was a great deal of concern as to what these changes did. It was therefore decided in the committee that when a county having a merit system became as large as 1 million inhabitants, then at that time, it should have the freedom of controlling its own system with the adoption by a majority vote of its people.

That will give you a little better background. I don't think that the amendment as offered by Mr. Martin does at all what the committee in its wisdom wanted to do or wanted to suggest to you. I do think that the comment made by Mr. Wanger was appropriate and that language will have to be added to accommodate that particular situation which I believe one of the members of the committee already has on the desk. But as to the amendment of Mr. Martin, this was given serious consideration and it was felt that with the exception of counties when they reach the size of 1 million or more, the legislature should in its wisdom be able to develop a merit system which, perhaps as Mr. Hutchinson suggested, would have a certain uniformity and so forth. But that was the rationale.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ionia, Delegate Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask for a definition of "county employment". Does that include deputy sheriff, deputy treasurer, deputy clerk?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would like to bring to the gentleman's attention this merely allows the county to have control of its merit system under its charter and as adopted by the people so that if this were adopted, it would be within the province of Wayne county to establish its own rules and this would not in any way determine where the line would be drawn.

MR. POWELL: Well then, am I to understand that by this provision the sheriff could be brought into the county employment, the prosecutor blanketed in under a merit system?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: As to those elected officials, I would say that the answer is decidedly no. Those that are employed, the employables that are not elected, I would think that the answer would be that if their system so desired and if the people adopted it and passed it by a majority vote, then it would be within their province. We are giving to the county the freedom of adopting its own merit system in this proposal if they have a million or more people in the county.

MR. POWELL: If I understand the amendment, it would strike the 1 million or more and the only thing that I am referring to is this: assume that a sheriff comes in and he appoints his deputy sheriff. Now, after that sheriff goes out of office, if they adopt this merit system, they can blanket all deputy sheriffs and deputy clerks and do away with the democratic process of elections.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: It would not in any way do away with the democratic process of elections. It might very well do away with the democratic process of appointing your own deputies or something like that. However, I bring to Mr. Powell's attention that as chairman of this committee, I am speaking against the amendment because it does not express the intent of the committee. Our intent will give to those counties of a million or more the right of self determination in regard to their merit system and that all other counties should have whatever rights were provided for by law.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegates Faxon, Cushman, Martin and Pollock. Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hutchinson has raised a very important point. The proposal as it now stands would clearly make it impossible for any county other than one of a million or more population to have a merit system. He points out that the amendment proposed, while it would extend the possibility of a merit system to other counties, would take the responsibility for general provisions on the merit system away from the legislature, and the committee on executive branch has a proposal pending before the committee of the whole on the general orders calendar which would provide that the legislature shall by law establish a system under which the civil divisions of the state, including cities and villages, may choose to provide for the merit principle in employment, such civil divisions' appointments and promotions under civil service shall be made according to merit and fitness to be ascertained as far as practicable by examination, which as far as practicable shall be competitive, and authorizes the state civil service commission to be of assistance to local civil divisions in setting up their own personnel systems.

If Mr. Hutchinson is correct, and this proposal actually would then take away from the legislature any authority with respect to the merit systems, I am opposed to it because we believe that there should be a permissive system for local units of government to set up their own civil service systems, if they want to do so.

Others who have offered the amendment may want to retain it, but I think on that basis, I would withdraw my amendment and vote against the proposal of the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Martin, I don't believe that the committee is out of sympathy with what the executive committee is going to offer when it gets its day in court. However, this does not, in our belief, eliminate from the right of the legislature to do just exactly what you say. The only thing that this does do — and I can repeat — is that it gives to the county of a million or more the opportunity of making this a self determining feature and that it would eliminate them from any jurisdiction by the legislature in the future once the electors by a majority vote had so passed.

I don't believe that there has been anything here on the floor that has convinced me that we have eliminated or taken away from the legislature the power to enact laws which would cover all counties, including counties of a million or more until such time as that county of a million or more should by vote of its people determine to come under a charter or a merit system which they adopt and then from that date on, they would be free from legislative instruction or interference or whatever you want to call it. If, however, the legal minds of this convention find that the committee is wrong, I would suggest if you are in favor of the intent of the committee, that somebody suggest some language or amend some language which will make it perfectly clear that the legislature retains the right of law for all other counties.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, speaking to the amendment — and I would agree with Mr. Hutchinson that this may remove some of the legislature's power to establish uniform civil service for counties — I believe, however, that there is nothing wrong with each county being able to determine its own civil service if it wishes it, and if it wishes to make interchange or give credit for prior service within a state or other political subdivisions, be it city, county or township, that it could by its ordinance so do.

I think it is important — and I think most people would agree — that if you specifically grant a power by this constitution to a class of counties, you have thereby eliminated it as to all other counties. Certainly, this language has the implication that only in counties over 1 million or more does the board of supervisors have any power to pass a civil service or merit system. I would assume that the legislature could establish a merit system in detail for all the other counties, but I would assume that the legislature by this language could not grant to the board of supervisors or to the electorate of any other county having a population of 1 million or less, the power to establish a merit system. Certainly, in view of the general feeling that this constitution is for all the counties and not for only one county, we should provide a general provision that would give my county or any other county the power to pass on whether or not it wants civil service. If it wants to allow interchange and credit for experience in other systems, the local system may so provide. I urge the adoption of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment offered by Delegates Faxon, Cushman, Martin, Pollock and Hanna.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is as follows:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 962.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, in the light of the discussion, I should like to add to my amendment by inserting the words "as provided by law" after the word "employment" in line 22, so that the proviso of the proposal would then read, "The board of supervisors of any county shall have the power by ordinance to establish a merit system for county employment, as provided by law." This will give the legislature the necessary authority to spell out a system whereby counties can establish that system that will make it possible for any county which wishes to do so to have a civil service system.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is the addition of the language acceptable to the other cosponsors of the amendment? Delegate Faxon?

MR. FAXON: I want it read as revised.

SECRETARY CHASE: 1. Amend page 3, line 20, by striking out "with a population of 1 million or more"; and in line 22, after "employment" by inserting "as provided by law"; so that it would then read:

The board of supervisors of any county shall have the power by ordinance to establish a merit system for county employment as provided by law. The ordinance or any amendments thereto shall be approved by the electors of the county.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do the cosponsors agree to the additional language? Delegate Faxon?

MR. FAXON: Yes sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cushman?

MRS. CUSHMAN: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Pollock?

MR. POLLOCK: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hanna?

MR. W. F. HANNA: Of course.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question now is on the amendment, as revised, offered by Messrs. Martin, Pollock, Hanna, Mrs. Cushman and Mr. Faxon. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. Chairman and members, in reading from previous sections that we have just adopted whereby pursuant to law these boards of supervisors may fix salaries and compensation for county officers, and up above that that they have such powers of administrative character and otherwise as may be provided by law, it looks to me as if we are going to start following this high road, that this has no place in this constitution. There is ample authority for all this sort of thing on a sensible uniform basis in the sections we have been over since 4:15.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Detroit, Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I would like to ask Mr. Martin under his proposed change who would have to act first?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Well, it would mean that the legislature would have to set up a general statute under which such civil service systems could be provided.

MR. MAHINSKE: But then aren't we going right back, if there is nothing in here at all?

MR. MARTIN: What we want is to have it possible for the legislature to set up such a system so that individual counties, cities, villages and so on can establish their own merit systems.

MR. MAHINSKE: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar, seek recognition on the amendment, as revised?

MR. MADAR: Well, all I wanted to do is speak on the general proposal and all I wanted to say is we wanted to do the same thing here for the county employees that the state employees now have and all city home rule units have. City home rule units can go ahead and establish a civil service system by going to the electors and we now want to do the same thing for the county. We want to make sure that we do this and the only reason that we didn't leave it at 100,000 or 200,000 was because we wanted to bring it up here before you people to protect these county employees. The only way we could get it up here was to put it at the 1 million mark.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Saginaw, Mr. Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to direct this question to the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Mr. Elliott. Section g of this proposal reads as follows:

> The legislature may by general law confer upon the boards of supervisors of the several counties powers of a local, legislative and administrative character not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution.

My question of the chairman is, sir, is it not true that this takes care of that without the proviso as far as the section under discussion with its attendant amendment?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Leppien, I think that you're right if you're putting it in the context of the legislature doing it. If I understand your question, though, it doesn't take care of the problem that we thought we were resolving and that is, that when the county gets such size as having a million people or more, that it then is of a size and stature that it should have complete freedom in decision on its merit system. Do you see the difference in the 2 provisions?

MR. LEPPIEN: That is correct. But without the amendment to section m of the proposal, this section g covers all other counties. Isn't that correct, sir?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: It was the feeling of the committee that it did and that we had this provision. But I point out to you that I am not a lawyer and I have heard lawyers say that it does and I've heard some say that it does not. But we had thought that this in no way precluded the legislature from granting to the counties of our state, provisions of the merit system within the framework of general law.

MR. LEPPIEN: Chairman Elliott, you also would agree that one of the attorneys in this committee did agree that it did and that was what Delegate Cudlip just said, if I understood his remarks correctly.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Well, there have been attorneys on both sides of the issue. This is par for the course.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair will recognize an attorney, the delegate from Muskegon, Delegate Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to direct a question to Mr. Martin. As I understand it, there is presently on the books a civil service statute relating to counties relative to a million or more; that it was the obvious intent of the committee proposal in its original form to transfer the control of that system from the legislature to the Wayne county board of supervisors, as I understand Mr. Baginski. Is this right?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: I'm not sure I can answer that, Mr. Danhof. I don't know if there is a statute specifically providing for your civil service system in Wayne county. Maybe Mr. Baginski can answer that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman, in answer to this, we do have a special statute. We are now setting up civil service for a million or more.

MR. DANHOF: My next question is: is there anything that is in the present constitution that would prohibit, insofar as Mr. Martin is aware, the legislature from extending this down to the counties of 2,300 or more, which would include everybody, including Keweenaw? Do you think it would?

MR. MARTIN: Yes, Mr. Danhof. I think quite clearly if the original proposal here is adopted with regard to counties of a population of a million or more, by exclusion it would appear to mean that counties under that could not establish such a system. That is what brought about my amendment in the first place.

MR. DANHOF: What I wish to get to, Mr. Martin, with your amendment, are we not right back to the present constitution, that the board of supervisors of any county shall have the power to establish a merit system for county employment as provided by law? If they can do it by law now, why do we need the additional language that they shall? We all know that we cannot mandamus the legislature and if they do not do it, there isn't anything that a county employee could do if a system were not set up for all counties as provided by law. I fail to see — we are just adding words and accomplishing nothing.

I can see the original proposal and whether I am in agreement with it or not is one thing. I can see what they intended to accomplish but if we adopt the amendment, as revised, I think we are right back to where we were if we say nothing and the legislature can then pass such statutes as it desires, as it has done, for counties of a million or more. If it wants to amend the statute it can go down to 100,000.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are you asking a question of Delegate Martin?

MR. DANHOF: I would like to inquire from Mr. Martin what he feels the provision, assuming the revised amendment, adds to the power of legislature.

MR. MARTIN: I think Mr. Danhof is possibly right, that we are bringing it around to the power which the legislature has now. As a matter of fact, I think that there should be a directive to the legislature to pass such permissive legislation but I don't want the proposal as it stood without my amendment to go through because I think that will prevent the legislature from passing any legislation with respect to counties under a million.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is the lady from East Grand Rapids seeking recognition on this amendment? Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I think that the difficulty the committee is having is exactly the difficulty that we had in the committee. That is, that we are trying to dictate to any 1 of the 83 counties the kind of system we think they ought to have and this we find extremely difficult to do. So we pursued the policy of not asking new things in the constitution of the 83 counties but hopefully of the setting up by a home rule provision whereby a county, when it does become something more than an arm of the state and does have more and more municipal functions, could draft its own charter and set up its own civil service system. I would presume that if Wayne county knew that they were going to have the opportunity for writing a home rule charter and could then write their own civil service system, that this provision would not be necessary. But we propose this now because of a particular situation in that county.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is the gentleman from Ann Arbor seeking recognition on the Martin amendment?

MR. POLLOCK: I was really wanting to repeat, Mr. Chairman, what Mr. Martin had indicated: that the committee on executive branch is already proposing to bring out a permissive framework law which would not only cover Wayne county but all counties on a permissive basis and if there is any conflict after Mr. Martin's amendment, if it is adopted, if there is any conflict between this amended provision and the new one, which is on general orders, it then becomes a matter of resolving that conflict here in the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ionia, Delegate Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. Chairman, just for the record, I would like to point this out then: that as far as I am concerned, my interpretation of this is that the committee is drawing a distinction between officials and employees and that this provision does not apply to section d or their appointed officials. Am I correct on that, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I think the gentleman is asking for an interpretation that I am not prepared to make completely because the committee did not have this discussion. I will, however, make a comment of a personal nature. This obviously does not involve any elected officer. However, I do believe that it does involve any officer, anyone that is employed by the county, who within the framework of the merit system is included, and it would become incumbent upon that particular merit system to determine whether or not certain employment should be under the system or whether it should not.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bay City, Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the arguments that we are hearing here today sound familiar whenever we get into the area of legislative matters. I too can find things about section m that raise questions in my mind, such as: how will this be reconciled with the county home rule provision? Should you have some governing body other than a board of supervisors? Questions with regard to the manner of submission of this article to the electors; when would the amendment proposed by Delegate Martin — I think it clearly points out, as Delegate Danhof has stated, that's what we are doing. The legislature already has the power to establish merit systems.

I have on the desk an amendment which I would like to propose as a substitute for the committee proposal, striking out the entire section, if that is in order.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Higgs, your amendment is not a substitute amendment. It is a motion to strike out the entire section and we will consider it after we have considered the amendment offered by Mr. Martin and the other delegates.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. Chairman, it seems what is involved here is the same thing we had when we were talking about state civil service. Are we going to trust the legislature to keep changing civil service? I think it was ably demonstrated through the discussion on that score that many people have grave reservations about the legislature and its power to change the civil service section. Apparently — I know in my county — the people would rather have the power to change left with the board of supervisors.

Now it seems to me that the original Martin amendment, before it was revised, is proper. This leaves it up to the people in each county whether they want it or not. But certainly, I would have to speak against this Martin amendment because it absolutely is of no value to the people that are most vitally concerned with this amendment. It's just throwing it back in the lap of the legislature where it is already by statute. For this reason, I urge you to oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I have 2 or 3 questions here. I don't know if I'm in order. First, on Mr. Powell's question, I certainly question the validity of the answer. I feel that a deputy clerk or a deputy sheriff might well be considered an official since he can perform the duties of his superior who appointed him.

The other thing, Mr. Wanger's statement regarding the last sentence I think is even more defective than that. It seems to say to me that all of the voters of the county must approve this. I suppose what it means is that the amendment shall not take effect until a majority of those voting thereon have voted for it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott, do you wish to answer the question?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Stevens, I believe that my answer to Mr. Powell was certainly as correct as I could make it — and I would again repeat that it does not cover elected officials but that in my judgment it would cover all employees of the county if the system included their office, whether it be a deputy clerk or what, within the system. But much as the merit system of the state does now, it would be my assumption that the county merit system would probably have some exempt offices within each of the major departments. However, that is merely an assumption. Did you have a second question, Mr. Stevens?

MR. STEVENS: I doubt your opinion on that. It may be questionable but I think a deputy sheriff, let's say an undersheriff, might well be considered an official. It's a matter of law.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I said an elected official and I will say elected officer and leave it at that. I can't disagree with you. I am merely making a statement that I think is consistent with where we are at this time. Was there another question?

MR. STEVENS: Is that last sentence to be rewritten?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Yes. There are many amendments on the desk to correct the context of the last sentence.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from East Grand Rapids, Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, it would be my suggestion in the light of the discussion that you adopt the amendment which I offered. But, if you don't adopt the amendment which several of us have offered, that you then defeat the basic proposal. Because if you don't do that, you will certainly freeze into the constitution a provision which will prevent us from making permissive civil service in all these other counties under a million. So you either ought to have the committee proposal with the amendment that has been offered, or you ought not to have any proposal at all on that particular point.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegates Faxon, Cushman, et al to section m and the secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The pending amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 964.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman and delegates, a motion may not be apropos, but I was going to ask the chairman of our committee if we couldn't make this a special order of business at the end of local government and come up with the proper language on this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you move that, Delegate Baginski?

MR.BAGINSKI: I do.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Baginski, the secretary informs me we cannot make special orders in the committee of the whole. We can postpone this temporarily.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to urge that we not postpone it, not because I don't support Mr. Baginski's position, but because I think Mr. Martin's amendment should be defeated and we should go on from that point.

I believe that the language here with the suggestion made by Mr. Wanger and by many others by this time is the language that the committee felt was sound and proper for the constitution and for the situation as we saw it. I am not convinced, even with my great respect for him, that the language prevents the legislature from passing legislation which would allow merit systems in other counties at any time. Therefore, I would urge the defeat of the amendment and the adoption of the committee proposal with the minor amendments which would follow.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Livonia, Delegate Conklin.

MRS. CONKLIN: I just wanted to ask a question, Mr. Chairman. When this last amendment was read, were they leaving off the last sentence? Are they going to attack that separately? "The ordinance or any amendments thereto. . . ." and so forth. Were they leaving this off?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary informs me, Delegate Conklin, that there are amendments on the secretary's desk to the last sentence. The amendment we are considering now covers only the first sentence.

MRS. CONKLIN: In their suggested amendment, they are leaving that sentence off; am I right?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: No, that is not right.

MRS. CONKLIN: I didn't understand you to read that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Would you like the secretary to read the amendment again, Delegate Conklin? The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary might point out to the committee of the whole that all that is being considered at the present time is the amendment to the first sentence. This leaves the second sentence to be considered later.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Detroit, Delegate Faxon.

MR. FAXON: I am speaking on behalf of the amendment. I think we are generally agreed that the constitution should be one which is applicable to the entire state and I cannot see how we can go ahead and write into the constitution a figure or a number of people necessary to enjoy certain privileges and deny this to the rest of the state. So I would urge the delegates to keep in mind that we are not writing special legislation for any one county, but we want something to be uniform and for the whole state. In this case I would urge your support for the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I am not opposed to the amendment nor am I opposed to what I believe is the intent of the committee proposal. I do think that there are some differences of opinion as to what the language means and as to whether or not it is the proper language. There seems to be the general consensus of opinion on this particular proposal that we want something in the constitution. I am not going to make any amendment at this time. I would request that the delegates think over the suggestion of Delegate Baginski during the dinner period and give some consideration to postponing that one particular section and let Marty and Art Elliott get together and come up with the appropriate language.

At this time, while I am on the floor, I would like to move that the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Marshall moves that the committee of the whole do now rise. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The committee has risen.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, Acting President Bentley assumed the Chair.]

ACTING PRESIDENT BENTLEY: The convention will be in order. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had several items under consideration on which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 81, A proposal pertaining to county government. It has considered several amendments thereto and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

I have the following announcements:

The committee on emerging problems will meet Wednesday, February 14, in room I on the third floor at 1:00 o'clock p.m. Frank G. Millard, chairman.

The committee on education will meet in its committee room immediately after the morning session on Wednesday, the fourteenth.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet tomorrow morning at 8:00 a.m. Richard Van Dusen, chairman.

The committee on style and drafting will meet in room K tomorrow at 8:00 o'clock p.m. William B. Cudlip, chairman.

ACTING PRESIDENT BENTLEY: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, I move the convention now recess until 8:00 p.m.

ACTING PRESIDENT BENTLEY: Those in favor will respond by saying aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

The convention will be recessed until 8:00 p.m. this evening.

[Whereupon, at 6:00 o'clock p.m., the convention recessed; and, at 8:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for the consideration of items on the order of general orders.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. DeVries. All those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order. When last the committee met, it was considering Committee Proposal 81, section m, an amendment to the first sentence, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Following is the amendment to section m that is presently pending:

1. Amend page 3, line 20, after "county" by striking out "with a population of 1 million or more"; and in line 22, after "employment" by inserting "as provided by law".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman and delegates, during this recess, I have not reached all of the people who were on the amendment but the majority of them and it seems that the major problem here was one of interpretation. Mr. Martin felt that the way the committee language read it prevented other counties from having merit systems as provided by law.

Therefore, I have a suggestion to make to the makers of that amendment which may clear this up and that would be to leave the million count in there and add this language at the bottom: "All other counties may establish such merit systems as provided by law," leaving it as it is now, to the legislature. This should clear up any misinterpretation. I then have some additional language that would clear up the election procedure but that is not under discussion at this time.

The makers of this amendment originally were Messrs. Pollock, Martin, Faxon, Hanna and Mrs. Cushman. I talked to Mr. Martin and Mr. Faxon about this and they are agreeable to this substitution. If I felt we could reduce the discussion by having an agreement of that kind from Mrs. Cushman and Mr. Hanna and Dr. Pollock, I would introduce this as an amendment at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you introduce that as a substitute amendment?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would prefer to do it with the permission of the makers. If not, I think I'll just stand on these grounds and try to defeat the amendment as offered.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegates Faxon, Cushman, Martin, Pollock and Hanna withdraw their amendment? Delegate Faxon.

MR. FAXON: There was some substantial degree of difference between the amendment and the proposition which Mr. Elliott refers to now and I've been thinking about it. As the statement now reads, you have any county of 1 million or over and then you're going to make a proviso that will project momentarily that the other counties will have merit systems that will be established by law by the legislature. "Any county of 1 million or over." Everybody knows what we're talking about, we know we are talking about Wayne county. I don't know whether there is an effort here to say it in any other way.

When I spoke before on the question, I felt that we should have all counties treated in a like manner insofar as the state is concerned. But I understand this is not a popular position; that there is a county that wants to be treated differently because of some experience that it may have had in the past with regard to the state legislature. If this is the case, I would wish for the proponents of the original proposal to more clearly spell out for me just what the difficulties have been over the past years that warrant 1 county getting special treatment in the constitution. This is what I would ask Mr. Elliott. If he could justify this for me, I would have no objection. I have objected to the idea of putting a number into the constitution to mean generally when we mean very specifically the county of Wayne. If I could have that cleared up, I might feel more amenable to the proposed suggestion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Faxon yields to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I thought we made our position completely clear that the committee, after a great deal of discussion on this, arrived at the conclusion that you are reaching, Mr. Faxon: that it was necessary and wise to make this a constitutional provision. We thought we were making it possible for the legislature to have complete flexibility except after a county reached a population of 1 million. If you are not satisfied, then I would not offer this as a substitute amendment at this time and would urge the committee of the whole to defeat the amendment and I would offer it as a separate amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Faxon, wish to object to the substitute amendment?

MR. FAXON: I would prefer to see a vote on the pending amendment before I would be willing to withdraw it, Mr. Chairman. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegates Faxon, Martin, Cushman, Pollock and Hanna. The gentleman from Ann Arbor, Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I think I would agree with Mr. Faxon with the additional proviso that Mr. Martin added "as provided by law". It still keeps the whole thing within the framework of law at the same time that it indicates that there can be a classification to take care of different population groups. I think the Martin amendment clarifies the situation sufficiently and although I don't feel strongly about this, if the people from Wayne county are so fearful of the legislature and so anxious to have this vested with their own board of supervisors, I wouldn't want to fight over that particularly.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I just would like to remind the delegates that the amendment that they have now before them completely changes the intent of the committee and I would urge its defeat.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegates Faxon, Martin, Hanna, Pollock and Cushman and the secretary will read the amendment.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 964.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, we in Wayne, with 7,000 civil service employees, are not asking for any more than Dr. Pollock and some of the other gentlemen have asked for the state civil service commission. We are now regulated by statute and we are subject to possible ripping and tearing up of our rules in Wayne as the state civil service commission was and we are entitled to the same privileges. Wayne is the only county in the state of Michigan that has a civil service system.

We are not opposed to the amendment offered by Mr. Elliott allowing the other counties to have a civil service system by law, but we do have a system that is in operation at this time. It has been there for 19 years; it has been a success.

I do hope that the amendment will be voted down and we can consider the amendment that Mr. Elliott will offer after this amendment is voted down.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, if I may, I would like to have the question divided to vote on the "as provided by law" separate from giving county boards of supervisors power to set up civil service which would be the effect of the amendment that I put in.

I originally agreed with Mr. Martin's adding those words and I would like to withdraw that agreement, if permissible, because I think that there are 2 different things here. One is the question of whether or not the board of supervisors may of its own volition establish civil service. This is question one. If you divide them, it makes it a clear question of home rule powers.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hanna has requested that the question be divided. Is there objection? I hear none. The question will be divided. The secretary will read the first part of the question.

SECRETARY CHASE: The first amendment which is now being considered is as follows:

1. Amend page 3, line 20, by striking out "with a population of 1 million or more".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Blandford.

MR. BLANDFORD: Mr. Chairman, I think that Bill Hanna and Art Elliott have pretty well covered this. We have 2 separate items that we are trying to discuss here. It is obvious to me that section m as it is now written is what the people of Wayne county desire and what they want and I think it should be passed as such. Now, the rest of the other 82 counties in the state of Michigan have a separate problem. If they are going to have civil service, it will be under the jurisdiction of the state legislature. I feel that there should probably be another section added to this, covering the other 82 counties. I think it is as simple as that.

We have been trying to combine both of these into 1 section. I think it is impossible to do. You've got 2 separate items. I therefore feel that Bill Hanna has come the closest to my way of thinking on this: that we do have 2 separate things here. I feel section m should be passed as it is; the amendment of Mr. Martin, which in my opinion negates section m, should not be passed. Then after we pass section m, if you want to write another section covering the other 82 counties, go ahead and do so. I think that's the proper way to proceed.

MR. KING: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: What is your point of order, Mr. King?

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that we should be voting first on the Martin amendment. My understanding of parliamentary procedure is you vote on the last amendment which is proposed and when the question was divided, I thought we were back to where we were before. I would prefer to vote on the Martin amendment which concerns the "act provided by law" part before we vote on the amendment concerning the number of people that have to reside in the county.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate King, it is the Chair's understanding that we are voting on the Martin amendment as divided. The secretary will read the first part of the question on which we will vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are 2 sections to the amendment proposed by Mr. Martin. The first part of it was page 2, line 20, by striking out "with a population of 1 million or more". The second amendment was in line 22, after "employment" by inserting "as provided by law".

MR. KING: Wasn't that second part added on after the first part?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Martin revised the language without objection of the cosponsors of the amendment. So we are working now on the Martin amendment and we have divided the question as the secretary has read. We will vote on the first sentence first. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Escanaba, Delegate Follo.

MR. FOLLO: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I was a member of the minority that lost out on this particular section. I think I can speak for most of the minority when I say we favored extending this to the other counties of the state, but we were outvoted on it. Our chairman, who appears to be a very loyal chairman, and who like a good captain goes down with his ship, is protecting something which I think some of us would have no objection to: extending this to all the counties of the state, regardless of the population.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does Delegate Sharpe seek recognition on the question?

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, would it be permissible to ask Delegate Baginski a couple of questions?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. SHARPE: Being a member of the local government committee, Martin, you told us in the deliberations that there were specific reasons why you wanted this protection for the city of Detroit and I don't believe that you have expressed this to the delegation. I think if we divide this question up and we add to or subtract from it, we're going to defeat it and if it is something that the Detroit people need and want, I think they should have it and I don't think that the out-county people are against it. But I don't believe that you have told us the full story in regard to what the legislature has done in the past with some of your civil service employees. Maybe you'd like to do that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Detroit, Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the entire matter boils down to this: we have had a civil service system in Detroit for 19 years. This affords protection to career people who have devoted the past 19 years and perhaps even longer to work in the county—men who are trained for specific work of this sort—and they are entitled to the protection that we can give them under civil service. We are asking for the continuation of this system in Wayne and Wayne only.

From what I could gather in the committee of 27 people on local government—and you were there, Mr. Sharpe, you know that we had to barter for this figure of 1 million—many of the committee members did not care to be included in the civil service proposal. So the local government committee said: "All right, we'll make it for a million."

Tonight on the floor, we are asking again that you allow us to have and continue our merit system in Wayne county; that you vote down all the other amendments and we have an amendment here that will make permissive for all the other 82 counties a civil service system if you want to have one, by law. Does that answer your question, Mr. Sharpe?

MR. SHARPE: Yes, I believe it does, Delegate Baginski.

Now I'd like to ask Delegate Hanna one question, if I could, Mr. Chairman. A few moments ago you mentioned something about home rule, Mr. Hanna. We are not in a home rule argument as yet and I am asking you now if you think that this amendment which would allow the city of Detroit to be recognized in the constitution would forever prohibit your county from having a civil service system if they so desired.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Not if the amendment which Mr. Baginski referred to and which Mr. Elliott referred to is adopted by this delegation.

MR. SHARPE: The original amendment?

MR. W. F. HANNA: The amendment that provides that counties under 1 million could have civil service as provided by law. At that point, I have no objection to the delegation adopting the amendment or the committee proposal word for word.

MR. SHARPE: I have no objections to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question now is on the Martin amendment as divided. The secretary will read the amendment. Delegate Follo.

MR. FOLLO: May I suggest this: that the phraseology of that last part I proposed to the committee—I don't believe in getting up here and talking too much. I try not to and I haven't—but I suggested it to them to put it in so I certainly am in favor of it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment as divided, the first part.

SECRETARY CHASE: The first part of the amendment:

[The first part of the amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 968.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment. All those in favor of the adoption of the first part of the amendment will say aye. Those opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The second part of the amendment is:

1. Amend page 3, line 22, after "employment" by inserting "as provided by law".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the second part of the amendment. Delegate Faxon, for what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. FAXON: I did not follow the way the question was to be divided. I understood when it was going to be divided we were going to get the Martin amendment first, that is "as provided by law."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: We are voting on the Martin amendment. We have not adopted the first half of the amendment. The question was divided. We are now voting on the second part of the Martin amendment. The secretary will read the amendment again.

SECRETARY CHASE: The second part of the Martin amendment presently under consideration is in line 22, after "employment" by inserting "as provided by law".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the second part of the amendment. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Elliott now offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 23, after "shall" by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "not take effect until approved by a majority of the registered voters voting thereon. All other counties may establish such merit systems as provided by law."; so that the language will then read:

> The ordinance or any amendment thereto shall not take effect until approved by a majority of the registered voters voting thereon. All other counties may establish such merit systems as provided by law.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Elliott amendment to section m. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I'd like to direct this to Mr. Elliott. How are these systems adopted in the other counties?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: As provided by law. (laughter) The legislature will have the authority and will provide the procedure which will be followed.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Mahinske, Mr. Martin this afternoon informed the committee that the committee on executive branch is bringing forth a provision on this subject.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Elliott amendment to section m. All those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

Are there any more amendments to section m?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 19, after "supervisors of" by striking out "any county with a population of 1 million or more" and inserting "Wayne county"; so the language will read, "The board of supervisors of Wayne county will have the power by ordinance to establish a merit system for county employment."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Faxon amendment. Delegate Faxon.

MR. FAXON: This is, in effect, what the proponents of the amendment here have said is for Wayne county. We say "any other county". You talk about any county. We are talking about Wayne county. When that's what they say it's for, why penalize other counties that may not feel this is an advisable means? We're putting the provision in. Call it what we say it is instead of deceiving it with language with regard to population figures. I think it's very misleading.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: I'm afraid Delegate Faxon needs a little lesson in civics. It is impossible under the law to pass a special act mentioning a county by name. That is the only reason that the population figure is used. This is a usual, common and ordinary practice in the legislature. It would apply to any other county if and when that county reaches the population of 1 million.

MR. FAXON: Mr. Chairman, I'll withdraw the amendment. I don't want to get Mr. Stevens upset about this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Faxon withdraws the amendment.

The Chair recognizes the delegate from Grand Rapids, Delegate Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: Mr. Chairman, it seems quite obvious that the intent of the committee report was to legalize or put into the constitution the statute which let Wayne county have the merit system. I objected the other day to an amendment which would have frozen into the constitution a statute that had been on the books for many years about tax exemptions. You may remember that it was Mr. DeVries' amendment. I object to this one on the same ground. But if we are going to vote for it, I suggest that everybody refrain from voting except those from Wayne county.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any further amendments to section m? The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Higgs offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3 by striking out all of lines 19 through 24, inclusive, including the language just recently adopted.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the sponsor of the amendment, Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think that the debate and discussion that we have had points out the problem with regard to special legislation being incorporated in the constitution. I feel that I was quite impressed first of all by the comments of Delegate Hutchinson when he said that by so restricting the legislature, we may be permitting a separate kind of merit system to be established in different counties. And I really believe that this would be a mistake.

I think that the proper way to develop a county merit system would be by general law applicable to all counties. I feel that this definitely should be left to the legislature. If my understanding is correct—and I would like to be corrected if I am wrong—the legislature now has the power to provide by general law for merit systems and they have done so for the benefit of Wayne county. Now we hear the people from Wayne county are here asking that we incorporate into the constitution something special to give constitutional recognition to a system that they have. I really feel that this is leading us into all kinds of difficulty.

And there are other things that could be raised with regard to this paragraph. We speak of the board of supervisors. I'm not certain under the county home rule provisions that that necessarily in all counties will be such; it may be a commission in some counties. In any event, I feel this is the proper time—I think we took a long step forward last week in recognizing that there were matters which should be left out of the constitution and that we should in the constitution lay out the broad, general framework where necessary.

Now, we did make an exception with regard to civil service at the state level. We recognize that this was contrary to good constitutional practice. I think that the proponents of civil service would so recognize today that this is contrary to good constitutional practice. However, we did it. But are we going to continue to do it? Are we going to take another step forward in incorporating into the constitution such a provision as this?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I'd like to speak against the Higgs amendment. I think that you have to remember that this provision is not the Wayne county as such. This is a very abstract concept. This is an opportunity to afford those thousands of civil servants who are employed by Wayne county the same type of protection that those civil servants at the state level have. I think that's very important. We have recognized the importance of the state civil service. Why not carry the idea forward and also constitutionally recognize those civil servants who are working for the county system?

Now, as to good form, I suggested and perhaps we will change; I don't know—but we have an awful lot of things in this new constitution to date which do not meet good constitutional form. This provision is a mere 45 or more words.

Secondly, we are discussing home rule. Now, what can be a better system for local self determination than to have the board of supervisors who are very close to problems, who know the problems and, of course, I think you all are fully aware that the problems of an urban community are distinct from those problems in a rural-urban or just strictly a rural community. And I suggest to you that there is no legislative body which is in a better position to experiment to determine those things in the County of Wayne than the board of supervisors or a legislative body which is located in that county. I think that this is a type of provision which will be most acceptable and provide the needed flexibility. Therefore, I am against the Higgs amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Fennville, Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I simply wanted to rise in support of the amendment, which Mr. Higgs now offers, to strike from the proposal this section m and for the reasons and arguments that I presented earlier in the day. I agree with Mr. Higgs that from the standpoint of proper constitutional considerations and what should properly go into a constitution, this does not belong there. I would hope that the committee would now strike it from the proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, I think what we really have here is a problem not of logic but of experience. Experience here demonstrates that it is proper for this convention to delegate to a particular legislative body the power to grant and to enforce civil service programs and what we are trying to do here is say that by virtue of the experience with the legislature with reference to merit systems, there is reasonable cause for skepticism and for some degree of alarm in terms of some 30 years of experience with the legislature in relation to the merit system. So that because of the apprehension in this regard, this convention can, without violating any precept of what constitutes a constitution or what is legislative, but merely on the basis of pragmatism and experience, say that the board of supervisors of this particular area ought to be able to deal with the precise problems in that particular area. And for that reason, I would urge that we vote against the Higgs amendment and for the committee proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I believe that we should support the principle of county civil service, and I would be glad to see this apply to all counties in the state. But I would not want us to deny the county employees of Wayne county this added protection. I think the argument has been made that we should only make a bare skeleton of a constitution, but I think we should remember that in writing a document that is a life and blood document that varies from model constitutions, depending on the feelings of people at the time, there is a strong feeling for preserving the concept of civil service as a constitutional right where it now exists in Wayne county. I think the classification of a million or more gives that protection. I urge the delegates not to take that away, but if it is amended, to amend it by strengthening it and making it more applicable to other counties in the state.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Higgs amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman, the remarks of Mr. Binkowski have caused me a little difficulty. He thought that he wanted to have flexibility in allowing the board of supervisors to be able to change the civil service ordinance as it may deem fit to meet the changing times.

I submit that under the provision that is now before this committee, it is probably one of the most inflexible things that could be done for the reason that any time a change is desired—and I can sympathize with Mr. Baginski when he says that the legislature has made changes—but every time an amendment may be needed in view of the times regarding qualifications or rights of appeal or anything else, being technical or otherwise, it is going to necessitate a vote of the people of the county of Wayne as the matter now provides. And if I understand it, the gentlemen who are from Wayne are willing to go to the people every time they desire to make a change by deleting a small section or making some change in the civil service ordinance that is adopted. I may be mistaken when I said "amendment" but as I view it, it says the "ordinance" or "amendment" shall not become effective unless approved by a majority of the electorate. Now, you may have an original amendment or ordinance. This will be fine. But if you're going to require the vote of the people every time it is felt a change may be needed, I submit that you are tying yourself in a box from which you may find it very difficult to find a way out.

This is the way I read the proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: Speaking with reference to Mr. Higgs' statement in which he objects to putting into the constitution provisions of a limited application, as in this case the application of this provision merely to Wayne county, I wanted to remind Delegate Higgs that at his insistence the judiciary committee included in Committee Proposal 94 a provision relating to probate judges in counties of less than 25,000 in order to take care of the needs of these small counties.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Detroit, Delegate Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, everyone seems to agree that merit systems, as such, are desirable things for counties to have. But the question resolves itself down to how such merit systems shall be established. Shall they be established by statute through legislative authority or shall they have independent and constitutional authority? It seems to me the issue here is, we must decide which of these 2 should be applicable. If we decide that constitutional independent authority for establishing a merit system is the most desirable, then it would seem to me that it should rightfully apply to all counties in Michigan. In other words, you could paraphrase the statement: what is good for Wayne county, should be good for the rest of the state, if it is a sound basic principle.

It has been stated here a couple of times that for the past 19 years Wayne county has had a merit system. Now, the question to me has not been fully answered. What's wrong with the present system as it operates under legislative authority? Mr. Faxon raised that question much earlier and I don't think it's been sufficiently answered. Mr. Norris touched on it but he didn't bring out anything specific. If this is bad—if the legislature is unable to handle a merit system and the legislation surrounding it so that it operates effectively in a county—then this may be the wrong approach to having a merit system in a county. Therefore, we should adopt the independent constitutional authority.

The point I want to make is that if we adopt an independent constitutional authority for Wayne county, it should apply to the rest of the counties in the state. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the president of the convention for the purpose of making a preferential motion. President Nisbet.

MR. NISBET: Mr. Chairman, it has just come to my attention that the governor of our state is in the building tonight and sitting in the gallery. I would move that he be invited to come into convention hall and sit on the rostrum while we are in session.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, it will be so ordered, and the governor is invited to the rostrum of the convention.

[Whereupon, Governor Swainson approached the rostrum, and received a standing ovation.]

On behalf of the delegates, I welcome Governor Swainson to our proceedings.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: First I would like to make a comment about the remark that was just made about what is good for Wayne should be good for anybody else in the state. I wish he hadn't said that because the last time I heard a similar remark, it didn't go over very good in these United States. (laughter) I see there are some people who do read the papers and remember what happened a few years ago.

Anyway, Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to say in answer to Mr. Danhof that we know that the legislature and legislative bodies can pass legislation which gives departments and various enforcing agencies the right to set up rules and regulations and I just wanted to remind you that this does not take that same privilege away from the boards of supervisors. They can give the civil service system or the merit system the right to draw up rules and regulations as to how this merit system would be operated.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Saginaw, Delegate Shackleton.

MR. SHACKLETON: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I have no objection to trying to take care of Wayne county. If they have been trying to struggle with the legislature for 19 years and to get a law that is satisfactory to them, how many years will it take the legislature to get a law that will satisfy 82 other counties? I support Mr. Higgs in his amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bessemer, Delegate Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I rise to oppose the Higgs amendment. As an outstate delegate, I can appreciate the problem that Wayne county has here because of the legislature and if there is a real fear upon their part because of the way the reactionary senate has acted over the years, I believe that we should give Wayne county the right to have civil service.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I would like to oppose the Higgs amendment for practically every reason that Mr. Pellow didn't say; that is that this committee of ours, as I mentioned to you before, worked hard over this particular point and felt that the solution that we found was a sound one, was proper for the constitution and with the corrections that have been made, more properly clarifies the position that I think the majority of the committee took in its deliberations.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Higgs amendment to section m, and the secretary will read the amendment.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 970.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Hatch.

MR. HATCH: The comment has been made that Wayne county wants the same protection which state employees have. Now, the solution to their problem appears to be to give the board of supervisors or the legislative body of that county complete control over their civil service. I would like to remind those who favor this amendment that in 1940, the people passed a constitutional amendment which took away from the legislature the right to deal with their own employees here in the state. In other words, if the amendment were to set up a county civil service commission with full power to grant increases in pay, to fix classifications, I would say that maybe they do want the same protection. But by merely granting this authority to the board of supervisors, the legislative body of that county, I think we're opening the door to patronage and a possible return to the spoils system where it could be used in Wayne county and I don't think they'd want that. (applause) So I support the Higgs amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Detroit, Delegate Hodges.

MR. HODGES: In answer to Mr. Hatch, the way the last sentence reads, "The ordinance or any amendments thereto shall be approved by the electors of the county," I would conclude from that they could have the power to set up any type of board or commission they wanted through the election. I think what this resolves itself down to is spoilsmanship or civil service or good government.

Now, the people from Wayne county are quite willing to allow the other 82 counties to have anything they particularly want just so we have a determination here to protect the civil service of Wayne county. I'm sure that every member from Wayne county will be glad to give the opportunity to the other 82 counties to vote for civil service if they so desire. If this would please the rest of the committee, I think it would make much more sense to do it that way, but at all costs, at least let us protect our own civil service system.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Haven, Delegate Stafseth, speaking on the Higgs amendment.

MR. STAFSETH: I rise to oppose the Higgs amendment. I've had the occasion in public office as administrator to study the civil service system that they have down there and I have a good deal of admiration for what they have. Now, if they want to protect what they have and lock it in so that they have this good ordinance and they have the safety of the vote of the people for any change, I think it would be a good thing to leave it that way. It may be a little bit legislative but I think we should give it to them.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Higgs amendment to section m. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: I think Mr. Stafseth has explained this quite fully. It is simply a question of whether or not we are to have constitutional protection for the system we now have in Wayne county. I don't see how anybody could object to it. Perhaps it could be objectionable from a purely technical standpoint but so are many other things. But as I see it, all the employees of Wayne county are asking for is to protect through the constitution the civil service which we now have there.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bay City, the author of the amendment, Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I would like to bring to your attention once again that what is involved here is a principle.

I went home over the weekend and spoke with my constituents and I explained to them why I voted against the 15 mill limitation. I read in the newspaper and in talking with other delegates, I sensed a new spirit within this convention, a spirit opposed to placing restrictions upon the legislature, a feeling that perhaps we would review and examine what we were doing with earmarked funds. I told my people that I would come back here and I would look forward in this convention to doing what I thought was right without regard to all of the special interest groups and I think that is what they expect us to do.

Now, we haven't heard much here today from the proponents of civil service. But, as we were told earlier, what we did with regard to the establishment of a state civil service commission in the constitution was contrary to good constitutional practice. Now, what we are doing here is taking a step forward. We are carrying poor constitutional practice a step further. We are doing it under the most difficult circumstances. We've had all kinds of wording proposed here on the floor. I don't think any of us have before us the exact words of what we have come up with. We are trying to frame in the legislative language provisions adaptable to Wayne county and provisions adaptable to 82 other counties.

We have not given consideration to some of the implications of devoloping separate civil service systems in the differing counties. Delegate Hutchinson mentioned one possibility of seniority rights and the transfer of counties that we have not considered further. Delegate Danhof has pointed out that we are adopting a more rigid kind of provision in that after we adopt this, the people from Wayne, when they want any amendment to their system, must have first, action from the board of supervisors, and second, must go to the people. There is nothing here about initiating anything from the people. It must come first from the board of supervisors and then they have to go to a vote. There are all kinds of possibilities in here.

Again, what we are doing is we are going forward, protecting what they already have. Now, I suggest that since we already have it, there is authority for the legislature to do what they have done. There is authority for the legislature to go further by general law. I apologize for having spoken twice on this but I will speak no further. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Higgs amendment to section m. The Chair recognizes the lady from Highland Park, Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I'd like to direct a question to the chairman of this committee regarding Committee Proposal 83. Isn't that handling this sufficiently so you don't need this amendment in this section? Particularly to this degree, I'm in favor of Mr. Higgs' amendment on the theory it is particularly specialized, and it seems to me 83 gives you broad enough powers to handle it. Am I wrong?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: We did not think so.

MISS DONNELLY: I don't think that's sufficient answer for me, Mr. Elliott. That's a conclusion of a fact. I'd like you to be a little more explicit, if you could.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Just a second. What section of Committee Proposal 83 are you talking about?

MISS DONNELLY: The part that relates to cities and villages. We're talking about the city of Detroit, if I understand it correctly.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: We're talking about the county of Wayne.

MISS DONNELLY: Yes, I know, but we're talking about the city of Detroit's merit system, aren't we?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: We're talking about the county of Wayne's merit system.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Donnelly, the question before the committee is the Higgs amendment, not Committee Proposal 83. It is on the Higgs amendment to section m of Committee Proposal 81.

Delegate Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman, I believe it's been covered very well as far as concerns the merit system. On this particular subject, I was hoping it would be able to be voted on. I'd like to give my position on it while I'm on my feet. It isn't very often that Mr. Madar and I agree. But I believe as we discussed this in local government, we were giving Detroit special consideration. We thought it was justified. I'll keep that position now. I don't think it would be too disturbing to have it in the constitution. I look a little bit forward in the future when I hope our friend Tom Downs and a few more will be concerned about the U.P. when we get to certain other issues, Tom. We're still considering Detroit now and I hope you'll be just as considerate of the upper peninsula at that time. (applause)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Young.

MR. YOUNG: Brother Chairman, I am speaking in opposition to the Higgs amendment. As I understand it, the employees of Wayne county are the only civil service employees in the state who have no form of constitutional or charter protection. Now, we have various civil service systems throughout the state, either municipal or state. State employees are covered by constitutional amendment. Municipal employees are covered through charter. The Wayne county and home rule—the Wayne county civil service employees are the only ones who have no constitutional or charter protection whatsoever. We are merely asking in the committee report that these employees be given some minimum type of constitutional and/or charter security. I think that's a minimum and reasonable request.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Highland Park, Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I direct my question to Mr. Elliott on Committee Proposal 89. I misquoted your charts—you've been amending them—for your county home rule. Won't that cover it? My point being, aren't you covering it someplace else and you needn't do it now?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: In fact, you are not, because it might be possible that if we pass 89 as it is now written, or in any other form, the county of Wayne might not adopt it. This is a provision which accommodates one specific section and I think that it would be unwise to consider this in relation with any section or any proposal which is coming up later.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to move that the committee rise at this time for a brief moment so that we can hear a word from the governor.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott moves that the committee do now rise. All those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. The committee has risen.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the report of the committee of the whole will be dispensed with at this time.

I am very happy to present to you our governor, Governor Swainson. (applause)

GOVERNOR SWAINSON: Thank you very much. President Nisbet and ladies and gentlemen of the constitutional convention, members of the staff and ladies and gentleman in the gallery, I certainly appreciate this opportunity to address the 1961 Constitutional Convention and assure you that I did not expect that my visit this evening would provide this opportunity. It is very appreciated. And to show my appreciation, I shall limit my remarks because in this last few minutes I have found out that legislative bodies have not changed very much since I had the opportunity to serve in the Michigan senate. And the thing you need least is some more remarks of harangue to assault your ears this evening.

But I will say this: I have not had the opportunity to visit this chamber very often during your deliberations. I know a great many other people have not had the opportunity either. But your efforts are being marked well and the challenge that you face to arrive at a document that will be acceptable to the majority of the citizens of this state is an awesome one indeed, and each of us who do not have this opportunity to be present each day for the debate and to hear the subtleties—the very important subtleties—and discussions, still are going to be called upon to vote on this instrument. And so, if you would lend your efforts to helping us have a clearer understanding of what the intent is, you will have been doing a very fine service. And I hope, as each one of you hope, that your efforts here will be rewarded by an acceptance by the people of the state of Michigan of the document that you write. Thank you. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the convention will convene in committee of the whole for general orders.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order. When last the committee met, it was considering the Higgs amendment to Committee Proposal 81. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I'd just like to take a few more minutes to read this very brief summarization of the statement by Mr. Mathivet, Jr., of the civil service commission of the County of Wayne contained in Journal 30 of the committee on local government:

> Of the 83 counties in the state, Wayne county is the only one which has a civil service and merit system. With the advent of a merit system of employment, the county has been able to inaugurate many improvements in its employment conditions.
>
> It is the general feeling by all segments of our county that our civil service system has been a good step toward more efficient county government.
>
> It is the feeling of the civil service commission that the permanency of the county civil service and merit system should rest on a firmer foundation than merely statutory enactment. It is also felt that the board of supervisors should have permissive authority under the constitution to provide for a merit system in accordance with its local needs on the same basis that numerous city civil service systems are established in their respective city charters under the present constitutional provision. A choice should be permissible for each county as to whether it wants such a system or not and should not be obligatory.

Then there is one question and answer.

> Question: Just exactly why do you feel it has to be in the constitution?
>
> Answer: First, permanency of the system. Secondly, the general act of the legislature does not provide for individual needs.

Now, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I submit that the arguments advanced by Mr. Higgs as to this not being a constitutional form has no merit if we decide that county civil service along with state civil service demands constitutional recognition and I believe it does. And since we are writing a document which is going to be permanent in nature, I think that this system then should have some permanency in our constitution.

I think I emphasized the second point, that is, that our board of supervisors would then have the opportunity to provide for our individual needs down in Wayne county. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, we have heard a great deal this evening to the effect that this particular proposal of the committee is an accommodation to the people of Wayne county. I submit to you that it is not merely a recognition of needs in that county but it is an implementation of a state purpose, a purpose which serves the people of all the state, namely, a purpose which we have incorporated in a constitutional provision regarding the merit system itself. We have declared it to be a constitutional policy of this state to favor a full implementation of the merit system. And what we are doing by this committee proposal is implementing that policy to see that when the people of a given community have supported it and wanted to nourish and maintain and secure a merit system, they ought to be accorded that opportunity in a way that is effective. And I think that that's the precise policy behind the committee proposal.

Now, much point has been made with regard to: "well, it's already there; there's not much sense in having a constitutional protection for it." I might submit to Mr. Higgs and others that the very fundamental bill of rights itself was argued by a number of people at the founding convention as not being necessary because after all, they were rights that belonged to all and didn't have to be spelled out. And we have a premise there where the logic of experience, where all kinds of fact situations have grown up to justify the adoption of a bill of rights in the constitution as necessary.

I submit that the experience with regard to civil service, the same experience which has led the people of this state to adopt the constitutional amendment, the same experience which has led this convention to adopt a constitutional provision regarding the merit system, is the experience which has led to the promulgation of the committee proposal and I urge its adoption and the rejection of the Higgs amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, it seems to me that we have spent about as much time on this particular proposal as we should. We have now spent, counting the time that we spent this afternoon and the time that we have spent tonight, approximately 2½ to 3 hours on this one proposal. I think that everyone has pretty well made up their minds. I don't mind stating that I think the committee has done a good job on this particular proposal, as amended. I would therefore oppose the Higgs amendment. I would support the committee proposal as amended.

I will repeat a statement I made the other day on this floor. We can talk for a while and I can keep up with what is going on but after 3 or 4 hours, I begin to lose my trend of thought and then I am at a complete loss and I think again, many of the speakers, after they have spoken for 3 hours on 1 single section in a proposal, as we have on this one, and have had to listen to a repetition of the same old thing over and over, the speakers get spenorious [sic], Mr. Chairman, and I would hope that we would vote. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The delegate's point is well taken. The question before the committee is the adoption of the Higgs amendment. The secretary will read the amendment once more.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Higgs' amendment: page 3, strike out all of section m.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Higgs amendment. All those in favor, say aye. Those opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division has been called for. Is there support? There is support for a division vote. All those in favor of the Higgs amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no.

The Chair votes no.

The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Higgs, the yeas are 29; the nays are 100.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section m? If not, it will pass.

Section m, as amended, is passed.

The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I move we now take up section h and I would like to yield to Mr. Tweedie for the purpose of answering some of the questions that were asked of us on section h.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, we shall return to section h. The gentleman from Port Huron, Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I believe there is an amendment pending to this section to include the old language that is in section 9 of the constitution. I believe that was offered by Miss Donnelly. Due to the fact that she had fears that there might not be an appeal that could be taken to the circuit court, I'd like to cite MSA 5.522 and direct it particularly toward Miss Donnelly. It says:

> When a claim of any person, firm, or corporation against a county shall be disallowed in whole or in part by the board of supervisors or board of county auditors, such person, firm or corporation may appeal from the decision of such board to the circuit court for the same county, by causing a written notice. . . .

so forth and so forth. I hope that clears up the matter now and that the language can be deleted from the constitution as it is covered by statute.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by the lady from Highland Park, Delegate Donnelly. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 959.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Highland Park, Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I regret to state that I was not here at the time that this language was beginning to be addressed to me and I hate to have everybody hear it again but I gathered at the end it seemed to me you are claiming—this is a very limited statute, isn't it? What does it refer to?

MR. TWEEDIE: It refers to:

[The statute was again read by Mr. Tweedie. For text, see above.]

MISS DONNELLY: This is any claim?

MR. TWEEDIE: Yes. "When a claim of any person, firm, or corporation. . . ."

MISS DONNELLY: For any nature of claim; we are not limiting it to wages or anything like that?

MR. TWEEDIE: No, any claim at all.

MISS DONNELLY: Your opinion would be that if we were to remove a constitutional provision, there would be no reason to fear that this would be removed?

MR. TWEEDIE: No, there is no reason to fear whatsoever. I mean—

MISS DONNELLY: But you are now somewhat reversing your earlier argument, are you not, saying it would be switched to some other board for appeal? I like this argument much better.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Would you address your remarks through the Chair please, Miss Donnelly and Mr. Tweedie.

MISS DONNELLY: I think Mr. Tweedie can answer me.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman and Miss Donnelly, yes, I have found the statute with the help of the research departmen since our last discussion on the floor.

MISS DONNELLY: Well, I haven't had the opportunity to research it further but at this stage of the game, I am not so disturbed about it, quite frankly, although it still leaves it to the legislature to preserve this.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman, Miss Donnelly, yes, it leaves it to the legislature and they always could repeal this, but let's put some faith in them. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I'd like to direct a question to Mr. Tweedie through the Chair.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may, if the gentleman cares to answer it.

MR. MAHINSKE: I was wondering from the initial reading of the statute if this statute is self executing or if it is based on the existing language of the constitution. Will the statute stand by itself?

MR. TWEEDIE: My opinion is that it will stand by itself, Mr. Mahinske, and I think —

MR. MAHINSKE: I wonder if you could give us the beginning phrases from the statute again.

MR. TWEEDIE: Well, I can start back from the enabling part.

[The statute was again read by Mr. Tweedie. For text, see above.]

MR. MAHINSKE: That's good enough up to that point. Now, the statute refers to the claim when it shall be allowed by the board of supervisors. Now I wonder if this is imposing an absolute right of a person to present their claim to the board of supervisors because of the language in the constitution or, if we take this language out of the constitution, will this right stand as such merely under the statute? This is the question I would like answered.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is your question addressed to Delegate Tweedie?

MR. MAHINSKE: Or anyone from the committee who cares to answer it.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Mahinske, perhaps I should go back to the statute. Section 5.331 authorizes the powers of the board of supervisors and says under "Salaries; claims":

> The board of supervisors shall have power to prescribe and fix the salaries and compensation of all employees of their respective counties where not fixed by law, to adjust all claims against their respective counties except in counties having a board of county auditors and the sums allowed and such adjustment of claims shall be subject to appeal as shall be provided by law.

And then you go on further to section 5.522 and it outlines the method of appeal.

MR. MAHINSKE: Then your first statute is restricted to wage claims.

MR. TWEEDIE: ". . . to prescribe and fix the salaries and compensation of all employees . . . , to adjust all claims against their respective counties . . . ."

MR. MAHINSKE: So it is all claims.

MR. TWEEDIE: All claims.

MR. MAHINSKE: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I'd like to address a question first to Miss Donnelly and then to Mr. Tweedie and retain the floor, if I might, for a comment. I'm a little bit confused, Miss Donnelly, did your amendment replace all of the language stricken by the committee in this section?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Highland Park.

MISS DONNELLY: No, the intent of my amendment was to replace the language to the degree that the board of supervisors shall adjust claims against their respective counties but my main point would be that appeals may be taken from such decision of the board of supervisors "to the circuit court in such manner as prescribed by law." The main point being to allow for appeal to the circuit court. It should eliminate "or auditors."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: And now to Mr. Tweedie. Mr. Tweedie, do I understand correctly that the statute that you read provides only for the procedure in the event that the claim is disallowed and does not provide for the taxpayer of the county who objects to the claim which he is allowed, in his opinion, improperly.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: According to the statute, that is correct, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Now, it is not, however, the import of the language in the present constitution that this would be a one way street, an appeal only for the unhappy claimant rather than an appeal on behalf of the county by a taxpayer?

MR. TWEEDIE: The statute would make it a one way street according to your interpretation, Mr. Ford. I can find nothing that refers to the taxpayer's protection.

MR. FORD: I would like to move at this time, Mr. Chairman, as a substitute for the Donnelly amendment the replacement of the language stricken in lines 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27 so that section h will read the same as the present section 9 in the constitution. I'd like to call the attention of the members of the committee—

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford, the secretary informs me that Delegate Leppien has filed a similar amendment.

MR. FORD: Well, then I will defer to Delegate Leppien's amendment when it comes up. I'd like to call your attention to the report of the committee on submission and address to the people from the 1907 convention, the explanation given to the people for the change in section 9, or the language in section 9 of the present article VIII of the constitution.

> The above section takes the place of section 10, article X of the present constitution from which it differs in the following important particulars: It gives to boards of supervisors "exclusive power to fix the salaries" as well as provide compensation "of all county officials not otherwise provided for by law." This is a provision in extension of the right of home rule.

Now, this is where we get into the specific question we are talking about here:

> This section also introduces the provision that "appeals may be taken from such decisions of the boards of supervisors or auditors to the circuit court in such manner as shall be prescribed by law," this provision not being found in the existing constitution.

So the language we are talking about taking out here was put into the constitution in the Convention of 1907. They go on to state:

> It is the purpose of this provision to place counties on the same basis, respecting claims, as individuals and municipalities, such as townships, cities and villages, and to provide a less expensive and more adequate remedy of enforcing such claims than that of mandamus which now prevails.

Now, apparently at the time of the 1907 convention, the practice of appeal was not satisfactory and I think that the lawyers will immediately recognize that certiorari or one of the writs, such as mandamus, or in fact, I suppose even trying some form of injunctive relief, would be a very unsatisfactory substitute for an outright right of both the county and the claimant against the county to appeal from a decision of the board of auditors.

Now, I can envision with the kind of claims that come to my mind the very desirable or very necessary aspect of having this be a two way street so that after the board of auditors makes a decision which may or may not be predicated on sound judicial examination of the facts, you go directly into the circuit court with an appeal which is characterized by the present language of the present constitution in such a manner as to indicate to the legislature their intent to make this a general appeal and not an application to the court for one of its prerogative writs, which is a very unsatisfactory way in many instances of getting relief and particularly since when you get into the field of mandamus and you are dealing with a legislative body, you run smack into a brick wall in so many instances.

I think that something that was of the importance that it was when it was put in the constitution is something we should not lightly toss out unless we have an awfully good reason for doing so and I don't think that a partial relief by way of a statute that I am willing, without seeing it, to wager was passed after the 1908 constitution, is sufficient protection for the future.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the gentleman from Taylor yield to the gentleman from Saginaw for the purpose of offering a substitute amendment?

MR. FORD: Yes, I will.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the substitute amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Leppien's substitute amendment is:

1. Amend page 2, line 23, after "law.", by reinserting "The boards of supervisors or in counties having county auditors, such auditors, shall adjust all claims against their respective counties; appeals may be taken from such decisions of the boards of supervisors or auditors to the circuit court in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Saginaw, Delegate Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I do not wish to get into the appeal section of this because not being an attorney, I am not concerned with it in the sense of application to problems that we might have at hand. I am concerned with the fact that Wayne county is not the only county in Michigan that has an elected board of auditors. Bay county has it; our county has it; and I am sure that your St. Clair county has it; and there may be others. And I have had no satisfactory answer that by deleting the present language that is being proposed to be deleted and now proposed to be put back in in any way takes care of the auditors of our counties.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Highland Park, Delegate Donnelly, speaking on the Leppien substitute amendment.

MISS DONNELLY: I was just waiting to regain the floor before Mr. Leppien got in. If I'm not out of order, I wanted to go back to the claims with Mr. Tweedie. If I am out of order, I will—

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the substitute amendment, Miss Donnelly. The Chair recognizes the delegate from Port Huron, Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: I'd like to point out that section h refers only to salaries and compensation of all county officials. It refers only to county officers, not other persons. The first sentence in that section h points that out.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the chairman of the committee desire recognition on the Leppien substitute amendment?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to urge the committee to defeat the amendment. I am confident that the language of the statute adequately covers the questions that have been raised and, with the other items that we have been discussing for a long time, has been discussed in committee.

I think, Mr. Leppien, as to your worry as to whether or not a board of auditors could adjust claims in the future—as I understood your question, I think that is your question—I believe this is adequately taken care of in the fact that they could. If I understand correctly, your concern and the concern of the others should be adequately satisfied, I believe, by the language as given to you by Mr. Tweedie so that you would know that there would be the proper protection. This language is no longer needed and we would urge the defeat of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Battle Creek, Delegate Everett.

MR. EVERETT: Mr. Chairman, I agree with Mr. Elliott that the language is no longer necessary and the committee should be supported in this regard. Principally the way this thing works in practice—at least in our county and I think in most counties or all counties—is that claims are presented to the board of supervisors or to the board of auditors, and this means all claims that are billed to the county. They are audited and paid if the county is satisfied that the bill was for some purchase or whatever it is. It is simply a matter of giving the board or which ever one it happens to be an opportunity to audit the bill. But if there is a dispute or if there is a tort claim, for example, arising out of an automobile accident, involving a county truck, this means that the person injured must go before the board of supervisors and try to collect that before they can sue. That's all that this actually does. It presents a barrier to the individual injured from going into the court. And as Bob Tubbs said earlier, the appeal is a lawsuit and that's all it is. He simply starts a suit but he cannot start it—the law doesn't permit him to start it—until such time as he has presented it to the supervisors with the hope that they will pay it. In our county they never pay it (laughter) and you simply waste your time. If you hire an attorney, you pay him to go through the needless act of appearing before the board of supervisors because the statute and the constitution says you must; then you start your lawsuit.

As a practical matter, I don't imagine that the legislature is very likely to change this procedure. But at least they ought to have the opportunity to do it and as counties grow and become more flexible, it is quite possible that the boards of supervisors won't want to pass on every single audit, every single claim which is made against the county, no matter how routine it may be. They may very well wish to delegate this power. Under the present constitution, they cannot. As a practical matter, they do it indirectly by creating auditing committees within themselves, but still the board must approve each bill or claim of any kind against the county, whether it's good, bad or indifferent.

This language is certainly outdated and by taking it out, we aren't changing the law at all. We are simply allowing the law to change as time goes on.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Port Huron seek recognition on the Leppien substitute amendment?

MR. TWEEDIE: No.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Tweedie yields to the delegate from Saginaw, Delegate Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I have no objection to the withdrawal of this language or the deletion of it except this: that I think the records should be very clear that it is not the intent of this convention to take away from counties having boards of auditors that the auditors shall have the power and the authority to audit claims against the county. I would like to direct a question to the chairman of the local government committee if that is his position in clear, concise language—not that he hasn't used it before—but for the record.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Chairman Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Leppien, I'll try. It is, as I understand it—and let me make it more emphatic—the position of the committee not to take away from the board of supervisors or the auditors this provision of adjusting claims but that this provision is to take it out of the constitution because it is now covered within the statute.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman, would the chairman yield to a question, please?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Yes.

MR. LEPPIEN: I'd like to ask this question: your statement is that the county board of auditors, where it exists, by election or appointment or as the case may be, has jurisdiction over claims coming into the county. Is that correct?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Yes.

MR. LEPPIEN: That is your position? Thank you. Then I withdraw my amendment, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Leppien withdraws the substitute amendment.

The question now before the committee is the Donnelly amendment to section h. Is there any further discussion on this amendment? The gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, the reason that I withdrew my amendment a few minutes ago and yielded to Mr. Leppien was because I understood he had a substitute in. At this time, I'd like to move as a substitute to the Donnelly amendment the reinstatement of the language of the 1908 constitution which was deleted in the committee report.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Ford substitute amendment for the Donnelly amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford's substitute is:

1. Amend page 2, line 23, after "law.", by reinserting "The boards of supervisors, or in counties having county auditors, such auditors, shall adjust all claims against their respective counties; appeals may be taken from such decisions of the boards of supervisors or auditors to the circuit court in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Ford substitute amendment. All those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division is requested on the Ford substitute amendment. Is there support for a division? There is support for a division. All those in favor of the Ford substitute amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

The Chair votes no.

The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the Ford substitute for the Donnelly amendment, the yeas are 43; the nays are 81.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Ford substitute amendment is not adopted.

The question before the committee now is the Donnelly amendment. For what purpose does the lady rise, Miss Donnelly?

MISS DONNELLY: To try to finish my argument that I got up on before the other matter came up and to redirect a question to Mr. Tweedie. My original purpose for putting this in was so that the action would lie in the circuit court as opposed to an administrative body and to avoid the litigant having to exhaust numerous remedies which could easily be enacted before their day and their action could be finally tried. The amount of litigation to exhaust remedies often exhausts the litigant. And for the same reason that we felt these appeals should be set forward, I believe that in this instance the litigants can spend a great deal of time running around from one administrative board to another to finally end up here in circuit court and I don't want this remedy to the circuit court to be removed.

Now, I gather you feel that it would never be removed because the legislature would never do it. But originally, if I recall, Mr. Tweedie, your argument was to allow this remedy to go not to the circuit court, but to go to one administrative board to another. Is that not correct?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: Miss Donnelly, this statute which I read to you was enacted in 1915. It has never been changed or amended and I have no reason to suspect that it will be changed or deleted in the near future.

MISS DONNELLY: Then may I direct another question through the Chair? This must be the case that is cited in Bolster vs. County of Wayne, the only one that I had in the book, apparently, under which they seem to have great reliance in their subsection on this section of the constitution. This seems to direct the court's attention in that interpretation of this statute, as to go back to the constitution. Is that not correct?

MR. TWEEDIE: Bolster vs. County of Wayne, as I read it, is the question as to failure to appeal within the time specified in the statute.

MISS DONNELLY: Absolutely. But in the next section, do they not rely back on this constitutional language to interpret this action in the first instance?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the committee please come to order. Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: I don't understand your point, Miss Donnelly. I don't see where it reverts back to the statute.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the lady state the question again.

MISS DONNELLY: My question was: did not the court—and from my gathering of it—use the constitutional language to interpret that section of the statute? If we remove it, will it not interfere if it goes back to 1915? And you are relying on that section.

MR. TWEEDIE: I'm sorry, Miss Donnelly.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Miss Donnelly, will you please use this microphone?

MISS DONNELLY: I thought I was on. The way I gather this, this case relied in its construction of the statute, also on the constitutional language, although it did deal with the 20 day appeal to the circuit court.

MR. TWEEDIE: I can only interpret the Bolster case as referring to the failure to appeal within the specified time as set down by the statute. I see where it has nothing to do with the constitutional language.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Donnelly amendment to section h. The lady from Highland Park.

MISS DONNELLY: I would again urge the committee to support my amendment to the degree that it would preserve the rights of the litigant to this appeal without question as to what the statutory language could change, particularly against the potential of switching it to administrative boards.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I would urge that you vote against Miss Donnelly's amendment for the reasons that have been stated on the floor here. That the language that she proposes to put back into the constitution has been taken care of by statute enacted by the legislature and we have no reason to suspect that there will be any change in this language.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Donnelly amendment. For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Boothby?

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, would you ask the secretary to reread the Donnelly amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the Donnelly amendment to section h.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 959.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Donnelly amendment to section h. As many as are in favor of the Donnelly amendment will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section h of Committee Proposal 81? If not, it will pass.

Section h is passed. Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 81?

SECRETARY CHASE: Pursuant to the minority report of Messrs. Madar, Baginski and Mrs. Hatcher, Mr. Madar offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, following line 24, by inserting:

"Sec. n. The legislature shall provide procedures by which any county may, by a majority vote of the electors, adopt a county system of assessment. The method of selecting a county assessor or board of assessors shall be determined by law unless otherwise provided for by the charter of counties having charters.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, in support of the minority amendment: county assessor system on a permissive basis.

[The supporting reasons for minority report B were read by Mr. Madar. For text, see above, page 931.]

I urge the adoption of the minority report amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegates Madar, Baginski and Mrs. Hatcher. The Chair recognizes Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I oppose the minority report amendment for 3 reasons. In the first place, the matter was carefully considered in committee and rejected. In the second place, it is statutory. Under the present constitution, the legislature has full power to set up a county assessor system if it sees fit and we have had bills to that effect before the legislature now for the last 4 or 5 sessions. In the third place, we have found a better answer in the counties that have set up tax departments with professional people, not to displace the city assessors and township supervisors but to assist them. That is spreading over the state and it is working and is a better system in my judgment than the county assessor system.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegates Madar, Baginski and Hatcher. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The minority report amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the sponsor of the amendment, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I can understand how Mr. Brake feels about this. We had discussed this in committee and we did discuss it to a great extent. We also listened to the gentlemen from the state on assessing and they were there and they were split on which was the best method. We had others—for instance, one of the finest, one of the greatest of experts in the country and acknowledged as such by most of the counties— I would say by practically all of the counties in this state and most states in the union—Mr. Champion. We also have had men like our board of tax assessors within the city of Detroit, men who were willing to give up their jobs to see something better.

Now, I can understand how we might think that just because the committee turned it down, we should. However, I've seen committees make mistakes before. I've seen men make mistakes before. I think we've all made some. But I don't think we're making a mistake when we're going to a better method, a more modern method of assessment.

We talk about our equalization here. I've heard it talked about time in and time out, and yet I defy anybody to show me a county within this state, bar none, which I can't go to and show you that you do not get equalized assessments throughout that county and I could then show that where we have experts on assessments, we will get much better assessments, much more equal assessments than you'll get from a board of equalization. And I defy anyone to show me different on this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Madar, you are much bigger than I am and I hate to take exception to what you said, but I would bring to the attention of the committee that this is just another of the items that we have spent the last 3 months on and that we were in great sympathy with the approach that Mr. Madar wished to take, but after careful analysis, decided that it was something that is purely statutory.

We have asked our subcommittee which has the responsibility of making a report to the legislature for their benefit or use, as they might see fit, to include this in its initial report to our committee for further consideration.

So I would urge the defeat of the additional section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegates Madar, Baginski and Hatcher. The secretary will read the amendment once more.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 977.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor of the minority report amendment will say aye. As many as are opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

MR. MADAR: Division, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division is requested. Is there support? It is supported. As many as are in favor of the minority amendment will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no.

The Chair votes no.

The secretary will lock the machine, tally and announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the minority report amendment proposed by Messrs. Madar, Baginski and Mrs. Hatcher, the yeas are 43; the nays are 76.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted.

Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 81? The gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I do not rise to offer an amendment but rather to ask a question of the chairman of the committee. One of the changes made in this section is to increase the term of office of county officers from the present 2 years to 4 years. No reasons are given in the printed committee comment for this and I've heard nothing on the floor. It seems to me a very significant change affecting all of the counties in the state of Michigan. I would like to ask first of all, why was the term increased from 2 to 4 years? And I would like to ask secondly, if the term was changed, why then was the township officer's term given a flexibility? In Committee Proposal 83, I note that the change there says "for a term of not less than 2 years nor more than 4 years as provided by law." My second question is why should there be a flexibility in the township area and not in the county area?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Wanger, would it serve your purpose well if I gave you a personal explanation of this later so we could move on or do you want me to make it again? I have made it once. Apparently somebody behind me here also wants to hear it. I'll try.

The first question was the reason why we extended the term of office for the county officers to 4 years. We felt that this was very consistent with the pattern that has somewhat established itself not only here within this convention and other committees but also throughout the nation to give greater opportunity for effective administration of those types of services. We thought that this form of government could well afford the additional stability of elections being held once every 4 years instead of every 2 years. We weighed against this the problem of coming back to the people for approval of the work that they were doing and it was the conclusion of the committee that the advantages far outweighed the disadvantages and therefore in the area of county officers, that a 4 year term was a more proper term.

Now, to answer your second question why this was not continued in the area of the township level. It was not continued there because we felt the township government was getting a little closer to the people to where it was a better opportunity for them—and properly so—to express themselves on their most local form of government possible. However, you will notice that the committee, recognizing the trend and recognizing the need for effective administration, did make provisions for the future by making it possible for the legislature to increase the term of office should the future indicate that it is the proper wisdom to do so.

MR. WANGER: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 81? The delegate from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, I do not have any amendments. I'd like to address 2 questions to Mr. Elliott if he has time to answer them.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: He may, if he cares to answer them.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Not knowing your questions, I can't tell you whether I have the time, but ask them. (laughter)

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Elliott, in section g you provide that the legislature may by law confer upon the boards of supervisors powers of a local, legislative and administrative character. May I ask what you mean by the word "administrative"? Specifically, do you mean "executive?"

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I don't think we could interpret this to mean executive in the term which I believe you would like it to be interpreted. This language is language which was already in the constitution. It is not new language and therefore we were trying to maintain an existing pattern here and not trying to add anything to this form of government at this particular point.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, if I may continue. Mr. Elliott, we have previously, under Committee Proposal 21, said that the powers of government shall be divided into 3 branches: legislative, executive and judicial. Have we provided for the board of supervisors under these articles to act both in the legislative and executive positions?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I think that because this starts to get into the field of legal interpretation, I would like to ask some of the attorneys on our committee to perhaps try to answer this.

I might point out to you once again the approach that our committee took to this particular proposal, and that was to strengthen the standard form of county government as we now know it, to give it additional emphasis through a repetition of language which had been in use for many, many years. It was not our intent, except where new language was used, to do anything that was a departure from what we had found throughout the state met the needs of most counties.

You will find later on in another proposal of this committee, language affecting counties which will accommodate the change which we think may be here upon us now and will accommodate the future.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to one of the attorneys on the committee on local government. The gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hanna, I think as you know, county government seems to be unique in government in the United States in that the classical separation of the 3 powers, the legislative, judicial and executive, is not retained. You've got more of the separation in city government where you have a difference between the legislative with a policy making elected council or city commission and executive. Now, you don't get that in county government. The judicial is separated through the court system.

As Mr. Elliott says, we did not make any change in this concept. Of course, it is possible under today's constitution, I believe, for the legislature to make this change. That is, to prescribe by general law, laws which would make a clear separation if the legislature chose to do so. The legislature hasn't chosen to do so. I won't say there has been no demand for it. There has been some demand for it. If there is to be any separation and a county wants it, it might be done through some sort of provision on home rule. But on the standard county, it has not been done, though it could be done, and we did not change it.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, I recognize that it has not been done. I recognize that under Committee Proposal 21, we have changed the language. We have made no exception to county government. The judicial article does provide for county courts in the sense of a circuit court and in the same sense, of a probate court. It defines it in terms of counties. The only thing that perturbs me is, do we have a conflict with the statement in Committee Proposal 21? I admit this conflict has existed for some time. But as we have enlarged and will continue to enlarge the powers of the board of supervisors over the years, aren't we going to run into a challenge in the court that we are making the board of supervisors, which historically functions as a legislative body with no administrative powers, into a hybrid that is both legislative and executive? When you refer to Committee Proposal 21, are you referring to a proposal from the judicial branch?

MR. ALLEN: No sir.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, this says "The powers of government are divided into 3 branches: the legislative, executive and judicial.

No person belonging to one branch shall exercise the powers belonging to another. . . ."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does Delegate Allen yield to Delegate Elliott?

MR. ALLEN: I do.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I bring to the attention of Mr. Hanna that the only change in Committee Proposal 21 is to change the word from "departments" to "branches" and that therefore I don't see that there has been any new interpretation within the work that we've done either in this committee or in the committee on miscellaneous provisions. As far as I can see, the change from "departments" to "branches" was merely to correct some language to make it consistent with other language throughout the constitution. So I think that if there is a point, it is something that we ought not to belabor the committee of the whole with at this time; we will have ample opportunity to try to correct any of these things as we go along. This is something I would urge that we do.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Elliott, I will agree that we should not belabor this point. I want to raise this point because I think most men who are familiar with boards of supervisors recognize that the historical function of boards of supervisors are rapidly changing by reason of acts of the legislature. While we rely on something that was a good law in 1907 and the committee on local government merely readopts language which existed in the prior constitution, we may in the future create a problem and I would like some people familiar with county government to give this matter some thought.

My second question concerns one of style and drafting, Mr. Chairman, if I may address it to Mr. Elliott. As I read this entire proposal, it seems to me that we should somewhere in this add some language that these provisions throughout this proposal may be changed, altered or ignored in case of a home rule charter. There is nothing in this proposal that limits this to what we all may call conventional or standard counties. It specifically says that these proposals will not apply and will not have to be incorporated in a home rule charter or that a home rule charter shall be subject thereto. I raise this point now, Mr. Elliott, because I feel that in style and drafting, we will have to clearly and distinctly specify that these provisions shall apply to counties other than those adopting the home rule charter if this was the intention of the committee.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hanna, I suggest that we wait and see what we do with the area of the home rule charter and see if your point is well taken at that time. If so, we will certainly have ample opportunity to adjust and I'm sure that we would be anxious to so do.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Hanna, we went into what seems to be an irrational difference in language. If you look at section 17 of this chapter, you will find similar language but there you refer to the governmental entity, to wit, the township rather than to the governing board. But really, this language comes from the 1850 constitution, section 38 of article IV, where it formerly said:

> The legislature may confer upon organized townships, incorporated cities and villages, and upon the board of supervisors of the several counties, such powers of a local, legislative and administrative character as they may deem proper.

Now, ever since 1850, this has existed in Michigan and those of us who tried to trace it back were unable to find why in 1850 they referred to 3 governmental units and then in the fourth instance referred to the governing body of the governmental unit, because when you go back to the 1835 constitution, you don't find comparable language.

Now, when the 1908 constitution was written, sections 20 and 21 of article VIII were put in, which are commonly referred to as the city home rule sections, and this section and section 17 were separated from the others and you ended up with almost the same language as the 1850 constitution being used in one part with reference to the board of supervisors, in section 17 with reference to the township, and no similar reference continued for cities and villages because sections 20 and 21 then recognized them as separate, or what we refer to as home rule entities. So the best that we could come up with was that traditionally the board of supervisors was looked to in essence as the alter ego of the county as a unit of government and there doesn't seem to be any litigation cited in the annotations.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Caspian, Delegate Sablich.

MR. SABLICH: Mr. Chairman, I have a question to ask Mr. Elliott. In section c, you provide for 4 year terms for all elected county officers. Did your committee consider the special situation in the upper peninsula in which most counties —at least the counties in which there are metallic mineral mines—have by statute created the mine inspector. Have you considered giving this official the same term of office?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: The answer quickly is no, and I suppose the reason for it, sir, is because it is statutory and that can be done under statute.

MR. SABLICH: The point is this: the statute provides a 2 year term. In conformity with the general pattern for office-holders, or rather for elected officials, I am wondering if you would consider an amendment which would insert the mine inspector as one of the elected officials who would have a 4 year term of office?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Have you offered the amendment?

MR. SABLICH: I have it in my possession. I wanted to get Delegate Elliott's opinion first.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Sablich, I would suggest that it not be submitted as an amendment, but that you present it to us and I will be happy to give it to the subcommittee that is making this report to the legislature and urge that it be given serious consideration at that time for the legislative act to be so amended.

MR. SABLICH: I don't intend to argue with Mr. Elliott but Mr. Richards, I believe, would have something to say about this. I would indicate this: that the mine inspector is an elected official. It so happens that he was created by statute for specialized situations involving properties in which metallic minerals are extracted from the ground. And for this reason, I believe that he should have the same status as any other elected official. And I would yield the floor to Mr. Richards.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Sablich yields to the gentleman from Negaunee, Delegate Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I am certainly happy that Delegate Sablich has raised this point. To me, the county mine inspector in our area up in the upper peninsula plays just as important a role as any county officer and I would encourage Delegate Sablich to offer that amendment. And when it is offered, I would also encourage the support of all the delegates to include this in the group because I believe the county mine inspector plays a very important role in our fine operations of the U.P.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the Sablich amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Sablich offers the following amendment to Committee Proposal 81:

1. Amend page 1, line 22, after "attorney,", by inserting "and such other elective officers as may be provided by law,".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Sablich amendment to section c. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Fennville, Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, in listening to the language of the amendment offered, it doesn't refer to a mine inspector as such. I got up here to talk about that. My point that I wanted to make was to invite attention to the fact that there are other county officers whose existence are by reason of statute, such as county surveyors, county drain commissioners and so forth and they continue to be.

Now, I can't understand why it is necessary to add the phrase that Mr. Sablich now offers, "such other officers as may be provided by law," unless I take it that he wants to insure that it would be impossible for any county official to hold a term of less than 4 years. I don't understand the wisdom of that. Keep in mind that we are going to have to have elections in every county every 2 years anyway and it may follow that maybe the legislature might, in implementing this section of the statute, provide for the election of some county officers at one time and other county officers at another, even though they have 4 year terms. My point is that we are going to have to continue to have elections in every county every 2 years anyway, because under the Constitution of the United States, we have to elect congressmen every 2 years. So you aren't going to be able to avoid elections by this reason. And I don't understand the wisdom of writing into the constitution at this time that every officer that might be created by law in a county shall have a 4 year term, no less and no more. In other words, the legislature would be without power to create any kind of a county official having more than a 4 year term. Now, then, I don't know, maybe the judge of probate is to be considered a county officer and if so, my understanding is there is some talk about giving him a 6 year term and that would run in conflict with this. I can't support the amendment the way I look at it now.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Caspian, Delegate Sablich, has the floor.

MR. SABLICH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I just want to reemphasize that the mine inspector is a very important official in those upper peninsula counties in which metals and minerals are extracted. The man is elected. My amendment merely proposes that all elected officials—if the legislature does see fit to provide that the drain commissioners and other officials of the county are put on an elective basis—I cannot see why they should not have the security of a 4 year term as well as those that are enumerated here in section c. For that reason, I urge the adoption of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Sablich amendment to section c of Committee Proposal 81. All those in favor of the amendment will say aye. All those opposed, say no.

The amendment is not adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division has been requested. Is there support for a division vote? There is support. All those in favor of the Sablich amendment will vote aye. All those opposed will vote no. The secretary will read the amendment once again.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Sablich has offered the following amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: All those in favor of the Sablich amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Sablich, the yeas are 45; the nays are 72.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted.

Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 81? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 81, as amended, is passed.

Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, when I came to this convention some months ago, I didn't know what or who Parkinson was. I am not so sure that I do now but I understand he has one law that I would like to have changed to Elliott's law, which says something to the effect that debate within legislative bodies is in reverse proportion to the quality of the subject matter being debated. And while I can't say that the quality of this particular issue is always so bad, as I look back over the various sections that we have debated, it seems to me that those things which at least to the chairman seemed to be the most important, were the ones that got through with the least amount of discussion and those which we spent the most time on were those on which we could well have avoided a lot of discussion.

The second comment I would like to make is that Mr. Van Dusen asked me to prepare a schedule of the number of hours that I thought the committee on local government would be discussing the 9 proposals and 6 exclusions. I had the total number of hours planned—7 hours. We have now debated on the first proposal 7 hours and 15 minutes. Therefore, if my schedule is right, there is nothing more in local government. But I'm afraid that there is.

It is now 10:15 p.m. and I don't want us to be delayed too long. I am not going to urge that the committee rise at this time. I think that this next proposal is one that can be done most quickly. If I find to the contrary, I'll be happy to ask for the floor.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair might suggest to Delegate Elliott that he be careful to which one of the Parkinson's laws he affixes his name. The one he is talking about is called the law of triviality. (laughter)

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I thank you so much. (laughter) Maybe you will join me. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: From the committee on local government, by Mr. Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 82, A proposal pertaining to townships. Amends article VIII, sections 16, 17, 18 and 19.

Following is Committee Proposal 82 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. Each organized township shall be a body corporate[,] with such powers and immunities as shall be prescribed by law. [All suits and proceedings by or against a township shall be in the name thereof.]

Sec. b. The legislature may by general law confer upon organized townships [such] powers of a local, legislative, and administrative character, not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution. [, as it may deem proper.]

Sec. c. There shall be elected [on the first Monday of April in each odd numbered year] for a term NOT LESS THAN [of] 2 years NOR MORE THAN 4 YEARS AS PROVIDED BY LAW in each organized township: 1 TOWNSHIP supervisor[,]; 1 township clerk[,]; [1 commissioner of highways,] 1 township treasurer[,]; and, not to exceed 4 [constables] TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES, whose powers and duties shall be [prescribed] PROVIDED by law. [Justices of the peace shall be reclassified as shall be prescribed by the legislature to conform with the provisions of this section providing for biennial township elections.]

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

Sec. d. WHENEVER THERE IS NO UNINCORPORATED TERRITORY WITHIN A TOWNSHIP, THE TOWNSHIP GOVERNMENT SHALL BE ABOLISHED IF A MAJORITY OF THOSE VOTING ON A REFERENDUM IN THE TOWNSHIP APPROVE. ITS FUNCTIONS SHALL THEN BE ASSUMED BY THE VILLAGE OR VILLAGES AS PROVIDED BY LAW. IN SUCH CASES, THE VILLAGE OR VILLAGES AFFECTED SHALL BE ENTITLED TO REPRESENTATION ON THE COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS AS PROVIDED BY LAW.

Sec. e. No township shall grant any public utility franchise which is not subject to revocation at the will of the township, unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of a majority of the electors of such township voting thereon at a regular or special election.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 82:

Section a comment: The committee recommends the retention of this section with the deletion of the last sentence of section 16 in the interest of brevity and simplicity, and because the language is superfluous, added nothing to meaning or legal effect.

Section b comment: The committee recommends the deletion of the words "as it may deem proper" in the interest of brevity and simplicity, because the language is superfluous, added nothing to meaning or legal effect.

Section c comment: The time of the election of township officers is left to the article on elections. The committee recommends a minimum term of 2 years, permitting the legislature to extend the term to 4 years. The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections has concurrent jurisdiction on this matter, and has no objection to our recommendation. The committee recommends elimination of the township highway commissioner as a constitutional officer since the township highway problem is no longer present. The committee recommends the elimination of constables as constitutional officers as the need for their services can be and is now provided for by statute. The committee recommends that the office of township trustee be established in the constitution since it is a basic part of township structure. We conclude that all active township officers should be provided for in the constitution. The committee recommends deletion of the following sentence, "Justices of the peace shall be reclassified as shall be prescribed by the legislature to conform with the provisions of this section providing for biennial township elections." Since justices of the peace no longer serve on township boards because the Michigan supreme court has determined they are judicial officers, we concluded that the problem of the justice of the peace is primarily a judicial committee problem and not a local government problem. Our recommendation shall not be construed to mean that we recommend the abolishment of the justice of the peace.

Section d comments: The committee recommends the inclusion of the above new section. The committee concluded that where no unincorporated territory remains within a township, there is no need that the township unit of government be retained since the village or villages could, when authorized by law, perform all township duties and assume all township responsibilities. Representation for these areas on the county board of supervisors would be preserved.

Section e comments: This section requires that the utility wanting an irrevocable franchise must submit the proposition to the people for approval. This gives the utility the privilege of operating with security. A majority vote is required for it to become effective. After study, the committee believes the majority vote for approval in a township should be retained even though a 3/5 majority is required in a city or village. The 3/5 figure appears to have worked satisfactorily in municipalities but might be unduly difficult to obtain, especially in townships which are partly urban and partly rural in character and in which the needs of each group differ. Furthermore, in townships of small population, a 3/5 majority might be difficult to obtain and a relatively few voters could block a franchise wanted by a majority of the people. This section was new in the 1908 constitution; no similar section existed in either the 1835 nor the 1850 constitution. It is necessary for this section to remain in the constitution because of the necessary control that a township must have over the ever increasing need and use of public utilities. This section has the approval of the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

Following is the minority report to Committee Proposal 82 as offered and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Messrs. Ford, Gover, Sharpe and J. B. Richards, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following minority report to Committee Proposal 82:

A minority of the committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

The legislature [may] SHALL by general law confer upon organized townships such powers of a local, legislative and administrative character, not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution as [it may deem proper.] SHALL BE NECESSARY FROM TIME TO TIME TO MAINTAIN AND CARRY OUT LOCAL GOVERNMENT FUNCTIONS WITHIN ORGANIZED TOWNSHIPS.

Messrs. Ford, Gover, Sharpe and J. B. Richards, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following reasons in support of the foregoing minority report, which accompanied Committee Proposal 82:

The proponents of this minority report, believing that the principle often enunciated in this convention that, "government is best which is closest to the people and every governmental service should be performed by the smallest unit of government which can do so efficiently", also believe that the township is a necessary form of local governmental structure.

We believe that a long tradition in this state, when considered in light of the numerous and very detailed statutes conferring powers of local self government on townships, indicate the necessity for strengthening the integrity of the township governmental unit.

The Michigan supreme court has held in a case involving the issuance of bonds that townships have only such powers as statutes confer, and are subject to no obligations except such as are derived from statutory provisions. The court also held that the township board is of special and limited jurisdiction, having no power or authority by constitutional mandate, but deriving sole authority from the legislature which is authorized but not compelled by the constitution to delegate certain legislative powers to the township board.

We believe that substitution of the word "shall" for the word "may" is more consistent with the language of other sections concerning local units of government and would more clearly indicate our intention that the legislature be not only empowered but encouraged as well to confer necessary and reasonable powers of local self government upon township units. The above court decisions seem to indicate that the additional language here added to former section 17 would liberalize and strengthen enabling legislation concerning governmental functions and powers for townships.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is it the desire of the chairman to proceed section by section throughout this proposal?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: It is. I'd like to yield to Mr. Radka.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read section a.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section a.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

[Sec. a was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 980.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Rogers City, Delegate Radka.

MR. RADKA: At this hour, I'm not going to belabor the committee with the history of townships. We could start from 1850 and carry it forward to 1962. But I think that the less amount of background material that I give you, the less number of questions; it might lessen the quantity of speech making and it might limit the number of amendments. As I understand, there is only one minority report and just one amendment to this proposal. The subcommittee was made up of Bill Suzore, Bill Ford and Jim Farnsworth. The first section will be handled by Jim Farnsworth and I yield to Jim Farnsworth.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Radka yields to Delegate Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Chairman DeVries and members of the committee, this language, of course, as you will recognize, has been in the constitution for quite some time. Your committee is recommending the deletion of the last sentence which said: "All suits and proceedings by or against a township shall be in the name thereof." The committee felt that the language was not needed; that it just naturally followed that that was true.

Since this was written, I think there is another proposal coming in which will say that in any court you will be represented by an attorney of your choice and further, we thought that any attorney would naturally know that if a suit was started against a township, that it would be in the name thereof. We just didn't think the language was necessary.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section a?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If not, it will pass.

Section a is passed. The secretary will read section b. Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I notice that section b is the section that has a minority report and I think since there may be some discussion on that, I'd like at this time to move that the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott moves that the committee of the whole do now rise. All those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails and the committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration several items on which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 81, A proposal pertaining to county government; reports this back to the convention with an amendment, recommending the amendment be agreed to and the proposal as amended do pass.

[The following is the amendment recommended by the committee of the whole:

1. Amend page 3, line 23, after "shall" by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "not take effect until approved by a majority of the registered voters voting thereon. All other counties may establish such merit systems as provided by law.".]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on agreeing to the amendment recommended by the committee of the whole. Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is agreed to.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. W. F. Hanna offers the following amendment to the proposal:

1. Amend page 2, line 12, after "consisting of 1" by inserting "or more"; and in line 13, after "township" by inserting "and city"; and in line 14, after "Cities" by inserting "and townships"; and after "such" by inserting "additional"; so that the language of section f on page 2 would read:

> A board of supervisors, consisting of 1 or more from each organized township and city shall be established in each county with such powers as shall be prescribed by law. Cities and townships shall have such additional representation in the boards of supervisors of the counties in which they are situated as may be provided by law.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Hanna. Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. President, this matter was debated at some length in committee of the whole. The vote was close. This is merely an attempt to treat the large suburban townships that are in the crossroads of whether to become a city or to annex or merge or remain as they are, and grant to them effective representation on the board of supervisors as are granted to many of the smaller cities throughout the same county.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Hanna. Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, I would only call the convention's attention to the fact that I agree with Mr. Hanna, that this matter was debated in committee of the whole and we came to a decision on it and let me remind you once again that the local government committee strongly urges you to vote against this amendment. It has been very carefully considered and it is the recommendation of the local government committee that you vote the amendment down.

Mr. President, I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand for the previous question seconded? Those in favor say aye. Sufficient number up.

The question now is: Shall the previous question be put? Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails and the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the Hanna amendment. Those in favor will say aye—

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Parliamentary inquiry. What is my status when I am standing at the mike waiting for recognition and someone moves the previous question?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The previous question is ordered, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Will I be able to present an amendment when Mr. Hanna's amendment is voted on, assuming it doesn't pass?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Not unless it has been filed with the secretary, Mr. Ford, before the previous question was ordered.

MR. FORD: I just got it back from Mr. Hanna or it would have been filed. I had it written out some time ago.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I take it it has not been filed, Mr. Ford.

Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, I do not want to shut Mr. Ford off from offering a proper amendment. If it is the pleasure of this convention, I'd be glad to withdraw my motion for the previous question.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The previous question has already been ordered, Mr. Farnsworth. The vote is on the Hanna amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The Chair is in doubt.

MR. W. F. HANNA: The yeas and nays, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The yeas and nays have been demanded. Is the demand supported. It is supported. Those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the machine will be locked and the vote will be recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—55

Balcer	Garvin	Liberato
Binkowski	Gover	Marshall
Bledsoe	Habermehl	Murphy
Boothby	Hanna, W. F.	Nord

Brake	Hannah, J. A.	Norris
Brown, G. E.	Hart, Miss	Pellow
Brown, T. S.	Hatch	Perlich
Butler, Mrs.	Hatcher, Mrs.	Powell
Conklin, Mrs.	Higgs	Richards, J. B.
Dehnke	Hodges	Rood
Donnelly, Miss	Hood	Sablich
Douglas	Hutchinson	Shanahan
Downs	Iverson	Sharpe
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	King	Stafseth
Erickson	Kuhn	Sterrett
Everett	Leibrand	Yeager
Faxon	Leppien	Young
Finch	Lesinski	Youngblood
Ford

Nays—67

Allen	Gust	Radka
Andrus, Miss	Haskill	Rajkovich
Austin	Howes	Richards, L. W.
Baginski	Hoxie	Romney
Barthwell	Hubbs	Seyferth
Batchelor	Judd, Mrs.	Shackleton
Beaman	Karn	Shaffer
Bentley	Kelsey	Sieder
Blandford	Knirk, B.	Snyder
Bonisteel	Krolikowski	Spitler
Buback	Lawrence	Staiger
Cudlip	Lundgren	Stevens
Cushman, Mrs.	Madar	Stopczynski
Danhof	Mahinske	Tubbs
Davis	McCauley	Turner
Dell	McLogan	Tweedie
DeVries	Millard	Upton
Durst	Mosier	Van Dusen
Elliott, A. G.	Ostrow	Wanger
Farnsworth	Perras	White
Figy	Plank	Wilkowski
Follo	Prettie	Woolfenden
Goebel

MR. DOWNS: Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President. Is Mr. Ford's amendment in order now?

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be as soon as this is finished.

MR. DOWNS: Thank you.

MR. FORD: Parliamentary inquiry. When you say when this is finished, does this mean that we now move to the recommendation of the committee of the whole rather than considering a possible amendment to it?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The recommendation of the committee of the whole, Mr. Ford, has been agreed to. We are now considering amendments to the committee proposal.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment proposed by Mr. Hanna, the yeas are 55; the nays are 67.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. Are there further amendments?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Madar has filed the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, lines 14 through 19, by reinserting the stricken language, amended to read as follows: "When a city in any county has attained a population of 500,000 inhabitants, the legislature may organize it into a separate county without reference to geographical extent, if a majority of the electors of the county voting on the question shall determine in favor of organizing said city into a separate county.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Madar. Those in favor of the amendment will say aye.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I'd like to have a roll call vote on this.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand seconded for a roll call vote? Sufficient number up. Those in favor of the Madar amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the machine will be locked and the vote will be recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—23

Binkowski	Hood	Perlich
Bledsoe	Kelsey	Richards, J. B.
Erickson	Liberato	Sablich
Everett	Madar	Shanahan
Faxon	Mahinske	Sharpe
Gover	Nord	Snyder
Hatcher, Mrs.	Norris	Walker
Hodges	Pellow

Nays—99

Allen	Finch	Mosier
Andrus, Miss	Follo	Murphy
Anspach	Ford	Ostrow
Austin	Garvin	Perras
Baginski	Goebel	Plank
Balcer	Gust	Powell
Barthwell	Habermehl	Prettie
Batchelor	Hanna, W. F.	Radka
Beaman	Hannah, J. A.	Rajkovich
Bentley	Hart, Miss	Richards, L. W.
Blandford	Haskill	Romney
Bonisteel	Hatch	Rood
Boothby	Higgs	Seyferth
Brake	Howes	Shackleton
Brown, G. E.	Hoxie	Shaffer
Brown, T. S.	Hubbs	Sieder
Buback	Hutchinson	Spitler
Conklin, Mrs.	Iverson	Stafseth
Cudlip	Judd, Mrs.	Staiger
Cushman, Mrs.	Karn	Sterrett
Danhof	King	Stevens
Davis	Knirk, B.	Stopczynski
Dehnke	Krolikowski	Tubbs
Dell	Kuhn	Turner
DeVries	Lawrence	Tweedie
Donnelly, Miss	Leibrand	Upton
Douglas	Leppien	Van Dusen
Downs	Lesinski	Wanger
Durst	Lundgren	White
Elliott, A. G.	Marshall	Woolfenden
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	McCauley	Yeager
Farnsworth	McLogan	Young
Figy	Millard	Youngblood

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Madar, the yeas are 23; the nays are 99.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. There is one more amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford offers the following amendment to Committee Proposal 81:

1. Amend page 2, line 12, after "supervisors" by striking out the comma and "consisting of 1 from each organized township,"; and in line 14, after "Cities" by inserting "and townships"; and in line 16, after "law" by changing the period to a colon and inserting "Provided however, That representation on such board shall be on a population basis with each board member representing an equal number of citizens.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Ford. Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I think that this would now read—I don't have it written out here—that:

> A board of supervisors shall be established in each county, with such powers as shall be prescribed by law. Cities and townships shall have such representation in the boards of supervisors of the counties in which they are situated as may be provided by law.

And then I add the language which dictates that the law would have one factor in it and that is population. This was originally suggested by an amendment that Mrs. Cushman offered the other day. This would leave to the legislature entirely the question of how the members of the board of supervisors should be picked. The legislature could make it permissive on a county by county basis, if they wished; they could make one set of rules for Wayne county and one for the rest of the state, as they do now. But it lays clearly before us the question of whether or not you want to add the legislative body of the county picked on a population basis so that each person sitting on that board represents as nearly as possible an equal number of citizens of the county, whether they live in townships, cities or villages.

It was pointed out here the other day that there is some fear outstate that allowing a minimum of one person from a township, or requiring a minimum of one representative from a township, plus population, might be disadvantageous to a place like Kalamazoo which feels that it doesn't have its fair voice on the board of supervisors. And I submit that if we got a straight population formula for the representation on the board of supervisors, we are recognizing a very fundamental principle that each citizen of the county is entitled to the same representation as every other citizen, regardless of where he lives in the county.

There is no way that either the cities or the villages can gain an unfair advantage on this because if the majority of the people in the county happen to live in cities, then it will follow that the majority of the representatives on the board of supervisors will be from the cities. If the majority do not live in the cities, then it should follow that the majority will be represented by a majority on the board not coming from the cities. And the single question involved here has nothing at all to do with the cities paying for the services of people living outside of the cities or anything of the kind. It lays squarely before this convention the question of whether we believe in one man, one vote when we are talking about the legislative body for a county.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President and members of the convention, I would like to again at this time take you through the little arithmetic lesson that we heard the other day. Mrs. Cushman clearly stated when she offered this in the committee of the whole that some townships had as little as 300 population. Now, that is true. So, one man, one vote. We must give those 300 people one supervisor. Bill is shaking his head no. What would you give them, 300?

MR. FORD: Nothing. We said straight population. It doesn't say anything about one representative from a township.

MR. FARNSWORTH: But I still say that you are going to have equal representation according to population; that you are going to give that smallest township at least one representative. You have to start with something. You will have to start with the smallest unit. The minute you do that, they have 300; then you have another city in that same county that has 3,000 population, I say you are going to have to give them 10 supervisors. And if you have another city in that county that has 30,000 people, I figure you are going to have to give them 100 supervisors. Mr. Ford, I don't see how you are going to do it any other way. You have to start somewhere. You have to start with a basic unit.

Again, I say to this convention: how many members do you want on your board of supervisors? I think it is just as simple as that and that we should vote down this Ford amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, I request a recorded roll call vote and move the previous question.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there support for a roll call vote? Sufficient number up.

Is the demand seconded for the previous question? Sufficient number up. The question now is, shall the previous question be put? Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The previous question is ordered.

Those in favor of the Ford amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the machine will be locked and the vote recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—28

Binkowski	Hart, Miss	Norris
Bledsoe	Hatcher, Mrs.	Pellow
Brown, T. S.	Hodges	Perlich
Cushman, Mrs.	Hood	Sablich
Donnelly, Miss	Iverson	Snyder
Douglas	Mahinske	Stopczynski
Downs	Marshall	Walker
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Murphy	Yeager
Faxon	Nord	Young
Ford

Nays—96

Allen	Garvin	Ostrow
Andrus, Miss	Goebel	Perras
Anspach	Gover	Plank
Austin	Gust	Powell
Baginski	Habermehl	Prettie
Balcer	Hanna, W. F.	Radka
Barthwell	Hannah, J. A.	Rajkovich
Batchelor	Haskill	Richards, J. B.
Beaman	Hatch	Richards, L. W.
Bentley	Higgs	Romney
Blandford	Howes	Rood
Bonisteel	Hoxie	Seyferth
Boothby	Hubbs	Shackleton
Brake	Hutchinson	Shaffer
Brown, G. E.	Judd, Mrs.	Shanahan
Buback	Karn	Sharpe
Butler, Mrs.	Kelsey	Sieder
Conklin, Mrs.	King	Spitler
Cudlip	Knirk, B.	Stafseth
Danhof	Krolikowski	Staiger
Davis	Kuhn	Sterrett
Dehnke	Lawrence	Stevens
Dell	Leibrand	Tubbs
DeVries	Leppien	Turner
Durst	Lesinski	Tweedie
Elliott, A. G.	Liberato	Upton
Erickson	Lundgren	Van Dusen
Everett	Madar	Wanger
Farnsworth	McCauley	White
Figy	McLogan	Wilkowski
Finch	Millard	Woolfenden
Follo	Mosier	Youngblood

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Ford, the yeas are 28; the nays are 96.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kuhn offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, by striking out lines 12 through 16 and inserting:

"Sec. f. A board of supervisors, consisting of at least 1 from each organized township, and at least 1 from each city, may be established in each county, with such powers as shall be prescribed by law. The balance of the membership of the board of supervisors shall be selected upon a population basis as may be provided by law.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. President, my proposed amendment would not change the setup of our boards of supervisors as we know them today, except in 1 point, and that would be to allow our townships to be on an equal basis, based on population. We are not asking that we increase our boards of supervisors.

I'd like to make one response to what Mr. Farnsworth said. He said a township could have 300 and have to have a supervisor. That's what the constitution says today. But the legislature said that if a city has 300, they are entitled to 1 supervisor. In fact, if a city has 751 residents today, they are entitled to 2 supervisors. Therefore, we are not asking for anything except to be put on equal status with cities. It will be left up entirely to the legislature to set up the formula to increase boards of supervisors.

And since it is that simple, I would move the previous question and demand the yeas and nays.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there support for a roll call vote? Sufficient number up.

There has been a demand for the previous question. Is that demand seconded? Sufficient number up. The question now is, shall the previous question be put? All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails and the previous question is ordered. The amendment will be read by Mr. Chase.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kuhn has offered the following amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 984.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment by Mr. Kuhn. Those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the machine will be locked and the vote recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—49

Binkowski	Habermehl	Nord
Bledsoe	Hanna, W. F.	Norris
Boothby	Hart, Miss	Radka
Brake	Haskill	Richards, J. B.
Brown, G. E.	Hatch	Richards, L. W.
Brown, T. S.	Hatcher, Mrs.	Sablich
Butler, Mrs.	Higgs	Shanahan
Conklin, Mrs.	Hodges	Sharpe
Donnelly, Miss	Hood	Snyder
Downs	Hubbs	Stafseth
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Hutchinson	Sterrett
Erickson	Iverson	Stopczynski
Everett	Kuhn	Walker
Faxon	Lawrence	Yeager
Finch	Lesinski	Young
Ford	Murphy	Youngblood
Gover

Nays—71

Allen	Follo	Perlich
Andrus, Miss	Garvin	Perras
Anspach	Goebel	Plank
Austin	Gust	Powell
Baginski	Howes	Prettie
Balcer	Hoxie	Rajkovich
Barthwell	Judd, Mrs.	Romney
Batchelor	Karn	Rood
Beaman	Kelsey	Seyferth
Bentley	King	Shackleton
Blandford	Knirk, B.	Shaffer
Bonisteel	Krolikowski	Sleder
Buback	Leibrand	Spitler
Cudlip	Leppien	Staiger
Cushman, Mrs.	Liberato	Stevens
Danhof	Lundgren	Tubbs
Davis	Madar	Turner
Dehnke	Mahinske	Tweedie
Dell	McCauley	Upton
DeVries	McLogan	Van Dusen
Durst	Millard	White
Elliott, A. G.	Mosier	Wilkowski
Farnsworth	Ostrow	Woolfenden
Figy	Pellow

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Kuhn, the yeas are 49; the nays are 71.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. There is one more amendment. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Sablich, Pellow, Perlich and L. W. Richards offer the following amendment to Committee Proposal 81:

1. Amend page 1, line 22, after "attorney,", by inserting "and such other elective officers as may be provided by law,".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sablich.

MR. SABLICH: No debate on this question, Mr. President. I just request a recorded roll call vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand for a roll call vote seconded? Sufficient number up. Those in favor of the amendment by Mr. Sablich will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the machine will be locked and the vote recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—55

Andrus, Miss	Ford	Perlich
Anspach	Garvin	Perras
Austin	Goebel	Plank
Baginski	Hart, Miss	Radka
Balcer	Hatcher, Mrs.	Rajkovich
Barthwell	Hodges	Richards, J. B.
Batchelor	Hood	Richards, L. W.
Binkowski	Kelsey	Sablich
Bledsoe	Lawrence	Snyder
Bonisteel	Lesinski	Stafseth
Brown, T. S.	Liberato	Sterrett
Buback	Lundgren	Stopczynski
Butler, Mrs.	Madar	Tubbs
Dell	Mahinske	Walker
Douglas	Murphy	Wilkowski
Downs	Nord	Woolfenden
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Norris	Young
Faxon	Pellow	Youngblood
Follo

Nays—65

Allen	Gust	Mosier
Beaman	Habermehl	Ostrow
Bentley	Hanna, W. F.	Powell
Blandford	Haskill	Prettie
Boothby	Hatch	Romney
Brake	Higgs	Rood
Brown, G. E.	Howes	Seyferth
Conklin, Mrs.	Hoxie	Shackleton
Cushman, Mrs.	Hubbs	Shaffer
Danhof	Hutchinson	Sharpe
Davis	Iverson	Sleder
Dehnke	Judd, Mrs.	Spitler
DeVries	Karn	Staiger
Donnelly, Miss	King	Stevens
Durst	Knirk, B.	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	Krolikowski	Tweedie
Erickson	Kuhn	Upton
Everett	Leibrand	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	Leppien	Wanger
Figy	McCauley	White
Finch	McLogan	Yeager
Gover	Millard

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Messrs. Sablich, Pellow, Perlich and L. W. Richards, the yeas are 55; the nays are 65.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no further amendments on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: If there are no further amendments, Committee Proposal 81, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 81 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. Each organized county shall be a body corporate, with such powers and immunities as shall be established by law.

Sec. b. No organized county shall be reduced by the organization of new counties to less than 16 townships as surveyed by the United States, unless in pursuance of law a majority of electors voting on the question in each county to be affected thereby shall so decide.

Sec. c. There shall be elected for 4 year terms in each organized county a sheriff, a county clerk, a county treasurer, a register of deeds and a prosecuting attorney, whose duties and powers shall be prescribed by law. The board of supervisors in any county may unite the offices of county clerk and register of deeds in one office or separate the same at pleasure.

Sec. d. The sheriff, county clerk, county treasurer, judge of probate and register of deeds shall hold their offices at the county seat.

Sec. e. The sheriff may be required by law to renew his security from time to time and in default of giving such security, his office shall be deemed vacant. The county shall never be responsible for his acts, except that the board of supervisors may protect him against claims by prisoners for accidental injuries received while in his custody. He shall not hold any other office except in connection with civil defense.

Sec. f. A board of supervisors, consisting of 1 from each organized township, shall be established in each county, with such powers as shall be prescribed by law. Cities shall have such representation in the boards of supervisors of the counties in which they are situated as may be provided by law.

Sec. g. The legislature may by general law confer upon the boards of supervisors of the several counties powers of a local, legislative and administrative character not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution.

Sec. h. The boards of supervisors shall have exclusive power to fix the salaries and compensation of all county officials not otherwise provided for by law.

Sec. i. No county shall incur any indebtedness which shall increase its total debt beyond 10 per cent of its assessed valuation.

Sec. j. No county seat once established shall be removed until the place to which it is proposed to be removed shall be designated by 2/3 of the board of supervisors of the county, and a majority of the electors voting thereon shall have voted in favor of the proposed location, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. k. No navigable stream of this state shall be either bridged or dammed without permission granted by the board of supervisors of the county under the provisions of law, which permission shall be subject to such reasonable compensation and other conditions as may seem best suited to safeguard the rights and interests of the county and the municipalities therein.

Sec. l. The board of supervisors of each organized county may organize and consolidate townships under such restrictions and limitations as shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. m. The board of supervisors of any county with a population of 1 million or more shall have the power by ordinance to establish a merit system for county employment. The ordinance or any amendments thereto shall not take effect until approved by a majority of the registered voters voting thereon. All other counties may establish such merit systems as provided by law.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 82 and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, we will return to the order of motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. DeVries offers Resolution 70, A resolution of the constitutional convention establishing a budget for post constitutional convention expenses.

Following is Resolution 70, as offered:

Whereas, It is necessary that the post convention commission meet on a regularly scheduled basis to formulate policy and make many decisions as to the disposition of the convention property and the printing and distribution of the official convention documents; and

Whereas, The commission will also be charged with informing Michigan's citizens of the work of the convention and a simplified explanation of the proposed document; and

Whereas, The commission will be assisted by an executive director who will supervise the administrative and housekeeping division, as well as coordinate all 3 divisions with the commission itself; and

Whereas, The executive director will supervise the renovation of the civic center in order that it may be returned in the same condition as leased and the disposition of convention property in a manner most beneficial to the state; and

Whereas, The other full time employees within the administrative and housekeeping division will be a secretary to both the executive director and the commission and a finance officer who will continue to handle the accounts of the convention and the commission; and

Whereas, The secretary's office will be in charge of preparing the official record and proceedings of the convention and the bound volumes of the daily action journal and the delegates' proposals, which record shall consist of a single convention record consisting of the verbatim proceedings, plus those portions of the daily action journal needed to make the record complete, will be prepared and 3,000 copies of this 3 volume work will be produced by letterpress printing. After distribution to delegates, colleges, universities, libraries, research centers, certain state officers and legislators, the remainder will be offered for public sale by the secretary of state. The 100 bound copies of the daily action journal and the 100 bound copies of the delegates' proposals will be distributed to libraries and research centers to make their records complete. The secretary's office estimates that it will take 3,000 man hours to prepare the convention proceedings for the printer. Bids will be accepted on the printing of the proceedings and other volumes; and

Whereas, The purpose of all post convention public information activities will be to prepare and distribute, through all possible media of communications, objective, factual data, of a purely informational character, on all aspects of the constitutional convention. This data will be prepared solely from the official convention record and the committee reports; and

Whereas, It is anticipated that the public information division's activities will embrace the following:

1. The preparation and distribution of 1 million copies of the 80 page official address to the people on the work of the convention;
2. The preparation and distribution of informational bulletins to all press media, interested civic groups, educational institutions, etc.;
3. The production of tape recorded informational bulletins to radio stations;
4. The production of suitable artwork, graphs, charts and other visual aids, to illustrate topics dealt with in informational bulletins;
5. Distribution of the documentary film on the work of the constitutional convention;
6. Assistance to working press members in preparing material on the constitutional convention;
7. Assistance to television stations in producing educational programs on the constitutional convention;
8. Fulfilling all requests for informational data from groups and private citizens; and
9. Providing all other necessary services of an informational character; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the convention adopt the following post constitutional convention commission budget:

For text of budget included as part of proposed Resolution 70, see below, page 1166.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following announcements:

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet tomorrow morning at 8:00 a.m. in room I. (laughter) Richard Van Dusen, chairman.

The committee on administration will meet tomorrow at 1:30 in the conference room. The subject will be the post convention budget. Walter DeVries, chairman.

Mr. Bentley requests leave of absence from the morning and afternoon sessions of Thursday, February 15.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, he will be excused.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, my recollection is that a motion was made sometime last week that, starting tomorrow in committee of the whole, we would take up the executive article. Is that the present understanding?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is it, Mr. Van Dusen?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I think, Mr. President and Mr. Hutchinson, our practice has been that when we have started on one of these reports of a committee which has been brought to the head of the calendar, we have completed it before going on to the next business. Therefore, it would be my understanding that we would continue with local government tomorrow.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I won't quarrel with that. I just wanted to have an understanding because my recollection, I think, is correct that Mr. Martin moved and the motion carried, that the executive be placed at the head of the calendar tomorrow. But it's all right. We'll go on with local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: Will the convention delegates please retain the calendars that you have on your desk as of today. The only item that has been removed from it is item 1. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford, did you want to be recognized?

MR. FORD: I'd like to make a parliamentary inquiry of the president. On page 579 of the Friday journal in the right hand column, there appears an amendment to the majority report of the committee on the judiciary which I had understood resulted from a piece of paper that was circulated through the hall last Friday on which we were asked to endorse our affirmance of this amendment and I don't know how many others did it, but I put a very emphatic "no" on it when it came to me. I feel very certain we will have a minority report because this touches on a very important part of the judiciary, the supreme court, and I wondered if we had the same 3 days as has been afforded, or at least some time to file a minority report to the amendment to the majority report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have 3 days from Friday, Mr. Ford, to submit your minority report.

MR. FORD: While I am at the mike, as a point of personal privilege, the language at the bottom of page 579 included by Mr. Woolfenden in special privilege indicates, "The committee was unanimous in its approval of this provision." I'd like to indicate that this member of the committee did not consent to the inclusion of this as an amendment to the majority.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be so indicated, Mr. Ford. The Chair recognizes Mr. Hood.

MR. HOOD: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. Those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

We are adjourned until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

[Whereupon, at 10:50 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, February 13, 1962.]

SEVENTY-EIGHTH DAY

Tuesday, February 13, 1962, 9:30 o'clock a.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend Leonard Weigel of St. Paul's United Church of Christ, from Taylor. Reverend Weigel is the pastor of Bill Ford's church.

REVEREND WEIGEL: Let us lift up our hearts and hands to God in prayer. Eternal God, so high above us that we cannot comprehend Thee and yet so deep within each of us that we cannot escape Thee, we come into Thy holy presence at this time for we know that we can do nothing of worth without Thy inspiration and guidance.

Help us, O Father, to understand fully the responsibilities which are ours as we deliberate on the matters which come before this constitutional convention. Grant unto us the humility and wisdom to acknowledge that we cannot discharge these responsibilities without Thy presence permeating our every thought, word and deed. Give unto each of us an awareness of the many people who rely upon us to serve the common welfare of man and who have put their trust in us to make here wise decisions which shall be just for all people. Help us to take a courageous stand for truth and guard us from letting truth become subservient to expediency.

Give us strength, O God, to be true to the highest hopes of the past, and yet make us brave and ready to break with tradition and custom when so doing will bring us into the light of the better and more righteous way. Almighty God, ceaseless Creator of the ever changing world, we are grateful that Thou hast made us in such a way that we are ever discontented with things as they are, urging us ever onward and upward toward the achievement of the eternal destiny of man, to be brothers one of the other under Thy guidance.

We pray this day, O God, for fresh courage to launch out in bold adventures of faith, adopting such new forms of law and principle which may be necessary to fulfill the larger purposes for which Thou didst bring our country and this state to birth.

Behold us, O Father, Thy servants gathered here and awaiting now Thy spirit, wisdom and will to come upon us in full measure. Forgive us our sins as we earnestly repent for them. Use us to Thy glory and the welfare of our fellowmen. In Jesus' name. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The machine is locked and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. White.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President, I had a call from my colleague, Delegate Dean Doty, who is confined to his home with the flu. I move he be excused from today's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the motion prevails and leave is granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Dade, Dean Doty, Miss McGowan, Messrs. Page and Stamm.

Absent without leave: None.

[During the proceedings, Mr. Dean Doty entered the chamber and took his seat.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary has an announcement to make.

SECRETARY CHASE: This is of interest to all delegates. You are reminded that the photographer is down in committee room G, and will be here today and tomorrow to take pictures for the convention record. You are urged to keep your appointment promptly on schedule; if you cannot, please see Dr. Knapp for rescheduling.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: No communications.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals. The Chair recognizes Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I move that the order of second reading be passed for the week.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Third reading.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no resolutions on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: No special orders.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day. Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of certain items on the general orders calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Dr. DeVries. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Dr. DeVries.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order. When last this committee met, it was considering Committee Proposal 82. Upon request of the chairman, we are proceeding section by section through the committee proposal. We have disposed of section a; we are now on section b.

For last previous action by the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 82, see above, page 980.

The secretary will read section b.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary, before he reads section b, has one request to make of the delegates, and we earnestly entreat your cooperation. The staff was here until 10 minutes of 1:00 this morning. That is one of the reasons the journal has not yet been received. Will you please provide us with 3 copies of amendments. This will expedite the business at the desk and enable us to get the journal out a lot more rapidly.

[Sec. b. was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 980.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to the subcommittee chairman, Mr. Radka.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the gentleman from Rogers City, Delegate Radka.

MR. RADKA: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, this section will be explained by the very capable delegate, Francis Finch.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Radka yields to Delegate Finch.

MR. FINCH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, this section is essentially the same as it was in the 1908 constitution, except that the research and drafting department thought that this would clean up the language. I move its passage.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 82?

SECRETARY CHASE: Pursuant to the minority report of Messrs. Ford, Gover, Sharpe and J. B. Richards,

Mr. Ford offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1 by striking out lines 10, 11, 12 and 13 and inserting

"Sec. b. The legislature shall by general law confer upon organized townships such powers of a local, legislative, and administrative character, not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution as shall be necessary from time to time to maintain and carry out local government functions within organized townships.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, the minority explanation is contained on page 550 of the journal, if you would like to follow it.

[The supporting reasons for the minority report were read by Mr. Ford. For text, see above, page 981.]

I would like to yield for questions before making any further comment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

MR. POWELL: I have a question of Mr. Ford. Mr. Ford, do you feel that this minority report amendment opens the door for home rule for townships? Is that the intention of it?

MR. FORD: I don't believe so, because it still leaves us in the position where there is no inherent power, merely such powers as the legislature shall from time to time confer upon the township. The essential home rule is contained in sections 20 and 21 of the 1908 constitution. The language is framed in a manner that indicates that these units of government, to wit: cities and villages, shall have powers, unless restricted by the legislature. This section, as it reads, still says that the township shall have such powers as are granted by the legislature.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Delegate Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, I would like to direct a question to Delegate Ford through the Chair, please. Delegate Ford, you seem concerned about the legislature granting powers to the townships. You, apparently, are endeavoring to strengthen that particular section. Does the fact that we have a charter township law in Michigan, which was significantly strengthened in 1960—don't you think that that is all those townships need without any further language in that section?

MR. FORD: I want to point out that we do not, by changing the language in this section, confer any power on the township. What we are trying to do is modernize the rules of construction with respect to the powers granted.

When you get into the 2 cases that I mentioned here, you will find, in the citizens research council's Analysis of the 1908 Constitution, volume 2, page 23, this is a part of the beginning of this question of court construction. We most frequently get into it in zoning. I think the outstanding case, or the one that sets up the rule is Portage Township v. Full Salvation Union. It is not a new case, but it has been cited many, many times for the principle that since the legislature is not directed by the constitution to confer any powers, that when the legislature does, in fact, confer powers on a township or a county, the court is compelled to strictly construe the enabling statute, and this leads to what we consider to be a double standard of court interpretation, when you get into fields like zoning and planning, police and fire protection, building codes, plumbing codes, anything that you want to mention.

I want to point out to the delegate from Allegan that we have no worry, there is no one on this minority report who is at all concerned about the legislature conferring powers on the townships, because we have an entire volume here of Michigan Statutes Annotated with nothing else but powers being conferred on townships. Our only concern is that after they are conferred, we want to have a more definite rule of construction when we go to court on a question arising out of the conferring.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, another question for Mr. Ford, and I might say to the committee that this dialogue between Mr. Ford and myself is simply a repeat of what we have been over many times in the local government committee. Specifically, I would like to ask Mr. Ford—he is concerned, I believe, about liberal construction in court interpretations—when we get to Committee Proposal 84, Mr. Ford, which I suppose we will adopt, it says:

> The provisions of this constitution and the laws of this state concerning municipal corporations shall be liberally construed in their favor. Powers granted to counties and townships by this constitution and the laws of the state of Michigan shall include those expressly granted or fairly implied and not inconsistent with nor prohibited by this constitution.

You will recall, Mr. Ford, that we put that in on your advice, and that that was intended to cover this very thing that you are talking about now. I realize that we have not adopted this yet, but we are coming to 84, and that is the language in it.

MR. FORD: I am familiar with 84 because I wrote it, but the problem is twofold here, Jim. We are talking, on the one hand, about construction. We are also talking about a concept here. I think that this is an opportunity to place squarely before the legislature a recognition of the fact that, unlike the prediction in 1908, the automobile has caused an exodus to the suburbs that has resulted in a situation where the township, as a unit of government, has more people living in it today than anybody, in their wildest dreams, would ever have conceived in 1908. I think it is evident from the fact that section 38 of article IV of the 1850 constitution, which we discussed here last evening, was split up in 1908 in such a manner as to indicate at that time that they predicted the 2 units of government at the local level that had the greatest future were cities and villages.

At the risk of incurring the wrath of the village people, I think it has been apparent that, since world war II, in the state of Michigan the village is an obsolete form of government —at least, if not obsolete, obsolescent—in that the village is still a part of the township; its taxes are collected by the township; its elections are conducted by the township, and most of its basic governmental functions are actually township functions, even though it is a village. I am not advocating that we abolish them, but I am pointing out that in this day and age, with the type of transportation we have, when we have people living 30 and 40 miles from their place of employment—and this is not uncommon in the Detroit area—the township has, since world war II, become a more complex and a more used unit of local government, and I think it would be shortsighted, at this time, to fail to recognize this.

I think that this language, as well as talking about construction, Mr. Farnsworth, would clearly indicate our recognition of this as a necessary, continuing form of local government in the state of Michigan.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Ford, and members of the committee, we, of course, are gratified that Mr. Ford is and always has been a champion of township government, as a majority of us are on the local government committee, including myself.

Now as to this matter of automobiles and the density of population in townships, Mr. Ford, that you spoke of just a few minutes ago, I find that we have 1,061 townships in the state of Michigan, out of a total of 1,258, that have less than 3,000 people in them. I believe you are getting down to the category of the highly populated townships, which we discussed quite thoroughly in the subcommittee and the full committee on local government, and we felt that the law, as it exists now—we even had Mr. Brake in on our subcommittee discussion—and we agreed that charter townships had all the populace they needed, in these more populous areas; that we didn't need to change this language one bit in order to adequately protect them; that they can do everything they need to do.

Members of the committee, your local government committee just does not feel that this language is necessary or even desirable.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Rogers City, Delegate Radka.

MR. RADKA: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I would like to briefly explain what thinking went on in the subcommittee and the full committee. The subcommittee originally reported to the full committee that they proposed the acceptance of the change of the word "may" to "shall". This was their recommendation to the full committee on local government. This, I believe, was accepted by the full committee.

When we reconsidered the section the second time, Mr. Ford offered an amendment to add the last sentence. The committee then felt that changing the word "may" to "shall"—although we did not feel that it added anything as far as changing the legal effect of the section and adding the last sentence did not really, materially change the legal effect of the entire section—we decided that it would be unwise to add words or change words that wouldn't materially affect the interpretation of the section. Therefore, we moved to retain the present language of the constitution rather than just make changes that might not materially affect the legal interpretation of the section, and this is and was the position of the majority of the local government committee and is now the position of the majority of the subcommittee on townships of the local government committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegates Ford, Gover, Sharpe and Richards. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I would be happy to support the minority report amendment that has been offered by Mr. Ford. I believe, however, that the substance of what he wishes to accomplish would be accomplished by merely changing the initial verb of "may" to "shall", or I should say the mandatory provision of the word "shall" rather than the permissive provision of "may".

I would like to direct a question to Mr. Ford, as to whether or not he intended to eliminate the word "such" where it has been stricken in the majority report but has not been stricken in the minority report. I believe, once again, in this regard, by putting in the word "such", it tends to have a limiting effect.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Brown is correct. It was not my intention to reinsert the word "such". This would be inconsistent with what we have already done with respect to counties, putting the word "such" back in. I think that is a point well taken, and I would like to consider the minority report amendment—unless there is an objection from my cosponsors—so revised.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is there objection from Delegates Gover, Sharpe or J. B. Richards to the revision suggested by Delegate Ford? If not, it will be so revised without objection. The secretary will read the revised amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford, with the consent of Messrs. Gover, Sharpe and J. B. Richards, requests the amendment be revised to read as follows:

1. Amend page 1 by striking out lines 10, 11, 12 and 13 and inserting

"Sec. b. The legislature shall by general law confer upon organized townships powers of a local, legislative, and administrative character, not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution as shall be necessary from time to time to maintain and carry out local government functions within organized townships.".

MR. G. E. BROWN: I would like to speak once again, Mr. Chairman, to the support of the Ford amendment, at least to the extent of the word "shall". I think what has been said here by Mr. Farnsworth and Mr. Ford points out the fact that there has been a lack of complete attention by the legislature to some of the township problems. I think that by putting mandatory language in the constitution, it would indicate, along with the section that Mr. Farnsworth mentioned in a subsequent proposal, that it is the intent of this convention that adequate legislation, empowering townships to adequately dispose of their problems, is contemplated by this constitutional convention. I, therefore, would support it.

I would further direct a question to Mr. Ford as to whether or not he would withdraw the additional language in his minority report amendment; that language extending beyond the word "constitution"?

MR. FORD: I have no particular brief to hold for the form of the last sentence in this provision, except that it merely, I suppose, reiterates the principle of the fact that we are talking about governmental powers. I assume, because of the location of this, and the context that it will be in, that this will be unnecessary. If I had the assurance, when this comes back from style and drafting, that by dropping this we have not, in any way, affected its substance, I would have no objection at all.

For the purpose of clearing up any question here this morning, I would accede to removal of the language we added at the end of the minority report amendment, because I don't think it is significant, except it limits what we are talking about here to governmental powers.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford, are you offering to delete the last sentence of your amendment?

MR. FORD: Yes. So that there will be no misunderstanding, I am doing so on the assumption, at this point, that this withdrawal does not affect the substance of our minority report amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair is hardly in a position to rule on that, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I am not asking for a ruling. I merely wouldn't want to consent to it now and come back the next time around and move for an amendment and have it appear that we were acting in bad faith. I am consenting to this on the assumption, at this point, that Mr. Brown is correct. I have great confidence in his ability as a township attorney and an expert in this field.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you wish to delete the sentence?

MR. FORD: Yes, I do.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The sentence will be deleted with the agreement of the cosponsors. There being no objection, the sentence is deleted.

The secretary shall read the minority report amendment offered by Delegates Ford, Gover, Sharpe and J. B. Richards, as further revised by the cosponsor.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford, with the consent of Messrs. Gover, Sharpe and J. B. Richards, requests the amendment be further revised to read as follows:

1. Amend page 1 by striking out lines 10, 11, 12 and 13 and inserting

"Sec. b. The legislature shall by general law confer upon organized townships powers of a local, legislative, and administrative character, not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Rogers City, Delegate Radka.

MR. RADKA: If you recall, I stated before that the subcommittee approved the language that you now have before you. The full committee on local government approved this language. They only objected to the last sentence. I am sure that they have not changed their minds; they would, undoubtedly, accept the language as it is now being presented.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I believe, in substance, what Mr. Radka said is correct. However, I must point out that when we got into our full committee, I don't really believe that we had an opportunity to ever finally vote on the word "shall" as being the only change, because when Mr. Ford offered his amendment, he offered it at about the same time as he has done here, and that created the discussion for an hour or so, and at the end of that time we decided that it had so thoroughly confused the issue that we would defeat the amendment and leave the word as "may". That is what we ended up doing.

I think one of the reasons for leaving the word as "may" was because it then made it consistent with what we had just previously done in the standard county provision for a similar section where the word was left as "may". I don't think there is any reason—however, I only speak as an individual now and not as the chairman—why the word "shall" should not be a perfectly acceptable position for us to take, and, as an individual, I support it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, just a matter of inquiry. We don't ordinarily change individual words of this kind, from "may" to "shall", unless we are trying to specifically do something here and direct the legislature to do something that it isn't already doing. My inquiry to Mr. Ford would be: what is it that we are now proposing to require the legislature to do which it isn't already doing?

MR. FORD: As I have already stated, we don't intend to direct the legislature to do anything that is is not doing. We are attempting to affect the attitude of the courts in interpreting what the legislature does after it does it with respect to townships.

We are also, at the same time, indicating an intent that the legislature shall recognize this unit of local government and confer upon it such powers as shall be necessary to function as a unit of local government, recognizing full well, that no one can mandamus the legislature to do anything, and recognizing also that since world war II and before, the legislature has conferred upon the township, on a permissive basis, practically all of the powers of local self government, and, as a matter of fact, we are now at a stage, with rather recent legislation, where I think we have practically all of the police powers of a city. So it is not a question of worrying about the legislature failing to come up with the adequate powers; it is a question of whether or not we want to be consistent.

I might point out, Mr. Martin, that, as we discussed last night, in 1908 we had a county, a township, a village and a city mentioned. In the last 3, we talked about the legislature conferring powers upon the unit of government, while with respect to the county we talked about conferring powers upon the legislative body of the unit of government. So, when we used the word "may" with respect to the counties last night, I made no objection because here we are talking about conferring powers on a legislative body rather than upon a unit of government, as such. At this point last night, we were still not recognizing the county as an integral unit of local government. I assume the reason for not wanting to do it in that section is because there is a home rule provision coming later.

There is no home rule provision coming for townships later. All we are saying here is, by using the word "shall" we then become consistent with the language in sections 20 and 21, and we recognize 3 basic units of local self government, to wit: the township, the village and the city.

MR. MARTIN: It just seems to me that the language which the committee has recommended here is entirely satisfactory language. As Mr. Ford says, under it the legislature has delegated or has provided complete legislation for townships. I still am not entirely clear about the reason for the change, and I think it may only involve further court confusion on the court's part as to what we meant when we made this change from "may" to "shall"; as to whether we were, in some way, saying that no action can be taken which might withdraw any of these powers or readjust any of these powers which the townships have. I don't say that we should be or we want to be, but I think it only creates confusion to make this particular change.

I think the committe's recommendation was a sound one.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the minority amendment to section b offered by Delegates Ford, Gover, Sharpe and Richards. The secretary will read the revised amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment now is:

[The revised amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Mr. Chairman and delegates, the thing that I would like to speak to is this question of "may" or "shall". I, as you know, am not a lawyer, but I have checked this out, and I think there would certainly be a clear implication of a change in our intent of handling townships if you change something that has been reading "may" to something that reads "shall".

I think, furthermore, we ought to recognize here that your problem apparently is with the more populous, the urban townships, and that they do have a remedy, in that they can become cities. Many of these townships have refused, more than once, to become cities. The only implication that you can draw from this is that they prefer their township status for some reason or other. If they prefer it, I don't see why we want to change this sort of thing. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Ford amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I think there is almost a fear on the part of some of these people from the smaller cities towards the large townships that surround them. Mrs. Cushman happens to be joined by townships that are very close to inundating them in population and are certainly much larger in area at the same time. But the problem we are dealing with here has nothing to do with the peculiar problems of an urban township. It has to do with the issuance of any kind of bonds that a township might issue; it has to do with the question of leasing a piece of ground for a library—an experience that we recently had in our township. No one here is going to submit that only the urban townships are concerned about libraries and parks. I understand that some of them over along Lake Huron are in the business of providing marinas and things of this kind. These are the small townships that are doing it. This should not be considered, in any way, as a matter relating itself to one type of township or another.

By the same token, in fairness, I want to say that this would apply with equal force to a charter township, because, notwithstanding the fact it becomes a charter township, it is still governed by the general laws of the state as contained in this constitution with respect to townships.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, we had quite a discussion in the local government committee on this subject. In fact, I think we heard more about townships, and especially townships of a larger size.

I think I have studied government for a long enough period so that I understand what is archaic and what is modern. I can understand how a lot of people like to go along with old ideas, historical ideas, like to keep them with us, like to look at these old things. Frankly, I propose that we ought to do away with townships and villages and have 5 different classes of cities. I think it would have been a very good idea.

Mr. Ford, on a couple of occasions this morning, has stated that the smaller townships want this. It is rather strange to see that it is a township of approximately 40 some thousand that is so insistent on getting more power for townships. We also hear that the township of Taylor has done just about everything in its power to become a city. Yes, they have done everything in their power except cast enough votes to become a city. They want to remain a township. There are definite advantages in Wayne county for the larger townships to remain townships, and that definite advantage is that there are tax advantages, to a degree.

We hear Mr. Ford—and I am quite sure that after I get through he is going to say this so I might just as well say it to keep him from getting up, I imagine he is quite tired this morning—say that the township pays more taxes than the cities do. If that is the case, the only reason they are doing it is because they have to have the things that they are paying for, and they still need more.

The committee did vote for the word "shall". They voted to put it in. They took the word "may" out. Whether the legislature has to do anything or not, I don't know. I have always said that we are superior to the legislature and to the supreme court. It is my thought that the people elected us to come up here to tell the legislature what to do, to get this law established, and it is the basic law upon which they will work.

There are some 50 attorneys, as I understand it, in this convention. I think it is about 56, if I am not mistaken. However, I say this: that somehow or other, we ought to find a means of making the legislature do what this constitution says it shall do, and the word "shall" should mean that they must, absolutely must, and not just through a mandamus. In fact, if I were an attorney, some way I would find a way, or possibly I would have education enough so that I could say, "If you don't try to do it, at least try to do it, you will go to jail for not having tried."

I am in favor of the committee's proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Howell, Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Madar, I didn't know, for quite awhile, what side of the fence you were on. I would like to make an observation, and it seems that some people are worried about this township and are not willing to give it the necessary tools to do the necessary things that the people would like to have happen in a township.

If we are going to be consistent and we are going to go to home rule for counties, I believe that we should strengthen some of these townships. We have townships that are going to be damaged if we adopt a home rule for counties, in many counties in Michigan, especially in Macomb county. We have some townships in Macomb county—and I will refer this to Mr. Rush, if he desires to speak on it—where the lower 25 per cent of the area of the county can outvote the county and therefore they could institute a county home rule.

I believe that we should give the upper 2/3 of the counties some special consideration. I believe that these people may have imposed upon them a form of government that they would not want, and I am not talking against home rule. I would like to make my position definitely clear, that I believe we should be consistent in this convention and that we should strengthen local government whenever and wherever it is possible.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The delegate from Howell yields to the gentleman from Romeo, Delegate Rush.

MR. RUSH: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, we do have that situation in Macomb county that Mr. Sharpe has referred to. We have 9 townships in the north end of the county that are rural. The south end is metropolitan. If we should have a county home rule form of government and it was a vote of the people at large, the north end would get very little consideration.

I believe that any form of county home rule government should have some area provision in it. I believe the delegates here have recognized that necessity, as far as the state senate is concerned, to give consideration to area, and I believe there should be a provision of that nature in any form of county home rule government.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the minority amendment, as revised, offered by Delegates Ford, Gover, Sharpe and J. B. Richards, and the secretary will read the amendment once more.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The revised amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 990.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the delegate from Flint, Delegate McLogan, wish to speak on the amendment?

MR. McLOGAN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I think that this one word change is important. I think that it is substantial or may be substantial. I think it implies a change or a desire for a change. I don't think that experience would dictate that greater power for townships is warranted or is desirable. I would agree with Mrs. Cushman that in the areas where more power is needed, the recourse is clear; urban townships can become cities.

I would support the position, as a member of the local government committee, of the majority opinion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Howell, Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, all townships that we are referring to are not necessarily townships of 73,000 people. We have problems in townships of 5,000 people that couldn't possibly become cities and the people wouldn't want to become cities, anyway. I believe that we have a distinction here. I am quite certain that the people from the metropolitan areas, or the cities, such as Mr. McLogan and Mrs. Cushman, are primarily interested in these townships with fat populace, and this is not the entire concern. We are also concerned about the 4,000 and 5,000 population communities which are called townships.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, you now have heard the arguments of the local government committee in detail. I don't think there have been any left out, and, inasmuch as you now have gone through the entire substantive debate, along with us, for the last 45 minutes, I move that we vote.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: My point of order is I would like to make a correction here. Information has been given that townships of 12,000 cannot become cities. That is not correct. They may become cities if they so wish.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: That is not a point of order, Mr. Madar. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, delegates, I think that we have belabored this point enough. As was pointed out by the chairman of the committee, this was the language that was originally thought to be included in the proposition. We are only changing the word "may" to "shall". I would suggest that we vote, and I urge a yes vote on the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the amendment offered by Delegates Ford, et al, to section b. The secretary will read the revised amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The revised amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 990.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the minority report amendment. All those in favor say aye. All those opposed, no.

The amendment, as revised, is adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division is requested. Is there support for a division vote? There is support. All those in favor of the amendment, vote aye. All those opposed will vote no. This is the minority report amendment, as revised, offered by Delegates Ford, Gover, Sharpe and J. B. Richards to section b. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

The Chair votes no. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Ford, the yeas are 63, the nays are 56.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment, as revised, is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 82? If not, it will pass.

Section b, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read section c.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section c.

[Sec. c. was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 980.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Radka speaking on behalf of the committee.

MR. RADKA: Section c is section 18 of the present constitution, and this section will be explained by Delegate William Suzore, and I yield to Bill Suzore.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Radka yields to Delegate Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: As you will note, the time of the holding of the election has been deleted from this section. The time of the election of the township officers has been left to the article on elections.

The committee recommends a minimum term of 2 years, permitting the legislature to extend the term to 4 years if they so desire. This is to give flexibility to those townships which might desire, if the legislature should so provide, to provide for a 4 year term for their township officers.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections has concurrent jurisdiction on this matter, and has offered no objection to the recommendation of the subcommittee or the committee. The committee recommends the elimination of the township highway commissioner as a constitutional officer, since the township highway problem is no longer present. As you probably know, township highways are under the jurisdiction of the county highway commission.

The committee recommends the elimination of constables as constitutional officers, as the need for their services can be and is now provided for by statute.

The committee recommends that the office of township trustee be established in the constitution, since it is a basic part of the township structure. We concluded that all active township officers should be provided for in the constitution.

The committee recommends deletion of the following sentence, and you will note it struck out in your copy:

> Justices of the peace shall be reclassified as shall be prescribed by the legislature to conform with the provisions of this section providing for biennial township elections.

Since justices of the peace no longer serve on township boards because the Michigan supreme court has determined that they are judicial officers, we concluded that the problem of the justices of the peace is primarily a matter of the judicial committee and not a local government problem, and our recommendation is not to be construed to mean that we recommend the abolishment of the justices of the peace.

I would like, at this time, to yield to Delegate Ford of Taylor for any further comments he would like to make on this section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Lincoln Park yields to the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: It is my pleasure to agree with the majority on this section. However, we agreed on the conclusion without agreeing entirely on the reasons.

With respect to the question of the constables, I think it ties itself in very closely with the question of whether there is going to be a local court system in townships, because if this convention determines to permit the legislature to have a local court system, then we will have to leave the way open and provide for the continuance of the local court officer, who is the constable, in many parts of this state. I agreed with the committee in taking away the constitutional status of the constable, on the assumption that some place in this constitution, before we are finished, we will have a provision—perhaps under Mr. Erickson's section—that will continue officers who derive their original powers from the constitution, until such time as the legislature has an opportunity either to pick up these powers by statute or to discontinue them by conferring them upon someone else.

The reason that I bring this up and call it to your attention is that we would want to be very sure, when we have gone through the constitution completely on this first go round, that when we are through we have provided for this continuity, because it is my belief that although the statute now provides for the method and for most of the duties of the constable, his creation and being is as a result of being a creature of the constitution, and we would want to be sure that we are not abolishing his existence, while leaving his powers in the statute. This is exactly what happened in reverse with respect to the highway commissioner. He is in the constitution, but he has no duties. At least, we haven't been able to find any.

I would like to reemphasize what Bill said about the committee's removal of the language with respect to the justice of the peace. This language is language that had a very short term meaning, and it came into the constitution as a result of an amendment in the middle '40s or early '40s, when the township board went from 1 year terms to 2 year terms, and was in the constitution solely for the purpose of making the transition because the justice of the peace was a 4 year term.

One more thing that isn't mentioned here is that presently, in the township, the trustees are statutory officers and they do have 4 year terms. The board of review has a 4 year term. The justices of the peace have 4 year terms. What this would do, in effect, would be to make it possible for the legislature to have all of the township officers run at the same time, and have concurrent terms, by making it possible to provide for the supervisor, clerk and treasurer—the only 2 year terms left now at the township level—to be put on the same basis as the others, or to, in fact, reduce the 4 year terms back to 2, if they thought it was a wise thing to do.

It provides some flexibility at the legislative level, with respect to this question of terms, that wasn't there before.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I would like to ask a question or so of either Mr. Ford or Mr. Suzore. I understand that one of the functions that we have in this convention, that most people agree on, is that we are trying to strengthen local government, and in this regard I would like to ask that under the township set up at the present, I believe that the legislative function is performed not only by the trustees, but a vote in the legislative function is also had in most townships by the so called executive members, that is the treasurer and the clerk and so on.

The thing I want to know is, did the committee make any effort to discuss the possible separation of this and allow only a vote, in the legislative function of the township, to be to the trustees and the supervisor?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you wish to yield to Delegate Ford?

MR. YEAGER: Yes, I will.

MR. FORD: I don't think that the committee formally considered this separation, but we are dealing with a traditional structure that is not unlike the county. There is, in what you say, a decided disadvantage, in that in the standard township you have no chief administrative office who is, by law, comparable to a mayor in a city, for example.

I have made the statement in the committee, and I think there are many who agree, that a township supervisor is, in many instances, about as strong an executive as his personality permits, because, while we do not confer powers upon him, we also do not conversely put the same restrictions on him that a mayor has. So, he acts as, in many instances, the chief administrative officer—and this is by reason of many statutes that specifically say he shall have the power to do thus and so—and he performs ministerial duties as well, and then, subsequently, he is a member of the legislative body.

The alternative to permitting the treasurer, clerk and supervisor, who are ministerial and executive officers, to vote on a township board, would be to provide for a larger group of trustees, because as the statute now reads, and as the constitution would continue to permit the statute to read, many townships have only a 5 member board: clerk, treasurer, supervisor and 2 trustees. They can, if they are, I believe, over 5,000, have a 7 man board, but this is an election they make at the local level, and in all of the larger townships, they do function with a 7 man board, and they have 4 trustees.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Ford, you don't believe that this is a vital point that should be gone into at greater length?

MR. FORD: It has been gone into by the court. In 1952, it was held, in the Township of Dearborn v. Dearborn Township Clerk, Glenn E. Dail, it was held that the township justices of the peace—there were formerly 4 justices of the peace in each township—were not only judges but they sat as members of the board, and in that Dail case, they held that this was a violation of the separation of powers doctrine, and held that the justice of the peace could no longer sit. So we went through a very short period where all the townships of the state had 3 man boards.

The governor called the legislature into special session, and they adopted a statute creating not less than 2 nor more than 4 trustees, at the option of the townships that were large enough to make the option. This is how we came to this at this point, but I don't believe that the commingling of the supervisor's executive duties with his legislative duties has ever been raised in any of the courts. I am not aware of any such case.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lincoln Park, Delegate Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: Speaking to the point of Delegate Yeager, I might say that neither the subcommittee nor the committee considered the thinking of Delegate Yeager. I think probably he raises the question because at the present time, cities throughout the state, in their home rule charters, do not provide for the treasurer or the city clerk to have a voice or a vote in the council, or the governing body of the city, and I think that it was felt that this should be left in, that the treasurer and the township clerk should have a voice and vote so as to strengthen and to provide the historical value of the township board and the traditions that have gone with it over a number of years.

I think, also, that there is some thought among the people in the township group on our subcommittee that this should not be disturbed at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, I should like to ask if some people here, that have been involved in township government outstate, would care to comment on this question.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Yeager, Mr. Suzore, I see nothing in this language that says that the township board or the legislative body of a township shall consist of the supervisor, clerk, treasurer, and not to exceed 4 trustees. The legislature could, by law, say that the legislative body of any township will consist of the supervisor and the elected trustees. This language merely defines the officers. It creates no legislative body. It leaves to the legislature the power to prescribe the duties under these. The legislature could, under this language, make the supervisor a clear cut executive of the township, and I believe they should so do.

But, we have not spelled out any prohibition or any requirement that the clerk and treasurer be a voting member of the legislative body. I believe that this language leaves to the legislature the power to define the executive department within the framework of an elective supervisor, clerk and treasurer, and also to define a legislative body within the framework of the 3 officers, plus such trustees as may be elected by law.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lincoln Park, Delegate Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: That was the point that I wished to make. We made no change, and that was in answer to the question of Delegate Yeager.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section c of Committee Proposal 82?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If not, it will pass.

Section c is passed and the secretary will read section d.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section d.

[Sec. d. was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 980.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Rogers City, Delegate Radka.

MR. RADKA: The subject matter of this proposed section was submitted to our committee by a delegate proposal sponsored by Delegates Charles Follo and Mrs. Cushman. It received a great deal of consideration in the township government subcommittee and in the full committee. The substance of the proposal has been refined, as you see it here in section d, and it is a proposed new section to the constitution.

I hereby yield to the illustrious delegate, Charles Follo, for explanation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Escanaba, Delegate Follo.

MR. FOLLO: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I will do nothing more than read the comments that the committee prepared.

[The reasons for Sec. d were read by Mr. Follo. For text, see above, page 981.]

If my memory serves me correctly, this section was passed unanimously by the local government committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section d of Committee Proposal 82?

SECRETARY CHASE: No amendments on file.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I would like to address a question to either the subcommittee chairman or Mr. Follo that has to do with, primarily, a matter of language. The committee proposal provides, "the township government shall be abolished if a majority of those voting on a referendum in the township approve." My question is as to what is meant by "if a majority of those voting . . . approve," and then, secondly is referendum a proper term? If so, what is the initial proposition which is being referred to the voters for approval?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The delegate from Kalamazoo yields to Delegate Radka.

MR. RADKA: Here we go again trying to define these terms. I don't see what your question is, Mr. Brown, as far as the majority of those voting on a referendum. Would you point out your specific question?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Would you rephrase your question.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Radka, let me put it this way: is it the intent of the subcommittee or the committee that this shall be approved upon a majority vote of the electors?

MR. RADKA: I don't recall if we ever took that particular question up. I will yield to our committee chairman, Mr. Elliott.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I think the intent of the committee was, Mr. Brown, although I will admit that we didn't get into great detailed discussion on this, that it should be a majority voting on the question when the vote was held.

MR. G. E. BROWN: I have no objection to the substance of the proposal, and therefore, if the committee will permit style and drafting to take care of this matter, why, I certainly would favor the proposition. But I think that it does, in its present language, create a great deal of ambiguity and would create problems, especially by the use of the words "of those voting" on the proposition, and by the use of the word "referendum".

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: We would be perfectly satisfied, if my intent is the intent of the committee and I am confident that it is, if there needs to be some modification of the language to meet the intent, we would be happy to have style and drafting do it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Fennville, Delegate Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, this section raises in my mind, some problems, which I want to point out. Maybe I can be better educated as a result of some explanation from someone who may know more about it, but it has always been my understanding that a village and a city differ primarily in these respects: both of them have municipal powers, but a city has, in addition to those municipal powers, certain governmental powers which a village does not have, and those basic fundamental, governmental powers which cities have and villages do not enjoy, I have always understood to be these: the matter of being represented as such on the board of supervisors; the matter of assessment and collection of county and school taxes; the matter of carrying on elections for the county and the state, and the matter of providing a system of inferior courts.

These functions, villages do not have. Cities have them, but villages do not. You do not have village justice courts or a village municipal court. A village, as such, does not carry on an election in the state election, biennial elections and so on. All it does is carry on its own village elections, but it doesn't perform for the county in that respect. It doesn't assess and collect county and school taxes, and, of course, it doesn't have any representation on the board of supervisors.

If, under this section here, the township is to be abolished, and all of these governmental functions are to be vested in the villages which comprise that township, what is the difference, then, between these villages and cities? In other words, haven't they, in effect, become cities, and why shouldn't they be required, somehow or other, to be designated as cities? It will be very complicated indeed, I should imagine, in the election laws of the state and in the assessment laws of the state, particularly, if we introduce into them this matter of what villages can do, certain villages.

It seems to me as though what the committee has done, by the text of this section here, is to create these villages into cities without calling them cities, and I just wondered whether it is very good policy to do that.

I am sympathetic with the goal to be attained, I am very sympathetic with the goal, but I think the committee could have, more wisely, perhaps, simply have provided some kind of a machinery whereby they, in those circumstances, would become cities when the township was abolished.

I might say this one thing further: I think there is another provision in the constitution which now empowers the boards of supervisors, constitutionally, to combine and to change, and so on, townships, and so I would suppose that the power now vests in the boards of supervisors to abolish the townships in those cases where there is no unincorporated property left. One reason that the board of supervisors doesn't do it is because of the problem that I have raised here, which would, in effect, then make those villages cities, and I think that is what you are doing here. Am I wrong?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Hutchinson yields to the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hutchinson, I think the points that you have made were well taken. Each and every point was discussed in committee. It was decided by our committee when we finally decided to include this as constitutional language, that while this problem is not going to be widespread, it does now occur, is now in effect, and it can easily become in effect, with greater regularity as a township becomes more populated and more incorporated.

It was therefore felt that we were not resolving this problem on a legislative basis, but on a constitutional basis, leaving to the legislature the exact procedures in which it should follow. We recognize that, depending upon the legislature, as it, in its wisdom, drafts its laws, it might, in effect, give in that specific instance the powers to a village that a city now has.

I call your attention to line 6 of this proposal which says "as provided by law", which is in connection with the functions that a township normally has, when it says that the function shall then be assumed by the village or villages as provided by law. Then, in the last sentence, we feel that we have accommodated the problem of representation on the county board of supervisors.

The overwhelming or compelling reason for including this language in the constitution was because of the present duplication of services that is existing which is causing additional tax burdens, and the fact that it could increase, and we felt that this language, while not doing the legislative job, did do the constitutional job as well as we could foresee at the time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The delegate from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: I would like to address a question to Mr. Elliott. As I look at this section, I don't see how it could ever go into effect in the situation which he talks about, because the first line says, "Whenever there is no unincorporated territory within a township . . ." If you go back to section a, it says, "Each organized township shall be a body corporate . . ." If there is an organized township, there never would be any unincorporated territory within that township.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hanna, there is, at the present time, a township which has all of its territory incorporated, either as cities or villages, and because some of its territory is villages, it is carrying on its normal township functions. So that is the reason why we think that this would be effective, if the legislature implemented it.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Elliott, shouldn't your language then be that whenever all the territory of a township within an incorporated township is also included within incorporated villages, the township shall be abolished, rather than the language you use, because I am sure that you would have to say, in the case you are talking about, that all the territory within a township is, in fact, incorporated. It is incorporated both as a township and apparently is incorporated also as one of several villages.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I yield to Mrs. Cushman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: This is a question I raised myself in the committee, and the answer I got was that in this particular case, they felt the term "unincorporated territory" would have the meaning that we were after. Whether this is a satisfactory answer or not is not up to me, but this is a problem that was discussed and this was the answer that was given.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make it perfectly clear then, so that there will be no misunderstanding, that what we are talking about here when we speak of unincorporated territory, we are speaking of a township within whose boundaries there is no unincorporated areas, so that all of its area is either within the boundaries of a city or a village.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Will the secretary read the amendment, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. G. E. Brown offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 1, after "Sec. d.", by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "The legislature shall provide by law for the elimination of township government whenever there is no unincorporated territory within such township.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Brown, speaking on his amendment.

MR. G. E. BROWN: I prepared this amendment very quickly, members of the committee. I think that Mr. Hanna's point is well taken, that technically, if we considered a township a body corporate, that even "township" would be incorporated, as such. And so, possibly, instead of "Whenever there is no unincorporated territory within a township," it should say "when no portion of the township is not included within a city or village."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you wish to revise your amendment?

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, here I think that the substance of the amendment is clear; that if style and drafting decides that we should not use the word "unincorporated", they can put in appropriate language. The substance of the amendment is that it will be left with the legislature, which will be in a position to deal with the immediate problems involved, which cannot be contemplated by the members of the convention at this time, and technically it would be a legislative function, anyway. The mere thing we are doing is to establish that there is no necessity for continuing a township board or township officers when the township, in effect, ceases to exist as a governmental unit performing services, administrative or otherwise, for the inhabitants.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman does not wish to revise his amendment. Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to Mr. Brake, and ask him to comment on the amendment, if he will.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Two or three of us have made one error in talking about this. We speak about a township as being part of a city. A township is never a part of a city. Any township territory that goes into a city is therefore city territory and not township territory. We use the word "incorporated" in different senses in different contexts. What we are using it here for means simply this: when no part of a township is outside a village—that is the exact meaning of that language—then something has to be done, unless you want your governmental functions to be duplicated.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Based upon the clarification that Mr. Brake has made, I would like to urge the committee to defeat the amendment and to adopt the committee language. I think that it does do the job that we originally intended. However, the committee holds no great pride of authorship with the language. All we want to do is to try to solve or give an opportunity for the solution of this within the constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor for the purpose of offering a substitute amendment. Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I don't know whether this is a substitute or not, Mr. Chairman. I think it is consistent with the committee's report and with Mr. Brown's attempt to satisfy what Mr. Hutchinson raises as a series of problems, and this might be accomplished by striking, in line 3, "shall be abolished", and inserting "may be abolished as provided by law," so that we would leave to the legislature the matter of abolishing, and also when you look at the committee language, if we leave the rest of it intact, it is going to be necessary for the legislature to, in transferring these township powers to the village, create some new kind of village, or at least to modify the present form of the village so that the functions could be taken in.

For example, there would have to be a classification system, because the clerk in this village would then be the clerk for the purpose of state and county elections, and you couldn't, very well, have a statute that says, "clerks of villages shall be clerks of state and county elections," that had statewide application in villages other than the kind that we are talking about here, without disrupting the entire machinery that presently exists for the conduct of elections.

This would make the language more permissive than the present language "shall be abolished", leaving it to the legislature to provide a method of abolition, and I believe that this was motivated, as Mr. Elliott said, by a situation that exists in Wayne county where we have one township and village that have exactly the same boundaries at the present time, with 2 sets of officers.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Ford amendment is not a substitute amendment, in that it perfects the language in the body of section d. The Brown amendment strikes the language. Because of this we shall consider the Ford amendment first. The secretary shall read the Ford amendment to section d.

SECRETARY CHASE: The Ford amendment is as follows:

1. Amend page 2, line 3, after "ment" by striking out "shall be abolished" and inserting "may be abolished as provided by law"; so that the language will then read:

> Whenever there is no unincorporated territory within a township, the township government may be abolished as provided by law, if a majority of those voting on a referendum in the township approve.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Ford amendment to section d. The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Personally, I think I like Mr. Brown's amendment a bit better. I think it is a little bit clearer. However, I would, if we had a chance, amend it further. Therefore, I would like to speak against the Ford amendment because I think that we can get better words using Mr. Brown's base.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Delegate King.

MR. KING: I would like to address, through the Chair, a question to Mr. Ford, if I might. I am concerned about the second word "shall" in line 5. "Its functions shall then be assumed by the village or villages as provided by law" in line 5. Isn't it also possible that these functions could also be assumed by a city?

MR. FORD: I have a circle drawn around this "shall". It presents a real question, when you get down to it, and this is the question that Senator Hutchinson raised, when you direct that the functions go to a village rather than to some other unit of government. As he indicated, perhaps the real flexibility would be a situation where, if anything, the legislature would provide that when you reach a status where you have no unincorporated territory left in a township, you become a fourth class city. This might be an easy way to solve the whole problem, because you then end up with one set of officers. You wouldn't have to go through the problem of adopting a charter, and you would be in pretty much the same status as the village would be, so that might help, if you took that whole sentence out, to accomplish that.

MR. KING: I will not suggest an amendment at this time because I think Senator Hutchinson or someone else will take care of it. I just raised the question. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Ford amendment. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 995.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: All those in favor of the Ford amendment will say aye. Those opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

The question before the committee now is the amendment offered by Delegate Brown. The secretary will again read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brown's amendment is as follows:

1. Amend page 2, line 1, after "Sec. d.", by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "The legislature shall provide by law for the elimination of township government whenever there is no unincorporated territory within such township.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Brown amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: I wish to inquire, Mr. Chairman, of Delegate Brown, if he will change the language in the last part, "no unincorporated territory within such township," to language, "when all the territory of the township has been incorporated as villages"?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Kalamazoo care to answer?

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hanna, and members of the committee, it seems to me that here we, once again as Mr. Brake mentioned—and I think that contrary to Mr. Elliott's suggestion, Mr. Brake was not speaking against my amendment, but was attempting to clarify the language—are getting back to the question of whether or not, when we speak of unincorporated territory, we are talking about unincorporated in the sense of a government being a body corporate or we are speaking of incorporated in the sense of an incorporated village or city, and I therefore see no great necessity for the additional language at this time.

If style and drafting, of which Mr. Hanna, I believe, is a member, feels that this other language should be used, rather than the simple language of "unincorporated territory", I certainly would have no objection to style and drafting making that change. However, as stated, I think that the proposed wording of the amendment is valid and should be supported by the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: My only objection to the amendment of Mr. Brown is that it, in no way, provides for representation on the county board of supervisors, and I believe the only implication that it provides for representation for villages is that the legislature shall, by law, provide for it, and it doesn't actually say that. I oppose Mr. Brown's amendment on that point.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Brown's amendment. I think that the constitutional convention might be writing some rigidity into the constitution that maybe it has not well thought out, when it constitutionally directs that in case of the abolishing of the township under these circumstances, its functions would then be assumed by the village or villages.

Because of the reasons that have been pointed out already, there are some tremendous problems here, and I think that what will happen to these township functions under those circumstances should be left to the legislature, because the situation might differ from one part of the state to another.

As a matter of fact, my belief in this situation is that under these circumstances, you are actually creating these villages as cities and they should be so treated and so named. Under those circumstances, they should become cities, in which case they would have representation on the board of supervisors and they would perform these other governmental functions.

Your idea, in trying to save these villages as villages and at the same time vesting them with all the powers of the cities, is going to greatly complicate the structure of government in this state. For that reason, I support Mr. Brown's amendment, thinking that the matter can be best left up to the legislature after the thing has been very carefully worked out in all of its details.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Delegate Cushman, for the purpose of offering an amendment to the Brown amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Cushman offers the following amendment to Mr. Brown's amendment:

1. Amend the amendment after "there is no" by striking out "unincorporated territory" and inserting "territory which is not included within the borders of a village"; so that the language will read:

> The legislature shall provide by law for the elimination of township government whenever there is no territory which is not included within the borders of a village within such township.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I think my purpose is clear here. I think it expresses better what, at least I, as the maker of the original proposal, or one of them, had in mind when we were talking about this, and I think it expresses better what the committee was talking about when we were working on it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the adoption of the Cushman amendment to the Brown amendment to section d. The secretary will read the Cushman amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Cushman's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee and Mrs. Cushman, I would only suggest that this includes a double negative and you should just say "when all territory is part of a village", if you are going to do this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate Cushman. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, I belive that the Cushman amendment should be adopted. I think it answers Mr. Hutchinson's objection also in that it gives the legislature the alternative of then saying that these cities shall henceforth be designated as cities, or it would leave them the option of transferring the functions to the villages themselves, and I think this would clearly cover both objections from either side of this question. I believe it should be adopted.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I believe the Cushman amendment to the Brown amendment expresses the opinion of the committee fully, and unless otherwise, I would urge its adoption.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Cushman amendment to the Brown amendment. The gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: I would merely suggest to the members of the committee that in doing this, by saying 'included in a village", conceivably there would be a city within this township. The language, as it presently is written in the Cushman amendment, says that any territory which is not included in a village, which would include land which is included in a city.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment once more, Mr. Brown.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 996.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I just wanted to say what Mr. Brake has already explained, that a city, when it becomes a city, is no longer part of the township. We don't have to worry about that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Cushman amendment to the Brown amendment. All those in favor of the Cushman amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment to the amendment is adopted.

The question before the committee now is the amendment offered by Delegate Brown. The secretary will read the amendment as amended.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brown's amendment as now amended is to strike out the language of section d, lines 1 through 9 on page 2, and insert:

"The legislature shall provide by law for the elimination of township government whenever there is no territory which is not included within the borders of a village within such township.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Brown amendment as amended. As many as are in favor of the Brown amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment, as amended, is adopted.

Are there any more amendments to section d of Committee Proposal 82?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If not, it will pass.

Section d, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read section e.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section e.

[Sec. e. was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 980.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Rogers City, Delegate Radka.

MR. RADKA: This is section 19 of the present constitution, and it deals with public utilities.

I yield to the delegate from Traverse City, the chairman of the subcommittee on public utilities, Mr. Julius Sleder.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Radka yields to Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, relative to the public utilities in the constitution, they are involved in several areas, so the plan is that we will take up each section as it is adaptable to each area, that is, to the village or township or city. However, before we discuss these individual sections, I would like to make a few remarks relative to public utilities, and when we speak of public utilities, we must think of utilities as those services which municipalities or private enterprise provides in order to better serve their citizens.

These utilities encompass water, light, heat, power, transportation, and perhaps sewage disposal. There is a possibility that, over the years this constitution is in effect, other new utilities may come into being, and we must realize that over time, utilities may change in importance.

For example, when the 1908 constitution was written, the utility of light and power was comparatively new. In its beginning years, it was not attractive to private capital to enter into the light and power business because of it being in an experimental and developmental state. Therefore, it became necessary for the municipalities to engage in this business so that it could better serve its people.

In many instances, in the beginning of this particular utility, it was not self supporting, as are many of our present day utilities. As the light and power business developed, it became attractive to private industry and private capital when it began to offer a very reasonable dividend on its investment. Therefore, today we find private capital engaged in the light and power business throughout the whole state, with a diminishing interest in public owned power plants. As we look ahead, in the years to come, we may find other utilities that may become attractive to private capital.

Transportation, over the next 50 or 60 years, through development and research, may become more attractive to private enterprise than it is today. The disposal of sewage or the distribution of heat may find new methods and force, which may change our present concept of this service.

We must, therefore, in writing these sections, be aware of the changing situations in order to do our best in controlling the public utilities for both the benefit of the public and municipal and privately owned utilities.

Our first section deals with the franchise in townships, of utilities in obtaining franchises in townships.

This is section e, and I should like to yield the floor to Delegate Burton Richards for the explanation of this section. I should like also to add that in the subcommittee on public utilities, serving with Delegate Burton Richards were Mrs. Hatcher and Mr. Madar.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The delegate from Traverse City yields to the gentleman from Eau Claire, Delegate Richards. Delegate Richards is not in the hall at the present time.

Are there any amendments to section e of Committee Proposal 82? If not, it will pass.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, I am seeking recognition.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: For what purposes does the delegate from Bay City rise?

MR. HIGGS: I have a question on section e. I do not propose an amendment, but I would like to get the understanding and intention of the committee. As I read that sentence, it says, "No township shall grant any public utility franchise which is not subject to revocation at the will of the township, unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote. . . ." I am wondering if they intend that if it does receive an affirmative vote the township may grant a franchise which is not subject to revocation at the will of the township.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you direct you question to delegate Sleder? Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: Mr. Chairman, I should like to withhold that question for a moment, if I may, and yield the floor to Mr. Madar. I was not aware that Mr. Burton Richards was not on the floor at this time, and I would like to have Mr. Madar cover the rationale on this section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Sleder yields to the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, this was up to Mr. Richards to take care of, and, in fact, I would much prefer he did, because I have a minority report in on that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Richards has entered the chamber, Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: Delegate Richards, would you want to cover the rationale for section e relative to township franchises?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Eau Claire, Delegate Richards.

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: I am sorry that I was outside at the time.

[The supporting reasons to Sec. e were read by Mr. Richards. For text, see above, page 981.]

Also, may I comment that many of the people may not get the services of the franchise for several years after the vote.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I am sorry there was a little confusion; however, I have been able to satisfy Mr. Higgs privately. There is, elsewhere in this article on local government, a provision which limits the length of term of franchises to 30 years.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section e of Committee Proposal 82? If not, it will pass.

Section e is passed.

Are there any amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 82?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Pollock offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 6, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the committee proposal and inserting:

"The legislature may provide by general law for the organization and government, and for the dissolution, of political subdivisions other than counties, cities and villages. Each such political subdivision shall have such powers as may be prescribed by general law.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I hope I can provide some contrast to the tedious and rather useless discussion we have had this morning on townships. I do this because I came here, and I think we all came here, for the purpose of trying to modernize our constitution and to strengthen state and local government, so that they could perform their functions more effectively within the federal system.

I still adhere to the idea that we need strong local government, and it seems to me that this is what we have not gotten from the committee in its presentation about townships. I had hoped that this would give us an opportunity to reexamine the whole structure of local government and to see what is wrong with it. There are, obviously, a good many things wrong with it, and I am sure that in the total presentation of the committee, a number of improvements are going to emerge.

But, so far as this section on townships, which we are now discussing, is concerned, it seems to me that we have done a little tinkering, a little pasting here, a little pasting there and have not really faced up to the problem presented by the townships.

I don't propose to make a speech attacking townships. I am not even proposing the elimination of townships, although this is something that I think at some time, certainly within our lifetime, will have to be considered. I am merely proposing what seems to me to be a sound procedure by which townships, instead of being embalmed in the constitution, shall die a natural death by statute. It seems to me, in other words, that this whole field is not now a proper field for constitutional action. I see no reason why the townships should be preserved in the constitution and we should worry about whether they are elected for 2 years or 4 years, and I do congratulate the committee that at least they eliminated the commissioner of highways, a position which hasn't existed, anyway, I believe, since 1934, although some townships, I understand, have still continued to choose commissioners of highways.

I congratulate them, too, on eliminating that old ancient relic known as the constable, but, after all, this was tinkering. This wasn't really facing up to the problem of what is a township, do we need a township, and is it necessary and is it helpful in the present local government situation? It seems to me, as I have said, that I think townships should not be given, in this constitution—this modern constitution we are drawing up—constitutional status.

I think the legislature should be free to consolidate their functions or to regulate their functions, but particularly to consolidate their functions into one of the other forms of local government. I certainly do not feel that we need 1,258 townships in addition to 83 counties. I do not feel that we need as many service oriented forms of government as we have at the present time. This involves villages as well.

I am interested to provide for the natural growth of a strong, vigorous local government. We are told that in a very short time, Michigan will have a city density, across the whole southern edge of the state. I doubt seriously if townships can be expected to cope with the service problems that will be created by this situation. I see no reason why cities need to be kept in their present straitjackets, at the same time the taxpayers continue to refuse to face up to their developmental responsibilities. I feel that the state needs to assert its legitimate and overriding interest in the health and economic future of all these growing areas.

Michigan's pressing need, at the present time, for a good industrial climate—which, after all, involves the availability of city type services to large areas of undeveloped land—demonstrates to me the urgency of the problem of local government in Michigan.

Our present population explosion is bound to accentuate the very acute needs that are already in the offing, in such matters as water conservation, sewage treatment, traffic control, urban renewal, airports and other huge governmental undertakings at the local level.

I think the new constitution has to empower local units to meet these tasks promptly and efficiently. Inherent in this solution it seems to me, would be a resolution of the present friction between cities and townships, friction which undoubtedly exists. These are the neighboring and, basically, I think, inconsistent forms of local government now prevailing in Michigan.

Cities are formed to govern and provide all kinds of services in areas having a high density of population. Normally, these areas have already accumulated the necessary central service facilities. They have an adequate tax base to provide the high level of services that are demanded. They have grown from natural drainage courses or basins. But townships were fashioned from surveyors' lines, without reference to the character of use given or its topography, in order to provide a minimum of governmental control, protection and record keeping.

As our growth from adjoining cities has taken place, rural areas have become urban, our legislature hasn't insisted upon political growth or accommodation, but it has adopted merely a patchwork of statutes conferring additional powers to permit townships, in some cases, to act like cities. This has weakened the cities a great deal. Also, large rural areas, I think, should not be forced into subservience to a populous suburban corner which obviously adjoins a nearby city from which it really grew.

I feel that the typical township is quite incapable of handling the vast demands of the native public. It hasn't any central plan, it has no topographical feasibility, it usually doesn't have a diverse tax base.

A mere recitation of all the needs and the complexities in high density areas, needs that are leaning upon units of local government, I need not cite to you. But presently, city growth occurs rather naturally. It follows highways, it follows telephone, electricity and so on; but the trouble is, here we come into the difficult partitioning process, the problem of annexation, I believe—although I haven't yet had time to study all of the proposals put out by this committee—and I understand the very serious problem of annexation is dealt with in one of the proposals, and I pass over that. But this is a very serious problem. Cities are becoming stunted by what I would call the "township straitjacket", and they are expected to serve areas, but actually, because of this straitjacket, many times are not able to do so.

To be very brief, I merely want to present to this convention —I certainly couldn't sleep very well if I didn't know that the convention, at least, had an opportunity to pass on the broad problem involved here of whether we want a flexible constitution, whether we want to put into the constitution unnecessary material, and whether we feel that the problems of local government do require some modern treatment.

I feel, briefly, that we only need 2 areas, 2 forms of local government; that is the county, which is area oriented, and the city, which is service oriented. Consequently, I do not feel that we should embalm the townships in the constitution for another 50 years. I think the legislature should have the flexibility to handle the development of local government in a natural way.

Some 28 states of the union have gotten along without townships, despite the fact that we have now, I believe, 1,258 of them, with all the cost of maintaining them. A county sized unit could provide all the functions now performed by townships and do them in a more orderly and equitable fashion.

In other words, without moving to abolish townships—which would be a very shocking thing and perhaps even a disturbing thing to do—I am merely suggesting that we no longer need to preserve townships in the constitution and that we give the legislature the power to handle these and other related emerging problems by statute.

I am merely asking you to do a little basic rethinking of the role of cities and of the other forms of local government in outstate, and to take a somewhat fresh and flexible approach in the future. (applause)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Pollock amendment to Committee Proposal 82. The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Dr. Pollock, members of the committee, I have a great deal of respect for Dr. Pollock and for his views, and I feel that if his points were taken at a constitutional convention where we had no history of government behind it, that the position might be well taken.

I would like to point out to the committee that this state of ours has, over the years, utilized to a high degree—particularly in our areas that are not as urban as the Doctor was talking about—this form of government, township government. It is satisfied with this form of government, and this form of government meets its needs.

Our committee on local government made quite exhaustive studies in the last 3 months, as to the various forms of government that are available to our people. It was our considered opinion that, with the other provisions that you have not yet had an opportunity to hear debated on this floor, we were strengthening the ability of the existing forms of government to meet the needs of its people, whether they be urban or whether they be rural.

I think when you are writing a constitution for people you have to also consider something besides the pure approach to structure. You have to consider the background, the temperament and the emotions of those who are involved. There are over 7,800,000 people in the state of Michigan, and many of them—not all—many of them are completely cognizant of the township form of government and are eminently well satisfied.

I respectfully disagree with the good Doctor in his resultant position, although I do agree in theory with some of the positions he took in his report, and I would like to urge the defeat of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, Dr. Pollock, I, of course, hesitate somewhat to take issue with the world renowned political scientist, our colleague from Ann Arbor, but I must do so. Dr. Pollock has mentioned embalming the townships. It is true he has said that he didn't want to embalm them at the moment, but I submit that he certainly is getting them scheduled for that very thing. He wants to kill them off, and as surely as he kills them, somebody is going to have embalm them.

Now, Dr. Pollock asks, "What is wrong with local government?" Well, one of the things, Dr. Pollock, that is characteristic with all government is that local government costs too much money. There isn't any question about that. And, "What is helpful about townships?" One of the things that is helpful about them is that they don't spend quite as much money as other units of government.

I am talking now about the 1,061 townships in the state of Michigan that have less than 3,000 people. As the chairman of the committee indicated, that government satisfies those people. It does an adequate job for those people. It does keep them interested in local government. They take their town meetings and they take their elections quite seriously. Out in our territory, they think quite a lot of that government; they don't want to give it up. And I submit to you that anything that keeps people interested in government at the local level is good.

We had a lot of testimony in our committee, and our advisor, Dr. Adrian, wrote to the Pennsylvania State University for some information about townships in the state of Pennsylvania. He got a return reply from a political scientist who is associate professor of political science and public administration at the Pennsylvania State University, and this is what the professor said in reply to Dr. Adrian's letter—and this is directed to Dr. Adrian:

> Any political scientist would be horrified at the structure form of the township. Traditionally, it lacks a strong executive, it possesses the kind of power dispersion of most rural forms of government, and so on and so forth. He further says that,

> The structure could cause an observer to wonder why any community would wish to embrace such an archaic form, and then he goes on to say,

> However, if the organizational structure is successful in providing basic services, people are probably disinclined to question the structural forms used in the process.

Then he ends up by saying,

> In general, then, the consensus of political judgment would tend to agree with this statement, "The township has succeeded in providing basic services to the suburban areas, in spite of, rather than because of what it is."

So, don't you see, you get conflicting opinions from political scientists, and we had a lot of them in our hearings on local government.

Now, I just say to you, these 1,061 townships—not the 1,258—that are in the predominantly rural areas—have less than 3,000 population in them, and they are the ones we are primarily concerned about; they do a good job for what they were designed to do; they are adequate; they keep the people interested in their local affairs, and we should not, by any means, provide any kind of a schedule that would eventually require embalming those townships.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Howell, Delegate Sharpe, still seek recognition on the Pollock amendment?

MR. SHARPE: Yes, Mr. Chairman. Dr. Pollock, I would like to state this fact, that I am happy that we did please you to at least some small degree by abolishing some of the township officers which we do not use any more. However, I would like to also say that we, I believe, all came to this convention with the same purpose in mind, plus the fact that we would like to draft a document that would be acceptable to the people. I believe, sometimes, that we are losing sight of the fact that the people are going to vote on it and not just this convention.

I am surprised that the state of Michigan has come along as well as it has for so many years with so many serious things wrong with our constitution. I cannot agree with Dr. Pollock with regard to the township not being able to handle its problems. It has done well so far.

In regard to the lower half of Michigan becoming a city, I can remember very distinctly, probably 30 to 35 years ago, when the pavement between Grand Rapids and Detroit was first laid out and paved, that the consensus of opinion then was that one of these days soon we will have Detroit reach out to Fowlerville. This has never happened. As a matter of fact, it hasn't even hardly gotten past Redford. I am not so sure that we are going to have a vast city in the lower half of Michigan.

In regard to this township business, I don't believe that any of us here will ever live long enough to see the day that the township is not a vital form of government within our community. It is a basis of your political parties and if you are interested in centralization—which I am strictly opposed to—than I would say that you might be interested in doing away with the township. But, as soon as you do away with a political organization, you are losing interest by the people.

I think, possibly, that this might be the motive of some people in this convention, and that is to create lack of interest in this political organization. I believe that we should maintain both political parties, very strongly and vigorously, and these things start at home, where everyone knows everyone, and they get around at the town meeting, and are really interested in their politics.

I say that argument for the sake of argument is good, as things, always good, come from a compromise.

I would wholeheartedly support the committee proposal, and absolutely like to have you all vote against Dr. Pollock's amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate Pollock. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bad Axe, Delegate McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: I oppose Dr. Pollock's amendment and am in favor of the committee proposal. I don't claim to be any political theorist, but I do claim to have practical knowledge of township government. The township government is more than a matter of legislation. The township supervisor aids people in getting welfare, aids people in getting into the hospital, committed to institutions; in fact, he is, in effect, the advisor of the people in the area.

At the township level, on settlement day, why, everything is gone over with a magnifying glass, and I say it is the best form of government and the closest government of the people in Michigan.

I don't see how anybody can look through a crystal ball and see what is happening all over Michigan. I am definitely in favor of retaining the township.

Another thing, in township government you have your supervisor, and he is a part of our county government. So even the smallest unit of the county has representation there. I think the combined judgment of those people from the different areas of the township is far better than any other form of government, because those people are closely scrutinized, their county expenses are closely scrutinized, and taxes are not saddled on a smaller area to a greater extent than they are on a bigger area. Also, the benefits, where you have a township form of government and a board of supervisors, are pretty equally spread out throughout the county.

When we destroy township government, we are coming into centralized government. We have too much centralized government already. It seems to me that we have a group here who would like to make it more centralized. I have been outside of this country, in many areas, and have observed the governments, and where you have it centralized where townships don't exist, you may go to the courthouse 50 miles away from where you live and find that all the crew is out fishing. But, you won't have that as long as you maintain township government.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I don't think I have ever heard anybody talk about good government and actually speak the truth as well as I have heard it expressed this morning by Dr. Pollock. I have disagreed with Dr. Pollock on more than one occasion. I have disagreed with many of you people, the rest of the delegates, on more than one occasion, and I have been with you on occasions. One thing I don't think anybody can take away from me and that is that I do believe in a good, modern form of government.

Let's just see what is wrong. I don't believe that Dr. Pollock or I actually believe that we ought to cast out, completely, a small township form of government. Let's look at what we have here. Years ago, delegates met at a constitutional convention, just as you and I are doing today, and they felt that we must have a small, local unit of government, but that didn't mean that the township would have 15,000, 20,000, 30,000, 40,000, 45,000, or 80,000 people. They were thinking in units, local units of 500, 1,000, 1,500, 2,000 population, and that is what township government meant to them in those days. This is something we have completely forgotten. What we have done now, we have gone up to where a township is 80,000 population, 90,000, if you please.

Talk about centralizing government, aren't we centralizing government if we would call the city of Detroit the township of Detroit? What would be the difference in centralizing government? That would make it as bad as Russia or a lot of other places.

Just as you say that cities would centralize government—oh, let's be honest with ourselves. Some time ago, in local government, I was quite angry because I heard—yes, smile, if you please, I am angry now, but not as angry as you may think; this is my method of speaking. Frankly I am not as angry as much as I sympathize with you. I have sympathy for you, not sympathize with you because you are not thinking clearly. There are too many of you who are thinking strictly of, what have I got in this particular government which gives me something in this pocket which makes me a big shot.

When I said that the greatest deterrent to good government would be the big frogs in the little pond, and the petty politician who is striking out for himself—I say this. You may tell me that your people don't want this, but I say, take your petty politicians, take your big frogs out of that little pond; dump them on a big island out in the Pacific ocean and then let those people get 4 or 5 people on a committee and I will guarantee you that they would throw out your archaic government so fast that it would make your head swim, not you, trying to swim back from that island to the mainland to try to be a big boss in a little pond again.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair reminds the committee that we are discussing the Pollock amendment. The Chair would point out that there are 8 people seeking recognition, and the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Flint, Delegate McLogan.

MR. McLOGAN: Mr. Chairman, just one brief word here, without taking sides in this matter before us. As a member of the committee on local government, I would like to point out that we did not formally consider or debate such a proposition as Professor Pollock has just submitted. The local government committee did not take a vote on any such proposition as that. Therefore, I do not think that the committee of the whole should make any inference from the fact that there was no recommendation with regard to the proposition submitted by Professor Pollock, and I would say only one further word, that the Professor's proposition, as he so clearly outlined, does not destroy township government, it merely provides the flexibility and the change that we, day by day, give lip service to.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Would the Chair tell me how many names you have on your list?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: At the present time, Delegate Elliott, there are 8 people seeking recognition.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I move the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott moves the the committee do now rise. All those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration several items on which the secretary will give a more detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 82; has considered several amendments thereto; and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I would like to rise to a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You may proceed.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Yesterday, at the conclusion of our session, Delegate Ford questioned the accuracy of a report that I had given to this convention and implied that the statement that I had made was not accurate with respect to the approval of the judicial branch committee on the committee's amendment to its own proposal which I presented for the committee last Friday. The report attached to the amendment stated that the action of the committee was unanimous.

I have in my hand the tally of the committee clerk on the action taken on February 7, which shows a unanimous vote of 16 members of the committee, then present, voting on the matter. Delegate Ford was absent from that session.

I would just like to correct the implication that the report which I gave was not accurate.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, is this the proper time to correct an error in the journal?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Yes.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would like to correct an error in Journal 71, page 494, in the second line, which reads: "has already been used for that reason," and it should read, "has rarely". The word "already" should have read "rarely".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be corrected.

[Correction made, see below, page 1110.]

Mr. Chase, announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. DeVries announces a meeting of the committee on administration at 1:30 this afternoon.

The committee on style and drafting will meet at 8:00 o'clock this evening, William B. Cudlip, chairman.

The committee on emerging problems will meet Wednesday in room I at 1:00 o'clock, Frank Millard, chairman.

That is all the announcements.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Howes.

MR. HOWES: Mr. President, I move that this convention recess until 2:00 o'clock today.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Howes that we recess. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

We are recessed until 2:00 o'clock p.m.

[Whereupon, at 11:55 o'clock a.m., the convention recessed; and at 2:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

The convention will please come to order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of certain items on the general orders calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. DeVries. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order. When last the committee met, it was considering Committee Proposal 82, and an amendment offered to it by the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Delegate Pollock. The Chair had Delegate Stafseth on the list for recognition, speaking on the Pollock amendment.

MR. STAFSETH: Mr. Chairman, would you read that amendment, please? It has been quite a long time and I can't remember it too well.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment offered by Mr. Pollock.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 998.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Stafseth.

MR. STAFSETH: There are only 2 points that I would like to raise. One is my own personal experience in dealing with townships and counties and being in city government, but in the state of Michigan, with the type of topography we have, we are basically a flat, agricultural county or state, and inasmuch as we are that type of a state, the township type of organization fits our needs very well. It is a very effective part time reasonable government for a rural area.

In Dr. Pollock's statement, if you take the 28 other states of the United States that have eliminated the township form of government and review those 28 states, you will find that a majority of them, or a large majority of them, are states such as Pennsylvania, North Carolina, or ones with very rugged terrains, where, actually, a large part of the county is nothing more than the side of a mountain.

When you make a fair comparison of township government, where it exists in flat, agricultural land, and look at our neighboring states, you will see that the precedent still stands with this type of government.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ann Arbor speaking on his amendment, Delegate Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Stafseth, the answer to that question is very easy. Pennsylvania does have the township form, and despite what our friend, Mr. Farnsworth, said or implied this morning, Pennsylvania is finding townships very constricting. We got information following the information that was given to you. I happen to be a Pennsylvanian myself, and know something about that situation. We found that exactly what I said was the case, that the townships are putting the big, urban areas into a straitjacket.

But with reference to your question on topography, it might interest you to know, as you could have read in the citizens research study on this point, that Iowa, within the last decade, has eliminated the township form of government for the whole state. Iowa, I thought, is where the tall corn grows, and therefore, I can't see the point of its application to Michigan. Obviously, Iowa and Michigan are quite different. Michigan has, of course, its very important rural areas, but actually it is also a great industrial state.

Now that I am on my feet, Mr. Chairman, I don't intend and had no intention of prolonging this debate, but I ask you, you now have the text of this amendment, to put that beside the work of the committee, and I challenge anybody in this room to say that this is not better constitutional drafting.

This is the only issue I am asking you to vote on. I did not move to abolish townships. It rather hurts me when my friend over here says that I haven't the same tender feelings for township supervisors and the people who live in townships. They are the best people in the world. They are not just in Sanilac county. We have them in Washtenaw county, and a lot of them voted for me.

This isn't the issue. This is sand in the eye, just like the remarks of the chairman, I thought, were a little offside, too, when he implied that there was something theoretical about this; the structure of government was one thing, emotions and feelings of people were another.

Now, I don't ever mind being called a theorist. I have been called many things worse—communist, professor, everything else. But, if you don't have a theory at a time when you are building a constitutional convention, what are you doing? You must be just taking it off the top of your head. If you don't have a theoretical framework within which to argue, what do you argue for? Of course I have a theoretical framework in which I am fitting all this, but theory, as it's been bandied about this floor, seems to overlook the fact that there isn't too much difference between theory and practice among intelligent people. If you find a lot of difference, where people simply argue without any frame of reference and without any experience or observation or study—and I insist that it isn't all experience, it is also a question of understanding the trend of the times.

What I said, therefore, about townships, I only said to make my case. The fact is, I believe, that since the Constitution of 1908 was adopted, townships have been on the decline. Whether they are withering on the vine or not, I wasn't saying.

As a matter of fact, I didn't have time to prepare a speech on townships. I am not talking exactly on the subject of whether we should have a township or whether we shouldn't. I am merely saying that in the future of this state, there has to be reasonable flexibility and adaptability in adjusting the forms of local government to the needs of the times, and empowering those local governments to do the jobs that we expect them to do. This is the only issue, and I don't want any more sand thrown in the eyes on that issue. It is merely a question, is my amendment better than the committee draft? If you think so, vote yes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Saginaw, Delegate Turner, seek recognition on the Pollock amendment?

MR. TURNER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I certainly appreciate Dr. Pollock's imagination. I think that imagination and initiative are qualities that everyone needs. But at this point we are talking about local government, government at the grass roots level; 1,258 areas with people in them handling their own affairs in the most economical way possible. This form of government reminds me of a log raft. It is slow, it is hard to direct sometimes, but you can't sink it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Blandford.

MR. BLANDFORD: Fellow delegates, I find myself differing from Dr. Pollock in looking ahead to some of our upcoming items on apportionment. This may not be the last time that he and I will differ.

I would like to say that his amendment, although it does not abolish townships, does single out townships as the only agency that can be dissolved.

I feel that Dr. Pollock's thesis and the thesis that we are hearing from a lot of people at this convention is that large government is the best government, and I will have to confess that I subscribed to this idea once myself.

I come from the city of Grand Rapids, as you all know. I took kind of a dim view of township government. I did until I was elected to a Kent county board of supervisors and served 8 years there. On the board I found myself associated with men who, in my humble judgment, are dedicated, sincere, and give a lot of government for very little compensation. They give good government at a minimum cost. For the edification of my good friend, Mr. Madar, I might say that I got nothing from township government, and when I am through with this convention, I am going to run for just one thing: I am going to run for my lumber yard back in Grand Rapids.

I do feel, very sincerely, that large government is not the best government. I feel government closest to the people is the best government. I am one city delegate who stands very firm for the maintenance of township government. (applause)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair will recognize the lady from Detroit, Delegate Hatcher.

MRS. HATCHER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to make a few brief comments concerning the Pollock amendment. As a delegate to this convention, I have had the opportunity of serving on the local government committee. The local government committee, as you perhaps know, consisted of 27 members. The majority of the members of the local government committee were people who participated daily in county or city activities as paid employees on leave from their various positions. I think there were only one or two of us on the committee who were not active officials in county or local government in some form or the other.

My reason for making these comments at this time is to, first of all, say that I regret that the committee did not have the opportunity of the thinking of Dr. Pollock at the outset of our deliberations in that particular session. I think the comments that he made are certainly ideal.

I think the fact that many of the people who served on the local government committee were dealing with real problems, perhaps, took away some of the imagination that they may have had if they had been dealing with the idea in mind that we were working on a projection, a document for the future and one that would benefit the entire state of Michigan.

I think that there was too much impulsive thinking. I was criticized, as a member of that committee, for not making more comments from time to time in the daily deliberations—not seriously criticized, but I felt that there were many people on the committee who had a greater degree of experience in the area of local government than, perhaps, what I had at the time.

I think that imagination is certainly the kind of thing that we, as delegates, ought to use more of, because, as a member of the minority party here, that is about all I can have at the moment, imagination.

I certainly think that the observations that Dr. Pollock made, in terms of what we can expect in local government, what we can expect in terms of population explosion and everything else in the state of Michigan, this is the type of thinking that I would have liked to have worked around and helped to guide me in my deliberations in the local government program.

Those are the remarks I would like to say. I still feel that the committee's report is the report that I must support, because I was a part of making that deliberation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Hancock, Delegate Heideman, still seek recognition on the Pollock amendment?

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the township serves a very real purpose and fulfills a very real need in local self government in the state of Michigan. This is not only true today, but so far as one can intelligently predict, the township will be needed in the indefinite future. No one has shown us a better scheme or system to replace the township as a necessary part of good Michigan local government. I would like to uphold the township, not only as a matter of practice but as a matter of theory, and even idealism in government. I do not think it an exaggeration to say that I am interested in writing an ideal constitution.

It is difficult for me to picture life in my far away area, and many of the other areas of our state of over 600 miles in length, without the township as an essential unit of local self government.

I would like to review a story told about James A. Garfield, which I think is, in a way, apropos of the making of the constitution. He was president of Hiram College in Ohio for awhile, and while there he was approached by the father of a prospective student, who said, "Can't you simplify the courses? My boy will never take all that in. He wants to get through by a shorter route." "Certainly", answered Garfield, "I can arrange for that. It all depends, of course, on what you want to make of him. When God wants to make an oak, he takes 100 years, but when he wants to make a squash, he requires only a couple of months." I hope we don't end up making squashes here in Lansing.

I would like to uphold the committee proposal, but in the event that we have to amend, I would like to provide equality of treatment for the township by offering the following amendment: to amend Dr. Pollock's amendment in the third line by adding a comma after the word "cities", by striking the "and" and by adding "townships" after the word "villages", so it will read:

> The legislature may provide by general law for the organization and government, and for the dissolution, of political subdivisions other than counties, cities, villages, and townships.

Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Heideman, would you submit your amendment in writing to the secretary?

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar, speaking on the Pollock amendment, until Mr. Heideman has a chance to submit his amendment.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I just wish to correct some impressions that have been left. First I want to correct the impression that we did not discuss the elimination of large townships or of cutting out large townships. Now, understand what I said, "large townships", not the township that your ancestors thought were townships years ago.

You see, I have always felt that a township ceased being a township after it once got above 5,000 population. I believe you, in your own minds, feel the same way. Don't let these others, who are now talking about 20,000, 30,000, 50,000, 80,000 population townships make you feel differently. Don't let them get you over on their side just to protect something nice that they have for their own personal use.

Incidentally, I would, after I get through speaking, like to have the chairman of the committee tell you whether or not we discussed this particular subject. In fact, I even discussed the subject of having 5 different classes of cities, starting after a township got to the point where it had 10,000 population. From there on it would graduate to a city and go on from there.

Now then, to mention something else, about Mr. Turner's thought: he was worried about size. So far as we are concerned, as I just got through saying, the only place we are thinking about size is in the townships of 5,000 or 10,000 population. We would like to see those stay in existence. I think it is a wonderful thing. It does make for a good form of government, but after they reach that size, let's do something about them.

Now to correct Mr. Blandford's thought and the impression that he left. So far as my thinking that big government is the best government, you are very wrong, Mr. Blandford, so wrong that, well, it is just all out of proportion with what I have had to say. So far as I am concerned, I wish we didn't have any big government at all. But, when you have large areas, large cities, as we have, and as we have there in Detroit, we must have big government. We can't do anything else. You certainly aren't going to cut us into wards and let each one rule itself separately.

I think if we just keep these impressions straight, we won't have any troubles. Let's not try to pull any screens over anybody's eyes. Instead, let's pull screens down over these scoreboards so that we don't have to see how somebody else is voting to know how we want to cast our votes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if Mr. Madar would yield for a question?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Would the delegate from Detroit yield for a question?

MR. MADAR: To answer a question? Sure.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Madar, the question is, how many townships are there in the city of Detroit?

MR. MADAR: Mr. Farnsworth, I believe that you understand that there are no townships within the city of Detroit, and I don't think you had to ask that question and waste our time.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Rogers City, Delegate Radka, speaking on the Pollock amendment.

MR. RADKA: My only question, Mr. Chairman, is how many speakers do you have remaining now?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair has 3 delegates waiting for recognition on the Pollock amendment, understanding that Delegate Heideman is about to submit an amendment to the Pollock amendment.

MR. RADKA: I would at this time yield to Delegate Heideman so that he may submit his amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair might also point out that Delegate Boothby also has an amendment to the Pollock amendment.

The secretary will read the amendment offered by Delegate Heideman to the Pollock amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Heideman offers the following amendment to the amendment offered by Dr. Pollock:

1. Amend the amendment after "cities" by striking out "and" and inserting a comma and after "villages" by inserting "and townships"; so the language will read:

> The legislature may provide by general law for the organization and government, and for the dissolution, of political subdivisions other than counties, cities, villages and townships. Each such political subdivision shall have such powers as may be prescribed by general law.

MR. KING: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order, Delegate King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, we are just wasting a lot of time here by entertaining amendments which, obviously, in my opinion, are not in order. If he wants to move the whole thing as a substitute, that is one thing; but obviously this amendment contemplates a complete change in the meaning of Dr. Pollock's amendment. I am not speaking in favor of Dr. Pollock's amendment or against it, but I don't think we ought to entertain this type of an amendment at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate King, the Chair rules that the amendment is in order. The question is on the Heideman amendment to the Pollock amendment to Committee Proposal 82. All those in favor of the Heideman amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment to the amendment is not adopted.

The question before the committee now is the adoption of the Pollock amendment.

A division has been requested on the Heideman amendment —are you requesting a division on the Pollock amendment Mr. Heideman?

MR. HEIDEMAN: On my amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Heideman demands a division on the vote of the Heideman amendment to the Pollock amendment. Is there support for the demand?

SECRETARY CHASE: Sufficient number up.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: All those in favor of the Heideman amendment to the Pollock amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Heideman to the Pollock amendment, the yeas are 23, the nays are 90.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Niles, Delegate Boothby, for the purpose of offering an amendment. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Boothby offers the following amendment to the Pollock amendment:

1. Amend the amendment after "counties" by striking out the comma and "cities and villages"; so that the language will read:

> The legislature may provide by general law for the organization and government, and for the dissolution, of political subdivisions other than counties. Each such political subdivision shall have such powers as may be prescribed by general law.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the author of the amendment, Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, I will not belabor this point. I think it is self explanatory. However, I would note that I have great respect for cities, and I also have great respect for villages and townships. I do, however, feel that we should have equal protection of the law. I feel that townships are very much needed in our society, and I would take care of a possible error that was stated some few minutes ago. There are 11 midwestern states which have townships. We found that in the midwest it has been a very suitable political unit. I would argue in favor of the amendment which I have submitted to the Pollock amendment on the basis of more flexibility, and certainly this would be better constitutional drafting.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I don't see how Mr. Boothby can feel that it is good constitutional drafting. Mine was very carefully studied and matured. It was an amendment to the section on townships. Yours is thrown in off the top of your head the last minute and should have been put in in connection with counties, if you want to put it in.

I don't know what your idea of constitutional drafting is, but this would be considered deficient and not an improving amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bessemer, Delegate Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this committee, I think that we are at a point where we must approach the fact that Mr. McAllister has truly drawn the line.

There are those here who would say this: Let us throw the townships to the wolves, but let's preserve the cities, let's preserve the townships, let's have the big bureaucracy government for the cities, let's blanket these people in, and as far as the small people are concerned, we are not concerned with whether or not they have the right to choose their own government.

I submit to this committee that there are enough of ivory towered intellectuals here, that would take away from the people the right to govern themselves. It is time that the people have the right, and I say, in all fairness to Delegate Madar, in all fairness to Delegate Pollock, in all fairness to the rights of all of the people in this convention, that here and now is the time to decide this; if we are going to destroy the elective process, if we are going to have one mob bureaucracy ruled by a centralized intellectual ivory tower, then let's do away with all elective officials, let's appoint the governor, the lieutenant governor, the representatives and every other elected official and forget the democratic process. (laughter and applause)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair would remind the committee to confine their remarks to the Boothby amendment to the Pollock amendment on Committee Proposal 82. The question before the committee is the Boothby amendment to the Pollock amendment. The secretary will read the Boothby amendment to the Pollock amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Boothby's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1003.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Boothby amendment to the Pollock amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Niles, Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, I ask for a division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is there support for a division vote? Sufficient number up. All those in favor of the Boothby amendment to the Pollock amendment will vote aye. All those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Boothby, the yeas are 24, the nays are 92.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment to the amendment is not adopted.

The question before the committee now is the Pollock amendment to Committee Proposal 82. The secretary will read the Pollock amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Pollock's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 998.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Howell, Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, I would like to demand a division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Sharpe demands a division. Is there support? There is support for a division.

Delegate Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, are we now voting on the Pollock amendment?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: That is correct.

MR. DOWNS: I had asked sometime back to speak on the Pollock amendment and had been waiting very patiently.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair stands corrected, Vice President Downs. You were on the list and I skipped you inadvertently. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to say that I am in sympathy with the objective of not freezing the townships into the constitution. I would like to ask Dr. Pollock one or two questions, and I will be very brief.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. DOWNS: Dr. Pollock, am I correct that the intent here is neither to eliminate nor to freeze townships into the constitution, but to leave the matter up to the legislature?

MR. POLLOCK: Precisely.

MR. DOWNS: All right. What if the legislature would want to abolish a township or merge it into a new county government, would the people in the township have any protection in case they did not want that action taken?

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that is a matter that should be left to the legislature and, I think, considering the composition of the legislature, the fact that it is likely to continue to have very adequate rural representation, you need not fear any catastrophe.

MR. DOWNS: I believe that last answers my question quite adequately. One of the real reasons I hesitate, while agreeing with the principle, to support this is that Delegate Hart and I have an amendment which provides for rather strict standards on county home rule, and I am sure if I vote for this, some delegate will remind me and charge inconsistency later on. So, I would prefer more careful—I won't say more careful to Dr. Pollock, I do have that concern, but I can see his point about the legislature's representation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I would add that there is no reason that this should have any conflict with any adequate home rule provision. This will be deliberated later and it is going to be entirely a separate matter.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Madison Heights, Delegate Walker.

MR. WALKER: Prior to the vote on this, Mr. Chairman, would it be possible for us to hear the amendment and hear the section as amended one more time? It has been, once again, some time since we heard it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Pollock amendment is a completely new section and the secretary will read the Pollock amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Dr. Pollock's amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 998.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Pollock amendment to Committee Proposal 82. A division vote has been requested. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Just a brief comment on the drafting. It says:

> The legislature may provide by general law for the organization and government, and for the dissolution, of political subdivisions other than counties, cities and villages . . .

so I presume they cannot provide, by law, for the organization of cities and villages under the amendment as it is before the committee at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the author of the amendment, Delegate Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I am sure that was a sincere question, but it doesn't seem to me to be an extremely important one. It says "may" in the first place. We have already provided other places in the constitution for counties. We are going on to provide for cities and villages, and this clearly allows the flexibility which other parts of the constitution allow.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Pollock amendment to Committee Proposal 82. A division vote has been requested. All those who are in favor of the Pollock amendment will vote aye. All those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Dr. Pollock, the years are 41, the nays are 88.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 82?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. W. F. Hanna offers the following amendment to Committee Proposal 82:

1. Amend page 2, following line 14, by inserting:

"Sec. f. The legislature may by general law provide for an optional charter township form of township government which optional charter township shall have such officers selected in such manner as the optional charter township law shall provide.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, I don't want to belabor this point, but this is an effort to give the legislature power to further improve the charter township act. This act is a start in the right direction. It is a rather effective act. Mr. Farnsworth referred to the amendments which the legislature has adopted since the original act was first passed by the legislature. Those amendments, for good or for bad, were authored by myself, along with some others that were not adopted by the legislature.

However, one of the stumbling blocks in the charter township act is the constitutional provision that you must elect a supervisor, clerk and treasurer for 2 year terms or for 4 year terms; that in respect to the charter township act, those provisions governing general townships must be complied with, in an effort to create a charter township act. This would remove the limitation from the charter township act and give to the legislature some flexibility with regard to the officers of a township.

We have gone farther in this constitution, by freezing 2 to 4 trustees in the term and, in turn, we have taken out the highway commissioner and the constables, which were part of the objectionable features. But this would, in the charter township act, allow the legislature full and complete jurisdiction to design a good optional charter township act and remove from the restrictions on the legislature the power to deal with township offices.

I urge the adoption.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Delegate Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I would like to make this presentation without any great amount of feeling one way or the other on this proposition of possibly unfreezing the township, elective township officers, when a township decides to become a charter township.

I would say, however that it was discussed in the committee and we came to the conclusion that obviously the township unit would be electing some kind of local officials and that would be their governing board. We thought it made very little difference whether they called it a town board or a township commission or town council or what have you. In any event, they were going to be electing a treasurer, a clerk, a supervisor, and at least 2 trustees.

As it is now, that is their town board. Under the charter township act, they have a right to hire a superintendent and many of them do. The supervisor has a right to hire assisting help, and many of them do. They have a right to pave streets, to install curbs and gutters and sidewalks. They may levy special assessments. They may levy millage, 5 mills over and above their regular 15 mill limitation. By a vote of the people they can levy 10 mills without adhering to the 15 mill limitation. They may borrow money. They may own land. They may establish libraries. They can have a fire department, a police department. In effect, they can do really anything that they need to do, under a charter form of township government, which is permissible by statute at the present time.

Again I say, I do not feel strongly about this, personally, but I can not see, for the life of me, what possible difference it makes whether you free up those particular constitutional officers or not. They are going to be electing some kind of a town board.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the Hanna amendment to Committee Proposal 82. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hanna's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the amendment. All those in favor of the Hanna amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 82? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 82, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read Committee Proposal 83.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 3 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 83, A proposal pertaining to cities and villages. Amends article VIII, sections 20, 21, 22, 23 and 25.

Following is Committee Proposal 83 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The legislature shall provide by a general law for the incorporation of cities[,] and [by a general law for the incorporation of] villages; such general laws shall limit their rate of GENERAL PROPERTY taxation for municipal purposes, and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. EACH CITY AND VILLAGE IS HEREBY GRANTED POWER TO LEVY TAXES FOR PUBLIC PURPOSES SUBJECT TO LIMITATIONS AND PROHIBITIONS SET FORTH IN THIS CONSTITUTION OR LAW.

Sec. b. [Under such general laws] The electors of each city and village [shall have] ARE HEREBY GRANTED THE power and authority to frame, adopt, amend, AND REVISE its charter, and to amend, AND REVISE an existing charter of the city or village heretofore granted or passed by the legislature for the government of the city or village. [and, through its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concern, subject to the constitution and general laws of this state.] THE LEGISLATURE SHALL PROVIDE BY GENERAL LAW THE PROCEDURE FOR FRAMING, ADOPTING, AMENDING, AND REVISING SUCH CHARTERS.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

EACH SUCH CITY AND VILLAGE IS HEREBY GRANTED FULL POWER TO PASS LAWS AND ORDINANCES RELATING TO ITS MUNICIPAL CONCERNS, PROPERTY, AND GOVERNMENT, BUT THE LEGISLATURE MAY ENACT LAWS OF STATEWIDE CONCERN WHICH WILL PREEMPT THE FIELD ONLY WHEN THIS INTENTION IS SO STATED THEREIN. NO ENUMERATION OF POWERS IN THIS CONSTITUTION SHALL BE DEEMED TO LIMIT OR RESTRICT THE GENERAL GRANT OF AUTHORITY HEREBY CONFERRED. SUCH CITIES AND VILLAGES SHALL HAVE EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION OVER MATTERS OF LOCAL GOVERNMENTAL PERSONNEL AND ADMINISTRATION.

Sec. c. Any city or village may acquire, own, establish and maintain, either within or without its corporate limits, parks, boulevards, cemeteries, hospitals, [almshouses] and all works which involve the public health or safety.

Sec. d. EXCEPT AS OTHERWISE PROVIDED IN THIS CONSTITUTION, NO CITY OR VILLAGE SHALL HAVE THE POWER TO ASSESS, LEVY OR COLLECT ANY TAX OR ASSESSMENT FOR OTHER THAN A PUBLIC PURPOSE, OR TO LOAN ITS CREDIT FOR ANY PRIVATE PURPOSE OR FOR ANY PUBLIC PURPOSE EXCEPT AS AUTHORIZED BY LAW.

Sec. e. Subject to the provisions of this constitution, any city or village may acquire, own, and operate, either within or without its corporate limits, public utilities for supplying water, light, heat, power, SEWAGE DISPOSAL, and transportation to the municipality and the inhabitants thereof; and may also sell and deliver heat, power, and light without its corporate limits to an amount not to exceed 25 per cent of that furnished by it within the corporate limits, EXCEPT AS GREATER AMOUNTS MAY BE PERMITTED BY LAW; and may also sell and deliver water AND PROVIDE SEWAGE DISPOSAL, outside of its corporate limits in such amount as may be determined by the legislative body of the city or village; and may operate transportation lines without the municipality within such limits as may be prescribed by law. [: Provided, That the right to own or operate transportation facilities shall not extend to any city or village of less than 25,000 inhabitants.]

Sec. f. [No city or village shall have power to abridge the right of elective franchise, to loan its credit, nor to assess, levy or collect any tax or assessment for other than a public purpose. Nor shall any] NO city or village SHALL acquire any public utility or grant any public utility franchise which is not subject to revocation at the will of the city or village, unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of 3/5 of the electors of such city or village voting thereon at a regular or special municipal election. [; and upon such proposition women taxpayers having the qualifications of male electors shall be entitled to vote.] NOR SHALL ANY CITY OR VILLAGE SELL ANY PUBLIC UTILITY UNLESS SUCH PROPOSITION SHALL HAVE FIRST RECEIVED THE AFFIRMATIVE VOTE OF A MAJORITY OF THE ELECTORS OF SUCH CITY OR VILLAGE VOTING THEREON AT A REGULAR OR SPECIAL MUNICIPAL ELECTION.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 83:

[The comment regarding sections a and b immediately following is the comment as originally submitted by the committee. This was ordered revised on February 8 (see above, page 909). The revised comment appears following this original comment.]

Section a comment. In 1908, this section was spelled out in great detail because the home rule concept was new and the delegates wanted to be as precise as possible. They therefore provided for a separate general law for cities and for villages. Home rule and the avoidance of special act charters is now established practice in Michigan and the change in the first sentence is made only for the sake of brevity and simplicity. In the third line, the term "general property" is used to be specific and to distinguish the limitation on property taxes from the new grant of power to levy nonproperty taxes in the last sentence. The grant of power for nonproperty taxes is added to permit cities and villages that wish to ease the burden on the property tax to act on the basis of clear constitutional authority, for legal opinion as to current taxing powers of cities and villages is conflicting. The committee proposal does not attempt to specify the taxes a municipality might or should adopt, but to make possible a local decision on such matters, subject to limitations and prohibitions contained in this constitution or general laws now existing or that might be adopted by a future legislature. The committee on finance and taxation has concurrent jurisdiction on this section and has no objection to these changes. The committee majority is of the opinion that wages and hours should be set by the local governing body rather than by the legislature. Local officials are better acquainted with their fiscal problems and can more readily solve them than is likely to be the case with a legislator voting on a problem with which he is not familiar. Cities and villages differ greatly in resources and their ability to finance wage and salary schedules and any general act of the legislature concerning these matters cannot take account of the diversity among local units of government.

Section b comments. The language change in the first paragraph is to achieve a more positive statement of the right of cities and villages to home rule. The only substantive change is to make it clear that the power to revise a charter exists along with the other rights named. This is to clear up a possible ambiguity. The language deleted in lines 6 through 9 is replaced by a more positive statement in the second paragraph. In addition, home rule cities and villages are guaranteed full power over their own property and government, and these powers cannot be limited except by deliberate statement of intent by the legislature. In the past, general laws of the state providing for a standard of service or performance have been held by the courts to make invalid municipal ordinances or charter provisions providing a higher standard. This is undesirable and this language will permit the municipal provisions to stand in the absence of deliberate intent by the legislature to set them aside. The last sentence of the second paragraph is intended to strengthen and clarify municipal home rule by granting the local legislative body the right to control local personnel and administration. It is the feeling of a majority of the committee that certain categories of municipal employees are given preferred treatment by state laws to the detriment of other employees. Nothing in this section would prohibit municipalities from applying standards and practices in current state laws to their municipal personnel. The general saving clause of this constitution will protect existing rights, but future changes in personnel regulations will be made by ordinance or charter.

Following is the comment regarding sections a and b as revised on February 8 (see above, page 909) by the committee on local government:

Section a comment. In 1908, this section was spelled out in great detail because the home rule concept was new and the delegates wanted to be as precise as possible. They therefore provided for a separate general law for cities and for villages. Home rule and the avoidance of special act charters is now established practice in Michigan and the change in the first sentence is made only for the sake of brevity and simplicity. In the third line, the term "general property" is used to be specific and to distinguish the limitation on property taxes from the new grant of power to levy nonproperty taxes in the last sentence. The grant of power for nonproperty taxes is added to permit cities and villages that wish to ease the burden on the property tax to act on the basis of clear constitutional authority, for legal opinion as to current taxing powers of cities and villages is conflicting. The committee proposal does not attempt to specify the taxes a municipality might or should adopt, but to make possible a local decision on such matters, subject to limitations and prohibitions contained in this constitution or general law now existing or that might be adopted by a future legislature. The committee on finance and taxation has concurrent jurisdiction on this section and has no objection to these changes.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

Section b comments. The language change in the first paragraph is to achieve a more positive statement of the right of cities and villages to home rule. The only substantive change is to make it clear that the power to revise a charter exists along with the other rights named. This is to clear up a possible ambiguity. The language deleted in lines 19 through 22 is replaced by a more positive statement in the second paragraph. In addition, home rule cities and villages are guaranteed full power over their own property and government, and these powers cannot be limited except by deliberate statement of intent by the legislature. In the past, general laws of the state providing for a standard of service or performance have been held by the courts to make invalid municipal ordinances or charter provisions providing a higher standard. This is undesirable and this language will permit the municipal provisions to stand in the absence of deliberate intent by the legislature to set them aside. The last sentence of the second paragraph is intended to strengthen and clarify municipal home rule by granting the local legislative body the right to control municipal wages and hours and administration. It is the feeling of a majority of the committee that certain categories of municipal employees are given preferred treatment by state laws to the detriment of other employees. The committee is of the opinion that wages and hours should be set by the local governing body rather than by the legislature, except where state law deals with all persons, or all public employees. Local officials are better acquainted with their fiscal problems, and can more readily solve them than is likely to be the case with a legislator voting on a problem with which he is not familiar. The right of the municipality to decide on matters of wages and hours should be preserved in all cases except where the legislature determines that some statewide interest in involved, but its action in such cases should be limited to all persons or all public employees without favor or distinction among them.

Section c comments. This section remains unchanged except for the deletion of the reference to "almshouses", which is obsolete. The enumeration here is not intended to restrict the powers of municipalities to the functions listed, but to guarantee their rights to perform certain functions either inside or outside of their corporate limits.

Section d comments. This section is a new section and presents in amended form the first sentence of section 25 in the present constitution. The limitation on the use of taxes for public purposes only is unchanged from the present constitution. The right to loan credit is broadened to permit this to be done for public purposes as authorized by the legislature. The legislature might, for example, permit 2 or more municipalities to loan their credit in order to finance a joint public works project by general obligation bonds, which would permit a lower interest rate than if revenue or special assessment bonds were used. It is the committee's opinion that this provision in no way conflicts with article X, section 12. The committee on finance and taxation has no objections to this language. This section deletes the reference to elective franchise as this matter has been referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

Section e comments. The courts have construed this section to mean that a city or village cannot engage in any business but must restrict itself to public utilities. The committee recommends 3 changes in the section. First, adding to the list of utilities, "sewage disposal", without wishing to raise the legal questions whether or not sewage disposal should be regarded as a public utility. It was felt that this function of local government should be listed here so as to make it indisputable that cities and villages can operate such plants either within or without their limits. Secondly, there should not be any limits to the sale of these utilities either within or without the corporate limits of municipality. The power granted municipalities to sell and deliver utility services without their corporate limits is designed to prevent the duplication of plants in contiguous localities and to allow the extension of the benefits of such improvement to territory not sufficiently populous to warrant the establishment of such activities as either a public or private enterprise. The present constitution contains a 25 per cent limitation on heat, power and light delivered outside the limits. It was felt that this limit was arbitrary and that the legislature should have the authority to authorize a higher figure. The committee felt this was desirable in a constitution that should, wherever possible, allow for future contingencies. Testimony was given in some instances that this figure should be larger. However, the committee felt that some control should be exercised relative to heat, light and power. Third, the committee recommends the deletion of the restriction of public transit facilities to cities and villages of over 25,000. The original purpose of this clause appears to have been to prevent small cities from entering into unwise transit ventures that could not retire their original capital outlays. Today, the unprofitability of public transit is known to all and this danger is small. There are also at least 2 positive reasons for deleting this clause. One is to permit the use by all municipalities of the plan whereby a city or village acquires a private transit system for a symbolic amount and then leases it to a private operating firm, thus minimizing taxes. This privilege should logically be available to all municipalities. The other reason is to permit municipalities in metropolitan areas including those of under 25,000 inhabitants to join together in a public transit system.

Section f comments. The committee recommends 3 changes in this section. It proposes to amend the first sentence and move it to a new section for it deals with subject matter not germane to this section. The last clause of the last sentence relative to women taxpayers is obsolete and should be deleted. The 3/5 affirmative vote of the electors for a city or village to acquire a public utility should be retained in this section. The committee proposes to add a new sentence relative to the sale of municipally owned utilities. It believes that a large investment such as that represented by a utility should not be disposed of without permission of a majority of the voters, who as taxpayers are owners. There is no constitutional restriction on such, relative to the sale of utilities in the present constitution. A 3/5 majority, which is required for purchase of a utility, seems to have been provided in 1908 because such a purchase implies a commitment to the making of a large investment which should not lightly be undertaken. The consideration involved is not the same in a sale but is largely restricted to the questions of whether most voters believe sale is desirable and the sale price is satisfactory. This section has the approval of the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections and the committee on finance and taxation.

Following is minority report A to Committee Proposal 83 as offered and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Messrs. Ford, Buback, Baginski, Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs.

Madar and Suzore, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following minority report A to Committee Proposal 83:

A minority of the committee recommends that the last sentence of section b, Committee Proposal 83, be not adopted.

Messrs, Ford, Buback, Baginski, Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs. Madar and Suzore, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following reasons in support of the foregoing minority report, which accompanied Committee Proposal 83:

As stated in the comments to the committee proposal contained in Journal 70, page 439, the purpose of this last sentence of section b is to prevent the legislature from adopting by general law statewide minimum standards concerning wages, hours or working conditions for municipal employees. The immediate effect of this prohibition would result in a condition wherein the legislature would be empowered by the constitution, as it has been in the past, to provide such minimum standards for all persons in the state except municipal employees.

The minority believes that the legislature has not burdened home rule cities and villages with unreasonable restrictions concerning municipal rights in this area and feels that statewide uniform minimum standards for municipal employees are fully as important as they may be for any other employees.

Following is minority report B to Committee Proposal 83 as offered (no reasons were submitted in support thereof):

Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs. Buback and Madar, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following minority report B to Committee Proposal 83:

A minority of the committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

All of the following changes to be made on page 3.

Line 17: "city or village voting thereon at a regular [or special] municipal election".

Line 22: "TIVE VOTE OF [A MAJORITY] 3/5 OF THE ELECTORS OF SUCH CITY".

Line 23: "OR VILLAGE VOTING THEREON AT A REGULAR [OR SPECIAL]".

[Section a was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1005.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, now, after nearly 3 days completing the first 2 proposals, I want to tell you how grateful I am that we quickly went through the noncontroversial sections of local government. We now are going to get into a section which may cause some debate, and I would like to call upon the subcommittee chairman, Mr. McCauley, to handle this particular section, and I yield to him.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I might say in prefacing my remarks, that we are here getting into the home rule provision of cities, and eventually we hope to get into the home rule provision of counties, and I certainly hope that we are approaching new horizons and not lost horizons.

I might say that the members of the subcommittee were Mr. Leslie Richards from Negaunee and Clarence Dell from St. Ignace and "smart" Martin Tweedie from Port Huron.

Concerning ourselves now with section 20 of the old 1908 constitution, I would like to point out to the committee as follows:

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

[The revised supporting reasons to section a were read by Mr. McCauley. For text, see above, page 1006.]

I therefore move the adoption of the section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 83? Does the delegate from Howell, Delegate Sharpe, wish recognition?

MR. SHARPE: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I have an amendment on the secretary's desk, and I would like to have him read it at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Sharpe, Finch and Snyder offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 13, after "law.", by inserting "However no unit of government shall have the power to levy a payroll tax upon a nonresident.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegate Sharpe. Mr. Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, I had a 21 page speech all made up, but I couldn't find it, and Mr. Snyder only has an 8 page speech, so I think that I will yield to him.

However, this amendment is quite self explanatory and I hope it will not provoke a long debate. I would like to make it perfectly clear that we are not against a city invoking any type of tax it so desires, as long as it is not on those who do not live within the city limits. We don't have any presumption of trying to stop them from taxing an industry or the profits thereon, or the profits on any bonds or anything else, except for the payroll of those people who do not live within the city limits or within the core city.

At this time, if it is permissible, I would like to yield to my friend with the 8 page speech, Mr. Snyder.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Sharpe yields to the gentleman from St. Clair Shores, Delegate Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Thank you very much. Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I certainly appreciate the opportunity of being able to present to you a problem that is causing much concern and consternation, not only in my district, but, in the discussion with delegates from other parts of the state of Michigan, concern in their districts also. I am very pleased that we can come up here with a bipartisan effort to resolve a very difficult problem, and I certainly feel that if, as delegates, we don't consciously and diligently look into this matter, we may create irreparable harm.

I would also like to point out that last Saturday, in the city of Detroit, members of the tricounty area from Macomb, Oakland and Wayne met at the invitation of the Detroit mayor, in his chambers, and after several hours of discussion on local government, we didn't get to the problem that we have at hand. It seems like the local government problems seem to have a tendency of attracting more discussion and debate than, sometimes, the bread and butter issues. However, we did make a sincere attempt, a sincere bipartisan attempt to relate to the chief executive of the city of Detroit that we were sympathetic to the problems of Detroit; that we wanted to work out the problems, but at the same time we couldn't resolve a problem there at the expense of creating larger and greater problems to the perimeter residents.

If I may have your indulgence, I would like to bring to you what I feel is the problem that we have before us. I would like to call your attention to some of the inequities I believe would develop if units of government are permitted to adopt and impose a payroll tax affecting those who work in but live outside the corporate limits. I submit that this kind of enforced collection is a clear cut case of taxation without representation. Obviously you are wrestling with the problems of furnishing local communities with enough money to furnish services the property tax no longer is capable of supporting, and I agree that the property tax is no longer capable of supporting these services, and I agree that property taxes, in many places, have reached confiscatory proportions, but I feel strongly that local payroll taxes on nonresidents are not the answer. First and foremost, such a move would trigger a chain reaction with community after community retaliating.

Any attempt to be equitable in that kind of a chaotic situation would be futile and monumental ill will would be generated.

If there must be a tax to supplement the property tax, then surely the place to start is at the state level. A piecemeal local tax would result in a crazyquilt patchwork structure, and large portions of the benefits derived would be lost in the overlapping and duplicated administrative cost. Instead of streamlining government, as is our responsibility, we would be creating potential confusion and chaos. Under some circumstances, with this local payroll method approved, people could be taxed both where they live and where they work—some people who reside as far away as Alpena, Grand Rapids, Lansing, and the far southwestern part of the state and work in Wayne county, room in Wayne county, but maintain their residence and families outstate—so this question of authorizing cities or counties to collect payroll tax can have far reaching effect, even in those areas which some of the delegates here might presume they have little or no interest in.

As you know, even the Michigan municipal league is pretty well split on this controversial issue. Suburban citizens and villages within the confines of the huge metropolitan area seem logical targets of this effort, and the impetus is furnished by core cities. While it is easy to understand the motivation, it is equally plain that this kind of taxing method represents a frantic effort to make quick changes without sufficient thought given to the long range effect. A municipal tax would impose a monumental burden on the wage earner and would completely ignore the income derived from stocks, bonds, interest and other investments. I sincerely question if the delegates to this convention would have selected Lansing as the site of this convention if Lansing had a payroll tax. I feel that this would have been given serious consideration. When you use this as a power, as a medium of measurement, this is something that other industries will also be doing.

Lansing governmental employees maintaining permanent residences in other portions of the state could also be subject to such a tax. Core cities point out that nonresidents overload their streets and parking facilities, without mentioning that these same streets and parking lots, public and private, represent significant income to the city.

Gas and weight rebates from the state are paid to the city, and the major interstate expressways are paid for 90 per cent by the federal government. Even this morning, I was able to obtain—and I believe that it is my duty to inform the delegates that this is available—a copy of the motor vehicle highway funds returned to the state and to the various communities involved, and even a cursory examination of this showed that in 1961, Detroit received, in addition to federal funds, $10,155,752.58 from the Michigan motor vehicle highway fund. There can be no question but that other than the core city residents contributed to this fund. Wayne county received $14,786,464.91 from the motor vehicle highway fund, and certainly, there is no dispute that others than the residents of that county contributed largely into this fund.

My city has an area of about 12 square miles. It is about 6 miles long and 2 miles wide. In the very near future we will have an expressway cutting through almost 6 lineal miles of our town, and this will be a major artery to service the core city and the other large communities of Mt. Clemens, Port Huron and the slum area, and I know of no community that has a greater proportion of its land destroyed by the expressway than will ours. Yet I feel that this is properly our obligation in my city and we must make this facility available to all people in this state.

An analysis of the tax allocation of a major core city reveals the following percentagewise distribution: 1. the public schools get 41.96; 2. the debt service, 14.44; 3. the public works, 9.22; 4. the pensions, 6.69; 5. the health and welfare, 3.79; 6. general government, 3.17; 7. public safety, 13.57; 8. the recreation, 2.76; 9. the library, 1.66; and 10. miscellaneous, 2.74. I haven't had the opportunity to research the various items composing the items of general government and miscellaneous. I think we all have an idea of what they might be, but the amount is not significant to be too concerned about, but I do feel that by this very makeup, it does point out that the services offered on this 100 per cent basis, the availability is very small to the residents of the perimeter communities.

I also submit that a local payroll tax would work against the best interests of industrial harmony. Employees of intracommunity corporations would compete against one another to gain positions in nontaxable communities. Certainly, corporations such as Bell telephone, the various food chains and others having employees in various communities would end up with a problem that the employees would want to select a community that did not have the payroll tax provision. This, in itself, would have a very deleterious effect on good employee-employer relationships.

I would like to review with you, very briefly, some of the advantages that I feel industry gives to a core community. First and foremost, plants and industries provide a broader tax base and personal property tax, in addition to the property tax. Secondly, plants and industry provide their own fire and police protection, eliminating the biggest cost of this service. Plants also provide their own related sanitation service, relieving government of this costly item. Third, the space occupied by industry does not contribute children, thereby eliminating school costs, one of the most costly facets of government. I am sure all of you who have problems in your school districts agree that if you are fortunate enough to have a piece of land occupied by industry this does take a tremendous load and tax burden off your community.

Municipal income taxes, once generally adopted by all communities, would compel cities to compete with each other in an attempt to lure industry to their town. A municipal income tax would create more hardship on suburban dwellers already hard pressed to provide the urgent services in newly developed communities. Of the payroll tax on nonresidents, Mr. Beasley of the manufacturers national bank of Detroit and a member of the economic club of Detroit recently said:

> It could result in double taxation for suburban residents and what many people don't realize is that nonresidents are giving Detroit as much as they're taking. They are paying for physical improvements where they live, and they would have to pay taxes in a core city without them assuming any responsibilities of their home communities.

Perimeter residents do not have an opportunity to voice their approval or objections of items that contribute to the cost of operating government in core communities. So, this quite obviously substantiates the position that this would be taxation without representation.

Now, what are the arguments? One of the arguments that you will be hearing is that the core cities provide service for the suburban areas. I have done a little preliminary research on this thing, and I have found that suburban residents buy services from core cities and pay fair premiums for use of intercepter sewers, water supplies, et cetera. For a specific example of how suburban communities help make a service profitable for a core city, let me quote briefly from a recent survey of the water development program for the metropolitan area.

> This water board is the only self supporting water utility in the country that has an AA investment rating. The financial stability of this system is the primary factor in maintaining this rating. The August 7 issue of the Weekly Bond Buyer, a leading national publication in the financial world, carries an article with high praise for the core city's financial operations. The article compares the water revenue bonds with those of Chicago and concludes that the difference in Detroit's AA rating and Chicago's A rating, results from 2 major basic factors: the greater protection offered holders of their bonds and the soundness of the policies that control this city's financial position.

I think it is also very interesting to note the contribution that the perimeter communities make in this respect. Here is another example:

> Plymouth township began using this water service in October to become the fifty-first outlying community served by this water board. This water was made available last year when the water board completed the $2,400,000 Ford road main to Farmington road. The township has spent $1,200,000 for pumping and distribution facilities to this service which takes care of approximately ½ of these residents.

Obviously the suburban participation permits rapid amortization of the cost. This article compares this water revenue bond with those in Chicago, and obviously, the financial structure is praised.

Now, I would like to bring you another very recent example of how this sponsorship and hand in hand cooperation goes well. Another good example of suburban assistance to core city facilities is cited in the February 5 edition of the Detroit News. In an article entitled Profits on Suburban Runs Offset DSR Sunday Losses, under the by-line of Robert L. Wells, and this is a quote:

> The "sweetened" DSR Sunday service instituted by Mayor Cavanagh is causing a $12,000 a year loss, but James E. Bostick, acting general manager, said today this service will not be expanded to the point of bankrupting the system.
>
> Presently, Bostick explained, the loss being suffered from the reinstatement of 4 Sunday lines is offset by the profit from new suburban lines.
>
> The experiment with the new Sunday lines is the first phase of the "sweetened" service that Cavanagh promised DSR patrons in his campaign, and, as predicted, each line is operating at a great loss.
>
> "In my talks with Mayor Cavanagh," Bostick said, "I have stressed the need to keep the system operating at a profit. The mayor and the 3 DSR commissioners agree wholeheartedly."
>
> A pleasant surprise to the DSR officials are the fare receipts from the extension of bus lines into the downriver communities.
>
> The 2 major extensions were on the Michigan line to Dearborn, Inkster, Wayne, and Garden City, and the Fort line to Melvindale and Allen Park.
>
> Smith said the receipts from the Michigan and Fort extensions to the suburbs are showing a far greater profit than anticipated.
>
> Comparing the 7 day period ending last January 28 with that of January 29, 1961, the Michigan line showed an increase of 13,411 miles operated and a total revenue increase of $853,200.
>
> Bostick said the Michigan line last week operated at a 63 cents a mile revenue figure. The "out of pocket revenue" the system must recapture to break even is 50 cents on an operating mile.
>
> The Fort line extension to Melvindale and Allen Park, for the week ending January 21, showed an increase of mileage of 11,930 and a revenue jump of $6,087 for an average of 51 cents per mile in out of pocket revenue.

Now, this is very important to observe. Bostick said:

> I cannot stress too much how the service has been improved for Detroit riders by the extension of the lines to the suburban area.
>
> If you will remember that coaches formerly started to empty from the Wyoming-Michigan terminal, the new operation brings Michigan coaches to the Wyoming city limits nearly full.
>
> So we have had to increase the number of coaches in service and have cut the headway, or interval, between buses from 18 down to 14 minutes inside the city limits.
>
> The same thing has happened on Fort, because the headway in the base hours (from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.) also has been cut from 18 to 14 minutes.

This very graphically demonstrates the participation by the perimeter cities; not only helps advertise the nub of the problem, but also provides increased service.

Now, in conclusion I would like to say that in view of the foregoing it is quite obvious that a payroll tax on nonresidents would sap the vitality of the suburbs and I submit to you that the long range success of a core city depends on the vitality and the health of the suburbs.

The document turned out by this convention will contain no provision more sensitive than that dealing with taxation, and it must be approved by a majority of the people. If those sections dealing with taxation appear to be less than equitable, seem weighted for some segments and against others, then the entire document could be lost.

I know that the problems faced by the delegates are many, large and complicated, and I know that the constitution we want to produce will outlast generations of men. To do that, it must be equitable in all of its provisions, but most of all in those sections dealing with taxation.

I hope that these views of mine may prove to be of some value to you as you ponder on the general question of taxation. I want to thank the delegates for their patience during the presentation of my report. It is one that is very important and significant, not only to myself but to many people in the convention.

I attempt to bring this matter to you objectively, with a full realization that our core cities and our core communities do have a problem, but this is one I feel that we cannot beckon to, we must waken to. We must recognize our problems, and at the same time, try to inspire the sort of economic challenge that will permit the core cities to maintain their place in the state of Michigan. Certainly we all want to go down this way united. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Messrs. Sharpe, Finch and Snyder. Does the gentleman from Pontiac, Delegate Kuhn, seek recognition on this amendment?

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, I had an amendment very similar to this, and I think that I will wait until later on to make my statement.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Kuhn yields to the delegate from Lincoln Park, Delegate Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: I would just like to rise in support of the amendment. Back as far as a month ago when this article was being written by the local government committee, I opposed the wording as it is now presented to you, and I would like to submit to you the fact that the newspaper which covers 50,000 homes in the suburban area of southwest Wayne county conducted a poll over the past 2 weeks, and you received a small, reduced size copy of it last week, 2 pages of it, in which they submitted to the delegates a copy of the coupon that was printed therein to be mailed back to the newspaper.

I might say that they indicated to me yesterday that they had never received so many coupons in return opposing a payroll tax on a city or county basis as they had received on this coupon. In other words, they had conducted many searches for the thinking of the people before on various issues, and in this issue, the people spoke out loud and plain against this type of tax.

I would say this. I would certainly not be against an income tax levied on a statewide basis, but I believe that this is unfair, inequitable, and that we should oppose the placing of an income tax or leaving a loophole open in the constitution so that any city or county might impose it upon the residents of some other city, a nonresident therein, and I would therefore ask the defeat of the general thinking of the committee and the support of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Mattawan, Delegate Finch.

MR. FINCH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I think most everything that I was going to say has been said, with the exception of a couple or three things that I will mention. First, when this situation was first brought up in our committee, I thought this was a very admirable position for the people from the cities to take, to want to raise funds to support themselves, to help themselves, until I found out that they were giving us the business, and wanting to put on a payroll tax.

Of course, I am opposed to this, because my neighbors, living out there where I am, and many working in Kalamazoo or some other city, naturally do not want to pay a tax in that city and then reside outside, because they feel it is a tax without representation. Also, they spend the most of their wages in the city. Most of the wages they receive are spent there.

Another thing that I am thinking about that could happen, and that is if this is allowed to stand as it is written and the cities should develop a payroll tax, this could become a major source of revenue and a major source of taxation for a city. Since probably ½ of their employees, or even 2/3 of them, might reside outside the city, they would say, "This is a good way of receiving a lot of revenue that is not coming out of our people in the city." So, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

I would also say one other thing to you, that I am perfectly willing that the city do anything that it wants to to further its own financial picture, so long as it does it and pays the bill itself. In other words, if Kalamazoo wants to build a mall, that is perfectly all right with me as long as Kalamazoo pays for it.

I would also like to say this to the delegates: that if Delegate Madar wants to raise more money for the city of Detroit, then let him raise his own taxes and not ours.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I might say the arguments that we have just heard, we listened to in the subcommittee on local government. Nothing new has been added here. The only thing that concerns me a little bit in reading this proposal—I had to look at it 2 or 3 times, I thought that we did mention payroll tax or income tax— and I would like to call it to the attention of the delegates, that all we are saying is "Each city and village is hereby granted power to levy taxes for public purposes subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law."

I might remind the delegates that just the other day we went through this thing in the finance and taxation committee, whereby we were arguing whether or not there should be a graduated income tax or should there be a flat rate income tax. It is the feeling of the committee that the constitution is certainly no place to write this type of tax legislation. We are attempting to give flexibility to cities and villages.

And, let me say this: I am happy that Suzore's paper does not come into my town, but I certainly think that it was the feeling of the committee that we want the state to step in to take over this function; we realize that the state also has financial problems, and I think it was the committee's feeling that we are hoping that the state will preempt this field. Once the cities are given this power—if they are given it—some of the cities that I represent, I don't believe will know what to do with it.

I honestly feel that this is something that provides the flexibility in the constitution that is necessary, in the long range planning of good government for the next 50 or 60 years, and I might say that the committee is unalterably opposed to the amendment offered by Messrs. Snyder, Finch, Sharpe and Suzore.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the question which we are discussing is whether or not the committee proposal, which would give broad powers of taxation to cities and villages, should, by an amendment which is proposed, be arbitrarily limited by the limitation that no payroll tax could be imposed on anyone unless he lived within the city.

Now, let's start out and ask ourselves if we really mean that? Why should we single this tax out rather than others? Let me give you an example. On the federal income tax level—and this is only a state tax of the same nature, at least the payroll part of it, as the federal—we have a lot of people that come over from Canada to Detroit, and yet those people pay United States income taxes, and this helps our federal government, and nobody objects. Do you want to establish a policy here, to be consistent, that these people who come from Canada and earn their living—and a good living—in the United States, should not contribute to our government? If you are going to be consistent, then you will be if you vote for this proposed amendment, because there is no difference, except the difference of one country to another, as compared with one city or one township to another city. Or do we want to be consistent on the property tax?

Why do we single out this income tax? I think there probably are a lot of delegates here who have a cottage somewhere up north, and you are a nonresident and on that cottage you pay a tax to support the schools of Petoskey or the schools of Cheboygan or the schools of the upper peninsula, and you pay for street lighting in the town in which your cabin is located, or the township, and yet you don't receive any direct service from it. Why do we limit this one tax, the income tax, and not limit the others?

Or let's take another example. Over in Toledo we have quite a few people who go from the southeastern part of Michigan, across the border and work in Toledo, and they pay an income tax to Ohio on the wages which they earn there. Do you want to perpetrate a system under which our Michigan people must pay in Ohio but Michigan cannot reciprocate? Or let's take the upper peninsula, if Wisconsin should do the same thing. Do you want to freeze into this constitution—and this is what you will be doing—a provision that our people must pay in Wisconsin, if they cross the border, but we don't have the right to reverse and do the same thing? I don't think we want to do it, and once we put it in the constitution, it is there and it is frozen.

Let's turn to another point where I think the amendment is weak. This isn't anything new. What we are talking about here is a field of experience where, fortunately, we can look at other states and see what they have done. For many years Ohio has had a provision similar to this. A number of municipalities, some 300 in Pennsylvania, have the same thing. Parts of California have the same thing, and these jurisdictions have learned to work this matter out one with the other, and they have learned that the best thing to do is not to make the limitation which is proposed here.

For example, Maumee and Toledo. Toledo first passed a payroll tax, and there is a little town of Maumee across the Maumee river. So finally Maumee got around to doing it, and what have they done? They have worked out a system under which half of the money from Maumee people who work in Toledo is returned to Maumee, and half of the money which comes from Toledo is returned to Toledo. This has been worked out and it works very well, and as a result of it, the city of Toledo, when this was first put in, reduced its real estate tax from around 11 mills to 6 mills.

I submit to you that when we freeze an artificial restraint in the constitution, we have made it difficult to change. That is the reason we put it there. This is inconsistent with the experience in other states where this sort of thing has been tried, and it really isn't fair. I think if we want to really destroy the purpose of this whole provision, which is to broaden the tax base so that we can have more elasticity in city and village funds so that we can reduce the property tax, we will be destroying it or going very close to destroying it, seriously hampering it, if we write into the constitution this kind of a limitation.

We are drawing a broad document here, and we have to learn from the experience in other jurisdictions. I personally feel that if cities start to legislate in the field of wages, wage taxes, payroll taxes, that necessarily the state of Michigan will step in and write the ground rules, and this is what we intend here. We give the broad power to tax in this provision and we make it self executing, but we also say that the legislature has the right to step in and write the ground rules. The legislature here will be the one that provides the elasticity, the one that is the regulator, the one that, from time to time, can make the adjustments.

We cannot foresee these adjustments for the next 50 years. I think that this amendment is bad; it is bad in the experience of other states; it isn't logical with what we do on property taxes or on our federal income taxes; it is going to penalize Michigan in relation to Ohio and to Wisconsin. Let's think of this thing in terms of the big picture and vote the amendment down. I don't think suburban cities have a great deal to worry about, I sincerely don't. It will be no different when we all get through with it than in the other jurisdictions.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: For those people impatiently seeking recognition, the Chair will point out that there are 12 people on the list. The Chair will recognize next the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: First I would like to make a couple of corrections—not a couple of corrections, but I would like to make a couple of statements about what Mr. Snyder had to say. To begin with, Detroit's water system was a success long before the builders out of Detroit decided to build a community out on the east side of the city of Detroit, and we were paying our bills, and we were successful and making money. I might say that we were a success before the other 51 townships and cities were buying water from us, and it was our water system.

Two, I would like to make a statement regarding the DSR. You know, to listen to Mr. Snyder tell you about what he read in the paper the other day, the city of Detroit is now making millions of dollars from the people out in the suburbs. Actually, we just started sending our buses to those suburbs approximately 4 or 5 weeks ago, at the very most, and already, without any criticism at all about our system, without telling us that there is something wrong, already 1 or 2 of the cities are now trying to get the rest of the cities and townships to pull the DSR out of the townships and cities and give the business to somebody else. Oh, yes, they help us.

I am not going to talk to you too long today about this, because I talked to you the other day when I told you about our "bedroom cities"—well, let's say "bedroom communities", thanks, Mr. Mahinske—but the thing that I wanted to say is that instead of me doing all the talking—I don't know too much about taxes, I am only thanking the Lord that I have the opportunity to pay taxes, and I can pay them, and frankly, I don't think that I pay anywhere near enough in this community. I hope that I can keep on paying them and more, if it is necessary.

There are very good reasons why we must pay taxes. As I said though, there are 33 others that can talk about this, about taxes, but I want to see what would happen to the city of Detroit—they talk about this core city, and that we have all of these factories, all of these plants where they come to to work. Yes, it is very true, they do come into the city of Detroit, but how long are you going to be able to come into the city of Detroit to work when, if we don't get the opportunity to raise money to support the services that everybody wants, when we have to raise the property taxes and everything else so high that those factories move to Arkansas, to Tennessee, to Georgia, to Alabama and everywhere else except Michigan, then what are you going to do? Remember, that you can't all, after you have worked in the city of Detroit, move out to some other city in Michigan, like some others have here, and are now just doing everything they can to ruin the city of Detroit, even though they made money enough to move outside the city. I am speaking now about some of the sponsors of the amendment. Oh, they are hurt terribly.

Mr. Finch, no doubt, sends a lot of Christmas trees to Detroit, and I am happy that he is able to do so. I am happy that he is able to stand up here and mention me. I hadn't said a word about this, but since he did, I would like to get back and tell him that if the people of the city of Detroit have to leave, he isn't going to send many Christmas trees into Detroit then. Mr. Finch, I don't think you will like it. I don't think that solidarity house will stay in the city of Detroit very long if the plants leave. I think they will leave. And I am afraid then that maybe Mr. Snyder will have to look for a job somewhere else.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Madar, will you confine your comments to the amendment, please?

MR. MADAR: I am. This is on the amendment, as to why we should do something about defeating it.

Mr. Sharpe confided to me one day how he had worked in the city of Detroit. There isn't any doubt about it, most people have worked in the city of Detroit who are somewhere around here close to us. I am proud of the fact that they were able to do so. Whether you raise moneys or not isn't going to bother me too much, because if we don't get a chance to put across an income tax, we are going to have to do it some other way, and if we can't do it in some other method, then you are going to have to pay it outside of the city of Detroit, because somebody's got to support these things, somebody's going to pay these taxes, and I only hope that we can handle our own. I don't want to come to you. I would rather see us do it down there. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Messrs. Sharpe, Finch and Snyder, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1008.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Mr. Chairman and delegates, from a personal point of view, I suppose I should be favoring this amendment, because we are one of those families that lives outside the city but work inside the city, but I must say that I rise to oppose this amendment. I consider that it would be extremely ill advised to adopt any such amendment, such a restriction in our constitution.

I think, for one thing, we ought to realize what the effect on the central city would be. In the past 10 years we have seen a natural decline in the population of many of our central cities. Such a restriction would certainly increase the rate at which people are leaving the central city, and I consider that this is an unwise thing to advance.

The second point that I would like to make is that we are all tied together economically in the Detroit area, and, I am sure, in other metropolitan areas as well. We depend on the central city for many things, art museums, theaters, other cultural advantages; we depend on it for a place to shop, for a place to work, and in turn, it depends on us. One reason why this water system is covering the entire area and doing a good job of it is because it is on an area basis. It is not restricted to either outside the city or inside the city.

I think that this tax would recognize the fact that we are tied together, that we are economically interdependent. I am sure that the leaders of Detroit are aware of the many problems, and the solution of them they will do their best to find. If they have to put a payroll tax on, I am sure it will be because they need a payroll tax desperately.

The second thing is that if there is a problem that is of such statewide importance, there is a recourse to the legislature, which does retain overall control in this area as it should and as it does in many other areas. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Romeo, Delegate Rush.

MR. RUSH: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise to support the Snyder amendment. I would like to point out that we have no quarrel with the industrial areas if they want to levy payroll taxes or income taxes to take care of their own local form of government. But when they start levying those taxes upon residents of surrounding areas, we get into a lot of complications.

I would like to approach this matter from the standpoint of how it would affect our school districts. We know—especially those of us in the committee on education, having studied and talked about the wide variation in the valuation and wealth of the school districts throughout our state—and we find surrounding every industrial area, residential areas where the people in that area have great difficulty in providing just a fair, adequate school program. This matter, here, is only going to aggravate that situation. We have school districts in Michigan with less than $4,000 per assessed valuation per child. We have others well over $60,000. The low ones are the residential areas with no industry. The high ones are the areas where they have lots of industry. Now then, if we are going to allow those areas with the industry to put on payroll taxes, incomes taxes and so forth and levy them against the people of the surrounding areas who have no industry and are having a hard time supporting their own schools, we are going to create a great injustice.

Mr. Allen pointed out how Maumee and Toledo reciprocate. That is fine where you have 2 areas like that that can do that sort of thing, but what about the area where there is no industry? What recourse has the area that has no industrial plant at all? They have their schools, of course, to support and they have their local government to support. If they have to pay payroll taxes, income taxes in the industrial areas and still keep up their own schools and their own local government, I think that is a great injustice. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Madison Heights, Delegate Walker, still seek recognition on this amendment?

MR. WALKER: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I would like to speak, as briefly as possible, in support of the Finch, Sharpe and Snyder amendment, and I would like to thank Mr. Madar for his contribution. My first thoughts on this, and first thoughts in support of this amendment were, I confess, selfish, being a resident of a suburban community. However, since then, investigation has shown that a suburban city could avenge itself, let us say, by passing a reciprocal tax. However, this whole thing spreads out like waves of a stone dropped in water, until it comes to the end point, the townships. And the townships, as I understand it, are not allowed to levy such a tax to protect themselves or to recoup some of the losses of their citizens to the core city, whether it be Detroit or whatever.

Therefore, I would again like to repeat that I speak in support of the amendment before us.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Livonia, Delegate Conklin.

MRS. CONKLIN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask a question, if I could, and I guess, perhaps of Mr. Snyder.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may, if the gentleman cares to answer.

MRS. CONKLIN: I guess he isn't in the room. Mr. Sharpe, will you answer the question? As I understand this committee proposal before us, it says, on the end of line 13, "subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law." As I understand this, right now there are no laws governing this type of tax. In other words, these cities can do this and there are no laws now appearing on the books which would govern it.

If this constitution should be adopted by the voters in November, 1962, it would seem to me then that the legislature wouldn't even get around to passing any laws governing this until their session in 1963, by which time every city in the state could have already indoctrinated such a procedure, assessing a payroll tax. I envision my city of Livonia suddenly coming up with the idea that we should then pass a payroll tax on all those people who live in Nankin township or elsewhere and work in Livonia. Now, is this protected or not? Are there any laws now appearing in any books anywhere which would govern this?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Conklin yields to Delegate Sharpe for the purpose of answering the question. Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Delegate Conklin, I do not understand, entirely, your question. If I am correct in your thinking, you are assuming that we have no laws to govern a payroll tax.

MRS. CONKLIN: There is nothing to prevent them from doing it at this time.

MR. SHARPE: There is something to prevent a city. A city cannot invoke a payroll tax. There is a question of whether they can or not. The city of Detroit seems to think they can; however, there seems to be a question whether or not they can. This is something that maybe Mr. Snyder could answer a little more eloquently, and since you did ask for him first, and he is here at this time, I would like to yield to him.

MRS. CONKLIN: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. Snyder the question?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may, if the gentleman cares to answer it.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Chairman, in reply to the question, I can only say that there are probably 56 people, because of training, that have a better background to answer this thing. I do know that there is some area of doubt, and this would clarify it down to the point there would not be any doubt.

I would like to be a little bit more specific in one answer. The legislature, even in anticipation of an affirmative action of this body on this, has already several proposals in. I understand that Mr. Hungerford has introduced house bills 41, 42, 43, 44, 45 and 46 and they would eliminate certain portions of the payroll from municipal taxation. In other words, they are already starting to eliminate certain groups from taxation if this proposal would go through.

MRS. CONKLIN: If I understand you correctly then, in anticipation of our not preventing this, they are now preparing bills which will exempt some people from paying this payroll tax?

MR. SNYDER: Portions of their income would be exempted, from a very brief draft that was presented to me by the research department. I understand basically the problem is this: if a legislator, say, had $1,000 coming, and $100 went to a pension payment, only $900 of this would be considered as taxable income.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Conklin, will you yield to the delegate from Kalamazoo for an answer to your question?

MRS. CONKLIN: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Delegate Conklin, you are right, there are no laws on the subject because it has been doubtful whether or not cities had this power. Now, cities don't have the power unless it is a city that has a charter which says it may collect excises. Detroit has such a charter. So does Kalamazoo, and so do a few others. If it has a charter which says it may collect excises, then most lawyers would say it may go out and levy a payroll tax. But not too many cities have this in their own charter. So this is why cities want the power, because they don't have anything, and secondly, where their charter says they have it, there is some legal doubt. As a result of it, the legislature has done nothing. But, as Delegate Snyder says, the legislature has been giving quite a bit of consideration to it. Though the constitution might be passed in November, it wouldn't go into effect until later, and I think the legislature would have time.

MRS. CONKLIN: I would just like to say I want to support the amendment of Mr. Snyder, Mr. Sharpe and Mr. Finch.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the chairman of the committee on local government still seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, if you have other names to speak on the amendment, I will wait.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: Mr. Chairman, I wanted to second what Delegate Allen of Kalamazoo said awhile ago. I think we are here confused between constitutional principles and actual practice. It may be very unwise for any municipality to put on what is called here a payroll tax, but I certainly would want the constitution to give any municipality the power to do it if they wanted to.

I don't know where these people have been for the last 50 years. The home rule act, which was adopted after the 1908 constitution, gives cities the power to levy rents, tolls and excises, or at least it gives them the power to put it in their charters. It happens that I was city attorney of Grand Rapids and it has such power in its charter. I told the city commission, at one time, that they had the power to do it. They decided it was unwise to do it because the people would rise up in arms. But that is an entirely different question.

We ought to be dealing with power here, and not wisdom.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Youngblood.

MR. YOUNGBLOOD: I have one question here. If the people living in the city of Detroit should work at the tank arsenal or outside of the county itself, how are they going to get them on the payroll tax?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: To whom do you direct your question, Delegate Youngblood?

MR. YOUNGBLOOD: To anyone who cares to answer, please.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do any of the sponsors of the amendment care to answer the question? Delegate Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: I would assume, Mr. Chairman, that the community would have to enact a reciprocity tax, because, as Mr. Allen has pointed out, you can't trade unless you are prepared to give something in return. So, this is one of the points that I wanted to make, for the community that did not have a payroll tax, in order to recover some of the money, they would have to put a tax on all of the residents of their community in order to get some of the money back. I don't know if anybody has come up with an idea that would give the community of the nonresidents a check every month. I haven't heard any yet, but I would assume that they would have to adopt a nonreciprocity tax.

I don't know whether I am permitted to do so, but I think Mr. Ford has a problem that might be complicated because in a township they do not have an opportunity to levy such a tax, and therefore this revenue would be completely lost to the townships.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I rise to speak against the amendment to the committee proposal for the reason that as the amendment stands, it would freeze out a possible source of revenue for the life of the document itself. This I am against. I oppose the prohibition of any source of revenue for a local or state agency in the constitution. I don't believe that this is in good keeping with all the arguments that we have heard that tend to argue for fiscal flexibility.

The committee proposal provides for action from the legislature in the event that this method is either abused or, in fact, used in any given area. In the interest of fiscal flexibility at all levels of government, I must oppose the amendment as I would oppose any other prohibitions against possible sources of revenue in the constitution itself.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Mattawan, Delegate Finch.

MR. FINCH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, first I would like to thank Mr. Madar for some free advertising. However, the Christmas trees do not go to Detroit.

In answer to Mr. Allen and the way they handle this in Ohio with half of the funds going back, or a portion of the funds going back to the local government in which the worker resides, I can see a nice thing happening out in our area where half the people might work in Kalamazoo and the other half are either self employed or work someplace else. Then half those people would be bringing money back to our treasury and the other half wouldn't be, and, boy, would there ever be a "free for all" going on there.

Also, let me remind you that the cities where these people are working have the industry, and the industry is paying a good share of their taxes, the city's taxes. I think that is it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman and members of the legislature—I am sorry, I got confused as to whether I am in the constitutional convention or the legislature. However, I rise to oppose the amendment on the same grounds that I opposed the proposal that was passed in the committee of the whole here the other day when you incorporated into the constitution a prohibition against a graduated income tax. I want to make it clear, however, in the outset, that I am opposed to any form of local income tax or payroll tax.

I think this could become a very vicious cycle and you could create a chaotic condition, and if one or two of the more populous cities and counties in the state were permitted to enact an income tax or a payroll tax, you would make it, in my opinion, practically impossible to solve the entire financial problem in the state of Michigan. I think this is a matter that again, as I have argued heretofore, is purely statutory in nature. I think that the legislature should have freedom to operate in this area. The 1908 constitution, as a matter of fact, satisfies me because it was solid in this particular situation.

Even if you should enact a payroll tax and restrict it only to a given city, putting a prohibition in against applying it to those who do not live in the city, how would you apply the payroll tax to professional people, such as dentists, the groceryman, the salesman who works on a commission? No one has explained to me just exactly how this payroll tax would work and how it could be applied.

I think we are again, today, spending an untold number of hours, and I had not intended to speak because I am guilty of taking up the time also, of debating a question which is purely statutory, one in which everything that could be said has been said, and if every delegate in this constitutional convention should get up on the floor and speak on this amendment, on this issue, it would only be a repetition, maybe in different words, but the same thing would be said over and over and over again. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

I want to see—and I am not quite sure at this time whether I am in favor of the committee proposal, as written, because the 1908 constitution satisfied me in this particular area—I do not want to see us get in a position whereby constitutional law would provide that a city can enact a payroll tax or an income tax, whether or not it applies only to the residents of that city or to the residents of the community as a whole or the county as a whole.

I know that I am not an expert in this field. I don't propose to be one. I say this, though: that there are experts in this hall, and I think that the experts in this constitutional convention will agree with a statement that I made a moment ago, that if any one large community or county or two enacted a payroll or an income tax, that we would not be able—it would hinder us in solving the financial difficulties of the state. In order to solve the problems, not only at the state level but at the local units of government, it has to be state money, it has to be a state tax enacted by the legislature, with the necessary provisions to make allocations back to the local unit of government.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I too, am rather reluctant to talk on this subject, since so much has been said. Also, I would like to comment on Mr. Allen's remarks. I think that he said, pretty much, all that needed to be said, but I have a feeling that a great deal of what he said has been forgotten by now, and I would like to underscore some of the things that he said.

I am speaking in opposition to the amendment of Delegates Finch, Sharpe and Snyder, and in favor of the committee proposal. Before I do so, I would like to impart just a little bit of important information about municipal income taxes. There are 400 cities in our country today that levy a municipal income tax. Most of these taxes are levied on the residents of the community, that is on all income of the residents of the community, and on that portion of income of nonresidents earned in the city or municipality.

As Mr. Allen pointed out, where neighboring communities also levy the tax, there is a reciprocal arrangement worked out whereby, as a rule, both communities share to the extent of ½ of the revenue derived from the tax for a nonresident working in one city who happens to be a resident in the other. This is a highly desirable type of legislation or revenue for a city. When you consider that in the state of Michigan, almost 97 per cent of the revenue of local government is derived from the property tax, the property tax base is subject to many types of erosion, various types of exemptions, increase in the governmental use of property, taking property off the tax rolls, highway construction. The property tax base is actually diminishing, but it is still the only base on which cities may levy tax.

It is true that those who have home rule powers believe they have the right to levy an income tax, but it is highly desirable to clear the matter up in this constitution, and in clearing it up, it does not seem appropriate to impose any more restrictions than we now have on our cities.

I might point out that the city of Detroit is the only major city in the United States that does not have a supplemental form of revenue, either in the form of an income tax or a sales tax. Detroit is the only major city in the country that does not have a supplemental source of revenue.

The other point that I would like to underscore, one made by Delegate Allen, is that we need not be concerned about the problem of taxation without representation, because taxation without representation is common in local government, certainly where property tax is involved. It is not uncommon for a city to derive a good deal of its tax revenue from property that is owned by nonresidents who do not have a vote in the community. We are accustomed, in this respect, at the local level, to taxation without representation.

I would like to point out also, that practically all of the municipalities, the 400 who now have municipal income taxes, have what is known as the reciprocal arrangement. They, as a rule, tax all of the income of residents, and that portion of the income of nonresidents earned in the city.

If we are going to impose a restriction on the cities or municipalities here in our state who levy this tax in such a way that they cannot levy on the income of nonresidents, I would say that we are putting them at a disadvantage. Let us not forget the remarks of Mrs. Cushman, when she said that core cities must continue to render a level of service for the metropolitan complex, even though they are losing property from their base. If they are going to get sufficient revenue to render the level of services that are necessary to the metropolitan complex, it is highly desirable that they be able to levy an income tax, and that they be able to extend it to the income of nonresidents who earn their living within the city limits.

I support the committee proposal and oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Sharpe amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, we have here another example of an attempt to limit taxing powers in the constitution. This is similar to what was done in the matter of the graduated income tax. I agree completely with Delegate Tubbs when he said we are dealing with powers and not with wisdom. I do suggest that if we end up just putting ceilings on taxes, we might as well then go all the way and get away from the subject of power and get truly into the matter of wisdom and legislative function, and see if we can then write a complete tax law right in the constitution.

For example, the matter of corporation and personal income taxes on a statewide basis with a rebate to communities. I hope that I do not formally put this in or any of us feel that we need to, but I do caution us that if we end up with a negative attitude of how communities in the state cannot provide tax revenue, then it may be that the other side of that coin is we will need to write those methods of taxation into the constitution.

I do feel that the real problem here is that our core cities and smaller units of government simply are not large enough to deal with our larger economic units, and that what we are going to come to is a matter of statewide taxes with rebates back to local communities. This should be a legislative matter. We should not try to write that for the next 50 years, and I plead with the delegates to make a minimum of limitations, so that there can be a maximum of tax freedom for developing the need in the years to come.

MR. SHARPE: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: What is your point of order, Delegate Sharpe?

MR. SHARPE: I wonder if it would be possible for us to stay germane to the amendment. Mr. Austin has been talking about an income tax, and Mr. Downs has been talking about an income tax, and we are not talking about an income tax but a payroll tax, and there is a distinct difference between a payroll tax and an income tax.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Your point is well taken, Mr. Sharpe. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Menominee, Delegate Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to direct this question to either the committee or the proposers of the amendment because I think it is something germane. I went to the finance and taxation committee some time ago, thinking I was in the right "house", but after listening for 2 hours now to a great amount of debate on taxation, I realize now that I should have gone to the local government committee, because it seems that they are more confined to taxation than they are to anything else today.

My question is, from the particular part of the state that I am—and it is going to face other parts of Michigan, I feel, in the very near future—we do have, right now facing our constituents in Menominee, a payroll tax that is being withheld in Wisconsin, as of February 1. It is a tax without any representation because they get nothing. The people that live in Menominee and work in the sister city across the river in Wisconsin who are subject to the Wisconsin income tax which they have had for some time—but now, with a withholding feature, that is really raising the devil with the people in my area, as you can well imagine, living in Menominee and going to Marinette and working every day and having all their taxes deducted on Wisconsin's income tax rates, and they get nothing in return except the ride across the bridge every day.

I pose this question to any of the amendment people, or the committee on local finance and taxation, or whatever you want to call it: is there any provision in there for intrastate taxation in what you are talking about?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: To whom does the gentleman wish to yield?

MR. LUNDGREN: I will yield to anybody that can answer it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Lundgren yields to Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Any features of this tax, whether it be a payroll, income, excise or sales tax, the ground rules will be set by the legislature. I am sure that probably one of the things that they will consider, Mr. Lundgren, is the fact that the people in Michigan are being taxed in Wisconsin, and they will look over your area to see that there are some safeguards for the people in your community.

MR. LUNDGREN: That is something that I wanted you to be aware of, and that is why I brought it to the floor. I wish all 143 delegates were here to hear my plea, while I have said something for the position that my people are in right now.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, we have been sitting here for quite awhile hearing both sides of this argument, call it a payroll tax, and they have been talking income tax, and we have heard elaborate debate. Just to show you, now, that we have reached a point of where it begins to get silly, it boils down to where those outside of a big city don't want a tax and those inside the big city want the revenue.

Mr. Marshall got up and said quite a few words of good intent. I would like to support them. Here is a delegate of the minority party, and I am a delegate of the majority; he is from a township, and I am from a city. I feel also that the taxation should be on a state level, and I would like to see if we could get a vote out of this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question now is on the amendment to section a offered by Messrs. Sharpe, Finch and Snyder. As many as are in favor of the amendment will say aye. Does the gentleman from St. Clair Shores request a division?

MR. SNYDER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Snyder demands a division. Is there support for a division vote on the amendment? There is sufficient support. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1008.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Messrs. Sharpe, Finch and Snyder to Committee Proposal 83, section a. As many as are in favor of the amendment will vote aye, as many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Messrs. Sharpe, Finch and Snyder, the yeas are 27, the nays are 93.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted.

Are there any further amendments to section a?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kuhn offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 13, after "law.", by inserting "No governmental subdivision shall impose any income tax except on its own residents; the state, however, may preempt this field of taxation.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Delegate Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment is broader than the previous one in that it allows no income tax. In other words, anyone that owns their own business or is self employed could not be subject to this taxation without representation. I would like to read a few short passages from the Daily Tribune, Royal Oak, Michigan, dated December 5, 1961, in which it said:

> One of the causes of the American revolution was the fact that the American colonies were being taxed by the mother country, Great Britain, without any opportunity to have a say in how these taxes were spent. The colonies could not abide this taxation without representation, and were willing to go to war to support their point.
>
> One of the cornerstones of our American system of government is the insistence that those who are taxed shall have some control over how their taxes are spent. Yet Detroit's new mayor, Jerome Cavanagh, has brought up again the proposal made by the Detroit city council a year or so ago, that Detroit may derive added revenue by placing an income tax on everyone who works in the city of Detroit, regardless of where he lives.
>
> Such a tax would affect thousands of suburbanites who work in Detroit. They would be asked to pay such a tax to Detroit without any possibility of having any control over the taxing expenditures. Detroit, in effect, is contending that communities such as ours are leeches, or parasites, living off of Detroit, without contributing anything in return. This is a supposition without a basis.
>
> The city of Detroit claims that the suburbanites—

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: For what purpose does the gentleman arise?

MR. HATCH: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order.

MR. HATCH: It seems to me that this amendment is no different than the one we just voted down. The added language that "the state . . . may preempt this field . . ." certainly is included in the language of the original proposal, which says, "subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hatch, the Chair rules that your point of order is not well taken, this is a broader amendment than the one we previously discussed, and the delegate will continue.

DELEGATE KUHN: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

> The city of Detroit claims that suburbanites, in traveling to and from their work in Detroit use Detroit's city facilities, particularly streets and expressways. Yet, who pays for these streets? Not the citizens of Detroit, exclusively, but many others.
>
> Detroit's share in the sales tax collections is made on a statewide basis. Detroit's share in the gasoline and weight tax is also collected on a statewide basis.
>
> Its expressways were built 90 per cent with federal funds, which come from taxpayers all over the country, and many other of its institutions are supported with either state or federal funds.

This means that everyone in the suburbs, who pays gas taxes or other taxes is already helping to support Detroit in their services.

The proposal also ignores the fact that people working in plants and businesses in Detroit are working for firms already paying property taxes and business taxes to the city of Detroit. They already are helping to support Detroit.

> Detroit is neither fair nor realistic in its payroll tax proposal. The only way in which the payroll tax could be fair would be to have it on a statewide basis. All communities would tax in the same manner and such tax would be prorated among them. Such would not be the case if Detroit, alone, were allowed to levy such a payroll tax.
>
> Unless the principle of giving those who are taxed a voice in what they are taxed for is upheld, the very basis of representative government is destroyed.

Now, Mr. Chairman, in offering this amendment, I would like to say that we are not opposed to the city of Detroit levying an income tax, but we are opposed to any tax which does not have some basis for representation to go along with it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the adoption of the Kuhn amendment to section a of Committee Proposal 83. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I would like to direct a question to Mr. Kuhn through the Chair.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may, if the gentleman cares to answer it.

MR. MAHINSKE: In your remarks, you have mentioned that you are opposed to any taxes that are not represented by the people who are being levied on. Would you carry this further to the general area of Pontiac and the resort areas who are taxed by people who do not live in that area on their property?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: The property tax is based on the situs or on the property itself, and I think that is equitable.

MR. MAHINSKE: But these people, for increases, have the right to vote on school bond issues?

MR. KUHN: The answer is obvious; they are not allowed to vote on it, but I think that is entirely a different type of situation. It is a tax based on the property itself.

MR. MAHINSKE: It is a different type of taxation without representation, then.

MR. KUHN: It is based on property, as I said earlier, and they know it when they buy it.

MR. MAHINSKE: You mentioned in your amendment, unless otherwise preempted by the state.

MR. KUHN: Correct.

MR. MAHINSKE: Haven't we preempted the state moving in certain areas of income taxation here by abolishing or prohibiting the graduated income tax already in the convention?

MR. KUHN: I don't quite get the import of that question.

MR. MAHINSKE: You are saying that no local unit of government shall be empowered to levy an income tax, and at the same time you are leaving an escape valve here that the state can preempt the field with an income tax, but we have already limited the state's operation in the income tax area by prohibiting the state to act in a graduated income tax area. So, in other words, it is practically meaningless, in view of what we said, unless we go back and undo some our other tax amendments here.

MR. KUHN: The state could pass a flat rate income tax. That is what I would like to see if they want to have an income tax. I am not advocating an income tax, but at least it would be fair. It would also be fair if all the cities could have one, so we could prorate it, but to allow just 1 specific city to do it, I think, is entirely unfair.

MR. MAHINSKE: In conclusion here, I would like to state that I would be opposed to the amendment for basically the same reasons that we are prohibiting sources of revenue in the basic document here.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: I would just like to add one little bit of information to the general picture here. We have heard that our expressways are paid for by the state and federal government, that these suburban communities pay for gas and water, but nobody has mentioned one little thing: when you drive over these expressways, does it ever occur to you that $31 million in assessed valuation of real estate was removed from Detroit's tax base forever? Take the $31 million worth of real estate, visualize the homes, the offices, the stores, the personal property tax, the purchasing power, the jobs that were removed forever from Detroit. Fully half of these moved to these suburban communities, because with these expressways they can now come into Detroit in 20 or 25 minutes instead of an hour and ½.

The Detroit taxpayers, however, must carry the entire tax burden of Detroit, including what would have been the tax burden of this $31 million of assessed valuation. Maybe the solution is for Detroit to blow up its expressways and half of these people would move back into town.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the Kuhn amendment to section a of Committee Proposal 83. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kuhn offers the following amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1016.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Kuhn amendment. As many as are in favor of the Kuhn amendment will say aye. Those opposed say no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 83?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 13, after "law.", by inserting "Provited however, That ½ of any sums collected by a city or village payroll or income tax from nonresident employees shall be paid to the city, village or township of his residence, as provided by law.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I would like to say, at the outset, that I agree with Mr. Marshall and Mr. Downs and some of the other speakers that we have moved over into a field of legislation here, and I submit that the committee, by tampering with the language of section 20 — and I will admit that I didn't realize this while we were in committee, but it appears to me now that we have been maneuvered into a delicate position where we are now compelled to meet a problem that we shouldn't have to meet.

If you will take a look at section 20, as it originally appears in the Constitution of 1908, it says:

> The legislature shall provide by a general law for the incorporation of cities, and by a general law for the incorporation of villages; such general laws shall limit their rate of taxation for municipal purposes . . . .

Now, what the committee did was say, "such general laws shall limit their rate of property taxation," instead of the general proposition as it was presented before.

I think it is pretty well agreed — at least the people with whom I have talked including representatives of the corporation counsel's office of Detroit feel that the present home rule provision of the constitution would permit other forms of taxation than those now being collected, and that these would, in the case of the city of Detroit, include excise taxes and so on.

John McCauley may come from a city where, by virtue of their charter, they limit their activity, and instead of going back to his people and changing his charter so that they can levy another kind of tax, they are going to do it here by a constitutional provision that would grant carte blanche to all cities, whether their charter would prohibit otherwise or not, the right to levy taxes other than property taxes.

Once this is done, we move into the area of replacing the local option charter provisions with a constitutional provision to grant a power that maybe, at the time of the adoption of the charter, the people did not want. Having taken this step, then it seems that we are caught on the horns of a dilemma, because in order to meet the situation that is created by this, we have to dig deeper into the mud and get ourselves further into the field of legislation.

I put this amendment in because I think it puts squarely before you the question of whether or not there is an equitable redistribution involved, and, really, I think it has been said several times before, this is a field of taxation, the income tax, that can only be handled at the state level. But, the unfortunate thing now is that we have had a considerable amount of discussion, and it would appear to anyone who examines the record of this convention, that it was the intention of the committee, in changing the language in the way that it has been changed, to permit an income or payroll tax.

I submit that many cities already have this power, and we were informed, as late as Saturday, in a meeting which was attended by delegates from both parties in the city of Detroit, that the present administration of the city of Detroit is no longer interested in having a city income tax, so long as there is any remote hope of having a state or county income tax as such, and that they would fall back on the income tax as the very last and desperate resort. Much has been said about Detroit in this. I don't think Detroit is really the problem with many of us in Wayne county. I think, probably, we have as many people from the communities that I represent here living and working in Mrs. Cushman's town of Dearborn, and John McCauley's Wyandotte, and in Ecorse and River Rouge, where the steel mills are, as we have in the city of Detroit.

Glenn Allen intrigued me with his little story about Maumee and Toledo, and pointed out that if we start this thing with a city passing an income tax and then the adjoining city passing an income tax to offset it and so on, that what we do is force them into a situation where they start splitting 50-50. In other words, the city of Dearborn would give back to Detroit a portion of the tax collected from the Detroiters, and the city of Detroit would give back to Dearborn a portion of the collection from the tax. There is one weakness to this, however, in the state of Michigan, and that is that the taxing powers of all units of government in Michigan are not coequal, and there are 434,000 people living in Wayne county who live outside of cities and villages; they live in townships, and a township does not have a retaliatory taxing power. I wouldn't advocate that it should have a retaliatory taxing power because I think this is a ridiculous way to approach a tax program, to start retaliating.

But the city of Dearborn, for example, which already has a tremendous and enviable tax position because of the Ford motor company, now enjoys the benefit of a working force, a product. We have come to the point in this country where we recognize that the working man is a valuable part of the economy, and his home community, the community that supports him by his schools and so on, supplies to the economy a trained workman, if you will. The city of Dearborn already derives practically all of its taxes — and when I say practically all, I say it advisedly, there is one big industry that carries the whole load over there, primarily.

We have the children. We have to build the schools in the so called "bedroom communities", and we get no part of this back. A state income tax might conceivably bring us to a situation where you could take some of this tax money from the communities that have the large industry and redistribute it to the school districts that are supplying the schools and the bedrooms, if you will, for the working force that staffs these factories.

Now, we have ourselves in a terrible plate of spaghetti here, and can pick ends out of it all day and you are still going to have a mess, because when we seem to give constitutional sanction to a round robin of one city charging an income tax and another city retaliating, I think that we are doing the people of this state a disservice. I think that we have reached a stage where I would be very happy to vote against the committee proposal, even if my amendment is adopted, on the ground that we should go back to the general home rule proposition, as we have it now. Don't restrict the cities in their present taxing powers, but let us not put language in the constitution which seems to indicate, on the basis of the interpretation that has been put on it here, that we are advocating that cities get into the income tax business.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I would have to speak in opposition to the amendment for the simple reason that in the areas, if the amendment would go through, where a city imposes the tax, they know they have to give 50 per cent back to the residents of those other areas; so, simply, what are they going to do? They are going to impose a tax twice in size to what they need because they are only going to glean 50 per cent of this tax for themselves. In the meantime, they are going to stand the burden of the administrative costs of distributing this tax.

Who gets hurt in the meantime is the person who is subject to the taxation, because he is going to be taxed double what the taxing city intended on taxing him to begin with. If they only wanted $1, they will have to tax him somewhere around $2 to pay for the administration of the rebate here. I think, actually, this will do more harm to the out taxing authority people than it will do good for the taxing area from where these people reside.

Secondly, I don't think that this is what Mr. Ford intends, here; that the people who are being taxed in these cities will be taxed twice what the city would initially intend on taxing them.

For these reasons, I would oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Ford amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, if you can get through the smoke screen that Bill Ford just laid down, you will notice that he is attempting to put townships into the home rule provisions here. I submit to Mr. Ford, as far as the city of Detroit's concern over income tax, that is not my problem; I am not concerned about that. I am concerned with the language in the committee proposal. I further would like to state to Mr. Ford, as far as a definite ruling on income tax, payroll tax, to my knowledge, the only test case that has gone up involved the city of Saginaw. The case was thrown out on a technicality and they never did test the merits on this thing.

As far as what the city attorney for the city of Detroit, or the attorney general's opinion is on this matter, I'd say that is just the opinion of another attorney. But, we are attempting in this constitution to set a framework and guidelines for the state legislature to act in this particular field.

Therefore, I would oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, just very briefly, I think that the Ford amendment is similar to the amendments we had before. What it basically is is an attempt to legislate and say "this is the solution today," when we are drawing a document for 50 years, in a field where we don't know for sure what is the best solution or whether there is any one solution. Therefore, I would oppose the amendment.

I think Delegate Ford also got off into other fields and left you with the impression that the townships wouldn't be able to do anything, but the legislature has the power, any day, to give townships this same power if the legislature would do so. So, I feel that there is no lack of protection there. Basically, here again is an amendment which is an attempt to legislate.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, again I want to confess that Delegate Allen has made my speech and Delegate McCauley did an excellent job, too. I, too, would like to oppose this amendment as being legislative in character, and to remind the delegates that the committee proposal provides for the power to be such as provided by the constitution or law, meaning, of course, that the legislature does have some power in this matter.

The committee proposal does one thing, which I think we should all remember, and that is that it clears the present constitution in regard to home rule powers, as it affects taxation.

There is one other point I want to make before I sit down, and that involves some misapprehension that seems to have crept into our discussions. The city of Detroit has a revenue shortage problem which has been indicated here on several occasions. Detroit has been forcing its tax assessments down and is losing revenue in the process. Even if the tax assessments were not being forced down — and remember that we have asked them to get down to 50 per cent by 1966 — they would still have a revenue shortage problem, and they must find some other source of revenue.

However, the point should be made very clear that the city of Detroit — and I am referring now to the mayor of the city of Detroit and the common council — has never advocated an income tax at the city level. In all instances, both the mayor and the common council — and I might add to that, a city income tax study committee which worked for 9 months on the problem, and of which I was a member — concluded also that the city of Detroit should avoid imposing an income tax.

It is felt that once the ball starts to roll it will be just like a snowball. It will begin to pick up momentum and all the communities surrounding will be in the field. The city of Detroit would certainly like to avoid going into an income tax, and I think everyone in the Detroit area is on record as being opposed to an income tax; that is, at the city level.

The present mayor is advocating one at the county level. There has been considerable advocacy for an income tax at the county level. But, all of those who are interested in the subject have advocated the income tax at the state level, and, if possible, to give local units of government an opportunity to supplement the state tax. This would be the better solution. I think that the record should be clear on indicating that no one down in the Detroit area is advocating an income tax at the city level. But, if no other relief is given to the city, it may have to resort to an income tax, but it would be a last resort for the city to look to.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna, request recognition?

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it would seem that by the local government placing in, with regard to cities and villages, powers of taxation which should have been placed in the article on taxation, they have created a dilemma before this delegation. I ask the chairman of the local government committee whether or not it is possible to draw a good local government article dealing with counties or townships or cities and villages, leaving the taxation articles and provisions out of this section, to be placed in the taxation article, where it belongs, in the same manner that they did not attempt to spell out, for cities and villages or for townships, a judicial system, so that we could deal with government on a local level as government, and taxation in the taxation article as taxation, and courts in the judicial article as courts?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Ford amendment to section a of Committee Proposal 83. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1017.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor of the amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 83?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Rush offers the following amendment.

1. Amend page 1, line 10, after "debts.", by striking out the balance of the section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Romeo, Delegate Rush.

MR. RUSH: Mr. Chairman, I think Delegate Marshall and Delegate Sterrett have pointed this up very concisely. I believe if we pursue this way of doing, we will end up with a hodge podge of retaliatory taxes. I think that this thing should be handled on a state level only. I think that last section should be stricken out.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Rush amendment to section a.

The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Rush amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Stanton, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, we have had for years the question of whether a city had the right to levy these other kinds of taxes. Sometimes, we have been told they have; sometimes we have been told they have not. This language, substantially, in this form, though not quite in the form that it appears in the section, was advanced by the municipal league, and had plenty of consideration from them. They think it is the thing that we need.

It may be that it doesn't fit everywhere. I realize what this problem is among the suburbanites but, as a general proposition and because of the recognition of the need by the municipal league, I think we should be pretty careful about throwing it out.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Rush amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Traverse City, Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: I should like to speak in opposition to the amendment and in favor of the committee proposal. This is a matter that was, I think, the core of the whole problem that we have been discussing all afternoon, that we should clear up the fact: do the cities and villages have the power to tax? Certainly, it is advocated by many that they do have the power. And, likewise, it is indicated that some feel they do not. I think in this sentence we can clear up the fact forever, that the cities do have this power and the villages, unless it is preempted by the state.

I, therefore, very definitely recommend that the amendment be turned down.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Rush amendment to section a. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor of the Rush amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section a?

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly and Mr. Boothby offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 8, after "rate of" by striking out "general property"; so the language will then read:

> The legislature shall provide by a general law for the incorporation of cities and villages; such general laws shall limit their rate of taxation for municipal purposes, and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Highland Park, Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: If I understood the reading, I think I put it in wrong. I just want to eliminate the lines "general property" that were added by the committee.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is what I said.

MISS DONNELLY: You did? I am sorry. I didn't listen to you. My point being on this that I think we spent a lot of time and energy arguing about income tax, payroll tax, and what have we, how it should be split up, and other residents taxing nonresidents, and what have you, and then the thought being basically to leave it up to the legislature to handle this.

I am very deeply concerned about whether the legislature may handle this because of this construction. The committee has said "The legislature shall provide by a general law . . ." and the "general laws shall limit their rate of general property taxation. . . ." Now to me, this could be a very definite limitation on the legislature's right to limit anything but general property taxation.

We are not, in this last few hours, concerned about general property taxation, but we are talking about payroll or income taxation. I think it is very possible that the last sentence, line 13, could not be construed to mean anything but general property. I am wondering if that was the intent of the committee, and I think their drafting has, perhaps, put them into a corner they didn't mean, because I do think that they want the legislature to be able to tax or control taxing on income, what have we. But, as it is set forth in this, the general property would only limit the legislature to general property.

I want the legislature to act; therefore, I would urge your support in removal of the words "general property" so that the legislature will have more power to control this generally, and there will not be any kind of a restriction on the legislature, which I think is the intent of the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: The purpose of using the words "general property" is to be specific and distinguish the limitation on property taxes from the new grant of power to levy nonproperty taxes in the last sentence. If you take out "general property", you are defeating the whole idea of the proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. McCauley gave my speech.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: Then, if I understand it, you only want the legislature to limit on general property. You do not want the legislature to be able to limit on income taxes or any other kind?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: The last new language added by the committee states that, "Each city and village is hereby granted power to levy taxes for public purposes subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law." I would assume that to mean that they can limit this type of taxation also.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: Then your assumption would be, through the Chair, that "or law" could never be construed to relate back to "such general laws shall limit their rate of general property taxation"? I think this is a rather serious issue.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: I would like to yield the floor.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: To whom do you wish to yield?

MR. McCAULEY: Delegate Allen.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Miss Donnelly, we thought the language was clear, and reading it here, as you make the point, I still think it is clear. It is a little difficult to see why it should trouble you. We tried to limit in both cases. If you had an ad valorem taxation of any kind, this is clearly limited by the sentence in which the words "general property" are used.

If you come over to anything that we commonly call excise taxes or specific taxes or these new kind of taxes, we say this is also limited by the prohibitions; that is, it is subject to any limitations and prohibitions set forth in the constitution or law. So, the legislature makes the limitation in both sets of taxes, both ad valorem, general property, and specific. And, we wanted to do that. In fact, we went out of our way on the bottom part because we didn't want to have an unlimited rate of specific taxes.

If there is anything wrong with it and it isn't clear, the style and drafting committee can clear it up. Personally, I think it is clear, and the intent is to have a limitation on both.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: Did you have this briefed out, as to this construction, if I may ask? I think, to me, the intent is not clear to allow them to limit on both. It seems to me you very specifically say — you have added new language, you have changed the constitution in the past, the constitution in the past said they had to limit their rate. You have now inserted "general property". They must use this insertion for some reason, and by inserting "general property", this must be construed to mean something. Then a few lines later, you say, "or law", it would mean to me to relate back to only general property law.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Miss Donnelly, this language was given careful consideration by the committee in its deliberations, as well as being given to the research and drafting department for careful work. I am sure that what Mr. Allen has explained to you is what the language does; it is what we intended it to do, and because of those reasons, I would urge that we defeat the amendment. In fact, I don't think that you really want the amendment if you are satisfied that the language does what Mr. Allen has told you. Isn't that correct?

MISS DONNELLY: If your position is correct, I don't know why you object to the deletion, because then the deletion makes it absolutely clear, whereas, by leaving it in I think you put a large question as to whether it is true or not.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Miss Donnelly, this is a matter of interpretation. We wanted it to be perfectly clear and that is why this additional language was added.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I am wondering if I could help Miss Donnelly by suggesting one word that we add to line 11. Miss Donnelly, would you follow me on this? In line 11, if we say — well, reading the whole sentence — "Each city and village is hereby granted power to levy other taxes . . . ", using the word "other", would that make it clear as to what the committee intended? ". . . levy other taxes for public purposes", the first part relating to general property.

I am wondering if Mr. McCauley would comment on that, and I will make that as an amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Austin yields to Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: I would oppose it as an amendment, Dick. However, if style and drafting felt that this was necessary to clarify it and to put Miss Donnelly at ease, I am sure the committee certainly would have no objection.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: I think, perhaps, that I should propose that as an amendment; that we amend line 11, by inserting the word "other" after the word "levy".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Would you put your amendment in writing, Delegate Austin?

Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I do think that that would help clarify it. I think the deletion makes it absolutely clear. If we want to make it short, the deletion is better. But certainly the addition of the word "other" does do a large measure to change the possible construction, in my opinion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegates Donnelly and Boothby to section a. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1019.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I wonder if Miss Donnelly and Mr. Boothby want their amendment to go through, in view of the fact that we have tentatively agreed to add the word "other" in there. Now, we, if we are going to add the word "other" —

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Mahinske, the committee has not tentatively agreed to this. Delegate Austin hasn't submitted the amendment, as yet. Miss Donnelly has not withdrawn her amendment.

MR. MAHINSKE: But she has been asked this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you want to withdraw your amendment, Miss Donnelly?

MISS DONNELLY: On the condition that the other goes through, I will be very happy to.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair cannot guarantee that the other will go through, Miss Donnelly. Does the delegate from Highland Park wish to withdraw her amendment? Delegate Austin has submitted his.

MISS DONNELLY: I will be happy to temporarily withdraw it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, Delegate Donnelly happily withdraws her amendment. The question before the committee now is the amendment offered by Delegate Austin, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 11, after "levy" by inserting "other"; so that the language will read: "Each city and village is hereby granted power to levy other taxes for public purposes subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Austin amendment. The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would suggest we adopt the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor of the Austin amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section a? If not, it will pass.

Section a, as amended, is passed and the secretary will read section b.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section b.

[Sec. b, paragraph one, was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1005.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate McCauley, speaking on behalf of the committee.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, if there is no objection by the committee, I would just as soon have Mr. Chase read down and exclude the last sentence, because we feel that these are 2 areas that could be controversial, and we would like to take the rationale down to the last sentence, because there is a committee amendment to the last sentence.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection the section will be divided. Do you wish to speak to the first sentence of the section?

MR. McCAULEY: I would like the secretary to read the first 2 paragraphs and exclude the last sentence, and then speak to the first 2 paragraphs.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The second paragraph, exclusive of the last sentence, reads as follows:

> Each such city and village is hereby granted full power to pass laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property, and government, but the legislature may enact laws of statewide concern which will preempt the field only when this intention is so stated therein. No enumeration of powers in this constitution shall be deemed to limit or restrict the general grant of authority hereby conferred.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the language change in the first paragraph is to achieve a more positive statement of the right of cities and villages to home rule. The only substantive change is to make it clear that the power to revise a charter exists along with the other rights named. This is to clear up a possible ambiguity. The language deleted in lines 6 through 9 is replaced by a more positive statement in the second paragraph. In addition, home rule cities and villages are guaranteed full power over their own property and government, and these powers cannot be limited except by deliberate statement of intent by the legislature. In the past, general laws of the state providing for a standard of service or performance have been held by the courts to make invalid municipal ordinances or charter provisions providing a higher standard. This is undesirable and this language will permit the municipal provisions to stand in the absence of deliberate intent by the legislature to set them aside.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to the first paragraph of section b?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Sharpe offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 14, after "Sec. b.", by reinserting "Under such general laws"; and in line 15, after "village" by striking out "are hereby granted" and reinserting "shall have"; so that the language will then be substantially restored as it stands in the present constitution and would read:

Under such general laws the electors of each city and village shall have the power and authority to frame, adopt, amend, and revise its charter, and to amend, and revise an existing charter of the city or village heretofore granted or passed by the legislature for the government of the city or village.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Howell, Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, now I would like to see just how much consistency we have with the people wanting the legislature to do so many things. It looks to me like some of the members of our committee have reached down and picked themselves up by their own bootstraps and allowed the cities to have this general power.

They have never given any consideration to the legislature on this particular section, section b, however, and I would like to see, now, what the reaction is. They were all together in favor of leaving everything in section a to the legislature. I am also in favor of doing the same thing in section b.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, it certainly wasn't the intent of the committee to delete any language from this that would be granting cities more power or deleting it. It was the feeling of the committee, after consulting with the research department, that section a, whereby the cities are incorporated under such general law, following that down into section b, that this was just a repetition. That was the only purpose for deleting it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Sharpe amendment to the first paragraph of section b. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Fennville, Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, all I wanted to say is that I am aware that there is some concern around convention hall that although the committee assures us it intended no substantive change by this language, that a substantive change has been effected by it.

Under the old statute, under the old provision, it is clearly stated that "under general laws" the electors could do thus and so, the electors of a city or village. The new language strikes out this reference to "under general laws" and, apparently, vests in them some kind of an inherent and independent power. I state that there is considerable concern in some part of the convention that you have accomplished a substantive change. Maybe you did not intend it. I would support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Seyferth.

MR. SEYFERTH: My question, Mr. Chairman, is to one of the committee members. Is it not true that the last sentence of the paragraph, which says, "The legislature shall provide by general law the procedure for framing, adopting, amending, and revising such charters," takes care of striking out the first few words?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Seyferth yields to Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: That was our thinking, Delegate Seyferth.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to point out that there is a difference here. The language that Mr. Seyferth reads says that "The legislature shall have the power . . . " to do what? Merely to provide the procedures of what goes into those charters; whereas the old language and the present home rule acts not only provide the procedures, but they also provide such things as this: "every city charter shall provide," and "every city charter may provide" other things.

In other words, under the present home rule system, within the framework of a general law, the state as a whole, if you please, the legislature, acting for the state as a whole, can, in a sense, define what must go into a charter and what may go into a charter. Now you are wiping all that out and simply saying the legislature has the power to provide the procedures whereby the people may revise and amend their charters.

Very obviously, you are taking away from the state any control over the substance of those charters, and I think that is a substantive change.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ypsilanti, Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: First I would like to ask a question. When this proposition was divided, was the first paragraph of section b taken alone, and we are not dealing with any part of the second paragraph of section b?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: That is the understanding of the Chair, Delegate Lawrence. We are dealing now with the first paragraph, as requested by the committee.

MR. LAWRENCE: I would have to agree with Delegate Hutchinson that the addition of the new last sentence to the first paragraph certainly does not leave the meaning of that paragraph unchanged from the present act. There is no need of repeating what he has said because that is what I had in mind.

This would seem to take the control of a general home rule act, as applicable to all of the cities in the state, away from them and would allow each municipality to go ahead and pass anything that it desired —

MR. McCAULEY: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, it was the intention, at least my intention, that we were taking the first 2 paragraphs together and separating the last sentence; that is all; so I would like Delegate Lawrence to think about the second paragraph, too, in light of Senator Hutchinson's remarks.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair stands corrected, and we shall consider the first 2 paragraphs, and divide the question and consider the last sentence after we have disposed of the first 2 paragraphs excluding the last sentence.

MR. LAWRENCE: I was trying to do a little research on this subject, and I thought something of that nature was passing my orbit. That is why I asked the question. If that is the case, I, at least, anticipate putting in an amendment to a portion of the second paragraph, the portion that would be under consideration, and I just didn't want to get myself in a position, if I could avoid it, where by this type of division I would suddenly find that everything down to the last sentence had been passed without my getting that amendment in. So I want to be sure that any rights I have, if any, are preserved.

I now want to get back to the subject at hand. It has always been the policy in Michigan, first, of course, to consider that cities are really creatures of the legislature and a part of the legislature; that they have no independent existence. In other words, they are arms of the legislature. To give to those cities complete authority, without any restriction, to pass these local acts, so to speak, or acts governing themselves, would seem to me to be a rather radical departure, and I wonder if we are quite ready to take it, because certain rights in certain individuals and otherwise have been created under the present system.

I would support the amendment and feel that the present wording will go far beyond, certainly, what has been our concept of municipal home rule or municipal government.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Sharpe amendment. Delegate Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: If we are going to take the 2 paragraphs together, I will definitely support the amendment and agree with Senator Hutchinson because the second paragraph gets to the point that the legislature shall preempt the field, and then they specifically say that they preempt the field, which means that all the laws that they have on this now, in my opinion, would be wrong and they would have to reenact them if they have now preempted the field on this subject. If you put these 2 paragraphs together, it makes it even more so.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The understanding of the Chair is that we are considering the paragraph on page 1, lines 14 through 22; on page 2, lines 1 through 11. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to direct a question to Mr. McCauley regarding these 2 paragraphs taken together, except for the last sentence of the second paragraph.

I gathered, from his previous comment, that he thought that the legislature, under the second paragraph, had the power to entirely preempt the field, so that they could establish general laws regarding any matter that they believed to be of statewide concern in connection with the government of cities or villages. Is that a correct interpretation of your remarks, Mr. McCauley?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: That is correct, concerning full power to pass laws and ordinances except as preempted by the state for statewide concern.

MR. WANGER: Yes. Now, as I read that, that power to preempt the field applies only to the power to pass laws and ordinances, and does not apply to the power to adopt or revise the charter; because the second paragraph deals entirely with the power of the city or village to pass laws and ordinances, and the first paragraph deals only with the power to adopt, amend or revise a charter. It, therefore, seems to me that you very clearly create a difficult problem of interpretation, which would undoubtedly have to be settled by the supreme court as to whether or not a city or village could put anything into its charter, any general laws of the state notwithstanding.

MR. McCAULEY: I think you make a pretty good agrument on that point. As I say again, it was the intention of the committee not to make a substantive change in the first paragraph. It was our feeling that the rest of the language in the section would grant the legislature powers to control the revision, adoption, amendment, and so on, of charters.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to just make this situation clear. Maybe everybody on the committee floor here understands it, but let me state it, anyway. Under the present constitution the home rule powers of a city or a village are dependent upon a general law of the legislature, by which the legislature says what a charter may contain and what a charter shall contain, and the legislature is in the position then of controlling it, yes, to some extent from a general statewide picture.

Here is what these 2 paragraphs do, if I read them correctly, as the committee proposal stands. They turn the whole thing inside out. The city or the village shall have power to do anything that the legislature doesn't prohibit, so that the city's or village's powers are not powers resting upon a grant, but they have all powers except such as the state prohibits them.

Put yourself in the position of the legislature, if you please, for a minute, and think about what a tremendous job it is going to be for that legislature to try to anticipate and outguess everything that it does not want a municipality to do. It is almost impossible to try to anticipate things that some municipality might want to do, and anticipate them in advance and try to prohibit them. The chances are that the municipality will go ahead and do those things and then only after they are done will it come to statewide attention, with a great deal of confusion, bad policy, and everything else resulting. And, I tell you, you are putting the state authority, whether it be the legislature or the whole state government, in a very embarrassing position of trying to have to anticipate and outguess. The better policy, in my opinion, is the policy that we have had.

If, for any reason, the home rule acts now on the books are not adequate, it isn't an impossible thing to go to the legislature and get those acts amended to broaden those powers. But, in any event, in that case the legislature is in the position of having determined the positive question about what powers shall be granted instead of having, as I say, to try to anticipate and outguess what might be going on and have to prohibit them in advance.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: I wonder, Mr. Hutchinson, if, in order to clarify this, you are speaking to the first part of the paragraph, which is the subject matter concerning the adoption of a charter and the amendment and revising, or are you referring also, or separately, to power to pass laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concern?

MR. HUTCHINSON: In answer, Mr. Allen, I would hope that we should have been discussing the first paragraph of this section. I think that is much more orderly than to try to take both paragraphs together. But since we were taking both paragraphs together, then, I thought it was probably in order to speak to the second paragraph. I am now addressing myself to this second paragraph, but I would much rather that we confine ourselves now to this first paragraph having to do with the charter itself.

MR. ALLEN: I didn't know which one to answer. I think we are all getting a little confused because we are considering them together.

Mr. Chairman, do you want to hold the committee to the first paragraph alone temporarily?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection from the chairman of the committee on local government, we will consider the first paragraph by itself. Is there any objection?

MR. MAHINSKE: Well, yes, I object.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Mahinske objects.

MR. MAHINSKE: I don't think that we can divide these 2. To get any meaning out of either paragraph, I would have to read them both, myself, and I come up with the same answer that Mr. Hutchinson comes up with, that we are starting — the existing situation that we have now is the legislature lays down the general enabling statutes for cities and villages. It sets out the restrictions, and the villages and the cities set up their charters geared to these statutes. What we are now saying is the cities and the villages may set up their charters and when they reach a point that the legislature objects, the legislature shall preempt the field and restrict activity in certain areas.

This sounds to me like the same argument that we hear quite often from Mr. Hutchinson when we are talking about the constitution, from the legislature, that they set down restrictions only on the legislature, and they shall be able to do anything else that they are not restricted in. Frankly, I don't see any reason why the local government unit should be treated any other way.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the gentleman from Detroit yield to the delegate from Kalamazoo? Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, I think for clarity these should be considered separately, and to bring that point to a head, I will move that the 2 paragraphs be divided.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen moves that section b be divided, and that we consider each paragraph separately. All those in favor of the motion will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Delegate Mahinske, do you wish to speak to the first paragraph?

MR. MAHINSKE: No.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, the first paragraph pertains to the procedure and method by which a city frames, adopts or revises its charter. Delegate Hutchinson has called attention to the fact that the language appears to be turned around. I was not a member of the subcommittee which drew this, and so I don't exactly know why it was turned around, except, I think, that when the added language was added later on, it seemed to the research department that this was the best way to draft it. In other words, Senator Hutchinson, I don't believe, and I am not certain, that any intent was to somehow sneak some more powers in or doing something like that. I really think that this happened as a matter of style, although I am not positive of it.

I do know that under fourth class cities, there was an opinion by the attorney general which related to this point, and maybe this was turned around for that reason, but it only would affect a very small number of cities, if this was the reason. If that should be a major objection, as speaking for myself alone, I don't worry about following whatever suggestion Senator Hutchinson would want, rather than exactly the same language, and that would be the only comment I would like to make. There is certainly no intent here to increase power somehow without really making it obvious that it is being increased.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I am happy to have it stated on the record that the committee intended no change in that, and that the change in the phraseology was merely an effort at drafting. However, when you change language, the obvious first attempt always is to find out what difference in meaning there is, and, obviously, at least to me, I would say that this change in language had accomplished a substantive change which I pointed out, and for that reason I am supporting Mr. Sharpe's amendment, which would reinsert the present language.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I am going to ask for the committee to rise in just a moment, but before we do that, I wonder if we couldn't read the amendment that Mr. Sharpe has offered. I think that it has been made crystal clear here that the committee, in this first paragraph in particular, had no desire to change the intent, and if I can hear it, I am going to perhaps, suggest its adoption, then urge the committee to rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the Sharpe amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Sharpe's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1021.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Sharpe amendment to the first paragraph of section b. Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I don't believe that there is any objection to that amendment, and I would urge its adoption at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: If you do adopt the Sharpe amendment, then you do not need the language at the end of the paragraph because that is a complete duplication. That language was put there to take the place of the phrase "under such general laws" that had been stricken out, so that it should be removed if you are going to adopt the Sharpe amendment. I think the Sharpe amendment simply does what the last sentence of the paragraph now proposes to do.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, I have the amendment in my hand. It would do that, but I have learned from experience not to get too much done at one time, so I refrained from turning this in until we had the first amendment passed.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is it your intention to offer an amendment to strike that sentence?

MR. SHARPE: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would suggest that we add that to his amendment unless there are objections, and move on.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Sharpe, will you bring your amendment to the desk, please?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Sharpe is also offering a second amendment to page 1, line 22, by striking out "The legislature shall provide by general law the procedure for framing, adopting, amending, and revising such charters.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, we shall combine the 2 amendments into 1 amendment.

[The revised amendment is as follows:

1. Amend page 1, line 14, after "Sec. b.", by reinserting "Under such general laws"; and in line 15, after "village" by striking out "are hereby granted" and reinserting "shall have"; and by striking out all of line 22; and on page 2 by striking out all of lines 1 and 2.]

The question before the committee is on the adoption of the combined Sharpe amendments to the first paragraph of section b. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment, as revised, is adopted.

Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I move that the committee do now rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott moves that the committee do now rise. All those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no. The committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, Vice President Romney assumed the Chair.]

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The convention will come to order. The Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration several items on which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 82, A proposal pertaining to townships; has adopted 2 amendments to the committee proposal; and recommends that these 2 amendments be agreed to and the proposal, as thus amended, do pass.

[The following are the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole:

1. Amend page 1 by striking out lines 10, 11, 12 and 13 and inserting

"Sec. b. The legislature shall by general law confer upon organized townships powers of a local, legislative, and administrative character, not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution.

2. Amend page 2, line 1, after "Sec. d.", by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "The legislature shall provide by law for the elimination of township government whenever there is no territory which is not included within the borders of a village within such township.".]

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: You have heard the report.

The question is on agreeing to the amendments. Those in favor say aye. Opposed?

The amendments are agreed to.

Committee Proposal 82, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 82 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. Each organized township shall be a body corporate with such powers and immunities as shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. b. The legislature shall by general law confer upon organized townships powers of a local, legislative, and administrative character, not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution.

Sec. c. There shall be elected for a term not less than 2 years nor more than 4 years as provided by law in each organized township: 1 township supervisor; 1 township clerk; 1 township treasurer; and, not to exceed 4 township trustees, whose powers and duties shall be provided by law.

Sec. d. The legislature shall provide by law for the elimination of township government whenever there is no territory which is not included within the borders of a village within such township.

Sec. e. No township shall grant any public utility franchise which is not subject to revocation at the will of the township, unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of a majority of the electors of such township voting thereon at a regular or special election.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 83, A proposal pertaining to cities and villages; has considered several amendments relative thereto and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Without objection, the convention will return to the order of reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 70, A resolution of the constitutional convention establishing a budget for post constitutional convention expenses; with 2 amendments, recommending that the amendments be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus amended, be adopted.

[The following are the amendments recommended by the committee:

1. Amend the eighth whereas clause, item 1, after "copies of the" by striking out "80 page".

2. Amend the resolving clause, in the Post Constitutional Convention Commission Budget, item II, sub-item E, after "Mileage to and from Lansing—commission" by inserting "(10 cents per mile)".]

Walter DeVries, chairman.

For Resolution 70 as offered, see above, page 986.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, this resolution supplements one passed earlier by the convention, setting up the functions and duties of the post constitutional convention commission. The commission has not been appointed by the president, and probably won't be until the last week of the convention.

Ordinarily, this wouldn't come up until the end of the constitutional convention, but the legislature has requested from us certain budget information, and we need action on this at this time, and on the resolution.

Yesterday, the committee on administration submitted for your information a report which is found on page 588 of yesterday's journal, and I wish you would turn to that report so I could point out a few things about the budget of the convention.

The legislature appropriated $2 million for the convention and did it in 2 line items. If you look at "I. Salaries and wages—delegates," the amount budgeted there was $1,080,000. If you look at the fourth column, it is estimated—well, we know our balance for delegate salaries will be, on March 31, $216,000; on April 30, $72,000; and on May 15, nothing.

Now, if you look at item II, the second line item in the budget, subtotal, you will notice that in the fourth column, for the balance on March 31, in operations—now, this is exclusive of delegate salaries—it is anticipated if we adjourn March 31 we will have $200,316.08 left in that line item; April 30, $117,207.72; and on May 15, $74,676.04.

If you total the 2 line items, if we adjourn on March 31, we will have $416,316.08 left from our $2 million appropriation. If we adjourn April 30, we will have $189,207.72. If we adjourn May 15, we will have $74,676.04.

We do not need to take any action on this report. It is only submitted for your information.

Now, if you will, turn to page 595 of the journal to Resolution 70, and I will ask the secretary to read the resolution.

SECRETARY CHASE: Resolution is as follows:

[The resolution, to the budget detail, was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 986; for budget detail, see below, page 1166.]

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, if I may, I would like to proceed from this point and explain the rest of the budget and analysis. The resolution, up to this point, and throughout the rest of it, has the unanimous approval of the committee on administration, the committee on public information, and the officers of the convention.

If I may explain, the bottom half of page 596 is the summary of the projected budget for the post constitutional convention commission. There is a more detailed explanation that follows on the pages after the next chart.

If you will turn to the chart, there are a couple of errors in it. This is to depict the supervision of the commission over the staff, the staff we have now and the staff we anticipate for the commission once it is formed. The dotted lines are to indicate that these people will be on the staff anywhere from 1 week to 2 weeks, and in the case of the secretary's office, certain people will be on 5 to 6 months. That will be explained as we turn the page and look at salaries. The error to which I call your attention is under the office of public information. The director, the secretary, and the 2 clerk stenographers should be solid lines, indicating that they are part of the permanent commission staff.

[Correction made, see below, page 1167.]

If you will turn the page in the journal to page 598, you will see the post convention organization chart, and the permanent staff, which will consist of executive director, secretary, the finance clerk, director of public information, a secretary and 2 clerk stenographers. Everybody else on the staff, within the period of either 1 week to 6 months, in the case of the secretary's office, will be discharged.

Under salaries and wages, we provided a per diem and subsistence for the commissioners, 15 commissioners, at an estimated 20 meetings at $30 per diem. The $30 per diem is to cover the expenses of the commissioners.

Under salaries and wages, this is the breakdown, the anticipated breakdown, on the way that we will retain the staff after the convention adjourns. You have an executive director, for example, on item 1, who will be on for 7 months; the secretary to the president of the convention, ½ month, and so on.

If you will turn to page 599, under contractual service—supplies and materials, if you have any questions on the public information section, we can turn those over to Mr. White, the chairman of the committee on public information.

These are estimates based on 7 months of operation. Assuming the convention will at least adjourn on March 31, the commission would be in operation until election day, and so these estimates are based on 7 months.

A few of the items may need further explanation. For example, under postage we have provided for the distribution of the address to the people, $20,000. The committee on public information is asking for a million copies of this which will be sent out in bulk mail, and that is the estimate given to us by the committee on public information.

Under travel—mileage to and from Lansing by the commission, this is estimated at 10 cents a mile.

Contractual services, restoration of the civic center—our best estimate from the department of administration is that it will cost $30,000 to restore the civic center. Whether the commission will do this or whether the legislature will provide that that be done by the department of administration, we don't know at this time, until the legislature takes action on the bill.

Under office supplies and printed matter, address to the people, it is estimated that this will cost, for the art work and layout on the printing of a million copies of an estimated 80 page booklet, close to $83,000.

The convention record and proceedings—the convention has already authorized the printing of 3,000 copies, authorized 100 bound action journals, and has authorized 100 bound delegate proposals.

Turning the page to the last part of the budget, primarily this material is for public information, staffed within the post constitutional convention, and the last table shows the estimated monthly expenditures for the proposed constitutional convention commission.

Mr. Secretary, there are 2 amendments offered by the committee on administration, and I will ask the secretary at this time to read them, and then move their adoption.

SECRETARY CHASE: The 2 amendments recommended by the committee on administration are:

[The amendments were read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1024.]

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: The first amendment is recommended by the committee because we are not sure at this time if the address to the people will be 80 pages, and we didn't want to bind the committee on public information. Secondly, it was added to spell out that the commissioners would receive no more than 10 cents per mile for commission meetings in Lansing.

I move the adoption of the amendments.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the amendments. Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. President, I would like to ask Mr. DeVries a question. I note under the post convention budget, section 2, contractual services, and particularly under subsection E, "mileage—staff" a total of $9,500.00. Could you tell me what this is pointing toward?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Boothby, that is the combined total, the $8,500 for the mileage for the commissioners, and $1,000 estimated staff expenses. Now, this was included because the secretary thought that perhaps this contract might be let outside of Lansing, for the printing of the convention record, and we might have to provide some expense money for the secretary's staff as well as for the public information staff. But that $9,500 is a combination of both figures.

MR. BOOTHBY: May I ask this question: how did you compute the need for $8,500 for mileage to and from Lansing for the commissioners, and the mileage for the staff at $1,000?

MR. DeVRIES: The committee on administration didn't know who would be appointed to the post constitutional convention commission, so we figured it geographically, Mr. Boothby, assuming that there would be delegates from various parts of the state, and, at best, this is an estimate.

MR. BOOTHBY: The reason why I raised the question, I noticed that if you use 10 cents a mile, that is 95,000 miles, and I haven't had an opportunity to figure this out, but it seems like a tremendous amount of miles.

MR. DeVRIES: I am sorry. You said 95,000 miles? It is based on 10 cents a mile, assuming that the delegates who serve on the commission will be scattered, geographically throughout the state, and estimated trips to and from Lansing, 20 trips for 20 commission meetings.

MR. BOOTHBY: What is the $1,000 for the staff?

MR. DeVRIES: Well, the $1,000 was included, I think, Mr. Boothby, for 2 reasons. One is that we thought that perhaps the contract for the printing might be let ouside of Lansing, and would necessitate travel by the secretary's staff, and it would also provide for the travel of the public information staff, if any.

MR. BOOTHBY: I have 2 or 3 other questions, if I may, Mr. President. I would like to ask the thinking of the committee on subsection F regarding the clipping service.

MR. DeVRIES: The thinking of the committee, Mr. President and Mr. Boothby, the convention contracted for clipping service when we started October 3. It provides us with a permanent historical record, and we felt that it would be very valuable to the commission to have a newspaper clipping record of the activities following the convention. It is a continuation of a contractual service we now have.

MR. BOOTHBY: I have one final question, and that is with regard to the weekly press mailing. What do you envision that this press mailing service will perform?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Boothby, again this is a continuation of a present contractual service with the Michigan press association, and the public information division now sends out weekly mailings to weekly newspapers throughout the state.

MR. BOOTHBY: That brings me to my next question. Is this informational service that will be operated by the public information division going to be in the nature of giving bulletins as to the work of the commission, the post convention commission, or what will they be giving these weekly bulletins on?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Boothby, if you will turn to page 596 on the resolution and look at the second paragraph in the lefthand column, I think it points out very clearly what the public information staff would do in the commission. The data which they will prepare and send out will be prepared solely from the official convention record and the committee reports. Their function, as I understand it, is to provide the people of this state with an explanation of what we have done, of how we have changed this constitution from the 1908 constitution; purely factual, purely informational, based purely on the convention record and the accompanying committee reports.

MR. BOOTHBY: Well, may I ask you, looking to page 596 of the journal, I notice that there is a statement that one of the functions of this committee will be, under 8, "fulfilling all requests for informational data from groups and private citizens." Have you provided for gasoline allowance for this particular purpose?

MR. DeVRIES: For fulfilling all requests for informational data from groups and private citizens?

MR. BOOTHBY: Yes, is this going to be speaking engagements, or only publications?

MR. DeVRIES: It is not anticipated that any member of this commission or its public relations information division will appear on any speaking engagements. What we are talking about here is mailing requests for information, mailing tapes about sound on film documents, or what have you.

MR. BOOTHBY: Then, my conclusion is that the efforts of this commission will not be in the nature of a propaganda commission?

MR. DeVRIES: I am glad you asked. That is correct.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. President and Mr. DeVries, regarding the factual matters which you are going to submit in your report, taken from the convention record, since we have a great number of minority reports in respect to the various issues, will both sides then be presented?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Binkowski, it is my understanding that the material that will be released by this commission, after we have adjourned, will only be taken from the official draft and the accompanying committee reports sustaining that section of the constitution.

MR. BINKOWSKI: In other words, the majority report.

MR. DeVRIES: The committee report, Mr. Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: As accepted by the majority of the members of this constitutional convention.

MR. DeVRIES: As accepted by the majority of the members of this constitutional convention.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President and Mr. DeVries, I appreciate the work that your committee has done in trying to furnish to the delegates of this convention a breakdown of what you recommend should be done to preserve the records and to do all of the things that you have indicated. However, there is one thing that bothers me, Mr. DeVries, and that is the fact that it seems a little unfair that the delegates haven't had an opportunity to review it and to determine whether or not there are intelligent questions that we would like to ask the committee about this proposed budget. We are dealing with a considerable sum of money. At least, to me, a country boy from St. Louis, when we get to over ¼ of a million dollars, that is quite a lot of the people's money.

I am wondering if you would have any objection to laying this over for a day or so until we can make a study of it.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Hoxie, the only reason for some haste on this resolution is that the deadline for the introduction of bills in the legislature is February 21, and we would like to meet with the legislators sometime the end of this week, but we have no objection to laying this over until tomorrow morning. Would that be sufficient time, Mr. Hoxie?

MR. HOXIE; Well, Mr. DeVries, I would suggest tomorrow afternoon and give us a little opportunity. It is nearly 6:00 o'clock now, and we aren't going to be back here until 9:30 in the morning. I don't think it is such a rush that it couldn't wait until the afternoon session.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move that the committee on administration's report be laid over until tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 p.m.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: You have heard the motion. Those in favor say aye. Opposed.

The motion prevails.

Delegate Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, yesterday Dr. Pollock made a parliamentary inquiry asking the order in which the committee proposals remaining on our calendar would be considered, and after consultation with President Nisbet, the committee on rules and resolution reports to the convention that the secretary is now in the process of preparing the calendar, and showing the committee proposals by subject matter as follows:

First, local government, in which we are now engaged; then, education; then the judicial branch; then the executive branch; then the legislative organization; and then rights, suffrage and elections; then legislative powers; and finally miscellaneous provisions.

Hopefully, the secretary will have the calendar showing the proposals of these committees in detail in your hands tomorrow morning.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Van Dusen, do you have any motion in connection with special orders for tomorrow?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I think, Mr. President, it probably would be in order, at this time, to move that the matter of legislative organization, Committee Proposals 79 and 80, which had been made a special order for tomorrow, be returned to its regular place in the calendar, as I have just outlined.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the motion. Those in favor of the motion say aye. Opposed?

The motion prevails.

Delegate Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I ask through the Chair, Mr. Van Dusen, was the idea that all of these would be on general orders and each one would be completed before going on to the next?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President and Mr. Downs, that is certainly the intention of the committee on rules and resolutions, and I trust it meets with the approval of the convention.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. President, I would like to ask if there isn't some device that we could use to speed up the rate with which we move when we are in the committee of the whole. I recognize all the reasons for unlimited debate, why no one should be hurried or denied the right to have his views heard, and I don't know as I am speaking for anyone but myself, but today has been a very discouraging day. We have moved very slowly. There have been many such days, but we don't seem to be improving ourselves. I thought we might get tired after awhile and people wouldn't talk quite so often and so long. I have raised the question as to whether the management of this convention couldn't do something about it; I have been assured that they couldn't, and I am going to make a motion—it may be out of order; you can rule it out of order if you want to. It may not work, but I would like to see it tried.

So I move that the management of this convention instigate, beginning tomorrow, compiling for each meeting of the committee of the whole, and including in the daily journal a list of the number of speeches and the total number of minutes used in speaking by each delegate during each day's sessions.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I move that the rules be suspended for the purpose of immediate consideration of Dr. Hannah's motion.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Is there objection?

MR. FARNSWORTH: Point of information.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Directed to Mr. Van Dusen, on our desks today was placed a proposed—I don't know whether it is proposed or not—but an instrument that might possibly limit debate on casual amendments. My point of information is, what do you expect to do about that?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President and Mr. Farnsworth, while this is not precisely on the point of Dr. Hannah's motion, nevertheless, it may be worthwhile to explain briefly the attention which the committee on rules and resolutions has been giving to attempting to solve the problem raised by Dr. Hannah.

Each delegate has today received a suggestion, which the committee on rules and resolution has under consideration, which we give you in a very gingerly fashion because of the concern which all of us feel about arbitrary limitations on debate, but I believe that many of the members of the rules committee believe that the principal problem with which the committee of the whole has been confronted has been what we have defined as the casual amendment, the amendment which is thrown in in the heat of debate, which is not on the desks of the delegates, to which no prior thought, apparently, has been given, and to which no prior thought could have been given by the delegates other than those offering the amendment. We then spend extended time in consideration of these amendments thrown in in the heat of debate.

If you will examine the suggestion carefully, you will note that what we have done is to suggest a device by which any delegate may obtain unlimited debate in the committee of the whole if he can obtain the support of 2 other delegates for his proposed amendment, and if he is sufficiently considerate to have his amendment duplicated and placed on the desks of the members in advance of the session at which his amendment is to be offered. If he will do these things, then his amendment is not subject to limitation of debate. If, however, the amendment is simply thrown in in the course of debate, then it would be in order for the committee chairman or vice chairman or any signer of a minority report to which the amendment is offered to move to terminate debate at a time certain, nevertheless allowing not less than 5 minutes for the proponent of the amendment, and not less than 5 minutes for an opponent of the amendment, to consider it.

I would suggest, at this point, simply that each of the delegates give careful consideration to this kind of a suggestion. If it meets with your approval, let the members of the rules committee know it. If you have specific objection, let the members of the rules committee know. The committee on rules and resolutions proposes to meet at 8:30 a.m. on Thursday of this week at which time we will, once again, consider this subject. We would like to have the benefit of your guidance. We don't want to arbitrarily limit debate. On the other hand, it has been our impression increasingly that most of the delegates are not interested in protracted debate on the amendment which is thrown in without thoughtful prior consideration.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, now to get back to Dr. Hannah's motion, I would like to ask the Chair to inquire of the secretary as to whether the secretary is sufficiently and adequately staffed so that somebody can stand by with a stop watch and keep track of all of these minutes and all of these motions and do all of this research which is going to be necessary. All we are doing is doing a job of research here.

As I understand the sense of his motion, it is to tabulate in every journal all of the numbers of motions, and the number of minutes, and who talked how long, and I just want to know whether the secretary's office is adequately staffed to carry out that work.

SECRETARY CHASE: In response to the inquiry from Mr. Hutchinson, if we can borrow a stop watch somewhere, we will do our best to fulfill the requirements.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I would just like to say that I hope it won't hold up the journal.

Do you think it will hold up the journal, Mr. Chase?

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary read again the motion that is offered by Dr. Hannah?

> I move that the management of this convention instigate, beginning tomorrow, compiling for each meeting of the committee of the whole, and including in the daily journal a list of the number of speeches and the total number of minutes used in speaking by each delegate during each day's sessions.

I think this could possibly be done without too much difficulty.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I am in sympathy with what Dr. Hannah has in mind, however there is one question that I think we should consider and that is whether this same procedure should be followed on explanations on proposals that have been reported from committees, the answering of the questions from the delegates. I feel it is a little unfair, if it is some reflection on the committees who have presented to this convention a proposal in which, I am sure, the delegates want a full and complete explanation. Certainly there will be, from the legislative powers committee, various members of that committee who will answer questions that are asked by the delegates. Certainly we will not use up any more time in such explanations than the convention desires.

However, I don't believe that it was the intent of Dr. Hannah to make it appear as if committee members who are explaining the proposals before the committee of the whole should be so considered in a time proposition, to the extent where the people who receive these journals can only gather one inference, and that is that those people are taking too much time.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. President, I would object because of the fact that no one has shown me the cost basis or anything else, and I think it is done in jest at this time of the evening, and I think it should be given greater study.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on Delegate Hannah's motion. Delegate Conklin.

MRS. CONKLIN: I would just like to say that I support the intent, and I would just hope that those delegates who haven't spoken very often, won't feel obliged now to rush out and start speaking so they can get recorded.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I think that the point made by Dr. Hannah was well intended, but I question the seriousness of this and therefore I move to lay this motion on the table.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The motion is to lay it on the table. Those in favor say aye. Opposed.

The motion prevails.

Delegate Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I had a bit of admonition from a man sometime ago, when he said to his wife—and this might help here—he said to his wife, "Why don't you think before you speak?" She said, "How in the world do I know what I think until I hear what I have to say?" (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Hatcher.

MRS. HATCHER: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I rise on a point of special privilege. I, for some weeks now, have sat here in this convention realizing the completely adequate and very fine facilities that we have here, but I feel that there is an oversight, or perhaps there is some lack of understanding about the air conditioning system here in this building. I have constantly gotten over one cold after the other, and at this very moment my feet and hands are very cold, and there are 2 women setting here now with coats on.

I think that somehow, some way, the air conditioning ought to be arranged so that people can sit in here and be properly ventilated without freezing. I have hesitated to bring this to the floor, and I am not putting it in the form of a motion, but I am calling it to the attention of the management of this convention, realizing that the facilities here are adequate, but I believe this particular point has been overlooked in terms of the human beings who have to sit here.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Thank you, Mrs. Hatcher. This will be referred to the committee on administration.

Delegate DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: I often thought, before I got here, that I would like to write a book about what I was going to do. I think what I should do is take all the notes that I have received since I have been chairman of the committee on administration. It would be a delightful collection of "antic" dotes. Today I received 7 notes about the temperature in constitution hall. Five of them said that it was much too warm and 2 said that it was too cold, and so we have tried to adjust the temperature. This morning it was 82, and this noon we got it down to 70. I don't know what it is now. And I regret, Mrs. Hatcher, that you find it is cool, but I find that I get the least number of complaints when we set the temperature at 70.

I notice, from the rostrum, certain delegates have a tendency to go to sleep early in the morning if the temperature is above 80 degrees, and so we have tried to keep it at 70 degrees rather than at 80 degrees. That is all I can say, and I apologize for your discomfort. If you want to make a motion to set the thermostat at a certain temperature, that is the best I can do, and I apologize for your discomfort, Mrs. Hatcher.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Butler.

MRS. BUTLER: Mr. President, I think it is not just the temperature, it is the terrible draft. We sit right here in a breeze. It is a constant breeze. (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The Chair would like to suggest that Delegate Anspach review the fable of the man, the boy, and the donkey and tell it to all of us someday.

Delegate Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, if I could have the attention of the members of the committee on education, for just a second, I would remind them that we are having a committee photograph taken at our meeting immediately following the morning session tomorrow, and also to remind them that we have, by request, exchanged rooms with the committee on style and drafting, so we are in the room one further on than we were beforehand.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Announcements, Mr. Secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on style and drafting will meet in room K at 8:00 o'clock this evening, Mr. William B. Cudlip, chairman.

The committee on emerging problems will meet tomorrow, Wednesday evening, in committee room I at 1:00 o'clock p.m., Frank G. Millard, chairman.

I have the following request for leave of absence: Mr. Norris requests to be excused from the morning session tomorrow, Wednesday.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Without objection, he will be excused.

Delegate Hubbs.

MR. HUBBS: Mr. President, I move the convention do now adjourn.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: All in favor say aye. Opposed?

The motion prevails. We are adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9:30 a.m.

[Whereupon, at 6:05 p.m., the convention adjourned until 9:30 o'clock a.m., Wednesday, February 14, 1962.]

SEVENTY-NINTH DAY

Wednesday, February 14, 1962, 9:30 o'clock a.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this morning will be given by the Reverend C. Oscar Leonardson of the Grace Lutheran Church of Lansing. Please rise.

REVEREND LEONARDSON: Great God in heaven, we do thank Thee that we have the privilege of even another day, and we pray Thee that on this day which, in a special sense, is symbolized by the word "love," that that new dimension of love may take our hearts, and that as we ponder the knotty problems that come before us in trying to hammer out a new constitution, that we might have that broader dimension in our thinking.

Fill us, O Lord, with Thy holy spirit even today. Help us to call upon Thee, and help us to seek Thy will and Thy guidance in all that is done, for without Thee, O Lord, life and all of its dispensations become fruitless. We pray Thee, therefore, to look to each single delegate of the constitutional convention, and help that each one might call upon Thee for the guidance that is so necessary; that when we think of those problems that we are to face, we recognize that they are not always the easiest to solve, but that with Thee, with Thy direction and Thy guidance there isn't anything that is impossible.

So we do look to Thee for Thy help today, we look to Thee for Thy guidance, we look to Thee for Thy direction, we look to Thee for the help we need so that, whatever is done, when the constitution becomes final it may be said that this is the greatest and the best instrument for all of the people of this great and wonderful state.

And so, Lord, we do think of Thee, and we do ask for Thy guidance this morning, and we say, in the spirit of the songwriter: Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love, the fellowship of kindred minds is like to that above. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye. Have you all voted?

SECRETARY CHASE: The machine is locked and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Absent with leave: Messrs. Dade, Norris, Page and Stamm.

Absent without leave: None.

[During the proceedings, Mr. Norris entered the chamber and took his seat.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Turner.

MR. TURNER: Mr. President, delegates of the convention, one of the main topics of discussion around and about this convention hall is about the 15 mill limitation.

Ladies and gentlemen, the 15 Mill is dead! Yes, you heard me right. The 15 Mill is dead. Let me read the obituary.

> Well known 15 Mill died suddenly February 9, 1962. Cause of death is believed to be electrocution. Funeral will take place February 14, 9:45 a.m. Fifteen Mill served in the political field as a tax adjuster for 30 years and was well known throughout the state.

Members of the convention:

The 15 Mill has served its day.
It has done its job — gone on its way.
I'd like to tell you, if I may,
About the urge that makes me say:
At 2 a.m. or maybe 3
My conscience rose and said to me,
"I move we now arise."
I sat up straight and rubbed my eyes;
I said, "O Lord, please let me rest;
I am so comfy in my nest."
Then in the still before the dawn
I found my thinking cap was on
And then my conscience came and said:
"Your dear old 15 Mill is dead!
Wake up! Get up! And find a way
To fill this gap, do it today!
Go back to work and find the facts
There is a better way to tax.
Get Paul and Charles and Don and Frank
And Dean and Roy and Irv and Hank;
And then there's Richard, Hale and Dick —
They are the ones who make things tick.
Get all the rest that made this team
And tell them now: 'Get on the beam!'"
'Twas 1 quick stroke of McCauley's hand
That swept 15 Mill from the land.
The switches closed, the lights grew red
'Twas then I knew 15 Mill was dead.
That fateful day without intention
Was the turning point in the convention.
I believe this is the time and place
To take the problems that we face
And find a ground that's good for all
The people of this state next fall.

A ground where everyone can stand
And say, "This is the promised land."
And as of now I have no fear
That we'll not find the right way here,
And I can hear some voices shrill:
"Say, Grandpa, what's the 15 Mill?"
(applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Turner, for your Valentine's day message.

Mr. Goebel.

MR. GOEBEL: Mr. President, I move that it be printed in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Goebel. Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Reports of standing committees. Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, fellow delegates, I have a weather bulletin on constitution hall this morning. The prognosis is that the temperature will range from 72 to 74. It is now 72. It will not go any higher than 74. The bulletin also says that during the day the situation will be cloudy and windy with gusts up to 150 words per minute. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: This promises to be a good day. (laughter) Any other committee reports?

SECRETARY CHASE: None on the desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kuhn offers

Resolution 71, A resolution with respect to adjustment of the voting machine to eliminate visual registration of the vote until the machine has been locked.

Whereas, At present the voting machine, on a roll call vote, registers visually the vote of each delegate as soon as he operates his voting switch; and

Whereas, This detracts from the independence of the several delegates by enabling those of uncertain mind to refrain from voting until aware of the votes of other delegates; now therefore be it

Resolved, That a suitable adjustment be made on the voting machine to the end that, on a roll call vote, the machine will not register visually until the vote has been cast and the machine locked.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The resolution is referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders. Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of certain items under the order of general orders of the day.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. DeVries. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Mr. DeVries.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order. When last the committee met it was considering Committee Proposal 83, A proposal pertaining to cities and villages; and certain amendments have been adopted. The secretary will read.

For last previous action by the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 83, see above, page 1005.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no further amendments on file to paragraph 1 of section b.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will proceed to the second paragraph of section b. Are there any amendments to the second paragraph of section b? The secretary will read the paragraph.

SECRETARY CHASE: Beginning on page 2, line 3:

[The second paragraph of section b was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1005.]

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Elliott, on behalf of the committee on local government, offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 11, after "hereby conferred.", by striking out the balance of that section and inserting "Such cities and villages shall have exclusive jurisdiction over wages and hours and administration except for general laws applicable to all persons or all public employees alike.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Elliott amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to suggest —

MR. FORD: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: A minority report is on file, which I think would take precedence over the Elliott amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair rules that the committee amendment takes priority over the minority report.

MR. FORD: This is not a committee amendment. This is Mr. Elliott's amendment.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: No. This is a committee amendment, Mr. Ford. This was an amendment that the committee passed upon at its session.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman —

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair rules the Elliott amendment is in order. Proceed, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I wanted to suggest that in accordance with our procedure yesterday, that on this last paragraph we separate the last sentence from the balance of the paragraph because there are 2 different thoughts here that need some discussion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott requests that the question be divided, and we shall consider, without objection, everything but the last sentence in paragraph 2 of subsection b.

Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. McCauley.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate McCauley.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I rise for a point of order.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order, Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: On the amendment that Mr. Elliott speaks of and claims as a committee amendment — I happen to be on the local government committee, and until yesterday I knew nothing of this amendment, and if this is a committee amendment, surely the committee would know something about it. I haven't missed a meeting.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I was at the local government committee meeting. I will vouch for the fact that the committee passed on this particular amendment. What Mr. Elliott says about it is absolutely the truth.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, as I understand it now, we are concerning ourselves with the second paragraph of this proposal. We are not talking on the last sentence that has been amended.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: That is correct.

MR. McCAULEY: First of all, I would like to point out to the committee that this recommendation is concerned with the inadvertent taking over of a field of regulation by action of the state legislature through the imposition by state law of regulations without a saving clause permitting concurrent local regulations; thus opening the door to judicial interpretation of such action as preempting the field to the state and voiding all local regulations.

There is no quarrel with the position that there may be areas of regulation in which uniformity is so necessary that the state should regulate exclusively. The intent of our recommendation is that if it desired on the part of the state legislature to so regulate exclusively, that they specifically so provide in the statute establishing such regulation.

It is a well accepted principle of municipal law that statutes and ordinances are to be reconciled where possible and effect given to both, but that where the legislative intent is to occupy the whole legislative field, if it is apparent from the statute, any ordinance with provisions to the contrary of those prescribed by the statute is invalid.

At the present time in Michigan we have a number of examples of statutes which have been interpreted by the courts as preempting a field and thus invalidating all or part of local regulations in the same field. Following are some examples. This particular example involves a motorboat regulation case in which the court, in considering the ordinance for the city of Howell regulating the use of motorboats on Thompson lake, while taking judicial notice of the fact that motorboats propelled by motors in excess of 5 horsepower will create noises likely to disturb the peace and quiet of those dwelling nearby, felt that however desirable it may be to preserve the peace of residents adjacent to Thompson lake, the city of Howell may not prohibit that which is permitted by state statute.

All we are attempting to do by this section is to ask the legislature, when they are passing a law of statewide concern and they want to preempt this field, that they so state in the statute and not leave it up to court interpretation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the second paragraph, lines 3 to 11, Committee Proposal 83. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Nord.

MR. NORD: May I address, through the Chair, a question to Mr. McCauley?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman, Mr. McCauley, the language that you have before us raises this question in my mind: I suppose that I am correct, am I not, in assuming that when you speak about the fact that the legislature must state their wishes to preempt the field, that you are talking about cases where otherwise there would be concurrent power between the legislature and the local government? For example, you don't mean to imply that if the legislature passes a divorce law, or some such thing as that, it is necessary to state whether they do or don't wish to preempt the field, am I correct?

MR. McCAULEY: You are right, Dr. Nord. We are talking about only municipal concerned property and government, that is all; affecting municipal government directly.

MR. NORD: I would simply like to suggest that when this gets to style and drafting there is some language there that is a little bit broader perhaps than intended, and perhaps it could be cleared up.

MR. McCAULEY: We certainly would have no objection to that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Erickson.

MR. ERICKSON: I would like to address a question to Mr. McCauley.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. ERICKSON: Public act 219 of 1949 gave the state health department the authority to — a municipality can only use people to operate their filtration plants and water purification systems who are registered by the state health department. Would this vitiate that statute?

MR. McCAULEY: I didn't hear all of the question, Mr. Erickson. I am sorry.

MR. ERICKSON: Well, public act 219 of 1949 gave the state health department the authority to issue certificates, and that only people who have certificates can operate filtration plants and water purification. Would that take that right away?

MR. McCAULEY: Not in this particular section. There might be some question on that on the amendment that will be before the committee in the next discussion. But this particular section does not in any way do away with the rights established by that particular statute.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ypsilanti, Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: Mr. Chairman, I would like to raise a point of inquiry, or of information. You may recall that yesterday I made an inquiry as to the division of the paragraph and was told that it had been divided by separating the rest of the paragraph from the last sentence. Subsequently the first paragraph and the second paragraph were divided. Based on that, and on the fact that we weren't going through to the last sentence of the second paragraph, I then filed a proposed amendment to the second paragraph only. That proposed amendment was that after the word "concern" on line 7 the remainder of that sentence be deleted, and that the last sentence of the paragraph be deleted.

Now we have changed the rules, apparently, again and we are taking the last paragraph in the 2 divisions, and I would like to know where that leaves me with my amendment. If this new last sentence, we will say, is put in, then, provided it is understood that the amendment would apply to the new sentence, I can see no difficulty. But if it doesn't, then by changing this situation we have vitiated what I have done. Is that not correct?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: In that we have divided the paragraph, Delegate Lawrence, we probably would have to divide your amendment. The decision of the committee yesterday was to vote separately on both paragraphs, but this morning the chairman of the committee requested that we divide the question in lines 1 through 11 and then lines 12 through 14.

If you can submit 2 amendments, we can consider them that way, or we will have to divide the question on your amendment.

MR. LAWRENCE: Well, I am perfectly willing to do anything to get this along and to see that it is properly done. I would like a suggestion from the secretary or the Chair as to the best way of doing it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Can you divide your amendment?

MR. LAWRENCE: Under the rules and regulations can I do it on one or should I have two separate?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: We can divide it on the rostrum, Mr. Lawrence.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: I was going to suggest to Mr. Lawrence that I believe his amendment could be easily divided by just separately considering that part of your amendment that proposes to drop the last sentence. Because, as I see it, Mr. Lawrence, what you want to do is strike all the language after the word "concerns" —

MR. LAWRENCE: No. You have the wrong "concern".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Lawrence, the secretary will read your amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Lawrence offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 7, after "concern" by striking out the balance of the sentence and inserting a period. In other words, by striking out "which will preempt the field only when this intention is so stated therein," and leave the first sentence then to read, "Each such city and village is hereby granted full power to pass laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property, and government, but the legislature may enact laws of statewide concern."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the first part of the Lawrence amendment to lines 7 and 8 of Committee Proposal 83. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Garden City, Delegate Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I have some questions for Delegate McCauley through the Chair.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, Delegate McCauley, I am a little concerned here in the new language on our white sheet with the substitute terminology in the last portion of the paragraph, in that you say the "cities and villages shall have exclusive jurisdiction," and so forth, "except for general laws applicable to all persons or all public employees alike." This last phrase "all public employees alike," is what I am concerned about; perhaps needlessly.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Brown, we are not on that.

MR. T. S. BROWN: That is separate?

MR. McCAULEY: This is separate from what we are talking about now. This will be taken up after dinner.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the proposed Lawrence amendment to lines 1 through 11 of the second paragraph of the proposal.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Then I will withhold my questions until that time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Brown yields. The Chair recognizes Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: The purpose of deleting the words of that sentence after "concern" on line 7 would be to retain the present and past constructions that have been placed on the right of the legislature since the home rule provision was put in the constitution. In other words, it leaves to the legislature its time honored right and duty to pass laws either of a mandatory character or of a permissive character. That is, that such a law can or will apply to a municipality if adopted by the municipality, and would give the legislature the same right as it has had in the past. It is not intended to dilute the right of a municipality to pass proper ordinances and laws governing that municipality under the constitution and the statutes, but it does give the legislature the same control and guidance that it has had in the past.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I respectfully oppose the amendment. I think that experience has shown in the past that we are leaving a lot of the statutes up to judicial interpretation. They cannot read the minds of the legislators, nor can they read the minds of the city councils. The purpose of this language, as recommended by the municipal league, is to make it definitely clear that when the state is going to preempt a certain field they state so in their bill.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Lawrence amendment, second paragraph, Committee Proposal 83. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Lawrence's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1030.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Lawrence amendment. All those in favor of the amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the second paragraph of Committee Proposal 83, lines 3 to 11?

SECRETARY CHASE: None on file, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Fennville, Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, this language in these lines 3 to 11 is a very radical departure from what we have had before, as I see it, in this state, and I am quite concerned about it. I don't know just exactly what to do about it except perhaps when I have an opportunity, I will vote against it.

I am disturbed about it for this reason. We are going to vest a lot of inherent power in the cities and the villages, and instead of looking to the state law to find out what their powers are, hereafter we will have to look to state law to find out what they cannot do.

I know that somebody made reference to what they thought was an inconsistency on my part, because when I speak about the powers of the legislature and so on, I have been arguing, I think, quite strongly that it is the purpose of the state constitution with respect to the state government to say what it shall not do. Certainly it is not the — at least as I have always been told — it is not the proper relationship of local government to state government to assume that local government has a lot of inherent power. It is the state that has the inherent power and not the local government. The local governments are merely creatures of the state. They exist by reason of the fact that the state creates them. Their power should be limited by the state. Their power should be controlled by the state, and the experience of mankind indicates that the way to control something is to control it by grant; to spell out what a creature can do.

When you turn those tables around, as is here being done, you turn these tables around, and you place the state government in the position of having to outguess and anticipate what a municipality might be wanting to do, and thereby you have to write some prohibitions into the statutes.

I think it is very poor public policy. This point I made yesterday afternoon when for a time I thought we had gotten into this language then. I think we are making a grave mistake in turning these tables around. I don't know how broad this language is that says that the legislature has to declare a preemption.

As Mr. Nord brought out by way of illustration, suppose the legislature wanted to pass a divorce law, would the legislature have to declare preemption, and the committee says no, it isn't intended to go that far.

Maybe to get into an area of closer proximity to municipal concerns, suppose the legislature passed a criminal statute. Now, then, is that criminal statute going to be law within that city in the absence of a city ordinance on the matter unless the legislature says this law will positively control throughout the state of Michigan? It is to be presumed that every legislative law will be effective throughout the state of Michigan.

I just don't know where in the world we are going to end up if we introduce the philosophy which these lines in this section introduce into our laws. We are going to completely, absolutely and completely, change the character of our government. Instead of positively acting for the purpose of the whole state, the legislature is going to be having to constantly assert that each and every one of its acts is intended to apply in the municipalities as well as outside of them. I don't think I am wrong in this interpretation. I can't believe that the courts would interpret this language any other way than I am interpreting it.

Not only that, but as to whether a power is a — this power to pass laws and ordinances — and that is another thing that is distressing to me. I always felt that municipalities could pass ordinances and so forth, but to say to pass laws in a constitution would suggest they could pass the statutory law. It is ordinance law we are talking about.

But there is another problem. Suppose that a thing may or may not be within this great inherent grant of power; whether a particular ordinance of a city would fall within this great inherent grant of power would always be a judicial question, and you will have to keep hammering it out in the courts all the time. It is much better policy to have the legislature by law vest in these municipalities these powers than to turn around and put the state in the position of having to prohibit rather than to grant.

I wanted to make this statement because I am opposed to this in principle.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, I share Mr. Hutchinson's concern over this primarily because of the great breadth of the language which is given inherently to each of these cities and villages in our state. It says "pass laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property, and government." As nearly as I can tell, the word "concerns" relates to anything that the legislative body of the city or the municipality wants to be concerned about. If this is the case and if this was interpreted in that way, you have a situation that you can analogize to a ball park where you have got hundreds of cities and villages all up at bat at once, and the legislature is the sole outfielder trying to catch all the flies, and trying to put a label called preempting the field on practically an innumerable number of specific statutes.

I share the concern of Mr. Hutchinson that this, in the long run, instead of helping the cities and the villages may very well tend to create such a lack of uniformity that the cities and the villages will find it to be to their distinct disadvantage.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I am afraid we are going to get too far afield here. I think I know what bothers Senator Hutchinson, but I think that he is a little too worried.

Now, if you look at the language which Mr. Wanger was just talking about, and criticizing the phrase "laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns," you will see that this is the identical language that was in the 1908 constitution. If you will look up about 5 lines above where the language is bracketed and was stricken out in the first part of section b, you will see that what we took out was exactly what in the second paragraph we put back.

We had to do this because we had revised the subject matter a little bit. You will notice that in 1908 the constitution read just as it reads now in the language which you are criticizing "and, through its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances," the words "laws and ordinances" were used relating to its municipal concerns. The only thing which was added here was the 2 words after "concerns," "property" and "government." I don't think that amounts to very much, but the reason that they were inserted, I believe, was because city government now has a lot more real estate than it used to have, and the word "government" means that — well, I don't know, really, why it was put in. But to this extent you see, both Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Wanger, we aren't doing anything more than was done before.

Let me go on. I don't think it is correct, and we don't understand home rule government for a city, if we say that the city can do nothing unless it is given by the legislature. The idea of home rule was to give, on local affairs, some autonomy to the city to function, and the first case that came before the Supreme Court of Michigan came about 1909. It was called Gallup v. Saginaw. The supreme court in that case said this about this new system of home rule:

> The new system is one of a general grant of rights and powers subject only to enumerated restrictions instead of the old method of only granting enumerated rights and powers definitely specified.

Now, let me give you an example. There is a bill in the legislature now applying to townships, I believe, that says townships shall have the right to regulate diseased female box elder trees. Now, if you apply this to city home rule, are you saying that city home rule today means that a city government cannot regulate diseased male box elder trees, and the city has to go back and have the legislature pass a new law? Obviously not. This is what home rule is intended to do. Therefore, the criticism which the 2 of you are making here, I believe, goes too far. What you would do in your criticism is turn the clock back to where there is no home rule.

Now, let me make a constructive suggestion here. When these things get into style and drafting, as distinguished from ours — sometimes in the press of things they come out just a little bit different than maybe they should. Maybe there are improvements, and we shouldn't tamper with it. But I think we could clear up Senator Hutchinson's worries and everything else this way.

You will notice that in the 1908 constitution it said "and, through its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns," and that is the same as we have here, except we added the words "government and property," and then the old language had a comma, "subject to the constitution and general laws of this state." Now I think, Mr. Hutchinson, that if we added those words "subject to the constitution and general laws of this state," we would come out just the same as we do in the 1908 constitution, and I feel that might take care of your problem. Then the court could construe the whole thing just as it always has, and the only change would then be about this preemption matter, which I think is a separate matter, and we thought it through. In other words, I am trying to think of something that would eliminate your concern without, at the same time, going too far back and, in effect, doing away with the home rule concept.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Would the gentleman from Kalamazoo yield to the vice president?

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would say that I would accept the amendment, and then we will debate about the preemption matter afterwards. I am willing to take this thing a step at a time, and I think the amendment that you offer, to reinsert that phrase, "subject to", would be a great improvement, and I would endorse the amendment as far as it goes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: Mr. Chairman, didn't we reinstate that language yesterday by vote on the Sharpe amendment? Wasn't the Sharpe amendment that, and didn't we pass it?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: That was the first paragraph of section b, Delegate Lawrence, not the second.

MR. LAWRENCE: What are we talking about?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: We are talking about the second paragraph, Delegate Lawrence. Are you offering the amendment, Delegate Allen?

MR. ALLEN: I don't have it written out, but if it is permissible, I will offer it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Could you step to the rostrum and have the secretary fill it out for you?

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Delegate Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I have been reluctant to take up too much time of this convention, but I shall be very brief here. I wish to say I support the sentiments of Vice President Hutchinson in relation to the matters which he has discussed, I believe, very ably. I have a great deal of respect for the delegate from Kalamazoo and his knowledge of municipal affairs, but I believe that to adopt the suggested proposal here that we have before us would be to bring chaos into municipal government in this state.

I don't speak just as a chap who has never had any experience in municipal affairs. I have had, and I believe that no one can interpret this language intelligently without getting away from complete uniformity in the operation of the municipal governments of this state, because as I interpret this, if there can be an interpretation made, it would merely mean that each municipality would be on its own, and there would be a vying here and there for this or that proposal or proposition until the courts of the state would be filled with litigation relating to the powers of these municipalities to carry on and do the things that they are proposing to do either under ordinances or under so called laws.

I wish to register a complete protest. As a matter of fact, before Delegate Allen made the suggestion I had marked here in the constitution the very thing that he has suggested, namely, "and, through its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, subject to the constitution and the general laws of this state."

Now, any one of the lawyers present here in this convention must know that there was some source of satisfaction to go back to the charter of the statutory provision relating to these municipalities in the home rule act to find out what the powers were that were mandatory, what the powers were that were permissive, and in all the experiences I have had I have never yet found a legislature which wasn't willing, when a proposition was placed before it for an amendment to the home rule, that the amendment wasn't adopted by the legislature in the interest of municipal government.

I think unless this matter is clarified here we are going to be in trouble, and I wish to support the suggestion made both by Delegate Hutchinson and Delegate Lawrence, and I hope that this committee will not just accept this because it happens to be submitted as a committee report. I have not made myself heard very much in this convention, but I am really concerned about this one because I can see the danger lights ahead and plenty of them.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo for the purpose of making a preferential motion. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Allen offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 6, after "ment,", by inserting "subject to the constitution and general laws of this state,"; so that the language will read:

> Each such city and village is hereby granted full power to pass laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property, and government, subject to the constitution and general laws of this state, but the legislature may enact laws of statewide concern which will preempt the field only when this intention is so stated therein.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Allen amendment. Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: I might say, Mr. Bonisteel, that I think that this will then come out, with the exception of this preemption which I think we will want to take up again after this, almost exactly the same as in 1908. In fact, it will be exactly the same except for the words "property and government." It is the same.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grosse Pointe Shores, Delegate Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. Chairman and members, I understand the effect of this amendment, but it seems to me that this is patch work, and we should go back and include the language which, as I understand it, is eliminated in the first paragraph.

I subscribe wholly to the expressions of Delegates Wanger, Hutchinson and Bonisteel. What we have got before us is whether the home rule city is going to be one of complete power of government subject only to the veto of the legislature, or whether we are going to continue as a matter of grant as in the past.

The committee report, page 439, says that what they want to do — and this is a philosophy — I just want to make it clear that I understand what they are trying to do. They say that they want to have these home rule cities and villages guaranteed full power over their own property and government. Government means everything, and as Delegate Hutchinson says, that would be a complete reversal, and as Delegate Bonisteel said, and Delegate Wanger, we won't have uniformity.

I think we had better leave it as it is. Otherwise we are going to reverse the whole philosophy of home rule cities, and I don't know where that county pattern will lead us.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Allen amendment, paragraph 2, section b. The secretary will read the language.

SECRETARY CHASE: Page 2, line 6:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ann Arbor, speaking on the Allen amendment.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. Chairman, fellow members, I wonder if we will have sufficient opportunity to analyze this after we make this amendment. I agree with what has just been said. I think that we ought to have in some way an opportunity to put it together and see exactly how it is going to come out. What has been suggested is certainly an excellent suggestion, but whether it fits into the language we already have I am not prepared to say.

I would like to feel that we had some freedom. After this is put together and we read it completely, and have had a chance to look at it, I would like to at least have an opportunity to present another point of view, if it becomes necessary. That is all I have to say.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Just this, Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Cudlip may have gotten us confused here, but I think that the sole purpose of this amendment is to make the second paragraph subject to exactly the same provisions with respect to general laws in the constitution as the first paragraph which we doctored up yesterday, and it does the job, and I think it ought to be passed.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Menominee, Delegate Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: Mr. Chairman, I believe we are now involved in something here that is confusing to some of us, but also very illustrative of the fact that we have now something before us that needs more attention. I feel that we can't fairly pass on this at the moment until we can get together on the proper wordage. I would make that motion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: What is your motion, Delegate Lundgren?

MR. LUNDGREN: I move that we pass this section temporarily.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Lundgren moves that we pass paragraph 2 of section b of Committee Proposal 83 temporarily.

MR. LUNDGREN: Until we can get the proper language together on this. I feel that both groups seem to want to get together, and I feel that we can get together and pass the proper section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the delegate from Highland Park wish to speak on the motion?

MISS DONNELLY: No. I just want a point of information; that we are going on to the preempt field next.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is whether we shall pass this section temporarily.

MISS DONNELLY: I think that is a fine idea. You mean pass over it, when you say that?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: I beg your pardon.

MISS DONNELLY: Point of inquiry. When you say pass, you mean pass over it?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: I said pass temporarily. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I would just like to call your attention to the fact of the problem that is confronting us now, and I wondered if we had enacted the rules committee's suggestion with respect to casual amendments, whether we would be prohibited from doing this sort of thing now. I have no objection to the Lundgren motion, but I just want to bring this point to the attention of the entire committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the motion made by Delegate Lundgren that paragraph 2, section b, be passed temporarily. All those in favor of this will say aye. Opposed, no. The Chair is in doubt. All those in favor of Mr. Lundgren's motion to pass temporarily this section, please rise.

SECRETARY CHASE: More than 80, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair is no longer in doubt. It is temporarily passed.

We will proceed to section c of Committee Proposal 83.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section c.

[Sec. c was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1005.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Mr. McCauley, speaking on behalf of the committee.

MR. FORD: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: What is your point of order, Delegate Ford?

MR. FORD: I understand we had divided the previous section so that we were considering all but the last sentence.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Lundgren's motion, Delegate Ford, was to pass the entire section temporarily.

MR. FORD: I didn't hear you use the word "entire" until just this moment. When I voted to pass the section, I voted to pass the portion that had been under discussion. The last sentence in the section has not been under discussion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: It is the understanding of the Chair that he said the motion dealt with paragraph 2 of section b.

MR. FORD: We have been dealing with paragraph 2 of section b all morning, but only a part of it, and it has been made very explicit on the floor that we were under no circumstances to discuss the last sentence, and the last sentence was not directly related to the rest of it. When will it come before the group?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: When the committee again considers section b. The Chair rules the point of order is not well taken. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, I wish to yield to Delegate Dell.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley yields to the gentleman from St. Ignace, Delegate Dell.

MR. DELL: The chairman of my committee warned me yesterday morning that I would be called upon to take care of this section. It seems to me we are having quite a time getting to it.

The comments on this section by the committee were:

[The supporting reasons for section c were read by Mr. Dell. For text, see above, page 1006.]

Now this section, as I understand, was not incorporated in the Constitution of 1835, or 1850 but was incorporated in the 1908 constitution, presumably to supplement the powers of the home rule. The committee recommends that this pass.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section c? The gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, I would like to address a question to one of the members of the committee as to whether or not this section is at all necessary. It is literally the same power expressed in the city home rule act, and it seems to me that this adds nothing to the powers of cities that haven't been granted under home rule, and whether or not this language cannot be deleted. There are many other things the city can do outside its borders, such as enforce plumbing codes, at least according to the home rule acts that say they can, and I wonder if this section is at all necessary or adds anything to the power granted under the home rule act.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hanna yields to Delegate Dell for the purpose of answering the question.

MR. DELL: Delegate Hanna, as I stated, it was presumably placed in the Constitution of 1908 for the purpose of strengthening the section on home rule, and for that reason we see no reason why it should not be continued. The question of deleting is debatable, of course.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, may I address a question to Mr. Allen, who is well versed in this? Is this section at all necessary, Mr. Allen, in view of the permissive powers under the home rule act?

MR. ALLEN: I would say that it was, Delegate Hanna, and it seems as though we get into a problem where if we want to change anything someone thinks something is happening. So we had better leave it the same.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section c of Committee Proposal 83? If not, it will pass.

Section c is passed and the secretary will read section d.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section d.

[Sec. d was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1005.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, speaking on behalf of the committee, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I would like to yield to Mr. Leslie Richards.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley yields to Delegate Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, as you may know, the comments on this particular section are found in Journal 70 on page 439 under section d.

[The supporting reasons to sec. d were read by Mr. L. W. Richards. For text, see above, page 1006.]

I might add that in behalf of our very intellectual, democratic chairman, Mr. John E. McCauley, we would like to have this passed and accepted.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is: are there any amendments to section d of Committee Proposal 83? The gentleman from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, just a matter of clarification on this. The last portion of the sentence reads — the new language reads "or to loan its credit for any private purpose or any public purpose except as authorized by law," and the phrase "except as authorized by law,", although I am sure the committee didn't intend it so, may be taken to modify both private purpose and public purpose.

I haven't had an opportunity to prepare an amendment here, but it appears to me that the last part of the sentence should read "for any private purpose or, except as authorized by law for any public purpose." Otherwise it will modify both, and I am sure the committee doesn't intend that municipalities be able to authorize the loan of their credit for private purposes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Negaunee, Delegate Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: That is exactly what I was discussing with our able subcommittee chairman here, and he feels there will be no objection, Mr. Martin, if that were added.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, is it necessary for me to submit a written amendment?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Would the delegate mind stepping to the rostrum to submit the amendment?

Mr. Arthur Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I was just going to ask if this were something that could be handled in style and drafting, but if he feels an amendment is better, we can do that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Mr. Martin, and the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Martin offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 23, after "purpose or" by inserting a comma and "except as authorized by law"; and in line 24, after "purpose" by striking out "except as authorized by law"; so that the language will read, beginning in line 22, "or to loan its credit for any private purpose or, except as authorized by law for any public purpose."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Martin amendment. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section d of Committee Proposal 83? If not, it will pass.

Section d, as amended, is passed and the secretary will read section e.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section e.

[Sec. e was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1005.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott, speaking on behalf of the committee.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to the subcommittee chairman on public utilities, Mr. Sleder.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the gentleman from Traverse City, Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I should like to call on Mrs. Hatcher for the explanation of the section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Sleder yields to Delegate Hatcher.

MRS. HATCHER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the committee report on section e is as follows:

[The supporting reasons to sec. e were read by Mrs. Hatcher. For text, see above, page 1006.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section e? If not, it will pass.

Section e is passed and the secretary will read section f.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section f.

[Sec. f was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1005.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I yield to Mr. Sleder.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: The committee recommends:

[The supporting reasons to sec. f were read by Mr. Sleder. For text, see above, page 1006.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section f? The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, in our committee work it was the intention of our committee not to restrict the right of charter, to have other restrictions beyond those that we have included in this language, and while I have not had a committee report, I am sure it is the feeling of our committee that in line 20, after the words "public utility" we would like to insert "in violation of its charter and," and I think the secretary has that amendment, and that would then more properly interpret the desire of the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the Elliott amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Elliott has offered the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 20, after "utility" by inserting "in violation of its charter and"; so that the language will read "Nor shall any city or village sell any public utility in violation of its charter and unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote . . . ."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Elliott amendment.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order. I believe the minority report has preference over this amendment of Mr. Elliott's. This is not a committee amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair rules your point of order is well taken, and the secretary will read the minority report to section f.

SECRETARY CHASE: Pursuant to minority report B of Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs. Buback and Madar,

Mr. Madar — and Mr. Leibrand asks consent that his name likewise be added —

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: It will be added without objection. I hear none.

SECRETARY CHASE: — offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 17, after "regular" by striking out "or special"; and in line 22, after "vote of" by striking out "a majority" and inserting "3/5"; and in line 23, after "regular" by striking out "or special".

Mr. McAllister has also filed a like amendment on page 3, line 22, to change "majority" to "3/5".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McAllister, for what purpose does the gentleman arise?

MR. McALLISTER: I would like to add my name to the minority report amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, his name will be added as a cosponsor of the minority report. I hear no objection; it is so ordered. Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, with the consent of Mr. Madar, I would like to add my name.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, the name of Delegate Hoxie will be added as a cosponsor of the amendment. I hear no objection. It is so ordered. Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, this particular section was discussed at great length. In fact, it was only by a couple of votes, one or two votes, that it did come to the floor with the change, that is, changed from the report as submitted by the subcommittee. The subcommittee voted on this unanimously, that it come out 3/5 to acquire or sell.

Now, I can't see why with the 3/5 being needed to acquire, why it shouldn't take the same amount of votes to sell the utility. For further rationale on this, I would like to yield the floor to Judge Leibrand.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Madar yields to the gentleman from Bay City, Delegate Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I am very happy to support this minority amendment. I don't think that anyone in this convention can call me a radical. As a matter of fact, anyone who has followed the course of my voting, I think, would come to the conclusion that I am among the more conservative voters and delegates to this convention. But I support what Mr. Madar has said about the unfairness of the treatment of requiring a city to get a 3/5 affirmative vote in order to engage in a utility business, and then being permitted to sell it or dispose of it by only a mere majority vote.

I don't undertake at this time to speak at great length. I haven't done so in the convention, and I don't propose to do so in the future. Neither do I propose at this time to enter into the relative merits of public power as opposed to private power. I have my own opinion, but I don't think that enters into this at all. I think we are simply discussing here a good business transaction, good business practices.

Now, I don't know how many of these public utilities are operated by the municipalities in the state of Michigan. I am not an expert on the subject. I have been told, however, that there are quite a number. I do know that the steam and the power which alternately roasts us and freezes us in this convention hall are both provided by a municipal utility of the city of Lansing, and I don't blame the utilities for that. I think Consumers' electricity would do just as good or poor a job, whatever you may say.

But I do know that when we are talking about these municipal utilities, we are not talking about peanuts. I have been informed that the light and steam plant of the city of Lansing is conservatively valued at $100 million, which is many times greater than all the rest of the municipal property of the city of Lansing combined. I have been advised that this one utility unit is worth more than 3 times as much as the Oldsmobile and Fisher Body plants here in Lansing belonging to General Motors.

Now, the other plants in the state of Michigan, municipal plants, are not as large, but they are important to their smaller communities. And I do not think that any transaction of this kind, of this magnitude, involving up to $100 million in the city of Lansing should be subject to disposal at the whim of only a majority of the voters.

Now, it is not uncommon to give protection where large sums of money or large sums of property are concerned. It is not uncommon to give special protection. As we are aware, the banking laws of the state of Michigan require, I believe, a 2/3 majority to change, to induce debility in the financial structure.

The corporation laws, I won't go into detail on those, but they require 3/5 or 2/3 or 3/4, as the case may be, to dissolve a corporation or to sell or dispose of all or a very substantial part of its property.

Now, to say a 3/5 majority of the voters is needed before the voters can acquire a plant, but to permit it to be sold on a bare majority, even at a special election, seems to me is darn poor business. On the one hand, when you buy, you are involving a $100 million transaction here in the city of Lansing; when you sell that plant, you are equally involved in a $100 million transaction in the city of Lansing. Now, we don't feel we are asking for anything unfair in this minority amendment. All we ask is to be put on the same status. If you want to make it a majority for acquisition, you can make it a majority for disposal. But if you are going to make it 3/5 for acquisition, we feel it is only fair that 3/5 be required for disposal.

It is my pleasure at this time to yield to the gentleman from St. Louis, Delegate Hoxie.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Thank you, Judge. I rise to appeal to the fairness of this delegation. I believe it is very inconsistent to require a 3/5 majority to purchase a public utility and only require a simple majority to sell it. I am vitally interested in this because we happen to have an electric light plant in the city of St. Louis. It has been in existence since 1901; owned by the city. Although I do not subscribe to the theory that government should necessarily engage in business, many of the cities that have their own utilities were, in the first instance, forced to go into the utility business to secure the services that those little communities needed.

Why do I say that it is unfair to require 3/5 to purchase and a simple majority to sell? We have a friendly neighbor in the same field in the adjoining community. When you get into a campaign in a little community like St. Louis, with a sell out program sponsored by your competition, I still believe that in fairness to those people of the city of St. Louis, and all the other communities, the same rule should apply. We know that campaigns can be put on to dispose of a profitable operation, which it is in St. Louis — a very profitable operation. It helps us materially in our city government, and back during the depression years the municipal plant of St. Louis, because people were unable to pay taxes, materially helped to carry on our government in St. Louis. I think that is probably true in many localities where they do have their light plants. I certainly urge this delegation to support the principle of fairness, to support the Madar amendment.

At this time I would like to yield to Mr. Lundgren.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie yields to the gentleman from Menominee, Delegate Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: Mr. Chairman, I too rise in support of the minority amendment. I believe it has been pretty well stated here if you are going to have one fraction or percentage of people voting for acquiring a municipal plant, or whatever it may be, you certainly should provide, on the other hand, for the ability to sell it on the same basis that you acquired it. It would just make common sense.

But it is interesting to me you find that nowhere within the comments of the citizens research council or even of the committee reports the statement of any reason why you shouldn't have the same power to sell as you have to acquire. So I think it makes common sense that we insert the proper language, which would be that the number of people acquiring such a plant should be the same as the number of people selling a plant.

I do say that this has nothing to do in the private power fight or the public power fight, because I don't think that enters into this. As with the people that have testified and those that will testify later, we are on both sides of the fence on this particular thing, but we don't believe it belongs in this particular article. We just want to make the record consistent that if we buy at 75 per cent or ⅗, we are going to sell at the same price.

These plants are not acquired easily, and when you go to a ratio of ⅗, it takes an awful lot of people and an awful lot of fighting to acquire a utility. But by the same token, I would not like to see this hard fight bartered away by a simple majority.

Therefore, I rise to support the minority amendment, and I also yield at this time to Tom McAllister.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Menominee yields to the gentleman from Bad Axe, Delegate McAllister. The Chair will inform those delegates seeking recognition that there are 6 people waiting for recognition.

MR. McALLISTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, we have a municipal power plant in my locality, in the village of Sebewaing. I might say before I go further that I have a considerable amount of utility stocks, so I may be speaking against my own interest. I think the subject matter here has pretty well been covered by the previous speakers, but it does seem to me that if there is a sale of a power plant, it should be held at a regular election so the greatest number of people in the community will be present, and it should be by a similar vote to that required to obtain a public utility. I might add further that I have been contacted by numerous municipalities and the Michigan municipal utilities association, and all of these communities are unanimously in favor of a ⅗ vote to sell a public utility, and therefore I support the Madar amendment. I had one of my own which I have withdrawn.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I am going to take a very, apparently, unpopular position here and support the committee's report. I take exception to what Judge Leibrand said when he talked about a majority of the voters' whim with regard to selling a utility. I would recall that I suppose most of us are here, or all of us are here, by a bare majority of the voters' whim, and I suppose in that case this is not a majority of the voters' whim but deep seated judgment and careful thought.

I would like to leave one thought with you in this regard. What we are trying to do here is work out some basis on which a community can handle its own affairs in this particular category effectively. It seems to me that the inability to sell a utility is a greater hazard than the inability to buy a utility. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Port Huron, Delegate Tweedie. Judge Pugsley, you are fourth on the list.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the subcommittee on cities also spent considerable time on this article. I think we had secondary jurisdiction over it. We felt that ⅗ certainly was not too much of a majority in order to acquire a public utility due to the fact that it involves a large investment by the city and the citizens of the city in getting such a thing, and certainly it should be more than a bare majority in order to spend this amount of money.

However, as years go by, in many cities the equipment becomes obsolete, and it becomes more expensive to run than a private utility could run it, and we felt that ½ was a fair amount. We certainly did not subscribe to the way it is now in many cities where the city council alone can sell a utility. We felt there should be some restriction upon it, and we thought 50 per cent was a very fair price because of the 2 groups that you have which want to keep the utility, even though it is expensive and obsolete. There is the one group who has a vested interest in it — either they work for it or have some other direct or indirect interest in it, and they can easily get their friends and neighbors and relatives to support their vote against selling the utility, even though it would be for their own good. And then we have the second interest, the citizens who have a personal pride in this thing because, well, it is their baby, it started there, and they feel they should keep it even though it is more expensive and out of date. So you have those 2 groups, and between the 2 of them they can easily get a 40 per cent vote, and that would be enough to defeat a ⅗ requirement in the constitution.

We support the committee report wholeheartedly, and we think that ½ should be the required amount. A majority should rule in this case to stop those who, even though it is for the good of the community, want to keep it there.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Escanaba, Delegate Follo.

MR. FOLLO: Mr. Chairman, delegates, I just want to give you this information: that the councils of 3 cities, the representatives of the people of Escanaba, Gladstone and Marquette have all communicated with me that they would like to see the 3/5 figure restored in the committee report. As a member of the minority who voted against this report, I would urge you to support the Madar amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Delegate Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Secretary, would you take that stopwatch out? I want only 4 minutes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will so do.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, Judge Leibrand, of course, mentioned good business, and I think that is the point I would like to address myself to for the next few minutes.

You have noticed probably that the minute you talk about some certain things in the convention it causes a lot of emotion. Now, those same things happen in any given community when they are talked about. It so happens that utilities is one of them. Utilities always stir up a great deal of emotion. I have seen an election establishing a utility where the emotions ran so high that tires were literally cut off from automobiles. Things that just don't normally happen. People really lose all sense of proportion.

Now, let's just take this matter of good business for a minute and inject it into this sort of an emotional atmosphere. Good business would dictate, individually or collectively, that you take a lot of precautions before you lay your investment on the line and enter into a business. Now, that is just as true for me, and I remember well when I went into business how carefully I considered it, how many weeks and months I considered it, how my relatives cautioned me against it, and all that sort of thing. You just stop and think a long time before you lay that investment on the line and take those risks, and now we talk about fairness. That is why we say to any community that you must have a 60 per cent vote before you take that risk. You must sit down and carefully think the thing over, and then if 60 per cent of you agree that it is a good sound proposition, you go into it.

All right. Now we get into the thing, and it is profitable, as my light plant happens to be, and we have no thought of selling it. It is profitable. But now the time comes when that utility becomes unprofitable, and it loses money, and so we tax the general public to subsidize it, and the city commission, or whatever the governing body is, knows that it is good business to sell that plant and get out of the business, because they can just no longer make a profit on it. I say to you that if you have a 3/5 requirement in order to sell it, that you literally have burned your bridges behind you, because invariably in this emotional atmosphere that you must hold this election in, you just can't possibly secure a 60 per cent vote.

So it is not only fair that you establish 3/5 on entering and only a majority on getting out of the business, but it likewise is just good business that you set that up.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary reports you met your request for 4 minutes, Mr. Farnsworth. Congratulations. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Hart, Delegate Pugsley.

MR. PUGSLEY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I hold in my hand a resolution which I just received from my home city of Hart. Many years ago, in the '20s, the city of Hart acquired a public utility known as the Hart Hydroelectric. It has operated since that time with the hydroelectric power and also supplemented by diesel engines. The city council has forwarded this resolution to me with instructions that I bring before this convention their idea that the sale should not be made without the affirmative vote of 3/5 of the people. It is in recognition of this message from the homeland that I present the content of this resolution without further comment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Jackson, Delegate Karn.

MR. KARN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, needless to say, I didn't rise to support Mr. Madar's amendment or to ask for my name to be added to it. It is quite obvious that there has been quite a bit of campaigning going on around the state. It is quite evident, and I suppose it is in order, when you get to a subject that is as volatile as a public utility business. It seems to be attracting a great deal of attention always.

I think that it may be in order — I hope a lot of my friends get back in here. With the exception of 3 of you who have talked, I seem to be in the minority here. I hope some of my friends, if I have any left, might come back to just touch upon some of the things that have happened.

In 1908, when the constitution was drafted, they required a 3/5 vote of the people before a municipality could engage in the utility business. Of course, that was, as I understand it, an effort to protect the people at that time from an expenditure — protect them from making an expenditure that might not prove advantageous. There was no vote required in the 1908 convention for the sale of a plant. At that time, of course, the electric utility was comparatively young.

The principles of requiring a vote for the purchase of a plant and requiring a vote for the sale of a plant are entirely different. As a rule, utility plants owned by municipalities are not for sale until they have been worn out, depreciated and noneconomical, and it does seem that the citizens of a community, when they get to the point that it is no longer economical to operate a plant, should have the right to sell it, and the right of a reasonable vote where it can be done.

In 1909 the legislature imposed a requirement of a 3/5 vote for the sale of a municipal property. That was removed in 1923. In 1949, as a matter of fact, the cities were granted authority, under the home rule act, to sell any municipal property without a vote of the people, with the exception of parks and cemeteries, and even parks were permitted to be sold without a vote of the people unless they were a definite part of the community planning.

Now, it seems to me that the action of the state legislature in recent years has indicated that a majority vote of the people is adequate. For years, except where a provision was included in a charter, municipalities have been able to sell any municipal property without a vote.

Let me say this: my good friend and delegate from Bay City mentioned the Lansing municipal plant, and it is a good plant, and it is well operated, and Karl says they have over $100 million invested in it, and I think that is probably a low figure, but they are not contributing to the tax burden in Lansing as is Oldsmobile that he mentioned, because municipal plants do not pay federal taxes, and many of them pay very little local tax. However, some of them are making contributions to the cities for various purposes which is an offset to that.

The company that I was with for all my lifetime, all my working lifetime, in 1960 paid over $40 million in taxes, which certainly was a great contribution to the people in the state of Michigan and to the people in the United States, as far as that is concerned, through the payment of federal taxes.

But this is an emotional thing, and it is obvious that quite a bit of attention has been given to this item as a result of the telegrams and the letters that have been received from some of these folks.

If you impose a 3/5 vote on the sale of a plant, I think it goes without saying that the plant would not be sold even though a majority of the people would be very much in favor of it; even though they are not making money—and many of the small ones are not. I think you can realize that even though they are not paying taxes, that with the improvement that has been made in the generation and distribution of electrical energy through the increase in the size of the units, increase of the pressures and the temperatures, a small plant, especially an obsolete plant, cannot compete with it.

So that the people, if they want to sell, and they do — I know Consumers Power company, through a vote of the people, just recently acquired a plant in Grayling, and that in spite of some very definite opposition of the people who were living in other parts of the state who came there to help in trying to prevent this, but that is going on. A plant north of Cadillac, at Manton, was in trouble, and they decided to sell. So it is going on. But if you retain the 3/5 vote, that means you are saying to the people that from now on they cannot sell a municipal electric plant even though it is no longer efficient and it is no longer in a position that they would like to have it operate.

I think that perhaps as far as I am concerned — I had nothing to do with the ⅗ vote on the purchase of a plant. I have had nothing to do — as a matter of fact, I haven't even talked with members of the committee about this. I would have no objection, and my friends here who have talked, most of them have said the vote should be the same in each case. I would have no objection to having a majority of the vote in each instance, the purchase of a plant or the sale of a plant.

I think the thing that the committee did was to follow the 1908 constitution in including the ⅗ vote, with the thought in mind that it is leading up to a great expenditure of funds and a greater majority of people than half should be entitled to vote on it or to adopt it. But I would have no objection if the committee wanted to change that to a majority vote in each case.

Another thing. Mr. Madar's amendment does away with the privilege of a special election. Well, all that does is to put up a delaying action again. If a municipality desires to sell, and the majority of the people apparently are for it, you might have to wait a year, a year and ½ or 2 years for a regular election. That does not seem fair and reasonable. If the utility is willing to pay for an election, the cost of an election, the people in the town are desirous of selling, I don't believe that it is quite fair and reasonable to have a restriction that in a small community — and these are small communities that we are talking about — a special election could not be called.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose the Madar amendment, and I hope that the committee's proposal may prevail.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Delegate King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the delegation, I will try to confine my remarks to about a minute. Judge Leibrand states that his record here is one of conservatism. I don't know what my record is. Sometimes I think I am being conservative when I uphold the rights of the individual, but maybe I am not.

Two days ago we celebrated Lincoln's birthday, and I should like to paraphrase a quote that he once made. The government should do for the people those things which the people cannot or cannot as well do for themselves. Now, at the time many of these plants were formed the government had to step in and do these things. Today, in my opinion, many of these utilities are competing with private, legitimate private enterprise, and they should get out of this business.

Personally, if I had a business I could get out of that business if I wanted to, perhaps by going into bankruptcy; I might be forced out of business. Perhaps 3 of my creditors could force me out of business by putting me into involuntary bankruptcy. But I would just like to say for the record that I support any proposal which makes it more difficult for municipalities to compete, improperly in my opinion, with private enterprise, and I support any proposal which would make it easier for them to get out of this unbecoming position.

I support the committee report.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment to section f offered by Delegates Hatcher, Buback, et al. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I think I should take a couple of moments to explain my particular position on this matter. Mr. Karn has stated there are some items you are not aware of at a particular time that cause great emotional upheaval back home. I reside now in the city of Muskegon, which is served most adequately by one of the largest steam generating plants operated by the company which Mr. Karn served for so many years.

I have a second county in my district which might be known as a conservative county, but if Mr. Hoxie has one plant and Mr. Leibrand has one plant, then the county of Ottawa is unique in that while there are 5 cities in this county of Ottawa, 3 of them have municipally owned light plants, and I, too, received a good many telegrams, wires and resolutions and phone calls on this particular matter.

At the outset I felt that the proposal as proposed by the majority of the committee would take precedence over certain of the charters of the various cities which might have set forth a higher and a more stringent requirement for the sale of public utilities.

This morning Mr. Elliott attempted to offer, but has not as yet, and I assume he will offer it at the proper time, an amendment which would prohibit the sale of any particular power plant in violation of the charter.

I submit that if the various charters allow the sale by reason of the decision of only the governing body, be it the city commission or the council, or whatever you would call it, then what the majority of the committee has proposed is a greater safeguard than the people had prior thereto. Because at least now they can get a vote by a majority of the people where formerly it could be sold simply by vote of the legislative body.

On the other hand, I think that we should at this time, and I am so stating that I will, vote against the present amendment on the assumption that the amendment by Mr. Elliott which was ruled out of order will be renewed, but I wish to state that if that amendment is not adopted, or should it fail, then I think that the ⅗ should be returned. But I submit that to freeze in ⅗ requirement to sell is a violation of something that we have all decided we want, and that is home rule.

Now the committee has seen fit to state that at least a majority of the people should vote on it. I will support the proposition that if the charter said ⅗ or 75 or 80 per cent, this we ought to leave to the charter.

I have made contact with the board of public works in the city of Holland and also in the city of Zeeland, who both own municipal power plants, and I think fairly good plants — at least in 2 of the cities — and they are most agreeable to this particular type of amendment. Their main concern was that the adoption of the original majority proposal would vitiate the requirements of their charters, which do provide that they cannot be sold unless there be a vote of 60 per cent of the people. I think this is fair. I think to do otherwise would limit rather than expand home rule.

I submit that the gentlemen who want the ⅗, if they do not have the requirement in their charters, perhaps they should check and see if there is a requirement in their charters. If they do not have it, then the remedy lies in getting their charters amended rather than freezing it into the constitution.

The cities of Holland and Grand Haven have a good many millions of dollars invested in this, and they have taken steps to protect their investment.

I therefore state that I shall at this time oppose the minority amendment, that I shall support the Elliott amendment which was ruled out of order at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I wonder if I might have your attention just a moment. It seems to me we had better get into focus. We are writing a constitution, and we are not trying to legislate the future of any community or anything of that type. Now let's see what the committee did here. The committee, in its wisdom, was desirous of making sure that the people of these communities who have municipally owned power plants have something to say about their sale. In the testimony that was given pro and con on the matter of public utilities, it came to our attention that there are charters throughout the state which do not require this particular provision. Therefore, it was, in our wisdom, a wise thing to include in the constitutional language that we now have before you some language which would give to these people, the community, the inalienable right to vote.

Now, the discussion that you have had here is a discussion predicated upon the principle that if it takes so much to buy, it should take so much to sell. But some of the speakers before me have made this perfectly clear, that there is no restriction, if you defeat the minority report amendment and adopt the committee report with the amendment as suggested this morning, upon the communities involved to establish as rigid requirements for sale as they so desire in their charter. This is within their province, and I would read to you something that was recited in the Address to the People in the 1908 constitution.

> The transfer of the powers of legislation from the state legislature to the people in municipalities, or their representatives, necessitated the imposition of certain checks and prohibitions designed to secure conservative action on the part of those to become responsible for the future conduct of such affairs. Whereas these checks and prohibitions have formerly been in the hands of the common councils relating to franchises and the acquiring of public utilities, they are now made subject to the vote of ⅗ of the electors of the municipalities.

We in the committee believe that in our proposal, as amended — which has not yet been given consideration by this group — that we are continuing the philosophy that is desired. We feel strongly that you are setting up restrictions in your constitution which will prevent any community from setting any lower restrictions, and that they are unnecessary.

As I have said before, the charter can make any requirement that is desired, but we have seen the need to give a guarantee to the people of the right of election or the right of selection by vote, and have required this majority vote to sell. We feel that it is adequate, and I would urge you, as chairman of the committee, to defeat the minority amendment, with the full recognition that I would urge you then to adopt the other amendment as presented and then adopt the majority report, which would strengthen the 1962 constitution in this regard, granting inalienable rights to the people to have something to say in the disposal of a publicly owned utility, even though the charter might not have any language on this subject.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Negaunee, Delegate Richards, seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise, taking a very precarious position here, in open opposition to our chairman of local government. I would like to make one correction. The only time I voiced my opinion it was not under an emotional strain of any kind. It was due to the fact that it was the first time I recognized it was in the constitution, and when we studied it in our subcommittee — and I did take the position of one individual opposing it, asking for the ⅗ majority, and definitely it was no emotional setup with me. At that time I analyzed it; if it was good for buying it, it would be good for selling it.

In regard to my good friend and delegate, Mr. Farnsworth, I believe, Jim, as you sat and analyzed and decided whether or not you would go into business, I believe any local governing body would sit and analyze this in the same manner before purchasing, and it would do the same in selling it; and I honestly believe the group that would make that decision would be the commissioners or council, and they would lead in either making the decision to buy or dispose.

It seems a lot of people are greatly disturbed over the fact of requiring this ⅗ majority in selling. I would not be disturbed. I realize our people in the U.P. —and I am sure the good friends that I have met in the lower peninsula have as good a judgment as we have in the U.P., that I have met in this delegation, and any time that the U.P. people found that they had an inoperative plant that was not paying, they could very easily get ⅗ majority of the people to dispose of it.

I, too, like the good judge on my left, have had a communication from our people in Marquette asking to retain the ⅗ or have the ⅗ placed in the constitution. That arrived a long time after I made my decision.

I believe, folks, that we should support the Madar amendment. I believe it is good and I don't think we would have any difficulty in acquiring the ⅗ vote as soon as Jim — as they say, they put it on the tax rolls and support it, and when the people realize that, I think they would get the ⅗ very fast.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Traverse City, Delegate Sleder, seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. SLEDER: I should like to speak very briefly. In my opening remarks yesterday on public utilities I tried to point out the fact that we are prone sometimes in the present day to think of only one utility, and when we speak of public utilities we must speak of the whole field of public utilities, such as transportation, water, sewage disposal, gas, and all these areas where they are publicly owned. And, of course, this amendment applies to all public utilities that are operated by a municipality. This I think we as delegates should keep in mind not for today but for the next 50 or 60 years relative to these utilities that may be coming into being as a profitable organization or enterprise.

I would also like to explain the committee work relative to the public utility subcommittee, and the same discussion prevailed there, and differences of opinions, and to express this our public utility subcommittee recommended to the committee on local government that the 3/5 factor be included in this provision. However, as explained by Delegate Tweedie, the city subcommittee had secondary jurisdiction on this, and recommended the majority.

This took considerable discussion in the committee. The committee as a whole decided on the majority factor. At the second reading of this provision in the committee, the 3/5 amendment was proposed and it was defeated.

So you can see, here we have differences of opinion. I think we can talk here until 5:00 o'clock this afternoon and we are certainly going to continue to have those differences of opinion. I think we each possibly should by now have heard all the discussion on the pros and cons of both of these issues, and I think that we should be about ready to vote on the issue, and I would like to prevail upon those speakers who are to follow, if they would confine their remarks, as much as possible, to the amendment and to factors that have not been discussed so we can bring this to a vote.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order. Does the gentleman from Saginaw, Delegate Leppien, still seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, my remarks will be very brief. I speak against the minority report amendment for just one reason. We are taking away from the cities and villages the right to determine the sale of a utility that they might own, and let me just point out one thing. Aren't we hurting the tourist business of the state of Michigan by this? This is a field maybe we haven't looked at.

We have adopted a committee proposal, at least in part, to allow the cities to sell 25 per cent of their output. This may cover lake areas, resort areas and such, if you please, as was the case in a community where I have extremely good knowledge. If we had had to depend on the vote of the people by a 3/5 majority to sell, it might have been very difficult, when everybody involved, the resort people, the people of the city, as well as the leadership represented by the council, were very desirous of disposing of this because of its poor operating condition.

I urge you to defeat the 3/5 amendment as being written into this constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Morenci, Delegate Figy, still seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. FIGY: I certainly do. Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, you will notice up to now I have only used a very small part of my 17,000 words. I think I've got to start in pretty soon if I'm going to get my quota in. You will remember, too, that the proposal requiring the vote of the people to sell a utility plant carried my name along with some others. This was discussed very carefully in the committee. It took a lot of time on it. I think the committee report is a compromise, because prior to this time the present constitution does not require a vote of the people. So our committee report is a compromise. For that reason, I will oppose the amendment and vote in favor of the committee report.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Saginaw, Delegate Shackleton, still seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. SHACKLETON: Mr. Chairman and delegates, our form of government can only survive if we have strong competitive, individual initiative in our profit sharing system. We have seen around the world too many times where that has been destroyed, the forms of government have been destroyed with it. We should make it easier to get government out of business rather than keeping them in or getting them in.

One other factor: that some of these utilities, particularly smaller public utilities, may very well become seriously involved in the next few years in the development of atomic energy, which might make their plants so obsolete they couldn't even give them away.

I certainly oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Bad Axe, Delegate McAllister, still seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. McALLISTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I will be very brief. It appears from what we have heard here that the people of Michigan want this 3/5 in there to sell a power plant. Aren't we here to represent the people?

I also say that as a matter of good public relations I don't believe any public utility should want to buy a plant unless they have a decided majority. I want to say further that, talking about indebtedness, in regard to a city power plant or a municipal power plant, sometimes they operate at a loss, but they don't take into consideration when that loss is sustained that they are receiving tremendous services for which they would have to pay if it was a private utility.

I have had some experience along this line, and in our town we sold the power plant, and what we received for it from the utility company was that they blew the whistle 3 times a day. They are still doing it. In the first year after they acquired the power plant, if we had taken into consideration what it would cost to pay for our street lights and city services we would have operated at a loss during the period before it was sold to the public utility.

As I have said before, I own public utility stock, but the people have spoken overwhelmingly to the effect that they want this provision in the constitution, and I think we should regard the rights of the people when they have spoken unanimously in this way.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment to section f offered by Delegates Hatcher, Buback, Madar, et al. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Port Huron, Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman, all we tried to do in the committee was put a bottom limit of 50 per cent on this. If Mr. McAllister or Mr. Leibrand want a higher limit than that, they should go along with this, and when Mr. Elliott presents his amendment saying the city charter prevails, then they should all go to their respective communities and work for a 4/5 majority to sell or a 100 per cent majority to sell. But why should we restrict those cities who only want 50 per cent? I don't feel there is any argument here at all, or there shouldn't be.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes one of the cosponsors of the amendment, the gentlemen from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I am not going to take long because I want to get this to a vote. I see that Mr. Elliott is all ready to pull his little stunt of moving to rise so that he gets a little better chance to talk to a few more delegates. All I want to say is that, frankly, I have no vested interest in this, and I have no stock either. All I want is legislation or, rather, I want a constitution that is not discriminatory. Why should we go ahead and put in an amendment which would take care of those who have this in their charter, the 3/5 in their charter, and not take care of those who haven't? Certainly this would be discriminatory. I feel that all we want to do is be fair. We are not hurting the utilities a bit. About the only thing we would be doing otherwise is giving a large utility a right and an easy way to take over some other cities' municipal public utility.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Goebel.

MR. GOEBEL: Mr. Chairman, since I originally asked for recognition, Delegates Farnsworth and Karn have very nicely expressed my feeling on this matter and have done a good job. We have had a situation in my home town where we had an electric generating plant, and eventually we were very, very happy to make a deal to get rid of it with advantage to the taxpayer. I will not repeat any of the remarks these 2 gentlemen made previous to me, other than to say that I think the minority report amendment should be defeated and the committee report approved. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Bay City, Delegate Leibrand, seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. LEIBRAND: Mr. Chairman, may I direct an inquiry to the chairman of the committee on local government?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if he cares to answer.

MR. LEIBRAND: Delegate Elliott, I wish to inquire about your proposed amendment that would permit charters to prevail. Would your amendment permit a city under such a charter provision to buy a plant at 50 per cent? Or is your proposed amendment just going to apply to the selling?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: It applies to the selling.

MR. LEIBRAND: Not to the buying?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: It only corrects the language that we had added, which had not been in the constitution before, Judge, to clear up a mistake in drafting.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Now the question before the committee is the amendment to section f offered by Delegates Hatcher, Madar, Buback, et al. The delegate from Pontiac, Delegate Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: I would just like to ask a question or make a statement. It seems like Mr. Madar has confused me. I understood what Dan Karn said, and I thought I agreed with him 100 per cent, and I still think I do. But Mr. Madar says if we do not put in the 3/5 to sell, we are going to discriminate. We have a 3/5 to buy, but not a 3/5 to sell. That object I cannot follow. It seems to me if we put in a 3/5 vote to sell, which is not in the constitution today, we are then going to discriminate against the taxpayers in each community because of the fact that the employees and their families and friends in those communities might be fearful that they would lose their jobs and would tend to vote against it, and therefore you would be voting against the taxpayers' interest in not allowing them to sell a nonprofitable government function.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the minority report amendment to sec. f, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment as now offered by Delegates Madar, Buback, Hatcher, Hoxie, Leibrand and McAllister is as follows:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1035.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment. As many as are in favor of the amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

DELEGATES: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division vote has been requested. Is there support for the division? There is support. As many as are in favor of the amendment to section f will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no.

The Chair votes no.

The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the minority report amendment offered by Mr. Madar and others, the yeas are 52; the nays are 70.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Arthur Elliott offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 20, after "utility" by inserting "in violation of its charter"; so that the language there will read, "Nor shall any city or village sell any public utility in violation of its charter and unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote. . . ."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Elliott amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: The intent of this language is to make sure that charter provisions which may be more restrictive than the balance of this sentence will also be proper and will prevail, and I urge its adoption.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from St. Louis, Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, perhaps I can't read this amendment in proper form, but I think that the entire amendment should be read. I appreciate Mr. Elliott's still believing in home rule by allowing the charter to determine the method of selling the property. However, as I read the amendment, it is my belief it is inconsistent. Let's read it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the Elliott amendment in its entirety.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment offered by Mr. Elliott is:

1. Amend page 3, line 20, after "utility" by inserting "in violation of its charter and"; so that the language will read beginning in line 19 — was that where you wanted to start, Mr. Hoxie?

> Nor shall any city or village sell any public utility in violation of its charter and unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of the majority of the electors of such city or village voting thereon at a regular or special municipal election.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I don't know which amendment takes precedence. There has been the amendment that I offered, which has been on the secretary's desk since yesterday, which I believe is truly home rule. I am wondering if Mr. Elliott would object to the reading of the amendment I offered.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I thought that perhaps there would be no other amendments.

I move that the committee rise, and Mr. Hoxie and I can talk during lunch.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott moves that the committee of the whole do now rise. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain items on which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 83, A proposal pertaining to cities and villages; has considered several amendments thereto; and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee on administration will have a special meeting at 1:30 this afternoon in its committee room.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I move the convention stand in recess until 2:00 o'clock.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Hutchinson. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are recessed until 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 11:55 o'clock a.m., the convention recessed; and, at 2:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

The convention will please come to order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of certain items on the order of general orders.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. DeVries. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Mr. DeVries.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee of the whole will come to order. When last the committee met it was considering Committee Proposal 83, and the Elliott amendment to the proposal. The delegate from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, in an attempt to further clarify this, I would like to withdraw that amendment and substitute the amendment which the secretary has on his desk.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott withdraws his amendment and offers a substitute which the secretary will read.

MR. FORD: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, we have a minority report. I have been trying all morning to get it on, and now we have another amendment coming on ahead of the minority report. I think that the first order of business should be the minority report, as an amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair would question, to which minority report are you referring, Delegate Ford, the one offered by —

MR. FORD: To the last part of Committee Proposal 83 that we have been talking about.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: That minority report was acted on by the committee of the whole.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, there are 2 minority reports. This is not the wages and hours thing, Bill. We are still talking about this 3/5 vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: This is on page 3. Mr. Elliott has withdrawn his previously filed amendment and is offering the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 22, after "majority" by inserting a comma and "or of a greater number if the charter shall so provide,"; so the language will then read:

> Nor shall any city or village sell any public utility unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of a majority, or of a greater number if the charter shall so provide, of the electors of such city or village voting thereon at a regular or special municipal election.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I believe that this language now clarifies the point and makes it perfectly clear that if this is adopted, charters which require a greater vote than a majority vote will have the right to so do, and that will be the requirement within their community.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate Elliott. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from St. Louis, Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I endorse the amendment. I think it will take care of the situation that bothered a lot of us.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Elliott amendment. As many as are in favor of the Elliott amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section f?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Higgs has filed the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 24, after "election" by adding "except that this provision shall not nullify the presently existing provisions of any city or village charter".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bay City, Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to withdraw that amendment, inasmuch as I think the Elliott amendment has already covered it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Higgs withdraws his amendment. Are there any further amendments to section f? Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, I would like to withdraw my amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie withdraws his amendment. Are there any further amendments to section f?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Marshall offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 16, after "vote of" by striking out "3/5" and inserting "a majority"; so that the language will then read, "unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of a majority of the electors of such city or village voting thereon."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the intent of my amendment is to make this proposal, this particular section, consistent, and I think we should be consistent in practice. If it requires 3/5 to sell — if a majority of the people can vote to determine to sell, then it should only require a majority to acquire. Therefore, that is the reason for my amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Marshall amendment. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. Chairman, in support of the Marshall amendment, it seems to me that this is just basic democracy that people should be able to decide at a given time by 51 per cent of the vote whether they want to buy or sell something. These built in inequities, such as the figure of 3/5, are basically, in my opinion, undemocratic. You have got to allow people to make these determinations, and a minority should not be allowed to frustrate the will of the majority of the people. Therefore, I support the Marshall amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I wish Mr. Hodges and Mr. Marshall could have joined with our committee in the hours of debate that we had on this subject. The matter was thoroughly discussed. There has been a great deal of reasoning and rationale expressed this morning which supports the opinion of the committee, and I would urge the defeat of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Traverse City, Delegate Sleder, seek recognition?

MR. SLEDER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I wish to echo the remarks of Chairman Elliott. As chairman of the subcommittee on public utilities I wish to say that the committee completely discussed and studied this, and it is felt that the 3/5 majority is a necessary item to have in the constitution relative to the purchase of a public utility, and therefore we would urge the defeat of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Marshall amendment to section f. The delegate from Detroit, Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I submit that any rationality or rationale which states that a majority of the people cannot determine their own opinion on something and have it stand is an irrational rationality. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Now the question before the committee is the Marshall amendment to section f, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Marshall's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Austin, speaking on the amendment.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask a question of the chairman of the committee, or Mr. Sleder, for the benefit of those of us who are not on the local government committee, and who are not fully aware of what was discussed. I would like to know exactly why it is not logical to have a majority to make the decision for acquisition as well as the majority to make the decision for sale. I don't believe the reason has been given. They have only stated that the committee simply made the decision. I would like to hear the reason so that I can vote intelligently.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Austin yields to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I yield to the chairman of the subcommittee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: When we speak of public utilities, we speak of a type of enterprise that incorporates a large investment in capital. If we are speaking of light and power, or if we are speaking of the water department or transportation or heat or gas, all these types of enterprises involve a great deal of public funds invested for the engaging into this business. It is felt that when a tremendous amount of public funds are invested by the people into a type of business, it should therefore have a sound and thorough study by the people, and the people should — a good percentage of the people should — be able and willing to support this industry or this enterprise or public utility that this community is going to engage in.

If they spend a great deal of money, and a majority or 3/5, 60 per cent, of the people are not in favor of this and are not going to be willing to support it, the chances of the success of this utility are small. And to assure that the business will succeed, if it is a transportation business, if it is a light and power business, or whatever it may be, for the assurance that this will be a success to the community and to the area, it is felt that a 60 per cent vote of the people is necessary.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman, I agree with the previous speaker, that it would involve a great deal, a large expenditure of money in acquiring a power plant or transit system, et cetera But, on the other hand, I still think that the same standard should apply to acquiring as to selling because under the proposal of the committee, a power company could go ahead and convince a village or city that its facilities and its plants were outmoded, outdated and dilapidated and almost to the point of collapsing; make a purchase at a price less than what the facilities were worth; make very few improvements and then operate the facilities at a profit.

I feel that what's fair for the goose is fair for the gander in this situation, and if we are going to have a majority to sell, we ought to only require a majority to acquire. Otherwise, let's put 3/5 in both; let's don't have a double standard.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, when the other delegates get through discussing the amendment, I will start. Anyway, I want to first start out by telling you that I am opposed to the amendment. Now, not because I am opposed to municipalities or anyone else being able to purchase a public utility or start operating a public utility with just a simple majority vote. Actually I'm not worried so much about that as I am about the fact that in our previous amendment we did try to get 3/5, because I hate to think that someone might be able to actually swindle the voters out of a utility which they could operate at a profit.

This morning I heard people say that some of these utilities actually are run down and they can't possibly operate at a profit. This only happens in the case when you have men as public officials who think only of themselves, who are greedy, who do not take care of their jobs. No other place do you ever see this happen, because when an official is doing what he should do, he makes certain that he has enough moneys put into reserve to take care of anything that might go wrong. He doesn't try to use those moneys, nor will he let the voters use them to go ahead and buy other things for the city without a battle. He makes sure that he has enough money in reserve to take care of this, just as the public utilities do in the state.

I am not talking about the private utilities, for the private utilities certainly have enough money in their reserve. Actually they have so much in reserve that on more than one occasion they have sent 50 to 150 people into a small town to go ahead and get these people to sell out. Why, it is actually a crime, and it is something that ought to be investigated more thoroughly throughout this state. Maybe we wouldn't have them making so much money. Maybe they wouldn't be spending so much on lobbyists, so much on public information, so much on advertising, and then charging this all back to the rate payers. In fact, we ought to start doing something about keeping the utilities from paying for their lobbying and advertising —

MR. YEAGER: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the delegate from Detroit state his point of order?

MR. YEAGER: This doesn't seem to be relevant to the particular item under discussion at the moment, Mr. Chairman.

MR. MADAR: It is relevant to the taxpayers of the state, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If the Chair gets a chance, it will rule that Mr. Madar is in order.

The gentleman from Menominee, Delegate Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: The only thing I came to the floor here for was this particular purpose: this morning we had the same group of people voting against the 3/5 of all the people voting on the authority to buy or not to buy, to sell or not to sell, and now this afternoon, in some sort of pious gesture, they are now attempting to take themselves into a different position; and I can't quite understand that unless this is another maneuver to take up a lot of time on the floor that to me is rather useless.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Menominee yields to the gentleman from Taylor.

MR. MARSHALL: I guess the question wasn't directed to me by the gentleman from Menominee, but I did vote against the 3/5 this morning because I thought the majority was proper. That is why I offer the amendment to remove the 3/5 and insert the majority in the previous sentence.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I urge the defeat of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the Marshall amendment to section f, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The Marshall amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1042.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor of the amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Division is requested. Is there support for a division vote? There is sufficient support. All those in favor of the Marshall amendment will vote aye. All those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Marshall, the yeas are 35; the nays are 88.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section f of Committee Proposal 83?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Marshall offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 10, after "Sec. f.", by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "Cities and villages shall be permitted to acquire or sell any public utility and grant or revoke any public utility franchise pursuant to law, providing however, this provision shall not nullify any present charter provision.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: The purpose of the introduction of this amendment is that if we truly believe in home rule I think this amendment will go a long way toward establishing the fact that we do believe in true home rule, giving the people the right in the local communities to determine for themselves. It also is flexible enough that it can be changed by statute from time to time as economic conditions require.

I am not going to take a lot of time on speaking on this amendment. I think it is self explanatory, and with the few brief remarks I have made, if we believe in true home rule, and if we believe in making it flexible enough in order that it can be changed from time to time throughout the years as economic conditions require, I would urge your support of this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Marshall amendment to section f. The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I urge the defeat of this amendment. The committee gave this, also, consideration. It was the feeling within the committee that the language — a strong feeling, as far as that goes, within the committee that the language that we have now presented is sound constitutional language and is helpful to the problem that is under discussion. The only discussion we had in committee was as to whether or not it should be a majority vote or a 3/5 vote. That seems to have been decided by this committee. I therefore would urge that this amendment be also defeated and the committee report be accepted.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I am sorry to disagree with our chairman, but I think this is a very good amendment, and I think that leaving it to the city is a sound move. I have only one question about it, and that I would like Mr. Marshall to answer: that business about present charter provision in the last line. It seems to me that it leaves a question about what you would do about changing your charter in the future, and whether that would be possible under this thing.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cushman yields to Delegate Marshall for the purpose of answering the question.

MR. MARSHALL: I can't even read my own writing. I ran out of space. But the purpose for that, in my judgment on this, Mrs. Cushman, is that you could still change it by charter amendment at the local level any time that a change is necessary.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I would suggest you delete the word "present" in that case.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I would have no objection to accepting the suggestion of Delegate Cushman to delete the word "present".

SECRETARY CHASE: The Marshall amendment, as revised, now reads as follows:

1. Amend page 3, line 10, after "Sec. f.", by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "Cities and villages shall be permitted to acquire or sell any public utility and grant or revoke any public utility franchise pursuant to law, providing however, this provision shall not nullify any charter provision.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman, I believe this amendment gives the delegates an opportunity to vote on the principle of true home rule.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I want to agree with Mrs. Cushman. I would like to call the committee's attention to the fact that there has been some newspaper publicity within the past few weeks; the serious discussion down in the Detroit area of setting up the municipal transit system or a transit system throughout Wayne county, and perhaps part of Oakland county area, with a series of cities joining together, and I wonder — I think that this question was asked and answered in the committee — I wonder if this provision of a 3/5 vote would mean that in order to buy out the franchises of competing small private transit systems within the area to be served by an area transit system, we would have to have a 3/5 vote of all the cities and villages involved. Perhaps Mr. Elliott could tell us if this would be the effect.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman does not care to answer.

MR. FORD: Could anyone who advocated this tell me whether or not we would be prohibited from going into such a transit system in Wayne county if we didn't have a 3/5 vote of each of the cities and villages to become a part of it? In other words, could any one of the cities or villages that failed to get 3/5 cause us to lose out?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Traverse City care to answer? Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: In my opinion, Delegate Ford, it would. Each community would have to have a 3/5 vote if it was going to contribute in a financial way to the support of this. If you are speaking of some sort of inter contract basis for the transportation system, and they were going to contribute financially to it, it would have to have a 3/5 vote of its electorate.

MR. FORD: I submit then for all practical purposes to have a rigid requirement like this in the constitution would prevent for all time in the future of Wayne county the creation of a metropolitan transit system. We are not arguing about whether it is desirable or not desirable. It has been talked about for so long that there are a substantial number of people down there who feel that they would like to be able to do it, and I would rather see something happen along the line that is now suggested, that would permit the legislature to set the rules and provide for flexibility, so that the cities within the framework of their own charters, and the villages, could approve the purchase of these franchises on whatever basis the local people thought was in their own best interest.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Marshall amendment, as revised, to section f. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Marshall's amendment, as revised:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1043.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The gentleman from Jackson, Delegate Karn.

MR. KARN: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I would like to call your attention to a situation which is brought out in this proposed amendment, and that is, at the present time, when franchises are ratified by the voters, they are irrevocable during their term. If this amendment should pass — I know I am speaking very frankly — I think it would do irreparable harm to the public utility industry as such. Because financing of utility expenditures where they had no franchises, or franchises could be revoked, would be extremely difficult. I urge your opposition to this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Traverse City, Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: Relative to Mr. Marshall's amendment, I should like to point out the section that we adopted previous to this in the constitution gives the power of cities and villages to enter into public utilities. This, I think, is important, that these cities and villages be given this privilege and the power to do. However, I do feel that if the constitution likewise instills them with this responsibility and this power, that in some areas there must be certain restrictions stated in the constitution as to what is necessary to enter into these utilities.

The section we are now discussing definitely states that 60 per cent of the voters must conform to the utility for this municipality to enter into it. While the constitution gives the communities, the cities and villages, the power to go into the utility business, it likewise, I feel, should also set up the requirements which they must meet in order to enter this field.

Therefore I would recommend defeating the Marshall amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the sponsor of the amendment, Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Well, again — and this will be the last time that I will infringe upon your time and patience to speak on this amendment, but I again urge its adoption. I have tried to be rather consistent throughout the convention, and have tried to leave as much trust in the legislature as possible. I have spoken on the floor numerous times about not burdening the constitution down with a lot of language that is statutory in nature.

It seems to me that many of the delegates want to trust the legislature when it suits their fancy; when it doesn't suit them they don't want to trust them. In the one breath many of the delegates advocate and talk in the corridor and after hours about strong county home rule or local home rule, but here you have an opportunity to vote for it and apparently we are hedging. Again I can see, in my judgment, where in this committee proposal there could be advantage to certain special interest groups. I don't think that should exist in the constitution, and I think this language leaves it squarely up to the people and to the legislative processes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The delegate from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: You would almost think that I were being paid to lobby against public utilities, as some here are paid to be delegates and possibly do some lobbying too for utilities.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Madar, will you confine your remarks to the amendment offered by Mr. Marshall.

MR. MADAR: I intend to. I just wanted to say this: that we in the city of Detroit, and I know that the utilities in the city of Detroit, aren't worried about franchises. There we have day to day franchises. We have a wonderful relationship with the utilities. In fact, I don't think that it costs us as much for power or gas in the city of Detroit as it does anywhere else in the state. Actually they are cheaper in Detroit.

Now, I believe that this is a very, very good amendment. This is something that is necessary for the people. You see, it wasn't the cities and the government who first went into the power business; it was just a few people, and these few people who first started in getting the utilities together were given all sorts of rights and liberties to do just about as they wished. Yet they used our rivers, they dammed them up, they watered an awful lot of stock from those dams too. Actually they built up about 50 or 100 thousand to the point where today some of that 50 or 100 thousand has risen to a million. Oh, yes, check the records and you will find that the stock has been watered plenty and the rates are plenty high.

Frankly, all I ever want to do is to help get back to reason. I don't believe that we have got to give any long franchises to utilities, and I believe that the cities ought to be able to do something about them. I believe, too, that we shouldn't have the same thing — or, rather, continue the same thing as they have in Traverse City, where down one side of the street they have their own utility; on the other side they have a private utility, and all because they granted a franchise for life.

Frankly, I am in favor of the amendment, and I hope that it passes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Marshall amendment, as revised. The gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I support the amendment because the committee report is anti democratic and pro private power.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is the Marshall amendment, as revised. As many as are in favor of the Marshall amendment will say aye. Excuse me. The delegate from Kalamazoo, Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Marshall raises a point which we ought to think about in connection with transportation lines. Personally, I would oppose passage of this particular amendment because I think what we combine here are 2 things, the problem of bus lines and transportation and the old problem we have had about electric utilities, and I think that problem has run deep enough and gone along far enough that we cannot very well change the provisions which we have already adopted.

Now, Mr. Marshall, I wondered if we would be able to help you out on the metropolitan government section. We can in part, but we can't help you out as far as this 3/5 vote. Just as Mr. Sleder says, the 3/5 vote would be required by every unit if it is a city that would participate. It wouldn't require a 3/5 vote if it were by a township unit participating.

It seems to me that what we have got to do here in order to not get the 2 mixed up is to go ahead and pass the committee proposal, turn down this amendment, and give some thought later on to this particular problem which you raise about bus lines. It is too difficult a problem to work out immediately on the floor, but I can see if a group of cities wanted to go into the bus business and combine, the 3/5 vote would be a hindrance. I don't think this is the way to cure that problem. I think we can take it later.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Delegate Allen, may I inquire: first of all, I didn't mention anything — I made no mention whatsoever of bus lines. I was more concerned — well, in the overall, but in my statement I didn't mention bus lines as such. I would not have offered this amendment had my original amendment carried. First of all, you would not be helping me. You said help me out. I think you would be helping the people.

I feel that if a power company can go into a community and purchase a power plant by a majority vote, the people likewise should be able to acquire one by a majority vote. I cannot see the double standard and had the amendment passed where you would have had a majority vote in both cases, I would not have offered this amendment. I still think this amendment is sound.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ludington, Delegate Plank.

MR. PLANK: I would like to speak in favor of the committee proposal and against the amendment by Mr. Marshall. I would like to point out to you that giving a city or a village the power to allow or not allow a utility to operate in their area might be all right, and might be real good home rule, but it is not very practical.

One of the real reasons the utility can operate with the economy that they do operate with in our country is the fact that they not only have the opportunity to operate in the city but in a large area, and if you fix it so that they have to be on their guard at all times as to whether or not they will be able to operate in a given section, you will certainly do away with their economy and make it pretty difficult for all of us to exist. This is one of the reasons why we have utilities, and I would just point out to you that the proposal we have in the committee report takes care of this very nicely, and I would urge that you defeat the Marshall amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Birmingham, Delegate Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, I don't wish to speak on this amendment. I just want to make an announcement which may shorten our proceedings this afternoon. Mr. Rudow has just informed me that the Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press have suspended publication. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The delegate's point is well taken. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Could I suggest that additional copies of the journal be printed and distributed in Detroit? (laughter)

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, I might say that the World has gone into print.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question now before the committee is the Marshall amendment, as revised, to section f. As many as are in favor of the Marshall amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment, as revised, is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section f?

SECRETARY CHASE: None on the desk, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, then, the committee will return to section b which was passed temporarily this morning. We were considering the second paragraph, lines 3 through 11 on page 2. We were not considering the last sentence. At that time Delegate Allen had offered an amendment to the paragraph. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Allen had offered an amendment to:

1. Amend page 2, line 6, after "ment,", at the beginning of the line, by inserting "subject to the constitution and general laws of this state,".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Allen amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Later this morning, following the suggestion that came from the floor, Mr. Hutchinson, Mr. Bonisteel and I met. We have talked it over with the committee chairman since then. We have a different amendment that does a little more, which Mr. Hutchinson was to offer. I don't see him here. For the purpose of having it offered I will withdraw my amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen withdraws his amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Hutchinson, Bonisteel and Allen offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, by striking out lines 3 to 7 and line 8 through "therein.", and inserting "Each city and village shall have power to pass laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property and government subject to the constitution and general laws of this state.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, what this does is, as you will see, 2 things. It starts the sentence off exactly the way that it is printed and then adds the old qualification from the 1908 constitution which is "subject to the constitution and general laws of this state." It then goes ahead to omit this business about preemption. So the whole matter of preemption goes out.

While we could not talk with each member of the committee, we talked with the chairman, and I sensed from the talks no disagreement on the committee's part on this. I would like to have Mr. Elliott, if he is here, confirm this so that we may know that we have agreement before we go ahead on it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen yields to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, delegates, the statement Mr. Allen has made is correct.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Fennville, Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, this is the amendment which we worked out after this matter was passed this morning temporarily, and I am very happy with the arrangement and compromise that has been effected. I hope that the committee will support it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, would Delegate Hutchinson yield for a question?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The delegate yields?

MR. HUTCHINSON: I yield.

MR. DOWNS: Would we accomplish the same purpose by keeping lines 14 through "state", that is, 22, as the Sharpe amendment is, and then striking the rest of section b — that is, strike on page 2, lines 1 through 14? I am not in opposition to what you are trying to achieve.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, in answer to the question of the gentleman, we would be accomplishing the same purpose by reinserting the old language down through and including line 8. Now, then, what happens beyond line 8 is another question.

MR. DOWNS: Perhaps my question, Mr. Chairman, if I can direct it again: if we took on page 1, section b, lines 14 through the word "state" in line 22?

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, if I understand the question, it is this. Suppose that we took section b and reinserted the stricken language there, which is found on lines 19 through 22, and then struck out all of the new language, would we be accomplishing the same purpose?

MR. DOWNS: That is correct.

MR. HUTCHINSON: I say to the gentleman that we would be accomplishing the same purpose down to and including line 8, but after line 8 there is some new material which would not be — definitely which would be stricken out if we struck out all the new material, but we introduced some additional issues there which our compromising team was not able to satisfy.

MR. DOWNS: I think, Mr. Chairman, that Mr. Hutchinson's suggestion is inconsistent with lines 11 to 14 on page 2, and it would seem to me a much neater way to handle the whole problem would be to take lines 14 through the word "state" in 22, reinserting the language we did by the Sharpe amendment yesterday, and then strike the rest of section b, so that section b would be essentially as it was in the 1908 constitution with the grammatical corrections in the first few lines.

I am just raising this as a question to see if it would facilitate the proceedings.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegates Hutchinson, Bonisteel and Allen to the second paragraph of section b. The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: As I understand the question, this would include lines 1 through 14 on page 2, and the committee at this time is not prepared to accept the point of view of Mr. Downs, and I would urge that we adopt the amendment as presented now, and then go ahead and complete our debate on the second paragraph.

MR. DOWNS: I will withdraw the question, and if it is pertinent, would like to again raise it after we finish line 14 on page 2.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the amendment of Delegates Hutchinson, Bonisteel and Allen to the second paragraph of Committee Proposal 83, section b. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is as follows:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1045.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment. Does the gentleman from St. Louis, Delegate Hoxie, seek recognition?

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mr. Hutchinson a question.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. HOXIE: In reading the stricken material on page 1 of the committee report, "and, through its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concern, subject to the constitution and general laws of this state," that is the language that has been in the constitution for some time. I can't see where, under this proposed amendment, with the exception of the last sentence, but what it accomplishes the same thing as your amendment. Why reword the constitution when the same subject matter is covered?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie yields to Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, my answer to that is, that when you start working on amendatory language in a spirit of seeking to obtain something close to unanimity you usually start with what you've got. Now, what we had is not the old language in the constitution, but the language from lines 3 to 8 on page 2, and I think that you and I will both agree that the language of the proposed amendment that is up here on the wall says the same thing as the stricken language.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: The only remark I have is I thought it was the intention of this body to try to keep the wording of the document that we submit to the people very brief, and I would like to call your attention to the fact that we have a little less than 3 lines and on the other I don't know how many, but certainly more than that to accomplish the same purpose.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Messrs. Hutchinson, et al. The gentleman from Grosse Pointe Shores, Delegate Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. Chairman, members, I speak in favor of the amendment. I think the answer to Mr. Hoxie — if I can suggest that — the colloquy answer is this: the old language says "municipal concerns". This says "municipal concerns, government and property." The intent of the committee was to broaden this because of some supreme court decisions which stated municipalities were acquiring more property, and one thing or another. There is a change. The language has been relocated. Two words have been added, and this preemptive business, which is so confusing, is eliminated.

I expect to vote in favor of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment. As many as are in favor of the amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section b, second paragraph, lines 3 through 11, inclusive?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Arthur Elliott, on behalf of the committee on local government, offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 11, after "conferred,", by striking out the balance of that section and inserting "Such cities and villages shall have exclusive jurisdiction over wages and hours and administration except for general laws applicable to all persons or all public employees alike.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment. The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: At about 9:35 this morning I explained this amendment merely as an attempt to clear up the language that we had originally, and it was done in committee with all members but 2 or 3 being present, and with all of them in favor of the amendment except one. I now would like to yield to Mr. Allen to discuss the matter.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, we have been running so far behind on our time and this —

MR. MAHINSKE: Point of order, Mr. Chairman. Didn't we have a minority report in this area that should be considered in preference to the committee report?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair asked if there were any amendments to lines 3 through 11. The secretary read an amendment to lines 11 through 14. Is there a minority report on it? Did Mr. Elliott offer the amendment on behalf of the committee?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: That I did.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: We will consider the committee amendment first. Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: There is a minority report and I believe that we would be in order to take it first. Mr. Ford, I believe if you would let Mr. Allen make his comments, it would satisfy your condition.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair will rule that the committee amendment is in order. The Chair recognizes Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Speaking on the committee amendment, because we have been running so far behind, and because we know this one sentence is going to start so large a floor fight, and because the minority has a report which they propose to put in to strike the last sentence, no matter whether it is the way it was originally printed or whether it's in the form of the committee amendment, it is the feeling of the committee that rather than discuss this at length at this time, it would be better to drop the whole subject, let the minority report go through, strike the sentence, and then on second reading, if the committee felt disposed to do so, to bring this up again; but not at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen, the Chair does not understand. You are withdrawing the amendment offered by Delegate Elliott?

MR. ALLEN: I don't care which procedure is followed. He offered the amendment, so I would let him. We could either withdraw it, let the minority report go through, or the minority could vote this one in and then have their report go through.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, parliamentary procedure is a little bit in the gray area as far as I am concerned at this moment. What we are anxious to do is to move along in our article on local government — I must tell Mr. Van Dusen that that number 7 that I put in there when I reported to you was not 7 hours but 7 days — what we would like to do is have the minority report be adopted at this time, reserving the right on second reading as all of us have.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you withdraw the amendment?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: If that is the proper procedure, I will so do.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott withdraws the amendment. Are there any further amendments to section b? Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: I rise to a point of order. This is not Mr. Elliott's amendment. This is an amendment of the committee, and I don't believe he has the authority of the entire committee to withdraw it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott is the sponsor of the amendment, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: He said this morning it was a committee amendment, and you gave him the right to submit his over the minority report, if you will recall.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is withdrawn.

SECRETARY CHASE: Pursuant to minority report A of Messrs. Ford, Buback, Baginski, Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs. Madar and Suzore,

Mr. Madar offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 11, after "conferred.", by striking out the balance of the line and all of lines 12, 13 and 14.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ypsilanti, Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: Mr. President, in a spirit of complete cooperation I wonder if I can meld or weld or make the second part of my amendment sort of married into the minority report. In other words, as I understand it, they are identical. Is that not correct?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You want to move to amend the amendment?

MR. LAWRENCE: No, no. Oh, no.

SECRETARY CHASE: The second part of the amendment offered by Mr. Lawrence this morning was to strike out this same sentence. In other words, Mr. Lawrence would like to join with the minority as a sponsor of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, it will be so ordered. I hear no objection. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I don't quite understand the procedure here, but I don't want the action of the committee in withdrawing its amendment and accepting the minority amendment to be taken to mean that this committee is endorsing in some way the minority report.

It seems to me that a far better way would be to go ahead and vote on the minority amendment and dispose of it at this time, but I realize the committee wants to economize on time, and so perhaps it is all right, but I think it should be made clear that those of us who are going along with this idea are not agreeing with this minority proposition to permanently eliminate this provision.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Martin, the chairman of the committee has stated that amendments can be offered on second and third readings, and that was his intention. Is that correct, Delegate Elliott?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Yes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the minority report amendment offered by Messrs. Ford, Buback, Baginski, et al to section b. Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I am very happy to see what at the first blush looked like agreement here, but I am not so sure that it is. I heard a little birdie whispering during the lunch hour there was a new rule under consideration with respect to the manner in which we would handle these things on the floor, and the method of debate available when we get to the second reading. If this is an oversuspicious fear on my part, I hope somebody will straighten me out, but it appears to me that we might be passing this thing over without benefit of debate, and then if such a rule is adopted, and there is either limited debate, or the previous question is permitted to be moved on second reading on the theory that all the debate that was necessary was had on first reading, we will not have any debate on this section. And for that reason I would resist at this time passing our amendment without the debate and passing it with any reservation — (laughter) This engenders some humor, but I think you will see that we are coming to the crossroads of a very important sort of parliamentary procedure here that could conceivably — I am sure by accident and not by design — place the minority in a very indelicate position, to say the very least.

When I see prominent members of the majority, whom I know disagree with the minority position, say we are going to accept it, but we are going to get you the next time around, I think you can understand that I get a little quivery.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Ford, the question is on your amendment.

MR. FORD: Well, as a point of personal privilege, I want to make it clear to the committee that I will consider any attempt to eliminate debate, if an amendment is made to put the committee language back in on second reading, under any circumstances where full and complete debate in the same manner as is now available here, in the committee of the whole, is not afforded, as a deliberate attempt to prevent us from debating on this particular question. I hesitate to use language of this kind, but I want to be absolutely sure that nobody accuses us of crying after the milk has been spilt.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ypsilanti, Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: I merely would like to say to Delegate Ford, through the Chair, that if there is any such sort of subversive plot in the making I would like to disagree with him so we will have some grounds for debate, because I am not any part to that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair might suggest we are engaging in argumentum heterendum and so we should confine our remarks to the amendment offered by Messrs. Ford and others. The Chair recognizes Mrs. Butler.

MRS. BUTLER: I would like to know in one syllable words what we mean.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The point is well taken, but that might be quite difficult. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I share Mr. Ford's fears here, and I hope that we will not be engaging in some sort of a gimmick to limit debate. The only thing at this point I would like to remind the delegates is that you did receive a very comprehensive memorandum from the Michigan state fire fighters association. Their representative was out there yesterday and he's out there today, and they are very concerned about this language in the constitution because it would affect their rights. I would just like to remind the delegates that while the Detroit newspapers may not be publishing today, I don't think this will stop the fire fighters from being alert.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Binkowski, it seems to me there was once a president who said "You have nothing to fear but fear itself," and I urge the adoption now of the minority report amendment under the reasons that we have stated.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question now is on the adoption of the amendment offered by Messrs. Ford, Buback, Baginski, Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs. Madar, Suzore and Lawrence to section b. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The Chair is in doubt. All those in favor will rise.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You request a division on this? A division has been requested. Is there support? There is adequate support for a division. All those in favor will vote aye. All those opposed, no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by the minority, the yeas are 89 and the nays are 21.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 83? If not, it will pass.

Section b, as amended, is passed. Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 83? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 83, as amended, is passed and the secretary will read.

You have a question? The gentleman from Flint, Judge Gadola.

MR. GADOLA: I have a question, yes. In the amendment that was offered, it says "subject to this constitution and the general laws of the state." Are we to assume that there is any governmental function that is not subject to this constitution by putting such words in? I just pass that on as a question. Is it necessary to put it in, "subject to this constitution?"

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Do you direct the question to anybody in particular?

MR. GADOLA: No, just something to think over.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 2 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 84, A proposal to provide for liberal construction of provisions concerning municipal corporations. Amends article VIII.

Following is Committee Proposal 84 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. THE PROVISIONS OF THIS CONSTITUTION AND THE LAWS OF THIS STATE CONCERNING MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS SHALL BE LIBERALLY CONSTRUED IN THEIR FAVOR. POWERS GRANTED TO COUNTIES AND TOWNSHIPS BY THIS CONSTITUTION AND THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF MICHIGAN SHALL INCLUDE THOSE EXPRESSLY GRANTED OR FAIRLY IMPLIED AND NOT INCONSISTENT WITH NOR PROHIBITED BY THIS CONSTITUTION.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 84:

Sec. a. Much testimony before the committee on local government, together with the experience reported by many of the committee members, has indicated that a major problem in Michigan local government today relates to narrow court construction or interpretation of the statutory powers of counties and townships. This practice, which is traditional with the courts, results in great problems in the drafting of legislation and increases the length of statutes since even minor omissions from them may result in a lack of power wanted or needed by a county or township.

The intent of this section is to mandate the courts to give a liberal or broad construction to statutes and constitutional provisions concerning all local governments. It is the understanding of the committee that home rule cities and villages already enjoy a broad construction of their powers and it is not the intention of the committee to make this construction any less broad. The principal problem seems to rest with the powers of counties and townships, so the second sentence of this section proposes specifically to broaden their powers and seeks to give the courts some guidance as to the criteria to be used in interpreting the constitution and statutes relative to counties and townships.

The Alaska and New Jersey constitutions contain language designed to accomplish the purpose the committee here recommends.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, it is with pleasure that I yield to Mr. Ford to discuss this section with you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Ford for the committee explanation.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I am having difficulty finding the majority report. I am inundated with minority reports here.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will stand at ease while Delegate Ford gets organized.

MR. FORD: Thanks to an assist from several fellow delegates, I have now found it. It is in the journal on page 440.

[The supporting reasons were read by Mr. Ford. For text, see above.]

I would like to say at the outset that perhaps our committee explanation is just a little bit misleading, in that the language that the committee intends to broaden the powers is used, because there is nothing in this section which, in and of itself, either creates any power or broadens any existing power. It is merely a constitutional rule for statutory and constitutional construction with respect to a particular type of law enactment.

This was taken from the New Jersey constitution which was adopted in 1947, and has been modified as slightly as we could to make it consistent with Michigan requirements, since our township and county situation in Michigan is comparable to the city and township situation in New Jersey, where home rule as we know it does not exist. This was put into the constitution in New Jersey in 1947, and has been used very extensively in the state since that time.

For the municipal attorneys here, they will agree with me, I am sure, that New Jersey has a reputation in the United States for being one of the front runners in modern zoning and planning decisions out of their courts, and in researching this I discovered a whole series of zoning cases coming out of New Jersey that are looked upon as landmark zoning cases throughout the rest of the country that have been tried since 1950 — most of them tried in the early '50s — where, as a matter of fact, the court relied upon substantially the same language as we are proposing here in sustaining the township and city zoning ordinances or village zoning ordinances.

I would like to yield for questions at this point without belaboring it further. I would be very happy to give the citations to the lawyers if they want them or the cases.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford yields to the delegate from Bay City, Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, Delegate Ford, in reading this last sentence, the words "nor prohibited by," give me some difficulty. I would like to know if you agree with this construction: "Powers granted to counties and townships by this constitution and the laws of the state of Michigan shall include those expressly granted or fairly implied and not inconsistent with nor prohibited by this constitution." Would that not be a grant of all power to the counties and townships which are not expressly prohibited in the constitution?

---

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

MR. FORD: No, it isn't. This argument is one that was raised, and I want to make it very clear that here we have a situation where we can actually see what the court is likely to say in Michigan about this section, because it has been recently enacted in another state and the court has spoken, and I might answer it by reading just a part from a New Jersey case, Fred v. Mayor and Council, of the Burrough of Old Tappan. This is a zoning case, and the question was raised by the municipality here in trying to sustain a zoning ordinance, and I will quote:

> The defendant contends that the authority to pass such an ordinance is conferred on it by article IV, section 7 — and article IV, section 7 is substantially the same as our proposal — > of the Constitution of 1947 which provides:

and the language is repeated —

> It is urged upon us that this clause of the Constitution of 1947, which had no counterpart in its predecessor constitution, introduced a new concept of home rule into the law of this state, being, in effect, a direct grant of the police power to all municipalities.

In support of its position the defendant refers to certain of the proceedings of the constitutional convention, and here again is an example of what we can expect in the future. The court, in construing this section, actually went into the debates of the convention to find out what they intended to do.

> We find no merit to this contention of the defendant. The quoted provision of the constitution on its face does not purport to be a grant of general police powers to all municipalities, its plain language is not susceptible of being so construed, the proceedings of the constitutional convention referred to do not indicate that it was so intended, and during the 5 years since its adoption our courts have never so interpreted it. On the contrary, it is well settled in this state that a municipality has only those powers granted to it by statute—

This is where the New Jersey situation comes squarely in line with the Michigan situation with reference to counties and townships as distinguished from the statutory construction rules for cities and villages.

> — albeit by virtue of the constitutional provision here under discussion those powers are to be liberally construed in favor of the municipality and express grants of power are to be deemed to include "those of necessary or fair implication, or incident to the powers expressly conferred, or essential thereto."

This case arose and was decided by the New Jersey supreme court in November of 1952, just 5 years after the constitution, and by that time they were in a position to cite as authority for this point of view 5 previous decisions of the New Jersey supreme court arising out of zoning cases, and this is the place that it gets to the supreme court most rapidly. It would have application to any kind of a grant of power, however.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Ford yield to Delegate Higgs?

MR. FORD: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman and delegates, the citation of this case is some comfort to us, but I always have the feeling that when a section of law, constitutional or statutory, must go to the supreme court of the state in order to be construed, it is hard for me to feel that the language, in the first instance, was plain and clear. In other words, it seems unlikely and illogical to me to adopt verbatim the language from another state which was so unclear that it had to go to the supreme court of that state to be interpreted. We have no particular reason to believe that of necessity our court would reach the same conclusion. I do agree that that decision would undoubtedly carry weight if such an argument occurred before our court. But, can't we do better than that? Can't we adopt language which is plain and clear and will avoid the necessity of going to the supreme court in order to determine it?

I would like to ask if this is not a grant of power, why not strike the words "nor prohibited by"? What do they add to this section? Would you accept such an amendment?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Well, Mr. Higgs, the language actually is a reiteration of part of Dillon's rule, which is a well established and well recognized — nationally recognized — common law rule of statutory construction with respect to the powers of units of government. And what it does is extend this implied powers concept to a unit of government which, by its nature, has no inherent power, but has only such powers as granted to it.

I might point out an example of how this works. There is a case in New Jersey squarely in point with one that I tried about 2 years ago, arising out of an interim zoning ordinance, and the legislature, in authorizing the passing of an interim zoning ordinance, did not specifically say that you could amend an interim zoning ordinance, and the court held that since the township has only such powers as are specifically delegated to it, and you cannot imply that the power to adopt an ordinance carries with it the power to either amend it or to repeal it entirely, unless the legislature says so — held that the amendment was invalid.

Now, in the New Jersey case, where the same set of circumstances occurred after 1947, the court said that the fact that the legislature hadn't expressly said that the power to pass the ordinance carried with it the power to amend it wasn't controlling because of this language in the constitution which said that in addition to the specific words that the legislature uses you must also look at what the legislature intended to do, and that common law rules with respect to statutory construction would ordinarily say that the power to adopt the law carries with it the comparable power to repeal it or to amend it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Ford, I wonder if you can answer the question of what the intention of the committee is. Did the committee intend to grant powers not prohibited by this constitution?

MR. FORD: No. It is the intention, the clear cut intention, of the committee that this section, in and of itself shall grant no powers; that this is merely a rule of construction to guide the court in construing either statutes or provisions of this constitution when a question comes up as to whether or not a municipality can do a certain thing.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford yields to Delegate Brown from Schoolcraft.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I had prepared an amendment which treated the language a little differently than has been done here. However, I would like to point out to the others who might have an amendment, and to Mr. Higgs, that I feel that the language which has presently been used by the committee adequately disposes of the problem. I think that we should put on record, however, the intent as has been expressed by Mr. Ford that we contemplate a judicial interpretation of this section comparable to that provided by the New Jersey courts, since our language is, in substance, identical as related to counties and townships as their language in the New Jersey constitution.

As I said before, the language could be changed somewhat, but I think it is adequate. I think we should move on to something else. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford yields to Delegate Norris from Detroit.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, Delegate Ford, I would like to ask this question, if I may. There is a judicial axiom that there shall be greater latitude in construing a measure of the constitution than a statutory measure. Is it the intent of the committee in this instance, by this specific provision, to state that as regards townships and the powers enumerated there, there shall be greater latitude in constitutional construction in relation to townships as against any other provision of the constitution? In other words, are you saying here that here you have a document of some 10 or 11 articles with all the sections, and that as far as a liberal construction is involved, with reference to accomplishing the purposes of the constitution because that can't be readily changed, that this is the only place it shall be liberally construed?

MR. FORD: No. I think what we have to do is separate—this is not a general doctrine of liberal construction. It is liberal construction of statutes conferring particular powers upon counties and townships. And one more thing I shouldn't overlook. The last part refers specifically to counties and townships, but the first sentence says that laws pertaining to all municipal corporations shall be liberally construed, and this means school districts with respect to examining the procedures they follow in adopting a bond issue; it means building authorities; it means any kind of a municipal corporation as that term shall be defined by the legislature and by the courts from time to time.

Now, it doesn't mean that when you say liberal construction, Mr. Norris, that we should liberally construe in favor of a particular unit of government its sections to the detriment of others. We have this concept already by reason of the home rule concept with respect to cities and villages. Without going to home rule, the only way that you can take a zoning ordinance from a township or a civil service enactment for policemen and firemen in a township into court and play by the same rules as you would if you were taking it in for a city is to have this kind of language.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford yields to the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I hate to disagree with the esteemed and distinguished attorney from Taylor township, and outstanding young man of the year, but Delegate Lundgren and I had a conference a moment ago, and we have a question to ask and a statement to make. Will you give us the legal definition of the word "liberally"?

MR. FORD: Well, I think I may be able to. When a lawyer is talking about liberal construction of a statute, you get into this area. There are statutes that are adopted that are in derogation of the common law, for example.

MR. MARSHALL: I think that answers it, Delegate Ford. Now, a brief statement. Delegate Lundgren and I have decided we don't want to speak against this amendment, but we do object to the word "liberal" being used in the constitution; and, among other reasons, it might be construed as being too restrictive.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford yields to the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I have some very serious doubts about the advisability of this whole section in the constitution. It has been very ably pointed out by Delegate Ford that this is not a rule of law, it is a rule of construction, which is to be frozen into the constitution to affect every and any law of the state which relates to municipalities, or to cities—or, rather, to townships and to counties. He also states that this reverses a trend which rests upon the rule called Dillon's rule, which traditionally strictly construes such statutes, and what this requires is that if there is doubt as to whether or not a city, a village, a township or a county has power under one of these statutes the court is constrained to hold that it does not have that power, and then the city or the village or the unit has to go to the legislature and get the law amended.

This would reverse that, and while it is but a rule of construction, I think you can see that the practical effect would be to extend the powers of these units of government into a presently unknown area; because for years, assuming that Dillon's rule has been the case, it certainly is proper to surmise that the legislature has been passing laws empowering the various bodies of our units of our state government to exercise powers, and they have been passing these laws with the understanding that they would be strictly construed.

Now, I question whether or not we really know the problems which we may be opening the door to if we freeze a rule of construction of this kind into the state constitution. A hard case was pointed out where a court held that the power to pass an ordinance did not carry with it the power to amend that ordinance. However, I imagine there may be many other cases which would come up which should be stricken down on the basis that the language in the statute did not expressly confer the power upon the local unit of government to act as it did.

It seems to me that in addition to causing these problems, this language might also call into question cases which have already been settled and established under this so called Dillon's rule of construction, and the law that may have been settled for years under our city acts or our village acts or our township or county acts may now be subject to litigation in the courts again, and that this might breed a great deal of litigation in our courts.

I am also concerned as to one other aspect of this section. Often in statutes today the legislature will include a section saying, "This statute shall be liberally construed in favor of the purposes for which it is enacted," and of course that can be done at any time by the legislature on any of these county or township or city or village empowering acts. But I wonder if some time that the legislature might not want to add or perhaps has added a section saying rather, "This statute shall be strictly construed." It seems to me under the language we are putting into the constitution the legislature could never constitutionally add a section saying this statute shall be strictly construed. So I think that is an additional reason why we should very carefully question whether or not this entire section, a rule of construction for the courts, should be frozen into our constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I think there is now a rule of law for strict construction in some areas. Any statute that is on its face or in its purpose in derogation of the common law, comes under a rule of construction which says it must be strictly construed. Every "t" has to be crossed and every "I" has to be dotted. There is another whole area of powers that are involved in this, and that is any statute conferring a police power, such as the power to adopt a zoning ordinance, a building code, a plumbing code, a heating code, electrical codes—these are all exercises of the police power, and any ordinance conferring this kind of a power is subject to the statutory construction or strict construction.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford yields to the gentleman from St. Louis, Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I don't know if it is quite in point with the matter before us, but I have a little notice here: At rest. Quiet. Do not disturb. It was on Delegate Faxon's desk. Of course, as a lawyer, coming back to the proposal, I shouldn't object to this because I can envision a whole line of supreme court decisions, and I am reminded of what Justice Dethmers told us at the Kellogg center, "Write it in simple language so there can't be any misunderstanding or misinterpretation."

In this particular matter before us, it refers and sets down the same rules applying to cities under the constitution or by law, and then it sets up a different yardstick for determining townships and counties for constitutions, by constitutional laws, and as far as the Massachusetts decision, I am sure, Mr. Ford, that you have no guarantee that the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan will follow the interpretation of the courts of Massachusetts.

Now, I haven't yet heard the explanation by you as a lawyer, the legal definition of what the difference is between the words "liberally construed" as relates to cities, and "fairly implied" as relates to counties and townships. Would you like to advise us of that?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Are you asking what it would be if we were to adopt this, or what it is now?

MR. HOXIE: I am merely asking a question, under the proposal, what is your legal definition as it applies to cities by "liberally construed" and as it applies to counties and townships by "fairly implied". Would you give us a legal definition that would be applicable to those 2 units of government?

MR. FORD: Well, if in attempting to define it you are trying to find a difference, I can't agree with you that there is a difference. It is our intention to come up with a set of rules to play baseball in the supreme court so that you play it with the same rules, whether you come from a township with a township matter or a county with a county matter, or you come from a city. This is all we are trying to do. We are not trying to give one preference over another. We are trying to get a uniform approach to the interpretation of statutes conferring powers on units of local government. Let me say again: this applies to school districts and any other municipal corporation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford yields to the delegate from Pontiac, Delegate King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I have serious reservations about this type of provision in the constitution. Mr. Ford is asking us to adopt a rule of construction in the constitution. Mr. Brown has even gone further than that. He has asked us to adopt the decision of the Supreme Court of New Jersey construing the rule of construction. I think we are treading on awfully dangerous ground. I personally think that the flexibility required of any fundamental document, state or national, is inherent in the power of the courts to so construe these statements and these principles that we are supposed to be writing. I think that this has no place in the Constitution of the state of Michigan, and I personally think that we are treading on awfully thin ice, and perhaps when we break through, we are going to get in way over our heads. I don't think there is anyone in this room who can predict the far reaching implications of writing a rule of construction into the constitution, and therefore I would have to oppose it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Well, it seems as though this is the time for us to become imaginative and forward looking, but let me say this: I think, Mr. King, if you would take the time to glance at these cases, you will find that the question of construction is disposed of very clearly and very succinctly, and the reason that this found itself in the supreme court so frequently was this. In one instance they upheld a zoning ordinance which zoned an area and provided for a square foot requirement, a minimum square foot requirement in residential buildings. Now, the Michigan supreme court has held that you can't do this, you see. They have held this with respect to townships. I don't know of any case that has gone up with respect to cities on this. The provision was used again on a lot area and lot size provision to sustain a lot size provision in one instance in a rural township of 5 acre minimum sized plots, and they held in New Jersey, which is a heavily populated state, that this was reasonable.

The statute is mentioned in these cases simply because you go back to the court with a long line of decisions that take you up to a certain point and say, now we have to stop here because our hands are tied; and the townships have gone back into the court in New Jersey and made new law by saying, now, look, your hands are no longer tied; we play with the same rule as Dillon's rule as applied throughout the country.

Dillon's rule did not apply in the state of New Jersey before this was adopted, and Dillon's rule in its entirety does not apply in Michigan with respect to townships and counties, and the reason it doesn't is because townships and counties are constitutionally created entities and you will notice the way we have created them here they have no inherent power whatsoever. They are presumed to have absolutely no inherent powers. They have only the powers that are specifically designated to them. They will continue, after this section is adopted, if it is adopted, to have only the powers specifically designated; except that you won't have a gasoline station next door to a church because somebody found a technical defect in the way the legislature drew the language of a particular section of the township rural zoning act now, which goes into pages and pages and pages.

If you examine the enabling statute for cities and the one for townships, you will find that the cities operate under a statute that occupies a half dozen pages, while the township rural zoning act is amended in almost every session of the legislature to patch up some little hole that they find. Every time somebody tries a lawsuit they find something wrong with the language, and this is brought about because of this rule on strict construction. We now have a statute covering zoning in townships that is very long and involved and very difficult to follow.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Ford yield to Delegate King? Delegate King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman and Delegate Ford, I appreciate Dillon's rule of construction, and I am not opposed to it. I think that when we are talking about federal and state powers, that one rule of construction ought to apply, because there are inherent powers in those bodies. But when you take this power and diffuse it down to the local level, it seems to me perfectly reasonable that different rules of construction would apply. I personally think that they ought to. I see nothing wrong with the present construction. I am not a township attorney. I recognize that if I were a township attorney, perhaps I would feel differently about it. Maybe I am a plaintiff's attorney, and maybe we ought to have a rule in the constitution which will liberally construe the law with respect to the cases of plaintiffs. I don't really think it is a fit subject for constitutional deliberation and insertion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Ford yield to the gentleman from Marshall, Delegate Hatch? Delegate Hatch.

MR. HATCH: Mr. Chairman, I would like to direct a question to the Chair, if I may. I would like to know if it would be in order to move that the committee of the whole do not concur in the recommendations of the committee on local government with respect to Committee Proposal 84?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hatch, if you offer an amendment to strike out the entire proposal.

MR. HATCH: Is it necessary to do that?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Yes, sir.

MR. HATCH: All right. I would merely like to state that I am in opposition to the proposal as written.

In the first place, I think that where we say that "these provisions shall be liberally construed," I think it is an admission on our part that we can't say what we mean in the first place. Secondly, I think that by attempting to write rules of construction particularly stating that they will be liberal rules of construction, we are issuing an invitation to judicial legislation.

I can recall some time ago when we were discussing another proposal where the sentiment was set forth that the courts are going too far in writing laws through their judicial interpretation. I think by virtue of this provision we are, in effect, inducing more judicial legislation. Once you reach that hurdle and call it judicial legislation, then if you do not agree with it, or the legislature does not agree with the interpretation placed by the court, how do they change it? They can't change it because they are construing a provision of the constitution.

Now, if this were a statutory provision, a statutory provision saying that our laws concerning townships or counties or cities shall be liberally construed, and the court construed them in a manner considered over liberal, they could then change the statute to say what they mean. But we are dealing here with a constitution, and the legislature could not change a judicial legislation, or interpretation, if you please. So I will prepare an amendment to strike the entire section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hatch, you can move, if you so desire, that when the committee rise, that we rerefer this to the committee, or you can offer an amendment to strike the language of the proposal after the enacting clause. If you wish to submit an amendment, would you please bring it to the rostrum?

Does Delegate Ford wish to yield to the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Tubbs? Delegate Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: Mr. Chairman, as I see it, I am greatly in sympathy with the problems which Bill Ford has mentioned, and there probably are 3 solutions. One would be a liberal home rule act for townships, but that would probably be strictly construed by the supreme court, so it wouldn't do any good. So the second way to cure it is get a new supreme court, and that would probably mean some changes in the judicial branch section of this constitution. The third way, and this is my way, and as an old municipal attorney I will go this way, is to vote with Mr. Ford.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Ford yield to the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen? Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, it hasn't been so often down in local government or here that I found myself on the same side as Mr. Ford, but I do on this one. Let me tell you why. The first thing is that despite what has been said here in opposition to it, because to so many it sounds so new, and it really isn't, the first sentence of this provision was adopted by the state of Alaska. It is taken right out of the Alaskan constitution word for word. I think there they said local units of government instead of municipal corporations, but it means the same thing. This was heralded as one of the fine and good and, in fact, almost the best constitution written in the United States. The second point is that the same problem was encountered in New Jersey, and New Jersey did the same thing. The language in New Jersey was different, but the political units and the powers of government there are different, and so it wouldn't apply. But the spirit of the New Jersey action, when New Jersey revised its constitution, is the same as we are doing here.

Personally, even though I have always been on the city side of things, I have learned that the townships and the counties have a serious problem when it comes to matters of judicial construction, and most legal authorities who have studied this matter have felt that the legal construction rules should be loosened up a bit, and the best language that constitutional lawyers have found to do it is the language in this committee recommendation. Now, I think we ought to not forget one other thing. We all decry the trend toward central government, and we all say: let's make our local units of government stronger. Now, this is what we are trying to do here. This isn't a grant of power, but it is of assistance, and now when we get right to it I sense the feeling: well, let's not do it. Well, now, we can't have both. I think we have got to work in the direction of strengthening our local units, and on the township and county level here is one place, among others, where we can do it.

There is nothing dangerous about this language. Alaska did it, New Jersey did it, and it has been recommended in New York. We have some precedent for it. I think that we would be going in the right direction if we go ahead here, and we will do something for our local units of government, and we won't be going too far.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Ford yield to the gentleman from Stanton, Delegate Brake? Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I am very strong for this proposal. Our townships and counties have been seriously handicapped by the strict construction of statutes granting them the powers that we have had from our courts.

Saying to Mr. Hatch: I tried to get done in the legislature exactly what you suggested. We have a whole string of rules of construction in the statutes established by the legislature, but the research bureau over there stopped me. They said we had to have a constitutional change. I don't know why. I never was able to follow their reasoning. But, anyhow, I couldn't get anywhere. This would take us somewhere, and the only place we want to go is to be in the same status as the home rule cities.

Let me just give you an illustration. Every session of the legislature we have 12 to 15 bills just putting in some little detail that somebody forgot before, but that the township can't do unless you can open the books and find the place that says you can do it. We have no township roads any more, but a few years ago the legislature felt that the township still ought to be able to build a sidewalk, even though they are not township roads. So they passed an act saying the township could build sidewalks. The first winter they found that the snow fell on the sidewalks the same as on the city sidewalks. So they had to come back and get a legislative act authorizing the township to take the snow off the sidewalks. The next year they found that a kid might get run over in a township just the same as in the city. So they had to come back and expressly get authority from the legislature for the township to build that sidewalk up over the road; an overpass, in other words. You wouldn't get that kind of foolishness in connection with the cities. You do get it in connection with townships. It is a serious handicap.

That same thing is true in the counties. The question came up the other day: suppose we fix millage for the counties so they would have more than they really needed in money; could they turn it over to the schools? No. Why? Not because it wouldn't be proper procedure but because the legislature hasn't said in just so many words you can do it.

All we are asking is a rule of construction that is on the same basis as your home rule city so we don't have to go back to the legislature session after session to get these little details. We haven't done very much for townships in this constitutional convention—some little improvements—and this would be a real improvement if we can get this written into the constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Ford yield to the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger? Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I am not quite sure what was meant by Delegate Brake when he said this had to be in the constitution. It would seem to me that the legislature could at any time amend this act, or any of the acts granting powers to local units of government, saying that this act shall be liberally construed in favor of them, and that they have all powers which may be fairly implied from the powers expressly granted herein. Inasmuch as these local units of government get their entire power and authority from this legislative act, I fail to see why this would not be fully effective.

Now, the second point I would like to make is, I think, one which the discussion points up. The legislature evidently has not done this. In fact, there is a nationally recognized rule which has resulted in the opposite trend in construction. This indicates to me that nationwide experience, with the exception of 2 states which have been mentioned, is that it is better to have the local units of government go back to the legislature and have the amendment passed to give them the authority, rather than it is to let the legislature set out in general language what they may do and let the units of government then take the ball and run in any direction they desire from there.

I would like to close on this point by emphasizing that this rule of construction does not only apply to laws enacted after this constitution may be adopted, it also very clearly applies to all of the laws which are now in force granting powers to local units of government. These laws were obviously passed by a legislature under the impression that those laws would be strictly construed, with perhaps a couple of exceptions in a couple of areas that Delegate Ford pointed out, and I therefore suggest, although I do not claim to be an expert in the area of the law on municipal corporations, that putting this rule of construction into the constitution, while it may indeed solve some problems and help local governments in some areas, it may, in addition, be opening a Pandora's box of evils which in the long run would be far greater than the benefits conferred.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Ford yield to the gentleman from Bay City, Delegate Higgs, for the purpose of making an amendment?

MR. FORD: I would like to make one observation before yielding, and that is that one of the most famous judges of our supreme court of all time, and one of the most famous writers of law in this state, Mr. Justice Thomas Cooley, listened to the argument that Mr. Wanger just gave in 1871 and adopted a rule that repudiates this for the state of Michigan. With respect to the home rule concept, the state of Michigan does not follow the trend, hasn't since 1871, and didn't in the 1908 convention, of getting away from inherent local government powers. The trend has been toward strengthening inherent local government powers, and Mr. Justice Cooley is given credit for being one of the men who led the judiciary of this state in that direction. All we are trying to do now is permit our judiciary to continue in that direction.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I had hoped that I might possibly bring this up in the style and drafting committee. I consulted with the chairman of the committee and he suggested that we proceed with the amendment, nevertheless, inasmuch as it does go to substance and probably not form. I think possibly there may be a middle ground here.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: May the Chair suggest, Delegate Higgs, that the secretary read your amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Higgs has offered the following amendment to Committee Proposal 84:

1. Amend page 1, line 12, after "implied" by striking out "and not inconsistent with nor prohibited by this constitution".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: When I asked Delegate Ford if it was the intention of the committee to grant powers to counties and townships not prohibited by this constitution, he said no. And if that is the intention of the committee, then I assume it would be the same intention that he would not intend to grant powers other than those expressly granted or fairly implied.

I am not an expert in this field, either. I am sympathetic with the arguments raised, and I am sure that the experience of Delegate Brake and Delegate Allen are more extensive than mine in this area, but I do think that the language should say what we mean. If we add these words "and not inconsistent with nor prohibited by this constitution," it seems to me, as a matter of grammar, that we are granting powers not inconsistent with nor prohibited by this constitution. That is a little broader than I think I want to go.

I am open to argument and persuasion, but it seems to me that that is the Pandora's box. I don't quarrel with a liberal construction, and I would like to hear from other delegates on this point.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: I am sorry. I want to speak on the whole proposition, not just this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Judd yields to the gentleman from Schoolcraft, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Higgs, I am quite sure, insofar as my endorsement of the proposal goes, I would be happy to support the Higgs amendment for the striking of these last words, and I am quite sure that Mr. Ford would agree to the amendment of the committee proposal to that extent.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I would like to say that I would very happily endorse it, but I think you are going to be unhappy later when you find out what you are doing. I wouldn't have had the nerve to do what Mr. Higgs has just done, and I am a strong advocate of broadening these powers.

This does not do what you think it will do, Mr. Higgs. You are taking out the qualifying language; you would leave the door open for the court to imply anything it pleased with respect to a statute. We don't intend that at all. We want it to imply only the things that can properly be implied as restricted by the law.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: What Mr. Ford has said, I will agree with. I think that where Mr. Higgs possibly feels that his amendment is important is that he is applying it to all of the language of the paragraph, when really, I believe that the interpretation of the committee, of Mr. Ford and of myself is that, really, the "fairly implied" portion of it is to be that there shall not be a construction which is inconsistent with or prohibited by the constitution. In other words that by implication this may not be done.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the author of the amendment, Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Well, Mr. Chairman, Delegate Brown, I think you went right to the point of what was bothering me. If this is merely a matter of style and form it could be taken up in the style and drafting committee. It might be that we could include the words "expressly granted or fairly implied which are not," which might be the proper way to do that. But if you were to appear before that committee, unless there is someone who feels that this should be pursued, I would withdraw my amendment and take it up in style and drafting.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Higgs withdraws his amendment. Are there any amendments to Committee Proposal 84? The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: I would like to speak to the proposal as a whole, if a layman dares to venture on this thin ice that really belongs to lawyers. But I was interested in the formulation of this in the local government committee, and I went into the matter somewhat.

Mr. Tubbs brought up the question of other possible remedies, particularly for townships and counties. I would like to say that the original proposal included cities, or at least municipal corporations, in the last sentence, and the municipal league was quite concerned that these words used in the last sentence describing the construction desired might even be narrowing with respect to the court construction that the cities have had through the years in Michigan. Construction in Michigan, I understand, has been very much more liberal than it has been in New York state and in New Jersey, where they have proposed this provision.

With respect to counties and townships, it would seem to me that as the townships become more and more urban, and therefore more concerned over this narrow construction, their remedy can be not only becoming a charter township with more liberal interpretation as a municipal corporation, but also can incorporate as cities and benefit by this more liberal court interpretation. The same might well become true with home rule counties when they receive charters. So I would think that the problem of townships and counties, which are still in areas where the need for liberal interpretation is not so great, could best get their solutions out of later incorporation under a charter.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: The only thing that I can say to that is that to follow Mrs. Judd's reasoning, there should be no zoning and no planning and no police power, or any of the other powers conferred upon townships until they become a city, and I submit that the bad law that is being made in this state from time to time in zoning is not being made by the cities; but I thought Glenn Allen was going to touch on this.

The municipal attorneys in this state for a long time have been concerned with helping small townships — not the larger ones with attorneys available all the time, but some of the small townships that have not put up a vigorous fight to try their cases when they get to the supreme court, because when the law is made on a question of zoning, the city sometimes finds itself stuck with dictum in a township zoning case that hurts everybody, whether they are in a city or not, and the problems that arise out of this one field of zoning, the bad mistakes that are made in the development of a community don't occur after the community is built up and you have a city, they occur when it is just building up, when they start moving the trailer courts and the junkyards and the slaughter houses and what have you into the fringes around the city, and there has to be a way to control them.

In our particular area, for example, we had a whole rash of litigation involving bulk oil storage tanks, and I don't think anybody who gets into that area would be happy about it. Maybe Glenn recalls, I think we have been, on both the city and the township level, on trailer court cases in the last 10 years probably 20 times in the supreme court, and most of those cases came out of townships, and frequently they have been lost because of technical strict construction, and in losing those cases we have made law that has hurt the control of this type of use in all kinds of municipalities.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Marshall, Delegate Hatch, for the purpose of offering an amendment to the proposal, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hatch offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1 by striking out all of lines 6 through 13.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Hatch amendment. Delegate Hatch.

MR. HATCH: Mr. Chairman, I have already stated my reason for the amendment. One, I think as far as the constitution is concerned, this provision is an admission that we have not stated what we intend in the other provisions. Secondly, I think it is an inducement to judicial legislation, and, third, with respect to statutes, because this rule of construction applies not only to this constitution but also to any statutes enacted.

I don't see how any delegate can sit here and endorse a liberal construction of all statutes which may be enacted after this constitution, hopefully, is adopted. It would also prohibit the legislature from adopting a statute which they desire to be strictly construed. Therefore I urge support of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Schoolcraft, Delegate Brown, seek recognition on the amendment?

MR. G. E. BROWN: Yes, I do, Mr. Chairman. I think that what Mr. Hatch has said is slightly exaggerated or embellished. The legislature, of course, can grant in expressed terms, if it wants to, a particular power. Any power that it expressly denies certainly is not granted, and certainly from this language you could not fairly imply that a power was granted. It does not, in any way, put the legislature in a straitjacket; but, much to the contrary, in many of these areas that Mr. Ford has talked about, and that I have mentioned, it has been a problem of the legislature being willing, in effect, to have the statute construed in a broader sense, a more liberal sense, if you prefer, and it just hasn't been able to effect this through the courts.

I would also like to say to Mrs. Judd that the problems that I am familiar with do not arise out of the so called urban townships, such as may be the case of Mr. Ford, but rather from the rural townships, but many of these border upon cities with which there are problems of annexation sometimes, where there is a willingness to annex, and oftentimes it creates problems when you don't have planning and you don't have zoning because of the conditions that exist in an area to be annexed. So I don't think it is to the cities' benefit, particularly, to attempt to restrict the townships in a properly ordered planning and arrangement in zoning of township matters.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Delegate King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, I would like to direct a question, if I could, to Mr. Ford which concerns the whole problem, whether we leave this in or take it out. It is almost inseparable, I suppose. Would that be permissible?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, Delegate Ford, I would like to know if you feel that this is the only remedy. I am impressed by the problem that apparently exists here, and I am certainly impressed by what Mr. Brake said, but I can't see why the legislature can't rectify the situation, and I would like to get your thoughts on that particular aspect of the problem.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I might answer that by telling you how I got to this in the first place. We discuss this every time lawyers get together. I belong to the public corporation section of the state bar, and this is one of the problems that comes up there frequently. I am a member of the national institute of municipal law officers and a member of the zoning committee of that organization, and it has come up very frequently in recent years there, and when I was a city attorney it was discussed frequently with respect to this entire question of statutory construction with the municipal league attorneys.

We have a very fine little exposition here by Mr. Fryer of their point of view on this — not on this particular point, but on this question of construction. So I went to the office of NIMLO by correspondence, talked to Charlie Ryan, asked him if he could give me a little help, and he referred me to the chairman of the zoning committee, who happens to be the city attorney for Roseland, New Jersey, and 2 or 3 other small cities around Newark, and townships as well. It was he who presented me with the cases indicating the way that this had been applied, and what really intrigued me was that in New Jersey they had been famous, or infamous, depending on your point of view, for the fact that they had a very narrow construction rule with respect to all kinds of municipalities, including cities.

In 1908 we took care of the cities with the home rule provision, and I am satisfied that short of going to some form of home rule where you get into a concept of inherent powers except as restricted by the legislature, rather than only delegated power, and no power unless there is a delegation of power, that there is no other remedy available to us at this time.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Ford, I would like to continue this and ask you if you do not think it is within the inherent power of the supreme court to reverse this decision?

MR. FORD: No. The supreme court must construe the law not as they see fit but as it evolves over a period of time. With respect to the construction of the statute — let me point out, for example, that we are not talking about statutes necessarily that, say, are passed for townships. For example, the civil service that policemen and firemen have throughout the state and townships is not contained in the township statute at all. What they did was to take the act which passed civil service for the cities and villages and simply added the word "township" to the definition of a municipality for the purpose of that statute, and this has been with regard to the planning act and numerous other things.

Now, where you get into problems is that in drafting that statute, the legislature was aware of the fact that they didn't have to spell every last little step out in the statute for a city because it had this home rule power. But then, when you start to apply this civil service you start running into gaps at the township level and, as Mr. Brake says, the township is constantly running up to the legislature because there is no way and has never been a way devised, and I think we have proved it here, to write a law covering a subject matter that is going to cover all the possible contingencies that might arise. So what you attempt to do is to write a law that will broadly cover the problem and make possible a solution of the contingencies that do arise, and some of them can't be solved except by statutory amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I support the Hatch amendment. The subject of zoning powers has been mentioned so much I want to emphasize that this is only one aspect of the powers of cities, townships and villages and counties in the state, and that while zoning is obviously here to stay, it is, nevertheless, one of the most controversial subjects which you will find in any locality throughout the state as far as the extension of its powers is concerned.

I think it is obvious from the discussion that this section, if added to the constitution under the present laws which we have, would extend the township and other local units zoning powers along with many other powers to, at this time, an unknown extent and I suggest that we would do very well to, instead, leave this power under the control of the present statute, as the legislature may amend them. I also support the Hatch amendment for the reasons which Mr. Hatch himself so very well gave.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Muskegon, Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman, I had hoped to sit here and not say anything after attempting to get a little bit of the discrimination between cities and townships out of this constitution when we were dealing with townships. However, I say to Mr. Wanger and Mr. Hatch, Mr. Ford and Mr. Brake are entirely correct. First, when you go to the legislature and ask for amendments to certain acts, you run into this rule.

Secondly, the legislature attempts to grant to townships certain powers or facilities to do a job by adding the word "township" to the planning act or other acts, and then you run into 2 entirely different constructions from then on. The legislature intends to give them the same general broad powers as the cities and villages have, but when you draft a statute pursuant thereto or attempt to enforce it, after you have got the ordinance enacted, you run into 2 different constructions as you proceed through the courts.

Any person who has spent any time as an attorney for a township or on a township board as a layman recognizes that any ordinance is completely open to the technical argument that there is no specific power, almost to the point of a comma being in the correct place or the "t" being crossed. To put this straitjacket and handicap on township government is to allow the cities to be surrounded by slums and catastrophes which they, I am sure, do not want.

All that this implies is that the same rules of construction apply to township ordinances as apply to city ordinances, and certainly we have had no fiasco with this rule of construction being applied to city ordinances. The bogeyman is not there that some of these men would worry about, and I ask that you, in all fairness to township people, to county people, give them the same rules, the same privileges when they enact an ordinance in the field of public welfare, that you now have in cities and villages. I urge you to defeat the Hatch amendment and adopt the committee proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the Hatch amendment to Committee Proposal 84, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1054.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor — The secretary has just read the amendment. Do you want it read again, Mr. Ford? Are you requesting a division vote? Are you satisfied now? The chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would like to urge the defeat of this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Hatch amendment to Committee Proposal 84. As many as are in favor of the amendment say aye. As many as are opposed, say no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 84?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 84 is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 3 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 85, A proposal to provide that public utilities may use public property with consent of local authorities and a limitation on the length of franchise. Amends article VIII, sections 28 and 29.

Following is Committee Proposal 85 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. No person, partnership, association or corporation operating a public utility shall have the right to the use of the highways, streets, alleys or other public places of any COUNTY, city, village or township for wires, poles, pipes, tracks or conduits, OR OTHER UTILITY FACILITIES without the consent of the duly constituted [authorities] AUTHORITY of [such] THE COUNTY, city, village or township; [nor] OR to transact a local business therein without first obtaining a franchise [therefor] from [such] THE city, village or township. The right of all COUNTIES, cities, villages and townships to the reasonable control of their HIGHWAYS, streets, alleys and public places is hereby reserved to SAID [such] LOCAL UNITS OF GOVERNMENT. [cities, villages and townships.]

Sec. b. No franchise or license shall be granted by any municipality of this state for a longer period than 30 years.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 85:

Sec. a. The committee recommends the insertion of county to the list of local governments which exercise control of public utilities occupying the right of ways of highways, streets, alleys and other public places.

In the 1908 constitution, permission was given counties to establish county road commissions. Previous to this time, all roads were under the jurisdiction of cities, villages and townships. The enabling legislation which established the county road system was act 283 of 1909, and all the counties adopted county road systems by the middle of the 1920s.

Act 130 of public acts of 1931 required that all roads in unincorporated areas be included in the county road system and be under the county's jurisdiction. This authority was continued by act 51 of 1951, as amended.

Since the county road commission has jurisdiction over all the roads outside of the incorporated areas within the county, they should exercise the right of granting permission as to the location of public utilities within the highway or road right of way.

The additional language concerning "other utility facilities" has been added to allow for the possibility of future technological changes in the utilities field. The committee here and elsewhere has been aware of the desirability of writing a constitution that can easily accommodate to the problems of future years.

The committee further recommends and emphasizes that the power of granting franchises for servicing an area be retained by the governing authority, which would be either the city, village or townships.

Sec. b. After considering several alternatives carefully, the committee has concluded that this section should remain unchanged.

Consideration was given to making some changes in order to allow the franchise to continue on a limited perpetuating basis. The need of the private utility to seek renewal of its franchise often seems to be an unnecessary formality and expense and also a disadvantage in the securing of capital. The committee did not find an alternative that would be fair and satisfactory to both the utilities and taxpayers.

It was felt that a franchise time limit of 30 years or approximately 1 generation is fair and has proved to be workable. It was also felt by the committee that the responsibility for and cost of securing a new franchise should be placed with the private utility and not with the electors.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, the last proposal we had before us was purely legal, and as I listened I realized it was only those legal experts that were discussing the point. Now I would like to bring to your attention something that will allow the other 87 experts of the convention to get their teeth back into the subject, because now we are going back into the more purely local government portion of our proposals, and I would like to at this time yield to Mr. Sleder for the discussion of this proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the gentleman from Traverse City, Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: Mr. Chairman, in article VIII of the old constitution, section 28, we inserted the term "counties" in several areas.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

[The supporting reasons to section a were read by Mr. Sleder. For text, see above, page 1055.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 85?

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. G. E. Brown and Ford offer the following amendment to Committee Proposal 85:

1. Amend page 1, line 7, after "corporation" by inserting a comma and "public or private,"; so the language will read, "No person, partnership, association or corporation, public or private, operating a public utility shall have the right to the use of the highways . . . ." and so forth.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Schoolcraft, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, this is a rather insignificant addition to the language, and I think that probably there is no need for debate on it, but I think it would be better to put this in for clarification purposes, though, that it applies to any public utility.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegates Brown and Ford to section a. Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: The committee, relative to the amendment, sees no objection to it. It goes further into detail.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the amendment. Mr. Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: By "corporation," I don't know. I am not a legal attorney or anything. To me they are either public or private. I don't know.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, this looks to me like it is merely an attempt to clarify. This was the intent of the committee, that no corporation, whether public or private, should have the right without the further provision. So I would see no objection to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegates Brown and Ford. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: May I ask the mover of this amendment a question, sir?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. TUBBS: Would this apply to the municipality's own streets?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Well, of course, Mr. Chairman, Mr. Tubbs, this doesn't appear to be a problem in such a situation due to the fact that the same municipality would have the right of consent. I think this is a little bit like a petitioner signing his own petition. He consents to the granting of that petition, I am sure.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the amendment. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 85? If not, it will pass.

Section a, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read section b.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section b.

[Section b was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1055.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Traverse City, Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: I should like to yield to Delegate Madar, a member of the subcommittee on public utilities.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Sleder yields to Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is in Journal 70, on page 441, if you want to follow it:

[The supporting reasons to section b were read by Mr. Madar. For text, see above, page 1055.]

I move the proposal be adopted.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to Committee Proposal 85, section b? If not, the section will pass.

Section b is passed. Are there any amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 85?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Mahinske offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, following line 20, by inserting

"Sec. c. Any county, through its legislative body, shall have the authority to enter, or to intervene in any suit or certificate proceeding involving the service, charge or rate made by any public utility furnishing services or commodities to rate payers within the county.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: Mr. Chairman, this amendment is offered here in this section dealing basically with public utilities and basically with provisions dealing with cities and counties. This amendment would permit the counties, as a county unit, to enter into public utilities suits in the county where they are not users. Currently the counties are limited before the public service commission of the state to appear only as users in the various proceedings there. They are permitted to appear not necessarily as users but as a representative body in front of the federal power commission, which means that in the state the county has no standing other than as a user, but in the federal system the county does have a standing as a political unit.

Now, the counties that I have had contact with here would like to have this provision written into the constitution to bring the procedures both on the federal and the local level into uniform procedure here. The reason why this comes up now is that in 1955 there was a Michigan supreme court case that ruled that the counties as such, other than as a user, did not have standing in these procedures in front of the public service commission, and their argument was based on the fact that as you go back through the articles on local government, or the sections on local government in the constitution, by enumeration the supreme court felt that the counties were excluded from having this standing.

Now, we have just gone through a long argument here of Mr. Ford on Committee Proposal 84 that would call for a liberal construction of this present constitution. Now, this may have cured the situation that we have now in the old constitution, but we don't have it there, and under the strict constitutional construction procedure the supreme court has said that the county does not have standing, although the federal supreme court, the federal court of appeals, will listen to the counties in these areas. Now, I have some further facts, but if there are any questions I would attempt to answer them.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Mahinske yields to the gentleman from Fennville, Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I think maybe by the time the whole explanation was made he had answered my question. I understood him to say the Supreme Court of Michigan had relied upon the constitutional provision to say that counties could not appear as such unless they were users before the public service commission. He also points out that we have just previously passed a proposal which probably will cure the matter.

I am a little bit distressed in my own mind to have it pointed out — to realize that the Supreme Court of Michigan would deny to the legislature, apparently, the power to empower a municipal corporation to appear other than as a user before the public service commission. It seems to me that all the legislature would have to do, since the legislature created the commission, defines its powers and duties and whatnot — certainly the legislature could define who would be a proper party before that commission. I am surprised that the supreme court found something in the constitution to prohibit it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: In reply to Delegate Hutchinson's remarks, I would only add that in this case — I could give him the citation here — the supreme court went down all the way through sections 16, 17, 19, 23, 25, 28 of article VIII, and pointed out that villages and cities were specified in these various sections, and based the decision of their court on the fact that counties were not mentioned as such, and I think that the case went further to say that the legislature could not act in this area, that they practically had been precluded from acting because of the enumeration of certain forms of government here, and a specific absence of the counties as such ever being referred to except as users.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the gentleman yield to the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott?

MR. MAHINSKE: Yes.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Mahinske, this is entirely new language now being suggested as an inclusion in the committee proposal from local government. I am not sure that we have any objections; I am not sure we don't have any objections. Of course, you can't have a meeting on the floor of 27 members. What I would suggest be done — I don't see on the surface any particular objection, but I do think that on something that is entirely new, that the committee should accept the responsibility and have the responsibility of at least some unified discussion, and I would suggest that this particular amendment be laid over until that opportunity is given us.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott, what is your motion?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Not being a parliamentarian, I don't know just exactly what motion I need to do that, but if somebody will be kind enough to give me the language, that is what I would like to do.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You move that Committee Proposal 85 be passed for today?

MR. FORD: Point of order.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Maybe it is a parliamentary inquiry. I am sorry. Would it be in order to move to refer this to our committee? I think there is another matter, Mr. Elliott, we discussed; that perhaps we could discuss this annexation thing, because we are going to meet the same problem when we get to that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford, we have reached the deadline for reporting out proposals from committee. If we rerefer the committee proposal to the committee on local government, there is a question whether we can report it out again.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: How can we get a chance to — well, can we pass over this to a time certain if I so move?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Yes, sir.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I will move that we pass over this until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott moves that Committee Proposal 85 be passed over until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow.

MR. MAHINSKE: I have no objection to this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

The secretary will read Committee Proposal 86.

SECRETARY CHASE: From the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 86, A proposal pertaining to highways and their maintenance. Amends article VIII, sections 26 and 27.

Following is Committee Proposal 86 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The legislature may by general law provide for the laying out, construction, improvement and maintenance of highways, bridges, and culverts by the state and by the counties and townships thereof; [and by road districts;] and may authorize counties [or districts] to take charge and control of any highway within their limits for such purposes. The legislature may also by general law prescribe the powers and duties of boards of supervisors in relation to highways, bridges, and culverts; may provide for county [and district] road commissioners to be appointed or elected, with such powers and duties as may be prescribed by law,[; and may change and abolish the powers and duties of township commissioners and overseers of highways. The legislature may provide by law for submitting the question of adopting the county road system to the electors of the counties, and such road system shall not go into operation in any county until approved by a majority of the electors thereof voting thereon.] The tax raised for road purposes by counties shall not exceed in any 1 year $5.00 upon each $1,000 of assessed valuation for the preceding year.

Sec. b. The legislature shall not vacate nor alter any road, STREET, ALLEY, OR PUBLIC GROUND laid out by [commissioners of highways, or any street, alley or public ground in] any COUNTY, TOWNSHIP, city or village or in any recorded [town] plat.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 86:

Sec. a. This is section 26 of the present constitution adjusted to the present highway system. Road districts, as separate identities, are no longer needed. County road systems have been adopted in all counties. Therefore, the words and sentences referring to these matters have been deleted.

Reference to township commissioners is deleted to conform with the recommendations of the committee, as section 18, article VIII of the present constitution, the office of overseer of highways, is obsolete with the elimination of the road district system.

Sec. b. This section has been changed in order to delete reference to the commissioners of highways to make the section conform to the recommendations of the committee concerning section 18, article VIII of the present constitution. The reference to counties and townships is added to that of cities and villages so as to provide complete local control over public ways and public grounds.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, before yielding to the gentleman of our committee who will handle this, I would like to pay a special compliment to him as I did to our other vice chairman when he had an opportunity to present certain proposals to the floor. Mr. Figy has been extremely valuable to me as chairman, in serving in his capacity as vice chairman of this local government committee. Both he and Mr. Buback have been extremely loyal and as anxious as I to present to you as complete and accurate a picture of our proceedings as possible. And I would like at this time to yield to one of the vice chairmen of the committee on local government, Mr. Figy.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the gentleman from Morenci, Mr. Figy, for the committee explanation.

MR. FIGY: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, and first I want to thank the chairman of our committee, and notify him

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

I'm a little short of grocery money for the rest of the week. I will be seeing him later.

[The supporting reasons to section a were read by Mr. Figy. For text, see above, page 1057.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 86? If not, the secretary will read section b.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section b,

[Section b was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1057.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Figy.

MR. FIGY: Thank you.

[The supporting reasons to section b were read by Mr. Figy. For text, see above, page 1057.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ypsilanti, Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: I have a question just because I happen to have been involved in such a matter, and I heard reference to eliminating reference to townships and highways or streets, which I agree with. However, it was determined in one case that the townships still retain title in the streets, and I am wondering if anything that is done here is going to affect that situation. In the specific case, a city, because the highways had been taken over by the county, was authorized to extend its sewer and water lines out into the township, and for some reason the court saw fit to enjoin it, to stop it, because the title to those roads, although they are administered by that county, still remains in the township.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Lawrence yields to Delegate Figy.

MR. FIGY: I think that is covered in another section, that matter of township control over certain roads in those townships. I would have to look it up. Yes, it is covered in another place.

MR. LAWRENCE: I just wanted to be sure.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 86? Are there any amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 86? Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mr. Figy, or somebody on the committee, to tell me what the rationale was in leaving the last sentence of section a in the constitution; that is, lines 21 through 23 on page 1, "The tax raised for road purposes by counties shall not exceed in any 1 year $5.00 upon each $1,000 of assessed valuation for the preceding year"? Specifically I would like to ask why it is thought necessary to write such a restriction as this in the constitution rather than leaving it to the legislature?

MR. FIGY: It is in the constitution now. I think we just didn't see fit to take it out. It is not new language.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, in answer, I would agree with the gentleman that it is in the constitution now, but this was written back in a day when there seemed to be some property tax available for such things. Obviously there isn't now in any kind of a 15 mill system.

I understand what we did the other day to the 15 mills but, nevertheless, it would seem to me as though a matter of detail like this is something that could most properly be left to statute, to limit the power of counties to tax for one thing and another, and not to freeze it into the constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Figy.

MR. FIGY: I don't know the answer.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Figy yields to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Vice President Hutchinson, this was given some consideration in our committee, as to whether or not to eliminate this last sentence, and it was felt that this limitation upon the counties as to the amount of taxes which they could raise for road purposes was reasonable and proper for constitutional language. This was discussed not officially but unofficially with the finance and taxation committee, and we were fortunate enough to have the chairman of that committee on our committee, and as a result of comments made in the committee in our discussion, it was determined that we would leave this language in.

We recognize the problem in that by doing this we are freezing in a certain rate for probably a considerable length of time and on that particular issue we were somewhat reluctant but it seemed, in weighing both sides of the issue, that this was the wiser procedure.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, in answer to that explanation, I appreciate the explanation, but I wish that some statement had been made as to the reasons which led you to the conclusion. You said that after discussion and so on you thought it was best to leave it, but I haven't heard any compelling argument in support of leaving it yet.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Grand Haven, Delegate Stafseth.

MR. STAFSETH: Mr. Hutchinson, I think maybe I can clarify it some. Actually today, in the current legislative enactment that the county roads operate under, we get a return of the gas and weight tax, and the legislature says that if any additional funds are needed they will have to come locally.

Now, with this 5 mill limitation they also have a statutory provision that parallels this and restricts it. I can't remember exactly how it goes, but in the sparsely populated counties you can go up to 5 mills and it graduates itself down until it gets to the county of Wayne, where they can only raise 1 mill.

In all the highway legislation that we have had for local roads in both cities and counties, in this case the counties, they have still left in this ability to take care of the roads at the local level. So, it is being done. There are counties within the state that are appropriating part of the money from the board of supervisors for the benefit of the roads. In our particular county they have appropriated from $175,000 down to $50,000. With this in here there certainly wouldn't be any conflict. I don't know whether it will go up to as high a level as it did back when this originally went in, but it may.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mr. Stafseth if in view of the experiences of these latter years, where in some cases it has been held that the words "assessed valuation" mean assessed valuation as equalized, state equalized, would you so interpret this, that this $5 on $1,000 of assessed valuation is upon state equalized valuation?

MR. STAFSETH: Yes, I would assume that would be the case. I agree with you, with the 15 mill being used up pretty much it is going to be very difficult, but it may change.

MR. HUTCHINSON: That is all, thank you. I yield the floor.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Figy.

MR. FIGY: Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Brake has had this under consideration, too. Do you want to comment on this, Hale?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Figy yields to the gentleman from Stanton, Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: I think, Mr. Figy and Senator Hutchinson, that when this was put in, of course, the 15 mill limitation was not contemplated at all. It is one of several restrictions on county spending. Another one will be included when we get to it in an exclusion report; a restriction which says the county may only raise 1/10 of a mill a year for capital outlay, and may only borrow a same amount for like purposes. Those were restrictions put in before we had the 15 mill limitation. They would not have been necessary while we had the 15 mill limitation. I would like to suggest a premonition on the part of the local government committee of what you were going to do here on the floor with the 15 mill limitation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to Committee Proposal 86? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 86 is passed.

The secretary will read Committee Proposal 87.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 5 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 87, A proposal relating to ports and port districts. Retains section 30 of article VIII unchanged.

Following is Committee Proposal 87 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The legislature may provide for the incorporation of ports and port districts, and confer power and authority upon them to engage in work of internal improvements in connection therewith.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 87:

Sec. a. The committee recommends that article VIII, section 30, be retained as it is in the present constitution. A suggestion is made, however, to the committee on style and drafting that it consider whether this section should not be made a subsection of article X, section 14.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. Elliott: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to Mr. Batchelor.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Batchelor.

MR. BATCHELOR: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I have 2 ears, 2 eyes, but only 1 mouth so this should be short. This will be found in Journal 71, on page 461, and is known as article VIII, section 30.

The legislature did not provide for this — the constitution did not provide for this. It did not appear in the 1835 or 1850 constitution, but was added by an amendment as a new section at the April, 1923 election. There have been no significant court decisions. The provision itself does not appear to have created any problems which may have been encountered by port districts in Michigan. The constitutional grant of authority to the legislature is comprehensive.

[The supporting reasons were read by Mr. Batchelor. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 87? Are there any amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 87? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 87 is passed.

The secretary will read Committee Proposal 88.

SECRETARY CHASE: From the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 88, A proposal pertaining to metropolitan areas. Amends article VIII.

Following is Committee Proposal 88 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. THE LEGISLATURE SHALL HAVE POWER TO ESTABLISH IN METROPOLITAN AREAS SUCH ADDITIONAL FORMS OF GOVERMENT OR AUTHORITIES WITH SUCH POWERS, DUTIES AND JURISDICTIONS AS THE LEGISLATURE SHALL DEEM NECESSARY.

WHEREVER POSSIBLE, SAID ADDITIONAL FORMS OF GOVERNMENT OR AUTHORITIES SHALL BE DESIGNED TO PERFORM MULTIPURPOSE FUNCTIONS RATHER THAN A SINGLE FUNCTION.

Sec. b. THE LEGISLATURE SHALL PROVIDE BY GENERAL LAW FOR THE EXERCISE OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT BY 2 OR MORE COUNTIES, CITIES, VILLAGES, TOWNSHIPS OR DISTRICTS, OR ANY COMBINATION OF 2 OR MORE OF SUCH UNITS OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT. UNDER SUCH GENERAL LAW SUCH UNITS OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT SHALL HAVE POWER:

(1) TO ENTER INTO CONTRACTUAL UNDERTAKINGS OR AGREEMENTS WITH ONE ANOTHER OR WITH THE STATE OR WITH ANY COMBINATION THEREOF FOR THE JOINT ADMINISTRATION OF ANY OF THE FUNCTIONS OR POWERS WHICH EACH LOCAL UNIT OF GOVERNMENT WOULD HAVE THE POWER TO PERFORM SEPARATELY;

(2) TO SHARE THE COSTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF FUNCTIONS AND SERVICES WITH ONE ANOTHER OR WITH THE STATE OR WITH ANY COMBINATION THEREOF WHICH EACH LOCAL UNIT OF GOVERNMENT WOULD HAVE THE POWER TO PERFORM SEPARATELY;

(3) TO TRANSFER TO EACH LOCAL UNIT OF GOVERNMENT OR COMBINATION THEREOF FUNCTIONS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OR BOTH UPON THE CONSENT OF EACH UNIT OF GOVERNMENT INVOLVED;

(4) JOINTLY TO COOPERATE WITH ONE ANOTHER AND WITH STATE GOVERNMENT AND INTERGOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES;

(5) TO LEND THEIR CREDIT IN A MANNER PRESCRIBED BY LAW IN CONNECTION WITH ANY PUBLICLY OWNED UNDERTAKING AUTHORIZED HEREIN.

ANY OTHER PROVISION OF THIS CONSTITUTION NOTWITHSTANDING, AN OFFICER OR EMPLOYEE OF ANY OF SAID UNITS OF GOVERNMENT OR SUBDIVISION OR AGENCY THEREOF MAY SERVE ON OR WITH ANY GOVERNMENTAL BODY ESTABLISHED FOR THE ABOVE PURPOSES AND SHALL NOT BE REQUIRED TO RELINQUISH HIS OFFICE OR EMPLOYMENT BY REASON OF SUCH SERVICE.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 88:

Sec. a. This section is designed to replace existing section 31 which has been deleted. Section 31 has rarely been used, omits the county, is too complicated, and serves very little purpose. A number of specific forms for metropolitan government were proposed to the committee but each suffered the defect of being too specific. Rather than attempt to write into the constitution a definite plan for metropolitan government, the committee believed this section should be left broad and flexible. Therefore, the committee recommends that the legislature be permitted from time to time to establish such form or forms of metropolitan government as would best serve the purpose then existing. This committee was impressed with the fact that while there has been considerable discussion about metropolitan governmental problems, opinion has not yet jelled as to their solution. The committee recommends against the solution of each problem of government through the creation of a separate new governmental body. Therefore, the last sentence advises that when the legislature establishes a new unit of government for the solution of metropolitan problems, it should be established with sufficient jurisdiction and power to handle multipurpose functions rather than for single purpose. It is intended that this will prevent the creation of a number of separate governmental units, each serving one purpose only. While no specific mention is made of the fact, the committee was of the opinion that the county with its all inclusive jurisdiction was probably the most effective instrument through which to establish any new metropolitan form of government.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

Sec. b. This section is designed to encourage the solution of metropolitan problems through existing units of government rather than creating a fourth layer of local government. Any combination of townships, cities, villages or counties are permitted under general law to join together through (a) contractual agreements to perform any function which each could separately perform, (b) share costs with one another or with the state, (c) transfer functions, (d) cooperate, and (e) lend credit in connection with any publicly owned undertaking. All of the powers given are by mutual agreement and consent of the local units of government involved and no local unit is forced or compelled to enter into any agreement without its consent. The powers granted are not self executing but require an act of the legislature which from time to time may add additional authority or may limit the same to prevent abuses. Thus flexibility and control is maintained. The last sentence of the section permits elected officials of counties, cities or townships of the state to serve on any board or governmental body without being forced to resign his elected position or being in conflict with the prohibitions of section 6 of article V of the present constitution.

Whether such arrangements can meet the needs of metropolitan districts will depend upon the powers and strength of each and every unit within the district.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to the subcommittee chairman of metropolitan government and intergovernmental relations, Mr. Allen.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, this proposal and its comments will be found on pages 461 and 462 of the journal. Your subcommittee was composed of Mr. Brake, Mr. Sharpe, Mrs. Cushman and myself. Just very briefly before I turn the first section over to Mrs. Cushman for further explanation: metropolitan government, briefly, is a government which exists in densely populated areas, where there are many political subdivisions. We have about 10 areas classified in Michigan as being metropolitan areas.

Now, there is no one solution to the metropolitan governmental problem. There are many solutions, and some of them we have already gone through. For example, one solution is to strengthen your local units of government, and this in preceding sections your full committee has attempted to do. Another solution is to strengthen and free up your large unit of government, which is your county, and this will come later when we hit the problem of so called county home rule. Another solution is to permit freedom of action between the various political subdivisions in the state — that is the long part of this proposal, which will be explained in more detail — so as to allow them to freely work with one another rather than to be restricted. Another solution is to free up the state so as to take out anything that clutters up the power of the state to move in if state moving in appears to be necessary.

This is the reason why we are suggesting that the old section, section 31, be taken out. It all boils down to this: that metropolitan government is not what so many people think it is only, and that is a super government or a fourth layer of government which exists in addition to the city-township-county level of government which we have today. It may be necessary for the legislature to authorize such types of special corporations or districts, but it is a lot more than that. And with these comments, because I think that what we have already done, plus what we have here, is a genuine attempt to handle this problem of government in densely populated areas where there are many governmental units, I think collectively taken we have gone a long way to free up the legislature and the local units so that the problem can be better handled than it is under the 1908 constitution. I will call on Mrs. Cushman for an explanation of section a.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Before the Chair calls on Mrs. Cushman, may the Chair request that you give the Chair time to recognize you and state your name? This is absolutely necessary for the accurate transcription of the verbatim debates of this convention. Delegate Allen yields to Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: This first section is designed to replace section 31 of the present constitution, and that is covered by an exclusion report that we will get to later on. But when we looked into this question, we were impressed by the fact that section 31, which was added as an amendment to the constitution in 1927, hasn't been used. In fact, after 35 years there were only something like 5 metropolitan authorities operating under it. These are small in area and in population. It just proved too difficult to operate under this particular section. It is too complicated as to procedure. It doesn't include the counties at all, and it lists purposes very specifically so as to exclude others. The result has been that almost all the metropolitan authorities that we have had have been formed under a general law that was written in, I think '29, and also under special acts. One of these special acts was the one that was responsible for the Huron-Clinton metropolitan authority, which is one of the biggest we have and covers 5 counties in our part of the state for the purpose of providing park facilities for us all.

When it came to the question of what to put in place of this provision 31, we had several possible alternatives. There are several states that have provisions in this area that we might have sort of adapted to our use, but we felt that we — really, when we looked into it, we were impressed with the fact that there isn't enough experience, really, to know which type of a metropolitan authority would be the best for Michigan, if one were needed. Furthermore, we were impressed with the fact that every metropolitan authority should be adapted to the particular area in which it is to be used. Therefore we felt that we wanted to put something in here that was extremely broad and extremely flexible.

As Mr. Allen has said, he is going to cover other arrangements. This is just a sort of provision that allows the legislature to establish in metropolitan areas these additional forms of government or authorities with such powers and duties and jurisdictions as the legislature may deem necessary. I don't know whether there are any particular questions.

Oh, I want to say one thing. We do direct that whenever possible any authorities formed should be multipurpose; that is, we want to discourage as much as possible a lot of districts or a lot of authorities, each with a specific purpose in mind. We would like to encourage when possible districts or authorities which have more than one purpose, thus avoiding the duplication of units of government. If there are any questions, I am sure that I will do my best, or Mr. Allen will answer them.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cushman yields to the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Delegate Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mrs. Cushman these 2 questions: Mr. Allen referred to covering intergovernmental relations including the state. Now it happens to be in the local government section, and it seems to me that it has adequately covered relations within an area, a local government area, but do I understand that the state's interest in this matter is limited merely to the legislature's providing by law for this? It seems to me not to consider, maybe, the possible interest of the stake of the state itself in the metropolitan area, in addition to the interests of all its local units. The state at no place is mentioned except you say the legislature, which is obviously the organ of the state.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I am sorry, I don't quite get what you mean. You aren't referring to section b? You are referring to section a?

MR. POLLOCK: Yes, I am referring to section a. In other words, intergovernmental relations, as you are well aware, is a broad subject. It involves not merely units of local government, but it involves relationships between state and local government, states between themselves, and even a state with a foreign country. When I appeared before your committee, I proposed something that would cover all of these situations. Am I correct in understanding your proposal that this only relates to the relations within a metropolitan area?

MRS. CUSHMAN: Well, section a only relates to the power of the legislature to establish in metropolitan areas such additional forms of government or authorities as they may deem necessary. It doesn't relate to relations between these units of government at all. That is covered in b.

MR. POLLOCK: Let's assume, then, you have a problem relating to Detroit and Windsor. How does this proposal handle that?

MRS. CUSHMAN: Well, I still — I would like to yield to Mr. Allen on that, but this section a I don't feel covers that area at all. I think it is quite different.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cushman yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Dr. Pollock, we will get into that when we hit section b. It is not covered in a. I think your question would be proper when we hit b.

MR. POLLOCK: Thank you. I couldn't discover it in b either. That is why I asked the question.

MR. ALLEN: You may be right on that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Cushman yield to Delegate Brake? Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Dr. Pollock, I got up before you started to go international, when you were just talking state, to suggest that unless in this constitution the state were forbidden to participate in a metropolitan area of government, it would certainly have the power to do so. For the local units we may have to specify that they have the power, but we certainly would not have to specify that power in the state because it surely has it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I think that is a very sufficient answer, and I have a second question. I take it then, that the committee, having this whole proposal of intergovernmental relations before it, did limit its consideration to the state of Michigan and local units, and did not attempt to get into the wider field of interstate or state-foreign. Am I correct?

MR. ALLEN: You are correct, Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: And then this question presumably must be considered by some other committee, and somehow the convention must have the matter before it; otherwise we are omitting this important field.

MR. ALLEN: We knew we had a distinguished committee on emerging problems.

MR. POLLOCK: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section a of Committee Proposal 88? If not, it will pass.

Section a is passed. The secretary will read section b.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section b.

[Section b was read by the secretary. For text, see above page 1059.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, I think the comments on page 462 cover the subject matter pretty well, but just let me make a couple of other comments on this section. One thing you will notice that we have done here is that everything is voluntary. There is no compulsion. Every one of these subsections takes mutual agreement between the units which get together. It must be an agreement by contract, an agreement by contract to share costs, or to undertake a common undertaking, or to cooperate with one another, or to transfer services. There is nothing compulsory. The second point is that in order to prevent what you might call governmental leap frogging, the 2 units which get together must get together for a project or a function which each unit has the power to do. In other words, we aren't allowing a smaller unit of government which has no power to contract with a larger unit of government which does have power. If we did, some people think we might be doing what we call leap frogging. Now, if it is felt that this is too restrictive, you see, the legislature may step in and add to the power of one of the units which wishes to contract which may not have the power. So we have a regulator on this matter.

Now, at the bottom of the page you may wonder why we have all this verbiage about allowing an officer to serve on any intergovernmental or governmental bodies established for these purposes. The reason for this is that when you get governmental units together, you usually come up with something like, for example, a planning board, and it is very advantageous to have on this planning board a supervisor or the chairman of the board of supervisors or a city mayor or, if the state is involved in some way, someone from the state. It has been found in other states that the prohibition against holding more than 2 offices would prevent it. These aren't high salaried jobs by any means. They are usually either service free or on a per diem basis. So just in case that article V, section 30, I think it is, would prevent this, we have tried to clear the matter up in this latter language. I will be glad to answer any questions.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 88? The gentleman from St. Louis, Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I am a little concerned about the language in section b. Just to make sure that the delegates fully appreciate what this proposal will do, I should call to your attention section 14 of article X, which relates to the subject of internal improvements. You have a proposal which will be up for consideration, which is Committee Proposal 101, on this particular subject, which, if you adopt this proposal and its intent, will completely eliminate and provide that the state can share in the cost of internal improvements at the local level.

Under our proposal, and under the constitution as it now stands, there is a prohibition against the state engaging in internal improvements. Then it is followed by 4 sections in which the state can engage in certain types of internal improvements. It was the thought of our committee that there should be certain safeguards against the legislature engaging in internal improvements in certain areas of the state that were not of a benefit to the entire state. We did in our proposal, however, provide that local units of government could join together and engage in internal improvements at their own expense. Now, under this proposal, if you read it, you will find that the state can engage in internal improvements in the local communities and pay part of the cost for those improvements in the local communities; they even can pledge the credit of the state in relation to those particular projects.

I think it is a basic problem that you are faced with. Do you want the state of Michigan to become involved in internal improvements that only affect a certain area, in other words, a county or a group of counties? I think those counties should have the right to do that. I think that phase of the proposal is correct. However, I do think the thing that you should consider is do you think it is proper for the legislature to become engaged in the expense of those internal improvements in local areas? This proposal we have, 101, will restrict the legislature from engaging in certain internal improvements, except those that are enumerated, but our proposal does grant to local units of government or combinations of counties, cities, or what not, the authority to engage in those internal improvements at their own expense. And that is the difference between our proposal and the proposal you have before you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Hoxie, I don't think, the way this is written, it will conflict; though I do think that this whole provision on internal improvements presents some problems, and I don't know how we are going to be able to work it out without working one of them out first. The reason I say I doubt that it conflicts is that if we start up at the top on section b it provides that the legislature, by general law, will provide for exercise of local government by 2 or more — and then it means the local units of government — counties, cities, villages, townships or districts, and you will notice there it doesn't mention the state. And then it says that under this law these units will have power to do this, that and the other thing; and also provides that whatever they do it must be something that each may do.

Now, if the state is prevented by the internal improvement section of section 14 from entering into a contractual obligation, it couldn't be compelled to under this, because under this arrangement, you see, it has to be a power which each of the contracting parties would have, and if the state doesn't have it, I don't think that under this language it would occur. In other words, this is limited to the power which each of the contracting parties has. If the state doesn't have it, you don't run into the problem.

Now, it could be that someone will say, well, there should be that power, but we will have to battle that out when your committee comes in. As I construe this, we would not have the state entering in unless it had the power.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen yields to Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Allen, it would appear to me that — let's assume that proposal is adopted, and Committee Proposal 101, relative to internal improvements, is adopted, which provision of the constitution, provided the constitution is adopted, would prevail? Now, I can't read the language any other way than when you provide that under such general laws such units of local government shall have power to — and enumerate the local units of government, or with the state, or any combination thereof — subsection 2 — to share the costs and responsibilities and functions and services. All the way through it is referring to all the units, the local units of government along with the state engaging in this type of activity with a sharing cost basis. I don't know how you can interpret anyway but what the state is involved, and again are bound to lend their credit and so forth.

MR. ALLEN: Well, you see, this is qualified, in which each local unit of government would have the power to perform separately. I suppose that you are going to say right back to me: all right, that says local unit; it doesn't say the state. Would it cure your objection if the word "local" was dropped out and "each unit"?

MR. HOXIE: Well, I don't think that makes any difference. I think the state is involved, with the adoption of this proposal, in entering into agreements and the functions of these various types of improvements, or whatever you might call them, and the state is involved financially, or can be under the wording of this provision. It opens the doors so the state can be involved financially. Are you agreeable to that, sir?

MR. ALLEN: I am not. I am not agreeable to that.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: For what purpose does the gentleman from Ann Arbor arise?

MR. POLLOCK: I would like to ask Mr. Hoxie and Mr. Allen a question.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if they care to answer.

MR. POLLOCK: I appreciate Mr. Hoxie's question, and I think it is very important, because we must somewhere settle the power and place of the state, and I suggest that the proper place is in connection with the section which I believe he is presenting on internal improvements. But certainly, as we look into the future, if we are wanting to stop the continued intrusion of the federal government into local affairs we are going to have to involve the state more. And we want to be sure, too, that if there is federal money to be granted, it frequently is granted to the states for distribution to the localities, and I would want to be sure that in matters involving metropolitan affairs, that the state was there with power to act under the circumstances.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: I don't know where we go. We have sort of a dispute between what this says. It would seem to me, Delegate Hoxie, that if the state is precluded from entering into an agreement by your section, then it could not enter into an agreement under this section.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: No. Under the internal improvement section the state could not be a party to any work of internal improvement in carrying out such work. In other words, then, there are certain exceptions whereby they engage in public roads, harbors of refuge, waterways, airways, and so forth.

Now, I don't object to local units of government or areas of the state engaging in improvements, but I don't think that this constitution should open the door to the extent where every section of our state should come before the legislature and ask for a grant of money to carry out that improvement at the local level.

I might tell you a little story which Ed Hutchinson is very familiar with, just to emphasize what I am referring to. Some few years ago we had a proposal to submit to the people a bond issue for the sum of $65 million. Even though the bond proposal did not directly refer to any certain sum for tuberculosis bed space, in the senate there was that discussion of using $5 million. In fact, the original bond issue as passed by the house, or the proposal to submit to the people, was increased from $60 to $65 million. The end result was after the people endorsed the borrowing of $65 million for mental health, $5 million of that money was divided up among the various tuberculosis institutions in this state, and that is the county as well as the state, and the end result is today we have more tuberculosis beds than there is any need for.

That is just exactly how a jackpot can be divided up, and it is my opinion that if you open the doors wide enough and leave it completely up to the legislature, and take all restraints away, you will find that different groups will get together and say: you give me this over in my area and I will give you something in another area. In the testimony we had, they even went to the extent of considering the state going into the construction of buildings for the purpose of encouraging industry to come to Michigan; things of that nature.

Now, if you want the state to be financially responsible to engage in every type of activity, then you should adopt this proposal, and we will ask for our proposal to be killed when it comes up for consideration.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, I think all this provision says is that the local units of government, if they care to do so, may enter into contracts with the state for any purpose which the state is empowered to enter into. In other words, this is not creating power for the state. The state, under the way you have written section 14 of article X, is permitted to do certain things, and it is not permitted to do other things. All this says is on those things which the state is permitted to do, if the state wants to do them in cooperation with the local units, they may do so. If they prefer to go it alone and take the whole cost alone, the state may do so, providing it is a function which the state may do under your section 14. In other words, I think the proper construction of this is not to grant power to the state, but only to allow the state to enter into arrangements with local units, if the state wants to, in a field which the state is permitted to do so. It does not create new fields to the state.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Allen yield to the vice president, Delegate Hutchinson? Delegate Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I wanted to raise another problem here in connection with section b. The chairman of the committee and I were here discussing it. I don't know whether he was trying to talk me out of presenting my point or not, but I am going to do it anyway. It is this, and I guess I can put it in these words. I want to compliment the committee on local government in writing a very good statute, and that is what I think it is when you begin to enumerate all these things that can take place by one of these combinations. There won't be anything left for the legislature to write into its law except simply to copy practically verbatim these 5 subdivisions of the paragraph, of the section.

Certainly the legislature would not feel itself empowered to enlarge upon those 5, nor could it deny any 1 of the 5, and all you have done here is write a statute. At that point, as I was pointing out to the chairman of the committee when I was recognized to make this argument, you might just as well not provide for the legislative motion of passing an act anyway, since there won't be any decision for the legislature to make here at all, except the overall one as to whether or not there shall be any such act in the first place. But certainly, it is to be expected that anything with as great detail, and so on, in the constitution as this, it would be expected that the legislature will pass such an act. And I come back to my opening statement. I think that the committee has written a very good statute, and I don't like to see statutes written into the constitution.

I think that the first section here, section a, particularly the first paragraph, is excellent constitutional material, and I think, though, that section b could be immeasurably improved from a constitutional standpoint if it were rewritten with all of this legislative verbiage left out and maybe we could have a pretty good provision here. But I don't think it is good the way it stands.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: I think the main point we wanted to get across is that we wanted to encourage free cooperation and freedom of exchange of cost sharing, and transfer of functions and so on between the various units involved. I don't think our committee has any great pride of authorship. It seemed to our committee that this was the best way to get the thing out on the floor. And furthermore, not being experts in style and drafting, and knowing we have a fine committee on style and drafting, we thought, of course, that they might be able to improve it.

Now, I don't believe any of us object, Mr. Hutchinson, if you can take all of this and come out with the same result in fewer words. I don't believe any of us would have this objection as long as the essential ideas that we have here are covered. But our committee, whose members aren't experts in these things, went about it this way.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Well, in answer to that, Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman if by his statement he would permit style and drafting to cut this down and to grant to the legislature the power to write a law?

MR. ALLEN: Well, to write a law doing what?

MR. HUTCHINSON: To accomplish the very fine purposes set forth at the beginning of the section.

MR. ALLEN: Yes, I think we would.

MR. HUTCHINSON: You wouldn't consider it a very terrible substantive change if we struck out all of those 5 provisions that you have listed there?

MR. ALLEN: Well, if the legislature is mandated —

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the gentleman from Kalamazoo yield to the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott?

MR. ALLEN: Right.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Hutchinson, I would be very happy to have the subcommittee chairman and myself meet with style and drafting to discuss this at some later time. However, there is one thing I think we have overlooked. While constitutional language is primarily for the purpose you say, Mr. Hutchinson, and I so agree, when you are getting into a new field such as this, there sometimes is a positive impact upon the units of government with whom you are dealing if you do delineate the responsibilities and the procedures which you want them to follow.

It was the thinking of this committee, not only was this sound to say, but it was also the thinking of the committee that it was sound to enumerate, so that we could perhaps awaken in the local units of government a sense of responsibility and opportunity which they may have in any event, but which had not been brought so forcibly to their attention. So, Mr. Hutchinson, in order to not delay the procedures of the convention, I would say that if you are satisfied to have the style and drafting committee, of which you are a member, meet with us, I think that as long as we both are agreed on the intent, that we can do something here which will meet everybody's satisfaction.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: I may inform the delegates seeking recognition there are 7 people seeking recognition at this time. Delegate Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Well, Mr. Chairman, I would like to point this out: that all of these things that Mr. Elliott points out can be very ably and just as effectively accomplished if after a proper grant of power to create these additional units is written into the constitution the people who desire to have it implemented will go to the legislature and write these same things into a statute; which, on that basis, the statute can be changed from time to time. You will be really better off than you are to freeze all these things in the constitution.

My point is this: that having enumerated these things, the legislature would probably be considered to be shorn of any constitutional power to add to the list of such powers, and certainly would be powerless to withdraw any of those powers. As I say, you can accomplish the same thing if you will delineate these things in statute, and that statute would have the same force of awakening all of these things in the local units of government that you speak about, as will this frozen, restricted, limiting constitutional provision.

If Mr. Elliott is speaking the will of the committee of the whole here, that we can thrash all of this out in style and drafting, and admitting there will be some substantive change, I will be happy to do it that way, but I want Mr. Elliott to understand that I will go into the style and drafting committee with that end in view.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Hutchinson, until you said substantive change, I was with you, but when you brought that up, you and I sort of departed company. I feel that this is something that our committee has spent a lot of time on. We think that this particular proposal is one of the most significant proposals on local government, and we would urge that unless you have an amendment to this proposal, that we go ahead and consider it on the basis as it is now before you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, I will stick with the chairman of the committee on this, except I would say to Senator Hutchinson, when you say substantive change, I don't think you mean that you are going to materially change it; I think what you are saying is that you are going to boil 'er down. Isn't that it?

MR. HUTCHINSON: I will agree with Mr. Allen that we will not materially change it. That is true. We will obtain the same objective and accomplish the same thing, but we won't be writing a statute into the constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the gentleman from Kalamazoo yield to the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Austin?

MR. ALLEN: Yes.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, I am a little bit disturbed about the question of taxation involved in this metropolitan area government. I have 3 questions here that I am inclined to ask after reading the language, because I don't think the language is clear one way or the other. Can the legislature give taxing power to this metropolitan district should it be set up, or any one of these, let's say, cooperative efforts? Could these local units of government cooperate or join in levying an income tax together? That is, could, for example, 2 or 3 municipalities or other local units of government get together and cooperate on an income tax levy? And then, the third question is: may they transfer their taxing powers to this cooperative effort?

Now, here is the reason why I raise these questions: under section a on line 9 we say "authorities shall have such powers, duties and jurisdictions as the legislature shall deem necessary." It would appear here that the legislature may give them taxing powers. Going down to line 21, starting on line 21, I would like to read from there — or, let's start on line 20:

> Under such general law such units of local government shall have power:
>
> (1) To enter into contractual undertakings or agreements with one another or with the state or with any combination thereof for the joint administration of any of the functions or powers which each local unit of government would have the power to perform separately.

Of course, here is where I raise the question about joining together on an income tax levy, assuming that each of these units had that power separately. Then we move down to (3), on line 11:

To transfer to each local unit of government or combination thereof functions and responsibilities or both upon the consent of each unit of government involved.

And here I ask can they transfer their taxing powers to this cooperative effort? And, of course, (4) raises the same question. Now, under (5), you did specifically say that they could lend their credit. Now I ask what about taxing powers? What do you have in mind there?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Austin, I think what you are doing is, you are getting section a tossed over into section b. Section b, where we have gone into the enumerations, refers to existing units of government and their existing powers. It doesn't call for any new unit of government — say a special district set up for a sewage disposal, to finance sewage disposal. Now, under a, this would be a separate district. Under a the legislature would say, what is its jurisdiction and what is its taxing power; what power does it have? That stands alone. This unit standing alone doesn't come into section b. The powers listed under section b are for existing units of government, things which they now are authorized to do.

So I think the answer to your first question is yes, on any new unit of government created by the legislature the legislature says what taxing power it has. But on whether or not these units may pool their taxing power, the answer is no. These are existing units of government. Unless, I suppose, the legislature should some day pass a law saying they could, and I would doubt it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, am I to understand that under a, the legislature can give this metropolitan complex unlimited taxing power? You don't have any type of limit in mind?

MR. ALLEN: Whatever the legislature wishes to give, the way this is written.

MR. AUSTIN: I wish you were as kind to the cities as they are now set up. In other words, you are willing to give this metropolitan area that would be established under this section unlimited power, and yet we do have municipalities and other units of government with which we have had experience, and we are inclined to restrict them. Somehow there is a little inconsistency. I don't know whether you had in mind giving this unit unlimited taxing power. Did you?

MR. ALLEN: The committee had in mind giving it the power that the legislature wanted to give it, and trusting the legislature. I have a hunch you are making an argument not so much against the power for the new unit as for more power for the existing units.

MR. AUSTIN: No, I didn't really mean it that way. I am sorry if it sounded that way. I meant it just as I said it, that we do have experience with other local units of government, and we have seen fit on the basis of experience to limit their powers, but here we have got a unit that we have had no experience with, and yet we are inclined to give this unit unlimited power. That's what I had in mind.

MR. ALLEN: It's no different than what has been done from time to time. For example, the Clinton-Huron water authority, that is a special district. It isn't set up under section 31. The legislature has the power to do this unless it is restricted in the constitution. When it set up the ground rules for the Clinton-Huron water authority, it defined the taxing power. Now, we would envision that on any new authority set up, the legislature will do the same thing.

Put it another way: supposing we said, to get maximum flexibility — and your committee thought of this — let's just not have anything in the constitution. Just let's scrap everything. Now, if we did that, the legislature has all of its reserve power, and may do anything that is not prohibited. It could, if we had nothing in the constitution, come up with any form which it wished and set its taxing power. So, when you say give it unlimited authority, I think you tend to scare people, because they don't realize that is what the legislature can do under today's constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Under section b, of course, my question was whether there was the right for these local units of government to cooperate on a tax levy. Did you envision that possibility? For example, could 2 or 3 units down in Wayne county, or across county lines, for that matter, cooperate on an income tax levy, assuming they did not want to levy it in one city alone?

MR. ALLEN: Well, we never thought about it. So, thinking about it now, I would say probably the answer is no. They may only get together for such purposes as each may do alone. Each alone may tax its own residents. So I doubt that they could go together unless the legislature passed this law, which it could do, saying that they might. They could do this if the legislature would authorize it.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I would just like to talk with the chairman on this after the session is over. I don't think I want to take any more of the time on the floor. I feel that this new section should be a little more explicit about taxation one way or the other. Either it should prohibit it or permit it, and in some way specify how it permits it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the gentleman from Kalamazoo yield to the gentleman from Birmingham, Delegate Van Dusen?

MR. ALLEN: I will.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I would just like to emphasize the negative answer which Mr. Allen gave to Mr. Austin on the question of pooled taxing powers. I think the proposal which this committee considered and adopted last week, to the effect that the power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away, very clearly precludes a combination of municipal taxing powers. That provision applies not only to the state, but also to every political subdivision of the state, and I think the kind of thing Mr. Austin is talking about would clearly constitute either a surrender or a contracting away of the taxing power of the combining units.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Allen yield to the gentleman from St. Clair Shores, Delegate Snyder?

MR. SNYDER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I am inclined to agree with Mr. Hutchinson. We are getting into some detail here which requires a little bit more scrutiny than ordinarily would cut the section off the first paragraph.

I don't know whether my problem would pertain more to section b or the second part of a, but again we get into this question of multiunits of government participation for multipurpose functions. We do have a situation that there is a statutory provision that does provide for the combination of the police and the fire protection. This is a statutory matter at the present time, and I feel that this should remain a statutory matter.

However, I have some real serious reservations whether this type of service should be included in the constitution, and make it almost mandatory that the legislature would provide for this particular type of combination of services. If this is the intent of the committee, or a provision that would be permitted under the proposed language here, I would feel inclined to speak against it. But until there is a clarification of any one member of the committee, I would reserve further comment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Allen yield to Delegate Elliott for the purpose of making a preferential motion? Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I learned from the secretary there now is an amendment on the desk. This means more debate, and because of that, I now move that the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott moves that the committee of the whole do now rise. All those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, Vice President Downs assumed the Chair.]

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The convention will be in order. Delegate DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain items, of which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 84, A proposal to provide for liberal construction of provisions concerning municipal corporations; Committee Proposal 86, A proposal pertaining to highways and their maintenance; Committee Proposal 87, A proposal relating to ports and port districts; reports these 3 committee proposals back to the convention without amendment, and with the recommendation that they do pass.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Committee Proposals 84, 86 and 87 are referred to the committee on style and drafting.

For Committee Proposal 84 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1048.

For Committee Proposal 86 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1057.

For Committee Proposal 87 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1059.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole, Mr. President, has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 83, A proposal pertaining to cities and villages; reports this back to the convention with several amendments agreed to by the committee of the whole, and recommends that the amendments be agreed to and that the committee proposal as thus amended do pass.

[The following are the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole:

1. Amend page 1, line 11, after "levy" by inserting "other".

2. Amend page 1, line 14, after "Sec. b.", by reinserting "Under such general laws"; and in line 15, after "village" by striking out "are hereby granted" and reinserting "shall have"; and by striking out all of line 22; and on page 2 by striking out all of lines 1 and 2.

3. Amend page 2, by striking out lines 3 to 7 and line 8 through the word "therein.", and inserting

"Each city and village shall have power to pass laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property and government subject to the constitution and general laws of this state.".

4. Amend page 2, line 11, after "conferred.", by striking out the balance of the line and all of lines 12, 13 and 14.

5. Amend page 2, line 23, after "purpose or" by inserting a comma and "except as authorized by law"; and in line 24, after "purpose" by striking out "except as authorized by law".

6. Amend page 3, line 22, after "majority" by inserting a comma and "or of a greater number if the charter shall so provide,".]

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The question is on agreeing to the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I believe that there is an amendment to 83.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: We will take the amendments that were recommended by the committee of the whole first. Then we will act upon the amendments that have been filed with the secretary and are on the secretary's desk. The question is on agreeing to the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole. All those in favor —

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I would like to request a record roll call vote on this.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: You want a record roll call vote on the amendments that were agreed to by the committee of the whole?

MR. FORD: That is correct.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: There has been a request for a record roll call vote. Let's see if there is sufficient number to request it. There is a sufficient number to request a record roll call vote. The question is now on agreeing to the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole. All those — Mr. Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: I would like to know what we are voting on specifically. I would like to have the amendments read.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: We will ask the secretary to read the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole, on which there has been requested a record roll call vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendments recommended by the committee of the whole to Committee Proposal 83 are as follows:

[The amendments were read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

Those are the amendments that have been recommended and agreed to by the committee of the whole.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The question is on the amendments recommended and agreed to by the committee of the whole. Those who are in favor will indicate by voting yea. Those who are opposed will indicate by voting nay.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, are we voting on each one of them?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: No, we are voting on them collectively.

MR. MADAR: Some of these amendments we are for and some we are against. I think we ought to separate them.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary point out, Mr. Madar, that every one of these amendments has been adopted by the committee of the whole, the amendments which we have read.

MR. MADAR: Some of them we voted for in the committee of the whole, and some we didn't vote for. If we vote now one way it puts us on the spot so we are voting for something we didn't vote for before.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The vote has been called for. Those who are in favor will signify by voting aye, and those who are opposed by voting no. This is a recorded roll call vote. Delegate Walker.

MR. WALKER: I have been standing since before you ordered the vote the last time, and therefore would like to abstain from voting and to explain my reason for abstention. I do not feel I can honestly and in fairness to myself or my constituents vote either aye or nay on a question with this broad concept.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted?

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I am giving the same explanation for abstaining.

MR. MAHINSKE: Mr. President, I would also abstain from voting on a package like this.

MR. SNYDER: I have the same reason for abstaining.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Is there any parliamentary way, Mr. President, that we can divide the question, since so many people object to this? I am in favor of all of them, and I think the majority of the rest are too, but —

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: I am advised that the question could have been divided before it was put, and we could have voted on each one separately. Now I will consult with the secretary to see whether this can be reconsidered. However, the vote was called and technically, once the vote is called, I do not know how it can be divided. If you will pause just for a moment, I would like to check with the secretary for advice.

I am advised by the secretary that I was correct on the ruling that once the vote is called there is no other parliamentary action in order. However, after the vote has been taken, a reconsideration vote is in order, as it would be ordinarily. Delegate Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: I have the same reason for abstaining. I can't vote on a package.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I move we table this until the first order of business tomorrow morning, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Would you wait just a moment? Mr. McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: Mr. President, isn't that out of order? The vote has been called.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Will the convention please be in order. We will pause while I check with the secretary on the question of whether the motion to vote can be tabled.

The vote has been called, the secretary advises me, and the Chair rules that once the vote has been called, the motion to table is not in order. The parliamentary action that is in order is that after the vote is taken for reconsideration, the question could be divided. Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Then a motion to take each one of these amendments separately would not be in order either?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Not until after the vote is taken.

MR. MARSHALL: Then I will abstain from voting too, Mr. President, and members of the "legislature," because of the reasons previously stated.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, just getting some information. I believe I am correct in stating that you must vote affirmatively on this to move to reconsider; am I right?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: That is not correct. Under the rules of the convention you do not have to vote affirmatively in order later to vote to reconsider.

MR. MADAR: I am extremely sorry, Mr. President. My book of Mason's happens to be in the other room.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Delegate Murphy.

MR. MURPHY: Mr. President, I would like to say I am not voting for the same reasons.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. President, if this motion is put and carried, or whatever happens to it, I will have the privilege to ask to have it reconsidered, will I not?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: That is correct. All right, those agreeing to the amendments — Mrs. Conklin.

MRS. CONKLIN: I wish to abstain from voting for the same reasons given.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Delegate Conklin was recognized for the purpose of abstaining. Delegate Hatcher.

MRS. HATCHER: I would like to abstain from voting.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Delegate Hatcher is recognized for abstaining. Delegate Hood.

MR. HOOD: Delegate Hood would also like to abstain from voting for the reasons expressed by the others.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Delegate McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: I would also like to abstain for the same reasons.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Will the convention please be in order. We can go through with any person who so wants to abstain. Will the convention please be in order.

However, there is one other course of action. By unanimous consent we can refrain from having this vote and instead divide the question. It is entirely up to the convention. Is there any objection to unanimous consent to not have the vote on all the questions, but give the opportunity to divide the question? Is there any objection? Delegate Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: I think we ought to get one thing straight here. You have been ruling that the statements of abstention are in order, and under rule 67, since the vote has been called, they are not in order.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The question before the convention now is, is there objection to unanimous consent to go back to where we were and then divide the question? Is there objection?

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President —

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Do you rise to object?

MR. MARSHALL: The hour is now 6:00 o'clock. I move we adjourn.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The secretary advises me the motion to adjourn is in order.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Point of order.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: State your point of order, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Would the Chair please tell me where it is that an adjournment motion is in order when you have called for a vote?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The motion to adjourn is always in order.

All those in favor of adjournment will signify by saying aye. Those opposed by nay. The Chair is in doubt. Would those who are in favor raise their right hands.

SECRETARY CHASE: The yeas are 51.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Those who are opposed to adjourning will raise their right hands.

SECRETARY CHASE: Forty-eight.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The motion to adjourn has prevailed, and the convention is adjourned until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

[Whereupon, at 6:05 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 9:30 o'clock a.m., Thursday, February 15, 1962.]

EIGHTIETH DAY

Thursday, February 15, 1962, 9:30 o'clock a.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this morning will be given by one of our own delegates, Herb Turner, from Saginaw.

MR. TURNER: Our heavenly Father, please be our guide. Watch over us, O Lord. Our souls are infested with selfish interests, our hearts are filled with personal greed, our minds are torn by the weight of confusion. Give us the strength, O God, to stand strong and free of the factors that make us small and petty. Millions of people of this state of Michigan look toward us to create a miracle; may we heed their precautions and consider their desires. Instill in our hearts, O Lord, the will to do what is right for all; cleanse our souls and free our minds that we may stand tall and proud of what we do here. Lead us through these darkest hours, be with us now and forever. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The machine is locked and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave: Mr. Tubbs, from today's session; Mr. Page, from the sessions of today and Friday, due to illness; and Mr. Nord, indefinitely, due to illness.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Bentley, Nord, Ostrow, Page and Tubbs.

Absent without leave: Mr. Marshall.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. Marshall is excused.

[During the proceedings, the following delegates entered the chamber and took their seats: Messrs. Marshall and Ostrow.]

SECRETARY CHASE: We have a request for 2 announcements before we proceed with the order of business. The subcommittee on eminent domain will meet in room G today after the morning session. Paul Mahinske, chairman; and the committee on local government will meet at 11:45 or immediately after the recess this morning in room A. Arthur Elliott, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report and recommends to the president for appointment to the constitutional convention staff, Mr. William Sorrell, as research consultant on a part time basis, with the office of public information. Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed person to the position indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointment is approved.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only standing committee report, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Van Dusen offers Resolution 72, A resolution to amend rule 57 of the rules of the convention.

Following is Resolution 72 as offered:

Resolved, That rule 57 of the rules of the convention is hereby amended by striking out subsections 9 and 10 thereof.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Daisy Elliott offers Resolution 73, A resolution pertaining to an extension of the convention deadline and the placing of the proposed constitution upon the ballot.

Following is Resolution 73 as offered:

Whereas, It has been stated on the floor of this convention by President Nisbet, Vice Presidents Romney and Downs, Dr. Pollock and many outstanding delegates that the primary concern of this constitutional convention is to take the necessary time to write a constructive constitution rather than meet an arbitrary and restrictive deadline for adjournment; and

Whereas, It has become apparent to all delegates that the time schedule relating to the April 1 deadline cannot be met if proper consideration is to be given to the many important matters before this body; and

Whereas, The pressure of the April 1 deadline is the result of an opinion of the attorney general that the convention must adjourn by April 1, 1962, in order to place the document on the November ballot; and

Whereas, The attorney general is not the final authority in this state on matters of constitutional law and this opinion may be disputed before the state supreme court and resolved by that body; and

Whereas, The question as to when the proposed constitution will be voted upon is not so important as to sacrifice the quality of the document; and

Whereas, The enabling legislation setting up this constitutional convention provided for a period until May 15, 1962, for the completion of the work of this convention; and

Whereas, The May 15 deadline seems to provide proper and more ample time for the adequate consideration and necessary deliberations required to produce a sound and equitable constitution; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this body instruct the committee on rules and resolutions to prepare a new schedule for the completion of the work by the convention on or before May 15, 1962, as provided in the enabling legislation; and be it further

Resolved, That all special and partisan interests be laid aside and subjugated by the delegates to the end that a constitution which will meet the needs of all the people of the state of Michigan in the coming decades be drafted; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention take the necessary steps to require the secretary of state to place the revised constitution on the November ballot for the consideration of the voters of Michigan at that time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger moves that for the balance of the general orders, except on Mondays, at approximately 10:40 a.m. and 3:40 p.m., the committee of the whole, by declaration of its chairman, rise; that the report of the committee of the whole be withheld; that the convention, without intervening business, then stand in recess for 10 minutes, at the end of which time the convention, without intervening business, will be resolved into committee of the whole.

He further moves that the rules be suspended for the immediate consideration of this motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there objection to the suspension of the rules for immediate consideration of Mr. Wanger's motion? I hear none. Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Thank you, Mr. President. I respectfully suggest to the convention that our experience in the past several weeks has shown it is of great convenience to the convention and in total will help our work if we can have a recess at about midpoint in the morning session and in the afternoon session. However, I think it is also clear that it is unrealistic to expect a chairman of the committee of the whole to arbitrarily interrupt business approximately at midpoint if a vote has not been taken without some moral authority of the convention behind him authorizing him to do so. Therefore, I make this motion in hopes that we can facilitate the work of the committee of the whole and promote a better result to send on to style and drafting.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the rules are suspended, and the question is on the motion of Mr. Wanger. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Are there any further motions or resolutions?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the motions and resolutions on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: Under the order of unfinished business, the president lays before the convention the report of the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 83, A proposal pertaining to cities and villages. This report was not completed last night upon adjournment. The question at the time was agreeing to the 6 amendments recommended by the committee of the whole, which amendments will be found in the journal of this morning, beginning at the bottom of the lefthand column on page 615. The amendments are as follows:

[The amendments were again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1065.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: Mr. President, I request the proposed amendments be voted upon separately.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, we will vote on the amendments separately. Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: I ask a record roll call vote on each of the amendments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand seconded for roll call vote?

SECRETARY CHASE: Not a sufficient number, Mr. President. It takes 1/5 of the delegates present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Not a sufficient number up.

SECRETARY CHASE: Amendment 1.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1065.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Amendment 2.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1065.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on amendment 2. Those in favor will say yes. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Amendment 3.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1065.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on amendment 3. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Amendment 4.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1065.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on amendment 4. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Amendment 5.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1065.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on amendment 5. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Amendment 6.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1065.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on amendment 6. Mr. Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: Mr. President, I move a record roll call vote on amendment 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand supported? Those in favor will rise. A sufficient number up. Those in favor of amendment 6 will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the machine will be locked and the vote recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—123

Allen	Goebel	Murphy
Andrus, Miss	Gover	Norris
Anspach	Greene	Pellow
Austin	Gust	Perlich
Baginski	Habermehl	Perras
Balcer	Hanna, W. F.	Powell
Barthwell	Hannah, J. A.	Prettie
Batchelor	Hart, Miss	Pugsley
Beaman	Haskill	Radka
Binkowski	Hatch	Rajkovich
Blandford	Hatcher, Mrs.	Richards, L. W.
Bledsoe	Heideman	Romney
Boothby	Higgs	Rood
Brake	Hodges	Rush
Brown, G. E.	Hood	Seyferth
Buback	Howes	Shackleton
Butler, Mrs.	Hoxie	Shaffer
Conklin, Mrs.	Hubbs	Shanahan
Cushman, Mrs.	Hutchinson	Sharpe
Dade	Iverson	Sieder
Danhof	Judd, Mrs.	Snyder
Davis	Karn	Spitler
Dehnke	Kelsey	Stafseth
Dell	King	Staiger
DeVries	Kirk, S.	Stamm
Donnelly, Miss	Knirk, B.	Sterrett
Doty, Dean	Koeze, Mrs.	Stevens
Doty, Donald	Krolikowski	Stopczynski
Douglas	Kuhn	Suzore
Downs	Lawrence	Thomson
Durst	Leibrand	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	Leppien	Tweedie
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Lesinski	Upton
Erickson	Liberato	Van Dusen
Everett	Madar	Walker

Farnsworth	Martin	Wanger
Figy	McCauley	White
Finch	McGowan, Miss	Wilkowski
Follo	McLogan	Wood
Gadola	Millard	Woolfenden
Garvin	Mosier	Yeager

Nays—9

Faxon	McAllister	Sablich
Lundgren	Plank	Young
Mahinske	Richards, J. B.	Youngblood

SECRETARY CHASE: On the question of agreeing to amendment 6 recommended by the committee of the whole, the yeas are 123, the nays are 9.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is adopted. Are there other amendments?

SECRETARY CHASE: There have been filed with the secretary some additional amendments, Mr. President.

Mr. Kuhn offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 13, after "law.", by inserting "No governmental subdivision shall impose any income tax except on its own residents; the state, however, may preempt this field of taxation.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Kuhn. Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: I demand a roll call vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: A demand for roll call vote has been made. Is the demand supported? A sufficient number up. Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I urge that we defeat the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gover.

MR. GOVER: What page is this? What proposal?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: This is Committee Proposal 83, A proposal pertaining to cities and villages. The amendments of the committee of the whole have just been agreed to. Mr. Kuhn now offers the following amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Kuhn. Those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—42

Anspach	Hoxie	Richards, J. B.
Boothby	Hubbs	Rush
Brake	Kelsey	Shaffer
Brown, G. E.	Kirk, S.	Shanahan
Butler, Mrs.	Kuhn	Sharpe
Conklin, Mrs.	Lawrence	Snyder
Dehnke	Liberato	Spitler
Donnelly, Miss	Martin	Stafseth
Doty, Dean	McAllister	Stamm
Doty, Donald	Pellow	Sterrett
Finch	Perlich	Suzore
Habermehl	Perras	Walker
Hanna, W. F.	Pollock	Wood
Howes	Powell	Yeager

Nays—91

Allen	Garvin	Millard
Andrus, Miss	Goebel	Mosier
Austin	Gover	Murphy
Baginski	Greene	Norris
Balcer	Gust	Plank
Barthwell	Hannah, J. A.	Prettie
Batchelor	Haskill	Pugsley
Beaman	Hatch	Radka
Binkowski	Hatcher, Mrs.	Rajkovich
Blandford	Heideman	Richards, L. W.
Bledsoe	Higgs	Romney
Buback	Hodges	Rood
Cudlip	Hood	Sablich
Cushman, Mrs.	Hutchinson	Seyferth
Dade	Iverson	Shackleton
Danhof	Judd, Mrs.	Sleder
Davis	Karn	Staiger
Dell	King	Stevens
DeVries	Knirk, B.	Stopczynski
Douglas	Koeze, Mrs.	Thomson
Downs	Krolikowski	Turner
Durst	Leibrand	Tweedie
Elliott, A. G.	Leppien	Upton
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Lesinski	Van Dusen
Erickson	Lundgren	Wanger
Everett	Madar	White
Farnsworth	Mahinske	Wilkowski
Faxon	McCauley	Woolfenden
Figy	McGowan, Miss	Young
Follo	McLogan	Youngblood
Gadola

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Mr. Kuhn, the yeas are 42, the nays are 91.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted.

Following is explanation of nay vote submitted by Messrs. Austin, Baginski, Balcer, Binkowski, Buback, Douglas, Downs, Mrs. Daisy Elliott, Messrs. Faxon, Follo, Garvin, Greene, Hodges, Hood, Lesinski, Mahinske, McCauley, Murphy, Sablich, Wilkowski and Young:

In compliance with our rights as delineated in rule 65, we, the undersigned, hereby submit for publication in the journal our reasons for voting "nay" on the question of constitutional proposal to prohibit a municipality from levying a payroll tax.

In voting against the constitutional proposal to prohibit a municipality from levying a payroll tax, we were opposing any restrictions on a municipality to levy an income tax which should include taxes on wages as well as corporation profits, rents, and other income. We believe that the constitution should not include specific tax language for local communities.

We are consistent in favoring taxation at the state level with rebates to local communities in preference to any form of local income taxation.

If this were a legislative body, we would have voted against the payroll tax. We oppose a tax on income which would relate only to payrolls. Other income, including business and professional income, would have to be included in the tax base.

We would like to point out that our position is consistent with declarations made in the governor's tax program whereby needed assistance is given to hard pressed local units of government in meeting their own revenue requirements.

PRESIDENT NISBET (Continuing): The next amendment, Mr. Secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Suzore offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 13, after "law" by inserting "except that no city shall impose a tax upon the income of any person".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment by Mr. Suzore. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendment is not adopted. The next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Madar offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 3, line 17, after "regular" by striking out "or special"; and in line 22, after "vote of" by striking out "a majority" and inserting "3/5"; and in line 23, after "regular" by striking out "or special".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I request a recorded roll call vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: A roll call vote has been demanded. Is the demand seconded? A sufficient number up. Those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the machine will be locked and the vote recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—48

Austin	Hatcher, Mrs.	Perlich
Baginski	Heideman	Perras
Balcer	Hodges	Powell
Binkowski	Hood	Prettie
Bledsoe	Howes	Richards, L. W.
Buback	Hoxie	Sablich
Dade	Kelsey	Shanahan
Douglas	Krolikowski	Sharpe
Downs	Leibrand	Snyder
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Liberato	Spitler
Erickson	Madar	Stopczynski
Faxon	Mahinske	Walker
Follo	McAllister	Wilkowski
Garvin	Murphy	Wood
Greene	Norris	Young
Hart, Miss	Pellow	Youngblood

Nays—86

Allen	Goebel	Plank
Andrus, Miss	Gover	Pollock
Anspach	Gust	Pugsley
Barthwell	Habermehl	Radka
Batchelor	Hanna, W. F.	Rajkovich
Beaman	Hannah, J. A.	Richards, J. B.
Blandford	Haskill	Romney
Boothby	Hatch	Rood
Brake	Higgs	Rush
Brown, G. E.	Hubbs	Seyferth
Butler, Mrs.	Hutchinson	Shackleton
Conklin, Mrs.	Iverson	Shaffer
Cudlip	Judd, Mrs.	Sleder
Cushman, Mrs.	Karn	Stafseth
Danhof	King	Staiger
Davis	Kirk, S.	Stamm
Dehnke	Knirk, B.	Sterrett
Dell	Koeze, Mrs.	Stevens
DeVries	Kuhn	Suzore
Donnelly, Miss	Lawrence	Thomson
Doty, Dean	Leppien	Turner
Doty, Donald	Lesinski	Tweedie
Durst	Lundgren	Upton
Elliott, A. G.	Martin	Van Dusen
Everett	McCauley	Wanger
Farnsworth	McGowan, Miss	White
Figy	McLogan	Woolfenden
Finch	Millard	Yeager
Gadola	Mosier

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Mr. Madar, the yeas are 48, the nays are 86.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Sharpe, Finch and Snyder offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 13, after "law.", by inserting "However no unit of government shall have the power to levy a payroll tax upon a nonresident.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Mr. Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. President, I would like to request a roll call vote, please.

PRESIDENT NISBET: A roll call vote has been demanded. Is that demand seconded? A sufficient number up. Those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the machine will be locked and the vote recorded. Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, before this roll call is completely recorded, I would like to know how Mr. Brake is voting, either yes or no.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: I vote no.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I am not going to give anyone any preferential treatment. I would like to know how Miss Hart is voting. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Miss Hart, you will have to make a statement because the machine is—

MISS HART: Excuse me. I tried to pull this thing. I shall vote yes. (laughter and applause)

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—37

Batchelor	Hart, Miss	Richards, L. W.
Boothby	Haskill	Rush
Brown, G. E.	Hubbs	Sablich
Butler, Mrs.	Kelsey	Shanahan
Conklin, Mrs.	Kirk, S.	Sharpe
Dehnke	Kuhn	Snyder
Dell	McAllister	Spitler
Donnelly, Miss	Pellow	Stafseth
Doty, Dean	Perlich	Stamm
Erickson	Plank	Sterrett
Finch	Powell	Walker
Gover	Richards, J. B.	Yeager
Habermehl

Nays—94

Allen	Goebel	McLogan
Andrus, Miss	Greene	Millard
Anspach	Gust	Mosier
Austin	Hanna, W. F.	Murphy
Baginski	Hannah, J. A.	Norris
Balcer	Hatch	Perras
Barthwell	Hatcher, Mrs.	Pollock
Beaman	Heideman	Prettie
Binkowski	Higgs	Pugsley
Blandford	Hodges	Radka
Bledsoe	Hood	Rajkovich
Brake	Howes	Romney
Buback	Hoxie	Rood
Cudlip	Hutchinson	Seyferth
Cushman, Mrs.	Iverson	Shackleton
Dade	Judd, Mrs.	Shaffer
Danhof	Karn	Sleder
Davis	King	Staiger
DeVries	Knirk, B.	Stevens
Doty, Donald	Koeze, Mrs.	Stopczynski
Douglas	Krolikowski	Suzore
Downs	Lawrence	Thomson
Durst	Leibrand	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	Leppien	Tweedie
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Lesinski	Upton
Everett	Lundgren	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	Madar	Wanger
Faxon	Mahinske	White
Figy	Martin	Wilkowski
Follo	McCauley	Young
Gadola	McGowan, Miss	Youngblood
Garvin

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Messrs. Sharpe, Finch and Snyder, the yeas are 37, the nays are 94.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. Are there other amendments, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the amendments on file on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Do you want to talk on this, Mr. Madar?

MR. MADAR: No, sir. A point of personal privilege, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar, would you let Mr. Chase complete this report. Then we will call on you.

MR. MADAR: Yes, sir.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Committee Proposal 83, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 83 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The legislature shall provide by general law for the incorporation of cities and villages; such general laws shall limit their rate of general property taxation for municipal purposes, and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Each city and village is hereby granted power to levy other taxes for public purposes subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law.

Sec. b. Under such general laws the electors of each city and village shall have the power and authority to frame, adopt, amend, and revise its charter, and to amend, and revise an existing charter of the city or village heretofore granted or passed by the legislature for the government of the city or village.

Each city and village shall have power to pass laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property and government subject to the constitution and general laws of this state. No enumeration of powers in this constitution shall be deemed to limit or restrict the general grant of authority hereby conferred.

Sec. c. Any city or village may acquire, own, establish and maintain, either within or without its corporate limits, parks, boulevards, cemeteries, hospitals, and all works which involve the public health or safety.

Sec. d. Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, no city or village shall have the power to assess, levy or collect any tax or assessment for other than a public purpose, or to loan its credit for any private purpose or, except as authorized by law for any public purpose.

Sec. e. Subject to the provisions of this constitution, any city or village may acquire, own, and operate, either within or without its corporate limits, public utilities for supplying water, light, heat, power, sewage disposal, and transportation to the municipality and the inhabitants thereof; and may also sell and deliver heat, power, and light without its corporate limits to an amount not to exceed 25 per cent of that furnished by it within the corporate limits, except as greater amounts may be permitted by law; and may also sell and deliver water and provide sewage disposal, outside of its corporate limits in such amount as may be determined by the legislative body of the city or village; and may operate transportation lines without the municipality within such limits as may be prescribed by law.

Sec. f. No city or village shall acquire any public utility or grant any public utility franchise which is not subject to revocation at the will of the city or village, unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of 3/5 of the electors of such city or village voting thereon at a regular or special municipal election. Nor shall any city or village sell any public utility unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of a majority, or of a greater number if the charter shall so provide, of the electors of such city or village voting thereon at a regular or special municipal election.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole also had under consideration Committee Proposal 85.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, it was on Committee Proposal 83 in which I was bringing up this point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT NISBET: All right, Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Yesterday, when Mr. Ford made a point of order that the minority report amendment filed with the secretary should be given precedence over the amendment filed by Mr. Elliott, Delegate DeVries ruled that the amendment filed by Mr. Elliott would take precedence, since it was filed in the name of Mr. Elliott on behalf of the committee on local government. Later, when this came up again, Mr. Elliott wished to withdraw the amendment, I rose to a point of order, stating that Mr. Elliott had no right to withdraw that amendment because it was not a "Delegate Elliott amendment"; it was a committee amendment, and he couldn't do this without the authority of the committee.

However, Mr. DeVries ruled against me that this was Mr. Elliott's amendment. And I just wish to point out here that he did not have any right to withdraw it. He only has a right to withdraw with the full approval of those who submitted the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Madar.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole yesterday also had under consideration Committee Proposal 85, A proposal to provide that public utilities may use public property with consent of local authorities and a limitation on the length of franchise; and in committee of the whole has postponed consideration of this proposal until the afternoon session today.

The committee of the whole had also had under consideration Committee Proposal 88, A proposal pertaining to metropolitan areas; and had come to no final resolution thereon.

This completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders?

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders. Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for the consideration of certain items on the order of general orders.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. DeVries. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed? The motion prevails. Mr. DeVries.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee of the whole will come to order. When last the committee met it was considering Committee Proposal 88, A proposal pertaining to metropolitan areas; section b, and the following delegates sought recognition on Section b: Delegates Downs, Martin, Hoxie, Pollock and Cushman.

For last previous action by the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 88, see above, page 1059.

The secretary will read section b of Committee Proposal 88.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section b.

[Section b was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1059.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Detroit, Vice President Downs, seek recognition?

MR. SNYDER: Point of order, Mr. Chairman, if I may.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: What is your point of order?

MR. SNYDER: Yesterday, just before the committee rose, I had the floor and Mr. Elliott, for the second time during this committee, shut off my utilities, and he told me last night he was going to turn the utilities on. However, he hasn't done it; so what are my rights? Do I still have the floor? I would address the question to the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Vice President Downs yield to the delegate from St. Clair Shores?

MR. DOWNS: I yield to the delegate from St. Clair Shores.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Chairman, yesterday, before the committee rose, we were discussing section b of Committee Proposal 88, and Mr. Hutchinson at that time had made what I felt was a very pertinent point; that after we had gone beyond section a of the proposed committee report, we were getting into considerable statutory detail. And my problem that I raised was this: the language as submitted at the present time does go into a field of statutory law that I feel should be flexible, and it should not be frozen into the constitution, and this has to do with the multipurpose functions of government rather than the single functions of government, and the specific question that I raised to the committee yesterday was how, under the proposed committee report, would this affect those functions of government such as, for instance, the police and the fire department. Would this make it mandatory for the units to be combined, or would there still be legislative jurisdiction in this thing?

I think this is a very important point. It will be a very sensitive issue. And if we don't have a proper interpretation before we vote, I would be compelled to vote against the proposal as such.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Snyder yields to Delegate Allen for the purpose of answering the question.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Snyder, the answer is no to your question. There is nothing compulsory here, and the legislature will continue to act as the regulator.

MR. SNYDER: I am entirely satisfied with the remark, because I think it is a very categoric remark. There is no question in my mind that the legislature still has the control of this particular subject, and it will not be frozen into the constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, I wish to speak in favor of the principle of having metropolitan government available particularly to the industrial areas. However, I do have a question I wondered if I could ask Delegate Allen through the Chair.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may, if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. DOWNS: Delegate Allen, I notice that the assumption of the proposal is that "The legislature shall." Did the committee give any consideration to having self executing provisions so that the metropolitan authorities could be created by the various communities without the need of state legislation?

MR. ALLEN: I think your question, Mr. Downs, is directed to section a on the creation of new districts. That is in section a.

MR. DOWNS: It is really, I think, in both sections a and b, because section b also has the language "The legislature shall . . . ."

MR. ALLEN: In section a, the legislature shall have the power to establish, but whether or not it establishes anything immediately or later is left up to the legislature.

In other words, the legislature, if this should pass, as we understand it, does not have to immediately act, but it has the power to act when the legislature feels that a new district or a new functional authority or a new corporation—the terms are all synonymous—needs to be established, at which time the legislature decides what is the best form and sets it up. There is one limitation on the legislature, and that is that when it is established, that it not be set up so that it will serve just one purpose. It might start out with one purpose, but it should be established so it can become multipurpose.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I think that the answer indicates the concern of some of us. I believe Delegate Austin yesterday raised some questions where we thought the legislature might go too far. I raised the other side of the coin where I am concerned that the legislature might not go far enough. I will probably end up supporting this more in the hopes that there will be the action.

Those of us—and I include myself—who vote for it may want to reconsider the action after the legislative organization committee has reported, because this really gets down to the question of the form and the responsiveness of the legislature to the needs of metropolitan areas. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from St. Louis, Delegate Hoxie, still seek recognition? Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, yesterday I raised the question as to how far reaching this proposal would be in regard to the state becoming financially involved in the area of metropolitan authority which would affect certain limited sections of the state. It was my understanding from Mr. Allen that he did not believe the state would become financially responsible in those particular areas. Since then I have asked the legal authority of this convention to investigate this question. I will not read it but will give the pertinent information. In section b, paragraph 2 of the proposed local units, the other proposal, local units may share the cost of functions and services with the state.

In other words, gentlemen, I just want you to know that under this proposal as it is now written, the state would be involved in these functions at the local level.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, did the legal authority, Mr. Hoxie, who gave you the opinion say that this language compelled the state to do this, or that the state was required to do something which other provisions of the constitution would not allow the state to do?

MR. HOXIE: You are correct. It isn't mandatory. But it was my understanding the state would not be involved financially. It was my understanding that that was your statement yesterday, which was incorrect according to our legal authority of this convention; that the state could become involved financially on these projects at the local level.

MR. ALLEN: My statement yesterday was that, first, there was nothing mandatory to require the state to do this, and secondly there was nothing in this proposal which was a grant of power to the state or which increased the power of the state, and said it had to do things which section 14, with which we are concerned, would say it could not do. In other words, all this is saying is the state may—it is not mandatory—enter into agreements with local units of government to the extent that the state has power under the constitution to enter into them. This creates no more power. In other words, under section 14 of article X, the state may do certain things and it may not. Now, on those things which the state may do, what we call internal improvements, it then may enter into arrangements with the local units, but on the things which the state is prohibited from doing under section 14, it still would be prohibited.

And I would suggest, Mr. Chairman, that if there is any ambiguity about it—and I think Mr. Hoxie raises a point which is good and which naturally will come up — that when we get around to considering section 14, the internal improvement section, the way to handle this so there will be no doubt would be to add to section 14 as it finally comes out some sort of language, if there is any doubt, saying in effect that the state power to contract and enter into arrangements with local units under article VIII is restricted to those things which the state is able to do, and does not include those things which the state is prohibited from doing under section 14.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Delegate Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, as I recall the discussion yesterday, we were going to refer this section to style and drafting with some freedom to put it into constitutional language. Am I correct about that?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: I don't think the committee resolved that, Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I had intended not to say anything about this subject because I was so pleased that the committee had finally brought forth something new and original that I didn't want to raise any objections. But now that Mr. Hutchinson has raised the question of constitutional language, I merely want to suggest—and Mr. Allen knows this—that I had presented this same idea in constitutional language with about half the length of the present proposal. I should be glad to resubmit the constitutional language I submitted in place of what has been criticized here as being too much statutory.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from Dearborn, Delegate Cushman. You were seeking recognition on this yesterday. Do you pass?

MRS. CUSHMAN: Yes, I will pass.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cushman passes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman, I raised several questions on the floor yesterday with respect to this proposal in regard to taxation. I did not feel it was appropriate to take the time of the committee of the whole to get complete answers. So since the session yesterday, I have talked with several members of the committee on local government and also some members of the committee on finance and taxation, and I feel that most of the questions I raised have been answered to my satisfaction.

I do not have any objection to the legislature having unlimited power to give taxing powers to these metropolitan districts. However, when the finance and taxation Committee Proposal 54—which states as follows: "The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away"—comes up on second reading, I will raise some question about the possibility of a restriction on the taxing power of these metropolitan districts. But at this point I will raise no more questions about taxation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bay City, Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to direct a question to Delegate Allen with regard to subsection 3. As I read this, the question in my mind is with regard to what extent the consent of each unit of government involved is intended to apply. Since I am also a member of the style and drafting committee, I think it might be helpful for us to have an understanding of what your intention is in this connection.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Complete consent, Delegate Higgs. In other words, no functions could be transferred without the unit from which the function would pass completely agreeing and the unit which would assume it completely agreeing. In other words, this is entirely voluntary, and it would be up to the governing authority of each unit to completely agree to this.

MR. HIGGS: Would it be your understanding then that section a would be qualified by this consent of each unit of government?

MR. ALLEN: No. Section a applies to a new governmental unit, if ever established.

MR. HIGGS: Then would it be your understanding that the legislature would have the power in the absence of the consent of each unit of government to set up the metropolitan authority with powers, duties and jurisdictions that the legislature feels necessary, without any consent of the individual units which may be involved within the area?

MR. ALLEN: I am not sure I understand your question, but I think, because this came up just a little while ago, we are dealing with 2 different things in sections a and b.

Now in section b, what we are dealing with is what we know as our existing units of government: our cities, our villages, our townships, our counties, and I guess even school districts. This allows them to intercontract with one another, to assume costs, share costs, transfer functions.

Section a is a political animal that yet does not exist. It may be that from time to time, as it has been in the past, it is necessary to solve some problem by the creation of some additional unit of government. This is generally called a special corporation. Sometimes it is called a metropolitan district or metropolitan corporation. The legislature would say how this could be established. When they say how it is to be established, it usually is established upon a vote of the people of the area affected, and it has the powers, including the taxing power, that the legislature gives it. This is a new political creature.

MR. HIGGS: I think I understand that aspect of it, that we have the power in the legislature to establish a metropolitan authority which is a new creature.

In reading section a and subsection 3 under section b, the problem that is in my mind is whether or not the legislature under section a could preempt the field of the local units without their consent. In other words, if the legislature under its authority in section a should grant power or duties or jurisdictions—I think maybe a key word is "jurisdiction"—to the metropolitan authority, that this might be a preemption of powers, duties or jurisdictions of local units within the area. And if this can be done under section a without the consent of each unit of government, I would like to know if that is the intention.

MR. ALLEN: No, it is not the intention. But I will say this: let's take today's constitution. The legislature has the power today under today's constitution to create a new unit of government, and it did in the Huron-Clinton water authority. There was no constitutional language that authorized this at all. This was an intercounty thing. The legislature had the power, and the legislature created it, and when they created it, they said, "It will depend upon a vote of the people."

Now, if we had nothing in the new constitution, we would be the same as in the old constitution, and there is the power of the legislature to do this. The power of the legislature to create and transfer functions by a new creature without a vote of the people runs head on into some of the home rule doctrine, and you get into some technical fields here, but I don't think that anything we are doing in this language on the problem you raise is any different than we have in today's constitution. In other words, we aren't creating more power to the legislature to take away functions from existing units of government than exist today. In fact, what we are trying to do is keep the legislature from having to do it, and we think if we can free up cooperation among existing units of government, we can slow down the establishment of these new special corporations.

MR. HIGGS: One further question then. In subsection 3, why do you provide that any consent of the local unit is required to transfer any power to a combination thereof if the metropolitan authority can be granted that power by the legislature without their consent under section a?

MR. ALLEN: Because we are thinking in section b entirely apart from any metropolitan authority. This is for existing units of government. And certainly if you are going to say that the health functions—and this can be done today, the example I am giving you—of the city can be transferred to the county, we aren't going to have it occur without the consent of the city that transfers these health functions to the county or the county that agrees to assume them.

MR. HIGGS: One more question. I do not mean to carry this on at length, but I am trying to understand.

What you are saying now, do I understand, is that in subsection 3, when we use the words "combination of local units" we are not speaking about a metropolitan authority; is that correct?

MR. ALLEN: We are talking about existing units of government, that is correct.

MR. HIGGS: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman, for the record, Delegate Hoxie, would you please identify the legal authority in this convention?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Binkowski yields to Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: The memorandum came from Dr. Charles Joiner. I understand the other members of the staff also reviewed this question that I asked them.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Thank you, Mr. Hoxie. Also for the record, Mr. Allen, it is my understanding that many of the supporting reasons for your language in section b are found in a report by the advisory commission on intergovernmental relations, of which I understand Dr. Pollock is vice chairman. If that is so, I wonder if you would also identify this for the record.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Probably the best discussion of what we are doing here does occur in this pamphlet, which was in each one of the boxes of the delegates, from the intergovernmental relations commission in Washington. The pamphlet discusses many other problems. In one pamphlet is the best discussion of problems of metropolitan areas—in fact, I think it goes further than that; it gets into rural areas too—in a condensed way that there is. The ideas that are in section b are discussed more fully at page 25, at page 31, and in the appendix there is suggested language.

Our language is different than their language because we are writing a constitution. Their language pertains to recommendations to the state legislature. They also have a suggestion for constitutional language, and this is the single best discussion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Delegate King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, may I direct a question to Mr. Allen, please.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. KING: Delegate Allen, I am sure that your committee has given a lot of thought to the problem of purchasing utilities and transportation facilities. This problem came up just recently with regard to another area. Do you feel that there is any way in which, say, a group of cities could purchase a utility without receiving 3/5 of the vote of the people of each and every unit of government so participating?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: I wish that I did, but I don't. For example, it might be possible under this at first blush—and I have wondered about it—if the biggest unit of government could purchase with a 3/5 vote, and then the financing could be jointly shared under enabling legislation for intercontractual agreements, but you will notice that this is intercontractual agreements on matters which each unit or party to the contract has the power to enter into, and I would be pretty sure that the city attorneys would say that you can't help finance a bus line out of public moneys unless you have also had a 3/5 vote. So I don't think this section is going to help you on the 3/5 vote.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, referring to page 25, as Mr. Allen just referred us to, of the advisory commission, I just would quote one sentence, "The necessity for getting consent of each participant may impede proceedings and prevent solution of the problem on a comprehensive basis." Of course, this goes without saying. In this particular area, we are going a little further. We are requiring 3/5.

I am not opposing the change. I would just like to suggest some language and ask Mr. Allen what his opinion of it might be. It would be as follows: "The purchase of public utilities, the granting of public utility franchises shall be in a manner as provided by law and, notwithstanding constitutional provisions to the contrary, if approved by a majority of the voters voting thereon of each local unit of government involved."

MR. ALLEN: Delegate King, that might be a possibility if the committee would want to do it, but I would suggest that if we do it, it not be put in this section; it be put in as a separate section along with the utilities, or an added paragraph to the utilities section that we worked on, not on the intergovernmental cooperation. I think it belongs as an exception to the utilities section.

MR. KING: Committee Proposal 83 as opposed to Committee Proposal 88?

MR. ALLEN: Yes. I would suspect that this is something we couldn't act on immediately, but we might pick it up on second reading.

MR. KING: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 88?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McAllister has filed the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 16, by striking out all of section b.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bad Axe, Delegate McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I have examined Committee Proposal 88 and propose that we delete section b entirely. Section a provides all the necessary machinery for the legislature to enact laws to accomplish the purposes that we desire to accomplish by this proposal.

Section b is strictly legislative, and we have from time to time here indicated that we want a constitution that is brief in form and which will give the authority without creating legislation, and that is what we are doing here. Apparently the sponsors, the committee here, are confused about what this section b will do. It would appear to me it would take years of court interpretation to determine exactly what powers are given in this section and that it would do nothing but create a state of confusion.

So I ask the committee, the delegates here, to support my amendment to delete section b, and I would like a record roll call vote because I would like the people in the area I come from to know how I voted and have it on record.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McAllister, it is impossible to have a recorded roll call vote in the committee of the whole. You can ask for a division on the amendment. The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegate McAllister to section b of Committee Proposal 88. The delegate requests a division. Is there support for a division vote? There is support for a division vote.

The Chair recognizes the delegate from Fennville, Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment offered by Mr. McAllister, for the reason that I sincerely believe that the committee in section b, instead of granting or setting forth some guidelines as it believes it is doing for the legislature, is greatly restricting the power of the legislature in this field.

I am convinced in my own mind that each and every part of this section b could as effectively be accomplished by the people who desire the creation of these sorts of things in Michigan if they would go to the legislature. They could get through the legislature practically, I am sure, the same thing that they have in section b here. If there is anything that is legislative in character, it is section b.

In the belief that this convention really wants to write a constitution which is constitutional in character and not legislative in character, I support this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I yield to Mr. Heideman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I would like to support the amendment and to endorse the very able statements made in connection therewith by Delegate Hutchinson.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge seek recognition?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I yield to Judge Dehnke.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Judge Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I can't take a position either way on this. I think I should call attention, however, to what this proposal means. As it now stands, it constitutes a command to the legislature to set up some form of metropolitan government. If section b is stricken, it is a matter entirely within the discretion of the legislature whether or not it will pass such a law.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Saginaw, Delegate Leppien.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I think I still have the floor.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the delegate yield to the gentleman from Saginaw?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I will yield.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the secretary has an amendment on the desk submitted by myself which is so much in keeping with the one just offered by Delegate McAllister that I will withdraw mine and support his amendment. If there is anything, delegates, that we have heard throughout the months that we have been sitting as a constitutional convention over and over and over and over, it is the fact that we should be not writing legislation into the constitution. I submit very frankly to you that from section b on through the end of the proposal, it is purely legislative in character and should be deleted.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Leppien withdraws his amendment. Will the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge yield to the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I will.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, it may well be that some of you think of this material as statutory, and if it is statutory, to be sure, it does not belong in the constitution. But I would like to warn this committee that if this constitution goes to the people in this era of great exploding population and increase of metropolitan area problems without any power in the local and state governments to solve these problems, that we will be doing our state a very great injury.

I think if there is need to reconsider this language, that some kind of procedure should be developed that will make that possible, and I am not enough of a parliamentarian to know what that procedure should be, but we must not at this moment close off the possibility of including in this constitution the assurance of power to our state and local governments to handle metropolitan problems.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I would like to strongly urge the defeat of this amendment for reasons that have been put forth here for several hours. I will repeat them only briefly.

We consider in the committee that this is a major breakthrough in the area of establishing in the constitution language which will clearly enunciate the position in which we wish local government to function.

There is a distinct difference between sections a and b, I believe, in that section b does require the legislature to provide for these following things. Now, within that proviso, they can make them as restrictive as they desire. I think that it is fundamental that what the majority of people in this convention are after is not another layer of government on top of what we already have, but a strengthening of those layers of government with which we are familiar, making them more responsive to the needs of the people, making it possible for them to meet those needs. Now, it may be that in this second section, section b, there is some language that can be eliminated in style and drafting and still give us the same intent and the same impact. If so, I am sure that our committee will be most willing to support that change.

But I do not think that the committee on local government will support a change which will change the whole emphasis. This was not something that was casually thought of. This is, it seems to me, the heart and soul of the local government committee, this and the next proposal that you are going to get. We have taken those familiar forms of government, those with which each of you is familiar, and we have in the preceding sections strengthened them and bolstered them for the future. Here is the springboard with which you can do in the future the things that are needed.

And for those reasons — not being a lawyer and not being quite so concerned whether or not the language is purely constitutional — I would urge the defeat of the amendment, with the recognition that the committee is satisfied to sit down with the chairman of the committee on style and drafting, Mr. Cudlip, and the other members of his committee, and work out more satisfactory constitutional language, if needed. And I will once again urge the defeat of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair had hoped that the committee of the whole might take a vote on the McAllister amendment, but there are 5 people seeking recognition.

Pursuant to the motion passed by the convention this morning, the Chair declares a recess for 10 minutes. We will reconvene at 10:55.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, the motion was that the committee would rise at this point. The Chair has no power to declare this committee in recess. If you will read the motion, that isn't what it says. It said that the committee would rise at this point, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The motion as I have it before me, Vice President Hutchinson, is that the committee of the whole by declaration of its chairman rises.

MR. HUTCHINSON: That is right. It rises, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Not recesses?

MR. HUTCHINSON: That is right, sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee of the whole will rise for 10 minutes and reconvene at 10:55.

MR. HUTCHINSON: All right. Mr. Nisbet will take the Chair. (laughter)

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: There will be one announcement by the secretary, please.

SECRETARY CHASE: For the benefit of the delegates who have amendments to offer from here on, would you please take them to the secretary's office. The girls in my office will be very glad to prepare them for you, and in that form they can be projected on the wall and we will have here the necessary copies as well. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson is entirely right in his interpretation.

The convention recesses for 10 minutes.

[Whereupon, at 10:50 o'clock a.m., and in pursuance of the order previously made, the convention recessed; and, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., reconvened.]

The convention will please come to order. In order to make this practice, which is so necessary, I think, work, will the delegates please attempt to return when the bell rings so we can reconvene the convention.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Mr. Mosier has filed with the secretary a request to be excused from the afternoon session so that he may attend a funeral of a relative in Battle Creek.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. Mosier will be exused.

The convention will now resolve into committee of the whole. Mr. DeVries.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Iverson, speaking on the amendment offered by Delegate McAllister to Committee Proposal 88.

MR. IVERSON: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I make simply this statement. I dislike to oppose the committee on any matters which are within reason, but I simply do not like legislative language. I must oppose, however, the amendment proposed by Mr. McAllister, because I don't think he intends to take away the power contained in the first part of section b, and I hope that someone at least will correct that situation after Mr. McAllister's amendment is voted on.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Bay City, Delegate Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: I dislike also to oppose the McAllister amendment, and I have some fears of sweeping away the entire section, and I am thinking particularly about subsection 3 and the consent of each unit of government involved, so I would like to see what can happen with this whole proposal between the first and second reading. So I will oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we really realize here what we are trying to do. I think that there are 2 points to keep in mind. I feel that Delegate McAllister's amendment to strike everything is because he wants nothing, and then you had a separate point, which probably will come later, that the language is statutory and therefore ought to be boiled down with something left.

The amendment before us is the first point to strike everything and nothing goes back in its place. What we are doing here is this: we are trying to prevent the Dade county situation where the legislature, because of frustrations in metropolitan areas, is forced to come in and do something quite drastic. And everyone who has studied the problem of metropolitan government says this: that if you can relieve the bottlenecks that exist between your several existing units of government, and free them up so they can handle these things cooperatively, then you are going to get away from this super-government that many people don't like, and this is not only rural but this is also municipal units.

Now, we are attempting here to preserve the integrity of our existing units of government by mandating the legislature to pass statutes under which these units can share services, share costs, make intercontractual agreements, and it is all on a voluntary basis. I will point out to you that on this subcommittee that made this recommendation to the full committee, we had a rather diverse group. We had Mr. Sharpe and Mr. Brake and Mrs. Cushman and myself, and we represented real rural and real urban, and we agreed on this unanimously.

The whole point that we are driving at in b is to prevent the legislature finding the necessity of coming in and setting up some new type of government, or we are preventing the legislature coming in and something happening to force city-county consolidation.

I can positively guarantee you that if we don't get this loosening up between our existing units, which this provides, then we hasten the day — and you will find it coming — when something could happen in the Detroit area similar to what happened down in Dade county.

This is one of the creative good things that this convention has the opportunity to do, and now we have an amendment on the floor to strike it all. I think this would be a terrible mistake. It will do exactly what you think it won't do. It will hasten so called big government.

Now, I will concede that the language probably is somewhat statutory and long and the language which Dr. Pollock turned in got into the international field and everything else so we couldn't use that. There probably is a way this could be boiled down. I would be willing to allow style and drafting at least to try it, but I feel that to strike everything out as this amendment now before us would do, would be a terrible mistake and this committee would really be going backwards when we now have an opportunity to go forward. And this has been supported, as I say, by this subcommittee — in fact, the whole committee of local government. So I certainly urge a no vote on this.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McAllister withdraws his amendment, and Mr. McAllister and Mr. Leppien jointly offer the following substitute amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "government.", by striking out the balance of the committee proposal; which will leave section b to read as follows:

> Sec. b. The legislature shall provide by general law for the exercise of local government by 2 or more counties, cities, villages, townships or districts, or any combination of 2 or more of such units of local government.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The McAllister amendment is withdrawn and a substitute is offered by Delegates McAllister and Leppien. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bad Axe, Delegate McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: On checking over this section, it appears that the first sentence in section b should be left in the proposal, so that now the proposal will be section a and the first sentence in section b. While I am on the floor, I would like to say that I believe the strongest support for this amendment comes from the chairman of the committee and the other speakers who have indicated that they themselves don't believe this section is in proper form. They would like to sit down and discuss it.

But I think that the amendment I have offered here covers the entire situation, and gives the state legislature all the authority that is needed to do anything that may be necessary to establish metropolitan communities. And, as I said before, we have repeatedly stressed in this convention that we do not want to legislate; we want to draft a constitution and let the legislature do the legislating. Apparently here we want to mandate the legislature to do something that the committee itself is very doubtful about.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, Mr. McAllister, we are not doubtful at all about what we want, and I am very grateful to learn that the delegate from Bad Axe was not interested in absolutely reversing the trend that we had spent so many hours on. And I would like to yield to Mr. Allen.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that the spirit in which this amendment is offered is certainly much more helpful than the first amendment which was to kill everything, but I would say that the trouble with this amendment is that it doesn't say anything that we haven't already said. If we follow this amendment — and this probably is the result of having to work something out, you know, immediately on the floor — it simply says: "The legislature shall provide by general law for the exercise of local government by 2 or more of our existing units," period. Well, the legislature has already provided for the exercise of local government in all of the constitutional provisions that we have had, and this only says "of 2 or more." I don't think it says enough.

The important point in this thing is the point that is spelled out in these subsections we have; that is, the exercise of it by the power to intercontract, the power to transfer services, the power to share costs and to cooperate. So, Mr. McAllister, under your new amendment, it doesn't go far enough. What we want to say is that they shall do it and they have the power to do it, providing they each consent, in these specific ways, and this amendment doesn't go far enough.

Now, I don't care what kind of an amendment comes on the floor today — unless we get into a real style and drafting job and adjourn or recess for an hour or so — you are going to hit the same problems. I think the thing to do — we know what we are driving at — is to pass this as we have it — and subject to Mr. Elliott's agreeing to it; I can't do this unilaterally. If style and drafting can come up in a condensed way with something better, let them do it. But to try and work it out now, no.

Now, I know Mr. Hutchinson has said on style and drafting that it may make some substantive change and I don't know just how to handle it, just stick with this or let him bring it back. I don't know. I have alternate feelings. I think in view of the discussion we have had this morning I now feel: well, let style and drafting condense it even if they make some substantive changes, as long as they get these essential points in about intercontracting and sharing of costs and so on. But I would oppose the McAllister amendment — which I think is offered as a constructive measure — because it doesn't go far enough.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Goebel.

MR. GOEBEL: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Elliott, I feel just exactly as Mr. Allen does about this. If the verbiage does not meet with the approval of some of the delegates on the floor, I believe, with Delegate Allen, that this can be taken care of very properly. But we do need the intent of this particular section in order that all the governmental units in a metropolitan area may do for themselves that which is best for all of them, and I therefore oppose the McAllister and Leppien amendment and urge that you vote for the committee proposal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I think we all have agreed by what has been said here this morning that the legislature has all the power to do everything that has been contained in Committee Proposal 88. The intent of the committee seems to be, from what I read in it, to give direction to the legislature in a field that now to some degree is nonexistent, except there is some example or at least one about the state, the cooperation of various units of government, and therefore it seems to me that we are going far beyond the necessity for putting any language in beyond the point of the amendment offered.

I urge the adoption of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Davis.

MR. DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, delegates, I think that some of the thoughts that I have on this have already been expressed. Personally, I happen to be in favor of this committee proposal and the idea that is contained in it, but I feel that some of the objections which have been raised in the manner in which Mr. Hutchinson, Mr. Bonisteel and others have raised them have caused doubt in my mind.

I am not a lawyer. Now, I think that there are many of us who were asked to put their stamp of approval or rejection upon some matters on which we talked at great length here in debate, and at this time I would like to say that I am going to vote along with the committee. If I thought this were the final thing, I frankly would vote against it because I have been persuaded by debate that this is not good language, and it would be my hopes that either style and drafting or someone else could handle this matter. And I think we have, frankly, taken up considerable time on this matter, so I will quit talking at this point.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I am rather torn between 2 views. I have on the secretary's desk an amendment identical with Mr. McAllister's as to the first sentence. I also am impressed with the necessity of retaining the final language of this section for the reasons set forth in the report of the committee as to authority to serve in dual capacity. Now, I feel that the intervening language which the McAllister amendment would strike is language that certainly does not go far enough in full legislation and spelling out of the powers of the consolidating units. It should go further. But I don't think it is constitutional language. I think it should be written by the legislature after timely consideration.

I don't think that either this committee or the committee on style and drafting can do an adequate job, so I wish at this time to oppose the McAllister amendment, solely for the reason that I submit to you that the final language of this section following the subnumbered paragraphs is essential to the plan suggested by Mr. Allen and the committee on local government.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I don't wish to continue the debate indefinitely on this proposal. I want to agree, in the first place, with what Mr. Prettie just said. There is some language in that last paragraph which the amendment would strike that I think we ought to definitely retain. I don't know whether this constitution is going to have anything dealing with the incompatibility of 2 offices at the same time, but it is a troublesome question, one that bothers the attorney general continuously. This would clarify it. I think it should be there.

I want to answer just one statement made by Mr. McAllister, that we are creating confusion. The confusion, Mr. McAllister, is already there. Everybody, practically, recognizes that there has to be something done to meet these problems in the metropolitan area. Very, very few indeed have any idea as to what that something ought to be. This sets forth a pattern. It is statutory. Of course it is statutory. But it is a pattern and given with the dignity and the stature of a constitutional provision. It says: here is a way that you can follow in trying to meet that problem which everybody recognizes exists.

And I think it has the further purpose of trying to steer these metropolitan areas into the solution of their problem through the cooperation, the contracting, the sharing of costs of units already in existence instead of the creation of a fourth level of government. That is the conflict over the country — shall we do it with our present units, or shall we create additional units of government? I think everybody on our subcommittee agreed that the present units if it is possible at all, ought to handle the problem. This is at least an invitation, if nothing more, to try to meet the problem that way.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: I would like to attempt to clarify the record here just in case of an adverse vote on this section. Mr. Leppien has, it seems to me, agreed the legislature has the power and the authority to establish the 5 — what shall we say? — powers as enumerated on page 1 beginning w'th "(1)" down through page 2 at the end of line 20, and I would, again for the record, ask Mr. McAllister if he agrees with that? In other words, the only thing that you are attempting to do is to eliminate the so called "statutory language" and you believe that the legislature has the full power and authority to do the enumerated powers set forth in pages 1 and 2?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Binkowski yields to Delegate McAllister for the purpose of answering a question.

MR. McALLISTER: It is my opinion that the amendment offered gives the legislature full authority. It seems to me also, if the committee has some ideas, it can submit them to the legislature. This matter here, as I have said before, is so broad that it reminds me of a bucket full of nail holes. You don't know which one to repair first.

So it is my opinion that the amendment as now submitted by Mr. Leppien and myself is adequate to do anything that may be necessary to accomplish the purposes desired, and it is certainly not my intention by asking for this amendment to interfere with the establishment of metropolitan authorities. In fact, I am for them. But I think that we should know where we are going. As Mr. Brake has said, there is lots of confusion, but I don't know why we should stand on one foot at one time and limit constitutional provisions, and then enact, in effect, statutory law in the constitution at another time.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. McAllister, again, I don't want to belabor this point, but I just want to find out your thinking as to the motivation for making this amendment, because someone in going over this record might, by implication, believe from your comments that you feel that the legislature might not have the authority to establish any one of these powers as set forth and as enumerated in Committee Proposal 88.

MR. McALLISTER: I hope I understand you. I feel that my amendment as originally introduced was adequate, but to remove any question about it, I have agreed with Mr. Leppien — and it was his idea — to add the additional sentence. Does that answer your question, Mr. Binkowski?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: The question I had — and it has been raised here several times this morning is that it appears that some people are beginning to feel that style and drafting is a different type of committee, and it has been said here by Mr. Allen that perhaps style and drafting can change the language around. But I didn't think that was the original intent of Mr. Cudlip's committee, and I don't think they want to take on that burden of writing something that the committee should write.

It appears that there are some confusing points on this. I agree very much with Mr. McAllister that we are for a new type of government within the larger municipal areas if they want it, but we have to give them the proper language from the floor here, and I don't believe style and drafting should be given that job.

If Mr. Cudlip would like to answer that, I am sure his committee doesn't want to take on this chore.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Lundgren yields to Delegate Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. Chairman and members, the functions of our committee are clearly set forth in Journal 3, page 14, and we have plenty of work up there without added burdens. There are areas where we perhaps will make some suggestions to this body by way of recommendation, but we aren't usurping any functions.

While I am here, I would like to emphasize what Senator Brake said. The philosophy here is simply this on this paragraph b: it is a case of whether a mother and father tell the children, 5 or 6 of them — analogous to our political units — "Here are the guidelines; you have the power to do it"; or whether they have to come hat in hand on Sunday morning to get that permission. That is the difference in the philosophy here, and the sooner we get that in our minds and know what we are voting for, I think the better off we will be.

MR. LUNDGREN: I would just like to conclude that I agree with the McAllister amendment as modified here. I think it provides within the legislature the framework to create these new municipal governments that the larger areas want, and therefore I subscribe to the amended report.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I will support and want to support the McAllister-Leppien amendment, and I will give you a specific reason. On page 2, paragraph 2, they set forth that in this joint function, whether by contract or by compact, that the only way the costs of operating that function can be accomplished is to share the cost and responsibilities of the functions or services one with another.

If we were in the Muskegon area to set up a metropolitan water or sewer or combination utility, there is no reason whatsoever why that utility should not have the right to be financed entirely by charges to the users thereof, and there should be no requirement that the costs and responsibilities — and especially the word "costs" — be referred back to each township, village and city and by them collected.

If you read this language, there is no provision for the metropolitan government to be a self financing unit. I call your attention to this because this is a danger of writing such detailed statutory language into a constitution. Were the legislature to say this, that they should share the cost, and the court say that therefore the metropolitan government could not bill the consumer direct because this requires the sharing of cost according to contract, and it says here "each local unit of government"; it does not say "the consumer thereof" — the legislature could correct such obvious oversight.

My construction may be overtechnical, but I call your attention to the fact that it says to share the costs one with another. Nowhere in this does it provide that the consumer can be required to pay or that the metropolitan unit or the jointly used function can be financed solely from the revenues. It must be billed back, as this language is written, to the local city and township.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I yield to Delegate Allen.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Hanna, I think you completely misunderstand that. There is nothing here that says that a city which puts up a water utility or sewage utility can't, if it wishes, continue to finance it from consumers' costs. There is nothing here at all that says that he can't do that. This simply says that if the city of Muskegon and Muskegon Heights want to go into a sewage disposal facility and share the costs together in some way, they may. But if the city of Muskegon wants to do it entirely by user charges, they can go ahead and do it this way. There is nothing compulsory here at all, and there is nothing that changes the existing way we are doing things.

In addition to that, this only refers to units of government which are now in existence. This doesn't preclude anything that now exists. This gives an additional right, but the additional right may only be exercised if both of the participating units want to exercise it.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. Allen, this is the first time I have ever heard the word "cost" limited to capital expenditures. To me the cost of a function includes the operating expenses as well as the capital expenditures. And you have said "shall be shared." I am saying that as you have it, they could operate, I will agree with you, a wholesale function, but they would have to bill back to the local function, and the local function would have to bill the consumer. You have not provided that the joint function can be financed solely from the revenues thereof. And when I say "cost" I mean capital and expenditures.

MR. ALLEN: No, quite the opposite. This simply says if 2 units of government want to build a sewage disposal plant and finance the capital costs or any other costs, they may do so if they want. If they want to do it all on user charges, that is under the existing law. Nothing is changed in here, and there is nothing mandatory.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, by the device of sitting quietly, it is possible to have everything said on this point that can possibly be said, with one exception perhaps, and that is that this is pioneering language and in a field where pioneering is absolutely necessary, and it seems to me this is one of the most important proposals that has been before this committee. If you strike out the language which Delegate McAllister wants to strike out, you eliminate the pioneering aspects of the thing entirely. And it seems to me that this is a case where some legislative language is in order, in order to give the sort of guidelines that Delegate Cudlip has referred to.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, and Mr. Elliott, I should like to ask through the Chair of the sponsors of this amendment, Delegate McAllister and Delegate Leppien, if they have any objections to the amendment which will be offered by Delegate Prettie.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McAllister?

MR. McALLISTER: I have been apprised of the proposed amendment, and it meets with my approval, and I will support it.

MR. STEVENS: Then I would vote against this amendment with the idea of voting for the Prettie amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I first wish to say that I am heartily in accord with the objectives herein set forth. It just seemed to me that we were again faced with this question of what tasks are we going to assign or to leave to the legislature. Are we going to continue to write constitutional statutes, in effect, or are we going to try to write a constitution and leave the statutes to the legislature? So it is on that principle and not on the basis of trying to be against something here that I spoke. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: Mr. Chairman and delegates, the discussion we have just heard between Delegates Allen and Hanna points up the sort of difficulty that we are bound to get into if we undertake to put statutory requirements into a constitutional provision.

I do not live in an area personally that is interested in problems of this kind, but I do know those problems exist, and it is for that reason that I am willing to support the adoption of the first sentence of section b, but to go beyond that brings us into the field of legislation, and we have only touched upon the number of problems that can be raised in that connection. I was hoping that when the amendment to strike out all of section b was withdrawn and the present amendment was presented, the advocates of this type of constitutional provision would be satisfied. I think that is as far as they ought to expect the committee to go, to not only give the legislature power to set up such a statute, but section b places a duty upon the legislature to set up such a statute.

I have no objection to including the final paragraph, but I think it would be a mistake to include in a constitutional provision the specifications listed from 1 to 5. The question might even be raised that the legislature has no power to impose any other conditions except those set forth. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Was the gentleman from Midland, Delegate Rood, seeking recognition on the amendment? Delegate Rood.

MR. ROOD: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I think what we are doing here demonstrates graphically the impossibility of attempting to amend on the floor of this committee a matter as important as the one we are now dealing with. I am in favor of what is being attempted here in this committee proposal. However, I feel that the matter is so important that it deserves further consideration.

For that reason, and well knowing that the committee may not appreciate my making this motion, I am going to move that this proposal be passed until a time certain. Now, there is nothing magical about the time I am going to suggest, but I am going to suggest that it be passed until Monday at 4:00 o'clock.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Rood moves that Committee Proposal 88 be passed until next Monday at 4:00 p.m. Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would urge that we not concur in Mr. Rood's motion. There are other amendments.

The fact of the matter is, Mr. Chairman, I now move that the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the motion of Delegate Elliott that the committee of the whole do now rise. As many as are in favor will say aye. As many as are opposed will say no.

The motion prevails and the committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain items on which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 88, A proposal pertaining to metropolitan areas; has considered several amendments thereto; has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole.

We have some announcements and requests, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: First of all, the apples recently furnished were by Mr. Burton Richards. (applause)

Mr. Arthur Elliott requests that the committee on local government meet at 11:45 in room A.

The subcommittee on eminent domain will meet in room G after the morning session. Mr. Paul Mahinske, subcommittee chairman.

The committee on administration will meet at 1:45 for the committee photograph.

The secretary has noticed some difficulty on the part of some of the delegates in adjusting the height of these microphones. Under the platform there is this little black collar. If you will use that, that will lower or raise it without difficulty.

We have the following requests for leave: Mr. Gust requests to be excused from tomorrow's session; and Mr. Goebel wishes to be excused from tomorrow's session to attend a meeting of the board of regents of the University of Michigan.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests will be granted.

Further announcements, Mr. Chase?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mrs. Conklin.

MRS. CONKLIN: Mr. President, I just want to ask a point of information. On Tuesday the administration committee submitted their report on the post convention expense of the post convention committee. It was put over until Wednesday at 2:00. What do we do with it?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries, would you like to comment on it?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move that Resolution 70 be laid over until tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. DeVries. Those in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Mr. Iverson.

MR. IVERSON: Mr. President, I move we recess until 2:00 o'clock.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on recess. Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are recessed until 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 11:40 o'clock a.m., the convention recessed; and at 2:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

The convention will please come to order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: We are now on the order of general orders. The Chair recognizes Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for the consideration of certain items on the order of general orders.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. DeVries. Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Mr. DeVries.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee of the whole will come to order.

When last the committee met, it was considering an amendment offered by Delegates McAllister and Leppien to section b of Committee Proposal 88. A division vote had been requested and supported. The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would yield to Mr. Prettie.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: Mr. Chairman, I request that the pending amendment of Messrs. McAllister and Leppien be revised by reinserting the language of Committee Proposal 88 appearing on page 2, lines 21 to 27.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the revision.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Prettie requests a revision of the amendment offered by Messrs. McAllister and Leppien, which amendment is:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "government.", by striking out the balance of the committee proposal.

Mr. Prettie requests the amendment be revised to read as follows:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "government.", by striking out the balance of the line and all of lines 21, 22 and 23; and on page 2, by striking out lines 1 through 20, inclusive; so section b would be left in the following form:

> Sec. b. The legislature shall provide by general law for the exercise of local government by 2 or more counties, cities, villages, townships or districts, or any combination of 2 or more of such units of local government.

With the revision, the rest of the section would be deleted down to line 21 on page 2, which reads:

> Any other provision of this constitution notwithstanding, an officer or employee of any of said units of government or subdivision or agency thereof may serve on or with any governmental body established for the above purposes and shall not be required to relinquish his office or employment by reason of such service.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Prettie revision to the McAllister and Leppien amendment. Does the gentleman from Hillsdale desire recognition?

MR. PRETTIE: No, thank you, sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: I accept the Prettie revision to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McAllister?

MR. McALLISTER: I accept the Prettie revision.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would, for all the reasons given before, urge the defeat of this amendment. I yield to Mr. Tweedie.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the gentleman from Port Huron, Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, our committee on local government didn't make a whole lot of changes and additions to the article because we didn't feel it was needed in most areas. However, this was one area where we felt there could be a real contribution and a real step forward in local government. I think everything we mentioned here was important. I don't think any of it should be eliminated. The committee was unanimous in its approval of this, and it is an area which is largely unexplored in this country. And I would oppose any amendments that would cut out any part of this proposal as it now stands before the committee, and I recommend that we adopt this just as it is, with any small changes in wording left up to style and drafting.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Sleder.

MR. SLEDER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I should address a few remarks to the people who are non-lawyers. As I don't talk in terms of attorneys, I should like to address a few remarks to people who have come to this convention in the same manner in which I did. I feel that I represent the regular cross section of the twenty-seventh senatorial district. When I came to this convention, I felt, as we all felt, there were certain areas in this state government that needed improvement, and 1 of these was local government, and the 2 areas in local government that especially were in trouble were the metropolitan government and the counties.

Therefore, in our hearings that we held in local government, these items proved to be correct, and we have tried to correct these 2 items in Committee Proposal 88, which we are now considering, and the county one in Committee Proposal 89 which will be the next item on the agenda. In order to correct the problems in the metropolitan areas, which I think we all feel we want to correct and improve, we must take a new concept of that type of government, and this proposal sets out a new form, and when we set out a new form, our language must be new. We cannot draw upon any language that is in the existing constitution.

I realize that, as lawyers, when we do write new language, it is tested and it probably will be tested in the courts. However, if we are to move this state ahead as we as delegates of this state want to do, if we want to correct the problems which are facing this state, we must face up to them right here and right now, and as soon as we start taking away the strength of Committee Proposal 88, we are not facing up to the problems which we face here today in the state of Michigan.

I therefore urge every delegate to seriously consider the proposal that was made by the committee, Committee Proposal 88, and that they defeat every amendment that is placed before this committee relative to changing this proposal because, fellow delegates, we as a state must move. We must correct the troubles we are having in our metropolitan areas, and there is only one way we can do it and that is to go forward. The criticism, of course, is that some of this is legislative; it is new. Yes, it is new, so therefore we feel we have to lead the way. We placed things back into the constitution — civil service. That is purely legislative. It has been there already. We could have left that to the legislature; but no, we placed it back in the constitution. And here is an area where we must go ahead. We must lead the way for the legislature and all the people of the state of Michigan, and to do that, we must adopt this proposal, Committee Proposal 88. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would yield to Mrs. Cushman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the lady from Dearborn, Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Mr. Chairman and delegates, one interesting thing about this is the fact that metropolitan government is not completely new. Many governments have already taken steps in this direction, but the steps that they have taken have merely indicated to them that there is need for something more in the constitution to help them out.

I would like to mention a couple of things along the line of attempts to meet the metropolitan problem. For example, we have the city of Detroit which now, as I think you probably are well aware, provides water for a considerable area outside the city of Detroit. This is an attempt to meet the metropolitan problem. But they run into some problems of financing in this area that they would feel that we could solve if we had a strong metropolitan government section in the constitution. We might point out too that the city of Detroit and the county of Wayne got together on this office building. Now here is another example where I guess they ran into some considerable financing problems on this in trying to work out some sort of a joint project and finance it adequately.

The intercounty supervisors committee is composed of representatives of the board of supervisors of 6 counties in southeastern Michigan, and they have done an outstanding job, as I think many people agree. However, their hands are comparatively tied when it comes to certain areas of taking action on the things that they have worked out. And also you have this Huron river situation where I think you had something like 8 counties or 4 counties, 8 townships and 12 cities and villages or something of the sort combining to try to make the Huron river valley a better valley, a planned economy in terms of the use of that water for recreation and for other purposes throughout that area. They did a fine job of planning, but when it came to taking action, they found themselves tremendously handicapped. In fact, they were prohibited under the constitution. And here again they feel that a strong metropolitan government section is something that is necessary in order to enable them to move ahead in these various areas. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Elliott, when I ran for this office as a constitutional convention delegate, I knew that Livingston and Shiawassee counties had some problems, and I knew that Burns and Osceola townships had problems, but I didn't consider the problems that Wayne county might have had or that Taylor township might have had. As a matter of fact, I am not so sure that I was much interested in their problems as long as they didn't come out and mess up Livingston and Shiawassee counties. (laughter) Since I have been here, I am surprised at all the problems that everyone has, and you know you all have problems within your own territory.

I am not so sure that all this language is copacetic. I don't know. I am not an attorney. There are some things that might not be exactly what they should be. However, I believe that style and drafting can take care of this sort of a thing. Knowing Mr. Hutchinson is on the style and drafting committee, I am sure he will.

But I want to relate to you some of the troubles that they do have in the metropolitan area in relation to bus lines, sewers, water, park and recreation. This Detroit city has made an extensive study on a water development program with sewerage development where they have projected themselves out into the future, where there is a high possibility that one of these days they will be piping water out into Livingston county as far as Brighton and out into Ingham county as far as Stockbridge, and picking up raw sewerage and taking it back into the city of Detroit. Now, those of you that have not done your home work, if you will get out one of these maps that I didn't have a chance to unfold and take a look at the water development program that the city of Detroit has projected for the metropolitan area, you will see that they have gone a long ways out of their city and into the townships of many counties outlying Wayne county.

And I believe that this sort of a section that we have written into this constitution, or are attempting to write into it, would meet the demand of the metropolitan area which extends around Detroit. I am real conservative, as most of you know. When I came here, I thought I might be a little liberal, but I found out that I am ultra conservative, (laughter) and I believe that if we would just pass this Committee Proposal 88 through and wait for the second reading on it, after style and drafting have dotted the i's, that probably we will come up with something that we can all live with. And I would urge your support of Committee Proposal 88.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is there objection to incorporating the Prettie revision into the language of the amendment offered by Delegates McAllister and Leppien in that the sponsors have already accepted the amendment? I hear none. The question before the committee is on the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegates McAllister and Leppien as revised. The Chair recognizes Delegate Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I would like to speak in favor of the original committee report that came out of the committee. I believe that while it could be stronger in some ways, it is a definite step in the right direction. Metropolitan government is an important problem and I believe the language that some say is statutory in nature at least can serve as a mandate to the legislature and give the legislature needed guidance as to what was wanted. I do not see this as a limitation on the legislature, because in no place does it say these are the only powers the legislature can exercise. I therefore support the committee report.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: Ladies and gentlemen of this committee of the whole, I have a couple of questions that I would like to ask at this time, and in preface to that, while I don't have any objection to the people from Oakland and Kent and Wayne county and so forth shaping their own affairs in the future, I am wondering whether or not this language in this proposed Committee Proposal 88 does away with the requirement of elected officials, and I would like first an answer on that particular question, especially with reference to the fact as to whether or not the legislature may state that everyone shall be appointed.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Pellow yields to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: No.

MR. PELLOW: In other words, am I correct in assuming then, sir, for the purposes of the record, that every prosecutor, every sheriff, every clerk, every treasurer, every register of deeds will be elected by the people, and the people will have an opportunity to go to the polls to vote for the elected officials?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I can't do that one quite as shortly. This proposal in no way affects that particular provision and the provisions of the constitution which you refer to, so I think that the answer that I gave you originally is correct. You will have to interpret it from there.

MR. PELLOW: Thank you. In other words, everyone will be elected. Now, that is a very basic premise, and I appreciate the fact that the chairman of the local government committee stated that every officer that is now elected shall be elected in the future regardless of any action of the legislature. (laughter)

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman, point of order.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: What is your point of order?

MR. BINKOWSKI: I think, Mr. Pellow, that we are now on county home rule.

MR. PELLOW: Yes, sir, we are, Mr. Binkowski. Whether you realize it or not, we are talking about metropolitan Wayne county. But I am assuming what is going to happen to the outstate areas and I have a definite concern in that. That is why I raise this issue at this time.

Now, regarding page 2, section b, since everyone will be elected by the people as far as page 1 goes, I am questioning whether or not the committee has taken into consideration the fact that no party that may have an interest in contracts, no party that may be an employee of a large industrial concern will obtain a position not only on the board of supervisors, but on one of these agencies, and by the use of his influence obtain favorable contracts for his concern. Was that particular section gone over by the committee on local government? I know there are many cases citing the fact that an individual shall not be directly concerned with profits either directly or indirectly in any capacity when he represents the people, and I would suggest that this particular language seems to open the door to individuals obtaining positions in various governmental units who can adequately protect in the future their own particular needs.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Pellow, we feel that there is adequate protection for the people, and that the provisions of this last paragraph are provisions which are needed to give efficient operation of those combined services if they are shared by various communities.

MR. PELLOW: In other words, an individual may serve perhaps as an insurance agent and so forth, and then allow his company to sell insurance to the government; may have perhaps a factory and sell cars, or may do many other individual things that he gets upon a particular agency or unit of government; is that correct, sir?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Pellow, it is not correct.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the amendment to section b. Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I think we are not on the amendment right now, except that Mr. Pellow is in that last paragraph, and maybe I can resolve it rather quickly. The language says "an officer or employee of any of said units of government," which means that he is serving as an elected official or as an employee "may serve on or with any governmental body established." It doesn't say that he can do business with them privately. It merely says that he can serve on that body. And the purpose of it is, as you can well see, to give the talent of the various administrative officers or elected officials that are needed to an organization or a unit which is going to combine many different units of government.

MR. PELLOW: One more question then. In other words, the intent of this section is absolutely not to open the door to authorize one to do business with a unit of government?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Pellow, there was no such intent.

MR. PELLOW: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: If there ever was a time when I would like to be able to vote 2 ways, this is it. As between my desire to write only constitutional language into the constitution and the very cogent eloquent arguments in favor of this modernization, I would like to read from a poem here, At Sea In Storm:

> What are all the storms of the sea beside the storm in the human breast,
> The whining of tackle and straining of mast
> Beside that voice that gives no rest?
> Not all the sea's wonders can be compared
> With these that wake and these that sleep,
> With these that live and these that die in your soul's unfathomed deep.

This happened to be from a collection of poems written by my sister.

And I am in the position where I am going to see conversion by voting for the committee and contrary to what I said before, although I still believe in the principle.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: It is a little difficult, Mr. Chairman and delegates, to reconcile the position of the committee with the position they took this morning. Mr. Elliott stated that the legislature can modify this; that the committee report was confusing; that something had to be done about it. I think that idea was expressed also by Mr. Allen and others. And now after lunch here, we have a position where no part of the document is to be changed. They have indicated that style and drafting can take care of any errors that appear in the committee report. We have already heard from the chairman of style and drafting, and if my memory serves me correctly, style and drafting can't change the wording in this particular proposal. The proposal would be substantially the same except to correct grammatical errors or something of that type.

There is no question here but what the amendment presently before the committee will give the legislature adequate authority to set up what is desired, and the position of the opposition here on this matter is strictly that they want this mandatory language in the constitution which in effect is a blank check to be endorsed by those who operate under this for any amount they want. And it seems to me it is about time that we should take into consideration the word "economy" in its strictest sense. It seems that time after time, in fact in over 4 months in this convention, the word "economy" as it is generally understood is a forgotten word.

I feel that the amendment before the committee is sound. It gives all the power that is needed. And why we wish to put this matter in such shape that it is mandatory for the legislature to do these things, I can't understand.

I might say that this certainly is not a lawyer's amendment. All the lawyers should be for the original committee report if they are interested in it from a financial standpoint because we would probably be writing the next constitution before the language, which is so broad that it can encompass almost anything, will be interpreted by the court and I, as a lawyer, don't want to earn my money in that way. There is lots of business and we don't need to create something like this to create legal business.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I think that we should attempt to analayze the arguments both pro and con on this issue and determine just exactly what the proposal purports to do. I think that what it does is that it unequivocally provides constitutional authority for legislative implementation where that authority may at present be doubtful at least. I assume from the conversations and the arguments that took place this morning that the committee has no great brief for the particular language that is presently in their proposal, that it will permit changing of the form, certainly, and changing of the particular words used. This I have always understood to be a proper function of the committee on style and drafting, and I assume it can be done here. I, for instance, have many objections to some of the language myself. I notice that it starts off in the very first and says "A proposal pertaining to metropolitan areas."

I think that section b is very interesting from my standpoint, because there are many areas where rural units of government, so to speak, could combine together and perform functions much more efficiently and much more advantageously than they presently can under the somewhat doubtful constitutional basis for legislation in this field, and consequently no legislation has resulted therefrom.

I hope that a mere matter of language and the fact that as presently drafted it might lead to serious problems insofar as judicial interpretation is concerned, that these arguments will not be posed at this time but can be raised, if they are still apropos, when this comes back for second reading.

I would therefore urge support of the committee proposal as it now stands, with the idea that if the language is still as subject to as many judicial interpretations as Mr. McAllister and others say it would be, that this will be raised at that second reading and not at this time, that we may move on to the other provisions of the local government committee's proposal.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegates McAllister and Leppien as revised by Delegate Prettie to section b of Committee Proposal 88. A division vote has been requested and supported. As many as are in favor of the amendment will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Messrs. McAllister and Leppien, the yeas are 29; the nays are 95.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment, as revised, is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 88?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hoxie offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 23, after "another" by striking out "or with the state"; and on page 2, line 7, after "another" by striking out "or with the state"; so that the language in each case would read on page 1, item 1, "To enter into contractual undertakings or agreements with one another or with any combination thereof for the joint administration of any of the functions or powers. . . ."; and item 2, "To share the costs and responsibilities of functions and services with one another or with any combination thereof. . . ."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Hoxie amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from St. Louis, Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I believe Mr. Upton has some identical amendments. It is our desire that they be joined, and I would like to yield to Mr. Upton.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie yields to Delegate Upton.

MR. UPTON: Mr. Chairman, delegates, in reviewing the language of this committee proposal, I thought there had been much discussion already this morning of the part the state shall play in such developments. I personally feel that the state should be restricted in participating in such metropolitan organizations, or counties or townships working as a team. Therefore, I think the committee of the whole at this time should make its decision as to what part we want the state to play in this type of work.

And so I join with Mr. Hoxie in promoting this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, Delegate Upton's amendment will be withdrawn and he will be added as a cosponsor with Delegate Hoxie to the amendment.

I hear no objection, it is so ordered.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. Allen.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, first let me say that I think Mr. Hoxie's amendment stems from the fact that he is worried about the internal improvement section of the constitution under article X. And as I stated this morning and others have stated, this grants no further power to the state than the power that otherwise in this constitution the state possesses, so there is no grant of power. We don't have to worry in that regard.

Secondly, there are many things that the state can do which are not related to internal improvements. And remember, what we are doing is drawing a document for 50 years. Now, we know that under this proposal there is nothing compulsory about making the state enter into any sort of arrangement with a local unit of government. It is entirely voluntary. It is up to the legislature in fields where the state has the authority.

Now, the state can't come in where it doesn't have the authority. But should we say today that we are going to shut out the state for the next 50 years? I think it is a good idea to have the state mentioned here in order that the state may work with local units in areas where the state might want to do it and where it might be very desirable to do it.

President Eisenhower came down here and he talked about strengthening state government. You aren't going to strengthen state government if you tie it up and say that they can't work with local units of government. If you say this, you are eventually going to be driven to go to Washington a lot sooner than you do now.

It seems to me this is a device where, within the powers which the constitution grants, first of all, the state may, if the legislature wishes — and I think there will be places where it does wish to do so — cooperate with local units of government. I think it would be a lot less expensive to the state in some fields to do it this way, because your local units of government may say: "Well, we don't have enough power to do it alone. We want some more money, some more earmarking, some more escrow funds, or we want you, the state, to do this alone rather than us sharing ½ or 2/3 or ¾ — or whatever it may be — of the costs." So I don't think now we should shut the state out, and we have the legislature as the regulator.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Schoolcraft, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I would like to address a question to Mr. Hoxie through the Chair. That is, I am referring back to Committee Proposal 101, which was reported out by your committee, and in the very first section of that proposal, you refer to "The state shall not be a party to or be interested in any work of internal improvement, nor engage and carry on any such work except . . . ." and under (1) you have "in the development, improvement or control of, or aiding in the development, improvement and control of public roads, harbors," and so on. Now, my question is: what other local unit of government other than those mentioned in Committee Proposal 88 would the state be aiding?

It seems to me that you by your very committee report have contemplated that in some areas the state will have to aid. Of course, this will be subject to a legislative enactment, so there will not be participation under Committee Proposal 88 that will not be permitted under Committee Proposal 101.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, Committee Proposal 101 deals with the state engaging in internal improvements. The first sentence of our present constitution prohibits the state from engaging in internal improvements. Those 4 subsections are exceptions. They are the type of internal improvement which was felt, in the adoption of the constitution before, to be of such statewide interest that there could be or should be exceptions in those fields: roads, airports, waterways and things of that nature.

Then, on the new language which the committee adopted and reported to the floor, we did allow local units of government to engage in other types of internal improvement at the local level at their own expense. That is the difference between our proposal as we submitted it to the floor and Committee Proposal 88, which clearly, according to the opinion of our research people and under the language that they have there now, by legislative act could involve the people of the state of Michigan helping to finance at the local level certain types of internal improvement that do not relate to the state of Michigan as a whole.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Hoxie, then are you saying that in Committee Proposal 88, this would authorize, in a sense, activities on behalf of the state; that the state could aid in the doing of these things under 88 which would be precluded under 101?

MR. HOXIE: Perhaps I did not make myself clear. Under Committee Proposal 88, the state of Michigan by legislative act could become financially involved in projects at the local level. Under Committee Proposal 101, the state could not become involved in projects at the local level, with the exception of such involvement being at their own expense.

Now, the problem we ran into — and perhaps this might clear it up — is that local units of government, because they are instrumentalities of the state, could not do anything that the state couldn't do. So as a result of that reasoning, we did have the additional paragraph in new language which would clearly spell out that local units of government could engage in those types of internal improvement at their own expense in which the state could not become involved.

Now, under this Committee Proposal 88, the state can become financially involved in carrying on all those types of programs that they are now prohibited from but which would be permissive under Committee Proposal 101. Do I make myself clear?

MR. G. E. BROWN: Well, I am not sure that you do, Mr. Hoxie. It seems to me that you were saying that 88 is so broad as to permit activity by the state which would be precluded by strict interpretation of 101.

Now, I can't believe that that is the interpretation that would ever be given to Committee Proposal 88. In each case you will notice it says "which each unit of government would have the power to perform separately." Now, if 101 would limit the legislature from participating in many of these things, they could not participate in these programs under 88, I would assume, and this is the only logical interpretation you can give to it, I believe.

MR. HOXIE: I think there is a little misunderstanding there, Mr. Brown. I think it is 2 different concepts. In 88 the concept is that the state may help finance projects at the local level. In 101 we recognize the problem of government at the local level or a combination of cities, counties, and whatnot, and we remove that restriction which under the court decisions have determined that being instrumentalities of the state, they would be prohibited from engaging in those other types of activity.

But with the new language in 101, that would give them the complete authority to engage in the type of activities indicated in 88, but the difference is, Mr. Brown, that it would be at the local unit's expense. And if you read the language in section b on the amendment relating to that section, I think you will clearly see that the state, as indicated by the opinion I quoted this morning, could become financially involved in the projects of local units of government, which I do not think is desirable.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the amendment offered by Delegates Hoxie and Upton to section b. As many as are in favor of the amendment —

MR. HOXIE: Division, please.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hoxie requests a division. Is there support for a division vote? There is sufficient support for a division vote. The question now is the adoption of the Hoxie-Upton amendment to section b, and the secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1082.]

MR. HOXIE: Will you have the section with the amendments read now?

SECRETARY CHASE: The language of item 1 at the bottom of page 1 would then read:

(1) To enter into contractual undertakings or agreements with one another or with any combination thereof for the joint administration of any of the functions or powers which each local unit of government would have the power to perform separately;

and item 2 with the amendment would read:

(2) To share the costs and responsibilities of functions and services with one another or with any combination thereof which each local unit of government would have the power to perform separately. . . .

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Hoxie-Upton amendment. As many as are in favor will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the Hoxie-Upton amendment, the yeas are 25; the nays are 92.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 88?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. King offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, following line 20, by inserting a new subsection (6) to read as follows:

"(6) The purchase of public utilities or granting of public utility franchises except in the fields of heat, power and light shall be in a manner as provided by law, notwithstanding constitutional provisions to the contrary, if approved by a majority of the voters voting thereon of each unit of government to be involved.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the King amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pontiac, Delegate King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I think that what I am trying to accomplish here in no way weakens the fine work of the committee on local government. It has occurred to me and to several others of us that what we did in Committee Proposal 83 the other day with regard to a 3/5 majority involving utilities was perhaps a very wise thing and I supported it to the effect that 3/5 of the voters had to agree, and I still find no objection to 3/5 of the voters of each and every unit of government who want to combine having to agree in the areas of heat, light and power, because there is, so far as I know, no shortage of commercial interests available to supply these commodities, and I don't really think that the government ought to get into this area unless it is absolutely necessary.

However, I am afraid that the word "utilities" could be construed to include transportation, water and sewage disposal, among other things, and in this area it seems to me that if 20 communities wanted to get together and form a bus line or a water system, that we would be compounding their problems by requiring this 3/5 vote in each and every individual community to such an extent that they wouldn't possibly be able to do it. I hope that this is not going to provoke extended debate because I don't think it is worthy of extended debate, but I just toss it out.

If Mr. Allen or Mr. Elliott have serious objection to it, I would just as soon withdraw it now and try to put it in at a later date. But I think perhaps we ought to give a little bit of thought to it, and I wouldn't want to offer an amendment at a time when full debate was not permitted either. So with that kind of an introduction, I will leave it to the pleasure of the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. King, I would like to urge the delegate to withdraw the amendment at this time and allow our committee to have an opportunity to do some research in this area, and I am sure that there will be no attempt to limit debate on this. You can speak as freely as you need to at the proper time.

MR. KING: I would be happy to withdraw it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate King withdraws his amendment. Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 88?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Boothby offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 17, after "of" by inserting "services of"; and on page 2, line 12, after "thereof" by inserting "such"; so the language will read:

> Sec. b. The legislature shall provide by general law for the exercise of services of local government by 2 or more counties, cities, villages," and so forth and item 3 would read:

> (3) To transfer to each local unit of government or combination thereof such functions and responsibilities or both upon the consent of each unit of government involved.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Niles, Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I must express that I have some considerable concern concerning section b of Committee Proposal 88, for as I read this particular section, I see that the committee has proposed that

> The legislature shall provide by general law for the exercise of local government by 2 or more counties, cities, villages, townships or districts, or any combination of 2 or more of such units of local government. Under such general law such units of local government shall have power:

and skipping over to page 2, after line 11

> To transfer to each local unit of government or combination thereof functions and responsibilities or both upon the consent of each unit of government involved.

My concern is this: first of all, we have suggested that we are going to allow the transfer by the local units of government not of services but actually of the functions of those local units to another body. In other words, we are allowing a local unit of government to delegate governmental functions, and it is not limited in any regard, so it is conceivable, reasoning to its fullest extent, that a county unit of the government could delegate every single function of its government to another body and only remain a county unit in shell form. It would delegate every single function of its responsibility.

Now, let me give you an example of how I think this might come about. I could conceive that the counties of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Genesee might some time determine that they don't want to have a situation like in Dade county, so therefore they would create a unit, a metropolitan authority, whereby they grant every single function that they have to this unit, and this 4 county unit then would carry on the responsibility of government for these 4 units.

And let me give you some of the problems that I can conceive might develop. When you allow this particular commission to carry out the functions of a local unit of government, they could conceivably carry out the election machinery. This complex governmental unit could create a situation where they would appoint a metropolitan manager, and he might manage this authority in whatever way he deemed proper. I could conceive that the 4 county metropolitan authority might develop a police force and a police department because, you see, in this grant of power — not only grant of power but mandate, because, as Mr. Downs pointed out, this is a mandate to the legislature — you have given them a mandate to provide a system whereby these county units of government can give over every single function of government which they have save none, and this concerns me when I think about a certain situation that now exists.

In Wayne county the board of supervisors is an appointive body. That means that an appointive body may delegate every single function of governmental responsibility to another unit of government, and I think this does what our friend has suggested that he didn't want to do. He has suggested he doesn't want a Dade county system of government. But, as a matter of fact, you are giving a mandate to the state legislature to create a situation where there can be set up a unit of government which looks very suspiciously to me like a Dade county unit of government.

I think this is a very serious problem, and especially when you take into consideration all the aspects of this particular wording. When you read imprimatur of the wording which allows the unit of government to delegate every single function of their responsibility to some other body, I would urge that we give great consideration to this and not move into some new type of governmental unit without giving a great deal of thought, and I urge the adoption of this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Boothby amendment to section b. Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. Allen.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Boothby has invented a bogeyman here. I don't see how in his example Wayne county could delegate all of its functions under this, because to whom would it delegate them? Are they going to delegate them to Taylor township and have Taylor township do it all? Or are they going to delegate them all to Bill Suzore's town? There is nobody there that can do it. That is number 1. The number 2 point is we are talking about existing units of government: our counties, our cities, our townships, our school districts. Now, I don't know what "service functions" means. If you write a limiting term like that in and we don't know what it means, you may have made this thing ineffective. That is the second point.

And the third point is this: the legislature under a general law says that local units of government are allowed to transfer services, to share costs and to enter into contracts, but the legislature can put such limitations and restrictions on this power as it wants. And here is a protection. This is a mandate to do this, but it permits the legislature to draw conditions and limitations and restrictions, and we have to have some regulator on this because there may be townships which will want to contract with a county, and under this they can't do it unless each has the power to perform the function that they are contracting about. The legislature could turn around and give this power to the township.

I can't see any place, Mr. Boothby, in all respect to your argument, where this horrible thing that you point out could happen, first because I don't think it is practical under existing units. Secondly, the legislature can put restrictions on it. And, thirdly, after all, the board of supervisors of Wayne county does have men on it of judgment and they are elected by the people, many of them. I can't conceive of the elective bodies just saying "We are going to dump all of Wayne county over to something else." I don't know what it would be.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, I would like to direct 2 or 3 questions to Mr. Allen. Perhaps he can clear this up for me.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Allen has suggested that he could not conceive of the county of Wayne delegating its responsibility to Mr. Suzore's township, and I cannot conceive of that either. I am wondering, however, if the county of Wayne might delegate its responsibility to a 4 county complex under the wording of section b.

MR. ALLEN: Yes, I think it could, if the 4 counties would agree to do it.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, as I understand the Dade county situation, it arose out of a matter where the people of the Dade county area, even though retaining their local units of government, by vote of the people created a more or less super governmental agency.

MR. ALLEN: The people of Dade county under a state law voted to set up what was called a metropolitan, extremely strong, county government in which functions by charter were taken away from each of the existing districts.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Allen, under the wording of this provision whereby any unit can delegate all of its functions conceivably to a complex governmental unit, as you have suggested it could, could not then they create a situation looking very similar to Dade county?

MR. ALLEN: I don't think so. I think this is designed, Mr. Boothby, to stop it. On the Dade county situation, in a countywide vote, the people of the county actually voted for a charter which took many of the powers that the cities had in unincorporated territory — because I don't think they have townships in Florida — away and gave it to this sort of fourth layer of government.

Under the arrangement which we have proposed here, you are going to have to have every elected person on the board of supervisors — and I know from experience and I think you do too that elected members aren't going to lightly shed their responsibilities — approving of any transfer of service.

This is designed to allow, for example, a city — we can already do it, but it is a good example — to transfer our health functions to the county, and the county will take it on. It would allow a township to transfer a service to a county if the county wanted to do it, or theoretically a county to transfer to a township. If we don't provide this flexibility, I don't know where we are going to go, and if there is going to be an abuse of it, the legislature is allowed to step in and make limitations.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, doesn't this provision in fact go further than what was provided for in Dade county, in that in Dade county the state law gave the right to the people to decide whether they were going into a complex metropolitan authority, where in effect this provision allows for certain representatives of the people, some of which are appointed, to go into this type of an authority?

MR. ALLEN: No. I think as a practical matter that the Dade county situation was easier to do, because it was a general vote of the area, and the large city of Miami could outvote the other units.

Here each unit would stand on its own with its own elected representative.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the gentleman from Niles yield to the gentleman from Schoolcraft, Delegate Brown?

MR. BOOTHBY: Yes, I will, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: I rise to oppose the Boothby amendment because by the addition of the words "services of" as he has proposed, the substantial merit of the proposition, as I see it, from a particular area, especially the more rural areas, would do away with the possibility of smaller townships combining together to exercise police powers which are administrative in nature and not service in nature. This is where I see much of the benefit in a proposal of this nature such as in zoning, platting and what have you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: I would like to suggest that this particular proposal which we have before us does provide a machinery whereby we can create a situation such as Dade county. I don't know that we will, but they did it in one state.

I would feel very constrained to answer one argument which Mr. Allen has set out, and that is that the elected representatives would not delegate their responsibilities, and so this is a check upon such a system developing. Actually, in Dade county those officials didn't give up, many of them, their jobs and their salaries. All they did was to create another agency and give another agency an additional position in this particular area, so what they did was just to create another governmental body.

I feel that the amendment should be adopted and I urge its adoption by this body.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Boothby amendment. The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, there are distinct differences here, and the first one is that in any law that the legislature may adopt, any restrictions that they desire to make can be made. The Dade county situation is not comparable in many respects, and I think Mr. Allen has made those eminently clear.

I would urge the defeat of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will Delegate Elliott yield to the gentleman from Garden City, Mr. Brown?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I will on that particular issue.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I just wanted to say in reference to Mr. Boothby's fear that I think it is ill founded, because it flies in the face of a universal law of nature. This universal law is that all organisms tend to perpetuate and aggrandize themselves. This is true when you are talking about one celled amoebas; and when you get into a complicated organism called the local politician, this particular organism is not likely to dissipate his particular power. As a matter of fact, he is going to try to aggrandize it. So you are not going to run into the dangerous situation of local units of government controlled by local politicians disseminating their power and diffusing it by pledging all of their responsibility and loyalty to some super form of government.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Elliott, you have suggested, as I understand it, that the legislature can place on restrictions so that we won't run into a Dade county situation. But again I call the attention of the members of this committee to the fact that this is a mandatory provision, as Mr. Downs has pointed out, and the mandatory provision is very clear. It doesn't give any discretion as to what the legislature shall do in certain areas. It says that they shall have power to transfer to each local unit of government or combination thereof functions or responsibilities or both upon the consent of each unit of government involved, and when it refers to the types of units, you will note back on lines 18 and 19 that it refers to counties, cities, villages, townships or districts, or combinations thereof.

Now, in reply to Mr. Brown, he has cited a law of nature where people tend to stay in power. I am going to cite a law of government which I believe is universally true: that all governments tend to become more centralized and that governments tend to increase their power and authority as time goes on, and this is what I am worried about.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I would just merely suggest that Mr. Boothby reserve his concern for the metropolitan areas when it comes to apportionment, and let us have the powers that we need at this time to do a job.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegate Boothby to section b. As many as are in favor of the amendment will say aye.

MR. BOOTHBY: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Boothby requests a division vote. Is there support for a division? There is support. All those in favor of the amendment offered by Delegate Boothby to section b will vote aye. All those opposed will vote no.

The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1084.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

MR. GADOLA: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. GADOLA: For information. While he is recording the vote, I would like to have someone explain, because I am ignorant, how did Dade county get in here and what is it all about? (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: I wish the Chair could answer the inquiry, Delegate Gadola, but he can't. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Mr. Boothby, the yeas are 33; the nays are 87.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section b?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Boothby offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 13, by striking out "consent of" and inserting "approval of a majority of the electors voting thereon in"; so that item 3 will read:

> To transfer to each local unit of government or combination thereof functions and responsibilities or both upon the approval of a majority of the electors voting thereon in each unit of government involved.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the sponsor of the amendment, Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, this amendment would provide for the vote of the people to decide whether they are going to delegate their functions of government rather than to allow boards of supervisors or some other body to delegate this responsibility. It gives to the people the right to make the decision. I urge the adoption of this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the Boothby amendment to section b. The Chair recognizes Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: I was just going to ask for the yeas and nays when the matter is voted on.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Boothby requests a division vote. Is the request supported?

MR. PELLOW: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is the request supported?

MR. PELLOW: Mr. Chairman, I am seeking recognition, sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You are out of order right now, Delegate Pellow.

Is there support for a division vote?

MR. PELLOW: What kind of a dictatorship is this when you rise to the floor and can't get the attention of the Chair?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: When the question of the division is settled, Delegate Pellow, the Chair will recognize you.

MR. PELLOW: Forget it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Is there support for a division vote? There is support for a division vote.

Now the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bessemer, Delegate Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: Go ahead, run your show. We'll have ours in November.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate Boothby to section b. A division vote has been requested. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Boothby amendment. As many as are in favor will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Boothby, the yeas are 39; the nays are 77.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted. The Chair recognizes Delegate Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. Allen has stated, Mr. Chairman, that there must be a regulator here and that the legislature would serve that purpose. I would like to ask the chairman of the committee or Mr. Allen where in the language adopted by the committee there would be any discretion whatsoever vested in the legislature.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: It is contemplated in the beginning under general law, and under such general law they shall have the power. It is contemplated here that the legislature can spell out the restrictions in the terms and the limitations.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Allen, except that if the legislature chooses to act, it must assign certain powers to the metropolitan authority, according to the subparagraphs. That, it would appear to me, is mandatory upon the legislature that those items must be included in the general law.

MR. ALLEN: Well, don't say "metropolitan authority," Delegate Habermehl. That is in section a. This is the existing units of government. Yes, the legislature when it passes the law must say, under any restrictions the legislature wants, that units have the right to contract, share costs, transfer services and cooperate. They can qualify it.

MR. HABERMEHL: One further question, if I may. How is it contemplated that the local units would act? By ordinance, regulation?

MR. ALLEN: By vote of their governing bodies.

MR. HABERMEHL: Not subject to referendum?

MR. ALLEN: When we discussed it, we didn't get into this point. I think that as long as this is done by the legislature, if the legislature wanted to, in certain fields if you had major transfers of power, the legislature could go ahead and put in a qualification of a vote, which would be Mr. Boothby's, but it wouldn't be a vote for every little thing under this.

MR. HABERMEHL: I am afraid that problem still concerns me rather greatly, that actually the power of the legislature here to act as a regulator has been largely taken away by the language.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 88?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Boothby offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 16, after "legislature" by striking out "shall" and inserting "may"; so that the language will read, "The legislature may provide by general law for the exercise of local government by 2 or more counties," and so forth.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Boothby amendment. The Chair recognizes Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, I beg the indulgence of this committee. I know I have taken considerable time. This amendment would insert the word "may" where the word "shall" is now, so that it would read:

> The legislature may provide by general law for the exercise of local government by 2 or more counties, cities, villages, townships or districts, or any combination of 2 or more of such units of local government. Under such general law such units of local government shall have power:

Then they must provide these specific items if the legislature sees fit to act. This would be one of the regulators that we might place and give power to the legislature to exert.

I urge the adoption of this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate Boothby to section b. Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, this would completely reverse the 4 hours of discussion or 5 hours that we have had today and the votes that have been taken. I urge the defeat of this amendment. I am sure that there are proper protections here as have been outlined by Mr. Allen several different times.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate Boothby to section b. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Boothby's amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 16, after "legislature" by striking out "shall" and inserting "may".

MISS DONNELLY: Mr. Chairman, I request the yeas and nays.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Donnelly requests a division vote. Is there support for a division vote? There is support. As many as are in favor of the Boothby amendment will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Boothby, the yeas are 25; the nays are 86.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 88? The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Schoolcraft, Delegate Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I rise to a point of personal privilege. It seems to me that the vote on the previous Boothby amendment as it will appear in the action journal or in the verbatim journal of this convention very likely could be interpreted as tying the hands of the legislature and precluding the legislature from putting in any such act that, as to any aspect of the powers granted by this constitutional provision, they may not be determined by a vote of the electors. That certainly is not contemplated by me and I am sure it is not contemplated by the committee; that the legislature may see fit as to some aspect of the powers granted that this shall be by consent of the local unit of government, meaning vote of the electors rather than by resolution of the board. And I wanted to leave this to the legislature. I think this should be clearly put in, so far as my vote is concerned at least, that this was not a preempting of the idea that the legislature may put in such an act, a vote of the electors.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Brown, I am sure the intent of the committee was not to do that in the defeat of this amendment. We feel that within the provisions of this section, the legislature has the right to provide by general law to make whatever modifying requirements they may feel right and proper.

MR. G. E. BROWN: I was sure that this was the intent of the committee but I just wanted to make certain it was put in the record as such.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment — I don't think it is one that should cause any controversy — which I request the secretary to read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "government" by striking out the period and "Under such general law such units of local government shall have power" and inserting a semicolon and "which general law shall authorize such units of local government"; so the language will then read:

> Sec. b. The legislature shall provide by general law for the exercise of local government by 2 or more counties, cities, villages, townships or districts, or any combination of 2 or more such units of local government; which general law shall authorize such units of local government:

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the sponsor of the amendment, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, briefly this amendment is merely to clarify an unfortunate ambiguity in the present language, and it is to bring that language into complete accord with the committee's intent as just expressed by Delegate Allen when he said that it was contemplated here that the legislature shall spell out the restrictions and limitations and so forth. But the words which are presently in this sentence, "Under such general law such units of local government shall have power," can be interpreted as automatically making all of the numbered subparagraphs self executing no matter what kind of a general law might be passed pursuant to the first sentence of the section. This would unduly restrict the legislature, and therefore I think this amendment will clear up that ambiguity.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I have no objection to the amendment. I think it does do what Mr. Wanger says, and we are grateful for it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Wanger amendment to section b. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Wanger amendment. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

Pursuant to the motion passed by the convention this morning, the Chair will declare the committee of the whole will rise for the purpose of a 10 minute recess, and call the vice president to the Chair. Vice President Downs. (applause)

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, Vice President Downs assumed the Chair.]

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The convention is in order. I think we can recess without any parliamentary problems.

We will recess for 10 minutes. No motion in order. (applause)

[Whereupon, at 3:25 o'clock p.m., in pursuance of the order previously made, the convention recessed; and, at 3:40 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

The convention will be in order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The convention will resolve itself into committee of the whole with Delegate DeVries in the Chair.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee of the whole will come to order.

Are there any other amendments to Committee Proposal 88?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Habermehl has filed an amendment. Mr. Habermehl's amendment applies to the language that was in the proposal before the amendment of Mr. Wanger was adopted. It does not now apply, Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: I don't know, Mr. Chase, where it would fit now, but the same language still remains in Mr. Wanger's amendment, the language "shall provide".

SECRETARY CHASE: The language now is "which general law shall authorize such units of local government:"

MR. HABERMEHL: My amendment would be directed at just before the subparagraphs where it says "such units shall have power". My amendment would strike the words "shall have" and substitute for them "may be granted power".

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger's amendment struck out all of that language; struck out the entire language "Under such general law such units of local government shall have power:" and inserted in lieu "which general law shall authorize such units of local government:"

MR. HABERMEHL: May I see Mr. Wanger's amendment?

Mr. Chairman, my amendment, as it would apply to the amendment of Mr. Wanger as adopted by the committee, would substitute the word "may" for the word "shall" before the word "authorize".

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Habermehl's amendment now is:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "general law" by striking out "shall" and inserting "may"; so that the language will then read, "which general law may authorize such units of local government:"

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alpena speaking on the amendment.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. Chairman, I believe this would do what the committee on local government said that they want. It would give the legislature the opportunity to be the regulator to have discretionary power in this field. In view of the fact we have said that the state funds may be used in any of these projects, to then state that the legislature shall have no discretion but must provide these powers to local government actually deprives the state of any authority over the expenditure of that money.

This would simply give the legislature the power that belongs to the legislature and let them decide how it is to be expended.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Delegate Habermehl, this does not conform with the committee approach to this problem, and I would urge its defeat.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the amendment offered by Delegate Habermehl to section b. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

MR. HABERMEHL: I ask a division on this, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Habermehl requests a division vote. Is the request supported? The request is supported. As many as are in favor of the Habermehl amendment will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Habermehl, the yeas are 32; the nays are 74.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 88?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Norris offers the following amendment to Committee Proposal 88 and the amendment offered by Mr. Wanger which has been agreed to:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "government" by inserting "among other things"; so the language will then read, "which general law shall authorize such units of local government among other things:" and going on (1) and (2) and so forth.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, it was my apprehension as a result of the language that has been adopted that the legislature wouldn't have the power here, or at least it was susceptible to the argument that it might not have the power to provide for matters in addition to the entry of the various units into contractual undertakings and so forth, the 5 subparagraphs there, and to give that latitude and at the same time provide for the full implementation of that which the committee had in mind, I think that this would serve a useful purpose, particularly in light of a rule of construction whereby when you spell out things, the general idea is that you exclude other things, and I think this would serve the purpose here of guiding both the legislature and courts in the full implementation of that which the committee intended by this language.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I have no objection to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the lady from East Grand Rapids, Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Well, I was just about to say that it seems to me we are demonstrating this afternoon a great lack of faith in the committee on style and drafting. What we are trying to do is to redraft this amendment, whereas those of us who favor it have already said that we would be willing to have the committee on style and drafting improve the verbiage.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegate Norris to section b. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor of the Norris amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 88? The gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, just before the recess, Mr. Allen made a suggestion that we should provide for the transfer of all the county powers in Wayne county to the township of Taylor. I conferred with my associate, Mr. Marshall, during the recess and we have decided that we would be agreeable to this if Glenn wants to make it as a motion; provided, however, that Mr. Marshall and I be the charter commission and the first office holders in the newly created kingdom. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Charlevoix, Delegate Shanahan.

MR. SHANAHAN: Mr. Chairman, I have a question here. On page 2, line 16, there occurs the term "intergovernmental agencies." I am just wondering what the scope of that term is. I haven't heard it discussed. I thought I had heard everything about this section, but that has not been discussed at all. I would like to know just what is intended by that term.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Shanahan yields to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. Allen.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Shanahan, supposing, for example, under this that several units get together and set up a planning body to do some planning for an overall area. This is done on a cooperative basis. This simply says that any of the existing units may jointly cooperate with this thing that is set up on a voluntary basis. In other words, it really restates what is happening in Detroit right now where existing units of government are voluntarily, on their own, cooperating with what is called the 6 county intercooperative committee.

MR. SHANAHAN: Well, I could understand that, but I was wondering if it went beyond the borders of the state of Michigan. Does it limit it to the state of Michigan or would it be possible to read into this authority to go beyond the boundaries of our state?

MR. ALLEN: It does not go beyond the boundaries of the state of Michigan. I do think there is some wisdom in the case of Detroit being able to do some things with across the water, but we didn't go that far and it is not in here.

MR. SHANAHAN: Where is it that this is limited just to the state of Michigan?

MR. ALLEN: It would have to refer in some way to a foreign government or to another government.

MR. SHANAHAN: Foreign government? You mean by that, we'll say, Canada?

MR. ALLEN: Canada, yes. This was the question which

Dr. Pollock asked me the first thing yesterday, and the answer to him was no; this didn't get into the international field.

MR. SHANAHAN: Well, does this get into the interstate field? I don't see anything in here any place yet that would limit it to the state of Michigan.

MR. ALLEN: No.

MR. SHANAHAN: Is it some place? I am not familiar with it. You have undoubtedly made a study of it.

MR. ALLEN: Well, as Mr. Downs said — and I thought the criticism of this proposal would be that it did too little rather than some people fearing that it does too much — I would say that this does not get into the interstate field, because if it did, we would have had to have mentioned other states by reference.

MR. SHANAHAN: I would like to see it tied down definitely. If I could be indulged, I would like to insert as an amendment "the state government and Michigan intergovernmental agencies" or equivalent words.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Shanahan offers an amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 16, after "and" by inserting "Michigan"; so the language will then read, "(4) Jointly to cooperate with one another and with state government and Michigan intergovernmental agencies;".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the Shanahan amendment. Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, let's just stand pat for just ½ second, because I would like Mr. Allen to answer that. We are trying to get that gentleman in the back of the room all the way around there so Glenn can see a little message I sent him.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Am I supposed to filibuster? Do I read it, Art? (laughter)

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: It would be fine if you would.

MR. G. E. BROWN: You mean you haven't been? (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Does the gentleman care to proceed?

MR. ALLEN: The note says "Intra instead of inter."

Mr. Shanahan, the only thing I would say is this: if we put in "Michigan" — and this is all right by me — since it is in the constitution, it might imply that we never could cooperate with anybody in Ohio or in Wisconsin. I don't think we want to shut that possibility out. For example, supposing that a township that borders Toledo wants to cooperate with the people in Ohio?

This section only refers to joint cooperation. There is no power involved at all in this section. And I would say that if you say "Michigan" you might imply that a township could do nothing cooperatively at all with someone across the border. I think it would be unwise.

MR. SHANAHAN: Well, I understand Mr. Allen got a note saying "intra instead of inter." I was wondering if that was a suggestion in regard to the use of a prefix to accomplish what I had in mind, or what is the purpose of that comment?

MR. ALLEN: I think it refers, Mr. Shanahan, to the word "intergovernmental" and make it "intra."

Mr. Elliott, would you explain this, because I don't know what we mean by "intra" here. Intra what?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen yields to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Thank you, Glenn! (laughter) Mr. Chairman, this may not have done what I thought it would do. It was my thought that if we made it "intragovernmental" instead of "inter" it would indicate that it was within the governmental units.

However, I think Glenn has raised a good point here, Mr. Shanahan, that this is the portion of this proposal which talks about jointly to cooperate with. This does not have the same function as steps 1, 2, 3 or 5, and in that respect I don't think that we want to perhaps restrict any of our Michigan communities from the opportunity of cooperating with, as long as we aren't getting into these other areas.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: Now that you have raised the question, I would ask this one thing, because it becomes a very interesting situation to our particular locality with Menominee on one side of the river and Marinette adjacent by ¼ of a mile across the river, where in years past we have not been able to get together on some governmental activities, that this might open the door. Is that the view of the committee?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Lundgren, as far as making any contracts is concerned, you wouldn't be able to do it under our language because it is limited to the local units in Michigan, but you would be able to cooperate. I suppose you may be cooperating anyway. I don't know whether you are. This would allow you to cooperate, but it doesn't allow you to cooperate to the extent that you can pay any costs or share costs or make intercontracts.

MR. LUNDGREN: Well, I don't know if that satisfies me entirely, because you are still leaving sort of a quasi feeling: how far can you go in this thing? I am thinking of sewage plants in the future, though we both have them now, but as you become bigger, as I am sure we are going to, just how far can we go? We have cooperated on bridges, but this is something different.

MR. ALLEN: Well, I think that since this doesn't take the whole power from the legislature by any means but only directs them to do it in certain cases, and particularly in view of the Norris amendment "among other things," the legislature could go out of its way to allow, in a special statute, you to do the very things that you want. But it wouldn't be done under this.

MR. LUNDGREN: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Donald Doty.

MR. DONALD DOTY: I wish to object to the changing of the wording from "inter" to "intra." We in Monroe county are at this time negotiating with Toledo for water facilities in southern Monroe county, and if this would in any way endanger this negotiation or this contract, I would object to the changing of the word.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Doty, it is the understanding of the Chair that that has not been offered as an amendment. The question before the committee is the Shanahan amendment to section b. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shanahan.

MR. SHANAHAN: I believe that some other people want to talk on this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will you yield to Delegate Cudlip?

MR. SHANAHAN: I am glad to yield to anyone wishing to talk on this. I am trying to get some information.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Elliott, members and Mr. Shanahan, I don't think we should do anything here to preclude the units of government from cooperating with other states or foreign governments. I was interested to note soon after my good friend stood, to see Delegate Doty and Delegate Lundgren rise. They live in areas as I and others do where this problem is very important, to say nothing of the Soo and the Canadian Soo.

Right now in Detroit there is cooperation by the state and the city of Detroit and other communities there with Canada and with a joint commission which relates to air pollution and refuse disposal from the vessels. There are a number of problems like that, and I am sure they exist where our state abuts other states or the foreign country of Canada, and this language is clear and specific and necessary, and any preclusive language would defeat a very important purpose here.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I just want to repeat again that since these important interstate matters are not covered in this proposal, that it ought to be somebody's business to bring before the convention — presumably now the committee on emerging problems — a proper constitutional provision which would make possible and would facilitate interstate arrangements, which certainly are going to be more important rather than less important in the future.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, in response to the comments by Dr. Pollock, I would only say that we are considering this problem, and to give you an idea of our direction, I will read to you a draft that our subcommittee is presently studying — very brief. It says:

> The legislature may provide by law for cooperation on the part of this state and its political subdivisions with the government of the United States for compacts and agreements with other states of the union in matters affecting the health, safety and general welfare.

So obviously we are interested in this particular area, and we would not want to see any sort of a limiting word placed in Committee Proposal 88 which might defeat our purpose, so I would not support the Shanahan amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate Shanahan.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Shanahan.

MR. SHANAHAN: I am still wondering just what is the scope of intergovernmental agencies. I am not so concerned about whether my amendment is adopted or not. I am just wondering what we are getting into. I don't see anything in this to prevent, for instance, 2 townships perhaps joining into some agreement with such intergovernmental agencies as the United Nations or a part of the United Nations or perhaps NATO or some other international agency. I am wondering if this does or does not preclude such an interpretation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are you addressing a question to one of the delegates?

MR. SHANAHAN: I am addressing a question to somebody that maybe can answer it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Shanahan yields to Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Yes, Mr. Shanahan, this does not contemplate anything that deals at all with any foreign country. If so, we would have to say so. We can't do it under this.

MR. SHANAHAN: Where does it say so?

MR. ALLEN: Well, it says so because in order to have the power, you would have to say "with a foreign government."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegate Shanahan to section b, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Shanahan's amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1089.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor of the amendment offered by Delegate Shanahan will say aye. As many as are opposed will say no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 88? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 88, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Returning now to item 3 on the calendar which was under consideration yesterday, the consideration of which was postponed until the 2:00 o'clock session today, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 85, A proposal to provide that public utilities may use public property with consent of local authorities and a limitation on the length of franchise.

For last previous action by the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 85, see above, page 1055.

At the time the matter was postponed, Mr. Mahinske had offered an amendment. He has now revised the amendment slightly so that it reads as follows:

1. Amend page 1, following line 20, by inserting a new section to read as follows:

"Sec. c. Any county, through its legislative body, shall have the authority to enter, or to intervene in any suit or certificate proceeding involving the service, charge or rate made by any privately owned public utility furnishing services or commodities to rate payers within the county.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the amendment, as revised without objection, offered by Delegate Mahinske. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I just slightly altered this to take care of some thoughts that some people had with reference to publicly owned public utilities, and we have cleared up the language here that we are definitely talking about private utilities.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, our committee met and has no objection to this amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question now is on the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegate Mahinske. The Chair recognizes Vice President Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mr. Mahinske why it is that his amendment would only authorize a county to do this. Can you explain why the other units are precluded, apparently?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: The other units, Delegate Hutchinson, are included in other committee proposals. This is adding an additional unit that may appear in these suits as a nonuser.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Do I understand then that in other provisions of the constitution, other units of government who are nonusers will be permitted to appear?

MR. MAHINSKE: Yes, villages, cities, townships, so forth.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Jackson, Delegate Karn.

MR. KARN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I would like to say in connection with this proposed amendment that this is a duplication. At the present time any city, any township, any incorporated village which has issued a franchise has the right to intervene in any rate procedure or anything of that nature. Generally speaking, those 3 governmental groups, the cities, the villages and the townships, cover the entire county. So if this amendment should be passed, it merely imposes another governmental body on top of the 3 that have, you might say, jurisdiction, because the entire county as a rule is covered by all of the townships, and franchises exist.

This is a duplication. It means more people taking of their time to come in, and I think that the territory is completely covered at the present time and this should not be approved.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I would like to point out to the previous speaker that this amendment is not intended and does not give the counties authority to issue franchises. This gives the counties authority through their legislative body to appear in these matters where they are a nonuser. Now, these long, protracted cases may be entirely too expensive for a local school district or a local township to take the burden on themselves. This would conform with the federal practice. The counties do have standing before the federal power commission, but because of the recent supreme court cases in Michigan, they do not have standing as a nonuser before the supreme court or the Michigan public service commission.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Mahinske yields to Delegate Karn.

MR. KARN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I just want to reiterate that all areas of the county are now provided the right to intervene and to appear in any cases before regulatory commissions, so that by adding the county, it puts another body in an area which is already entirely covered.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to support Mr. Mahinske's amendment. I think that for a county like Wayne county, this is very important, and I want to indicate that our people down there are rather anxious to have this relief. When you contemplate the present situation with 30 different municipalities, not counting the school districts and the villages, in Wayne county generally a utility question involves all of the municipalities within the county.

The prosecutor's office is staffed and in a position to do a much better job of representing the interests of the entire area in these matters than we individually can expect to do as individual communities, and what actually has happened is that the prosecutor's office has acted as a coordinator but has had to act through the vehicle of the individual communities, and in order to get a concerted action, you have to troop 25 or 30 people to the hearing, which is not a practical way to present your case. You have all sorts of parties added.

This would cut down the number of intervening parties in such proceedings, because the board of supervisors could provide for a method and for an officer of the county to represent all of us in this matter. It wouldn't preclude us from coming if we wanted to as individuals, but it would make it possible for us to be directly represented through the county level, and I think it would be a step toward a more efficient manner of coordinating the needs of the whole county with regard to utility rates and other matters that would be covered by these hearings.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Mahinske, the rights of the cities, the townships and the incorporated villages today rest upon statute or upon constitutional provision?

MR. MAHINSKE: The constitutional provisions.

MR. WANGER: Their right to intervene, then, in such suits depends entirely upon constitutional language.

MR. MAHINSKE: As interpreted by the 1955 decision of the Michigan supreme court.

MR. WANGER: Could it not be as well provided by statute as far as counties are concerned?

MR. MAHINSKE: The same decision of the supreme court said that by reference to certain designated municipalities in the present constitution and remaining silent in the area of counties. In the present constitution, by reference, counties have been excluded, and it could not be done by statute.

MR. WANGER: What is the reference? What is the case you speak of, please?

MR. MAHINSKE: It is the County of Wayne v. the Public Service Commission, 343 Michigan 144.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I would like to point out to Mr. Wanger that Mr. Karn has already indicated the rule that delineates the county or takes the county out of the equal consideration. The counties do not issue franchises and have no contractual or direct relationship with the utilities. And at one stage the local government committee, I think, did consider adding counties as a franchising unit, and we determined that this would lead to duplication because you would then, for example, have to get a franchise within the city of Detroit from both the city and the county, and you might conceivably have the county issuing a franchise that would be in derogation of the wishes of the city people, so there is no other practical way to do it.

If we were to open the door by saying that counties could issue franchises, this would accomplish equal treatment, but it would be a rather severe way of doing it because it would bring other problems that would outweigh the benefits.

CHAIRMAN DEVRIES: The question now is on the amendment offered by Delegate Mahinske. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Mahinske's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1090.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: As many as are in favor of the Mahinske amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 85? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 85, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 7 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Committee Proposal 89, A proposal pertaining to county home rule. Amends article VIII.

Following is Committee Proposal 89 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. THE LEGISLATURE SHALL PROVIDE BY GENERAL LAW THAT THE ELECTORS OF ANY COUNTY SHALL HAVE POWER AND AUTHORITY TO INITIATE, FRAME, ADOPT, AMEND OR REPEAL A COUNTY CHARTER AND THEREIN AUTHORIZE THE COUNTY, THROUGH ITS REGULARLY CONSTITUTED AUTHORITY, TO PASS ALL LAWS AND ORDINANCES RELATING TO ITS MUNICIPAL CONCERNS, AND SHALL LIMIT THEIR RATE OF TAXATION NOTWITHSTANDING ANYTHING TO THE CONTRARY IN THIS CONSTITUTION.

A. NO COUNTY CHARTER SHALL BE ADOPTED, AMENDED, REPEALED OR REVISED UNTIL APPROVED BY A MAJORITY VOTE OF COUNTY ELECTORS VOTING ON THE QUESTION.

B. THE QUESTION OF ELECTING A CHARTER COMMISSION MAY BE PLACED ON THE BALLOT BY A MAJORITY VOTE OF THE MEMBERS ELECT OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS AND SHALL BE PLACED THEREON ON RECEIPT OF A PETITION SIGNED BY 5 PER CENT OF THE REGISTERED VOTERS OF THE COUNTY. THE CHARTER COMMISSION SHALL BE ELECTED BY THE COUNTY ELECTORS IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE ELECTION LAWS.

Sec. b. UNDER GENERAL LAW EACH COUNTY CHARTER SHALL PROVIDE:

A. FOR THE SELECTION OF JUDICIAL OFFICERS OF THE COUNTY AS PROVIDED IN ARTICLE VII OF THIS CONSTITUTION.

B. FOR THE ELECTION OF A COUNTY CLERK, A COUNTY REGISTER OF DEEDS, A COUNTY TREASURER, A SHERIFF, AND A PROSECUTING ATTORNEY IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF THIS CONSTITUTION.

C. FOR A BOARD OF SUPERVISORS TO BE CONSTITUTED AS PROVIDED BY LAW.

D. FOR THE EXERCISE OF ALL POWERS VESTED IN, AND THE PERFORMANCE OF ALL DUTIES IMPOSED UPON COUNTIES, COUNTY OFFICERS, AND CHARTER COUNTIES BY THIS CONSTITUTION OR BY GENERAL LAW.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 89:

The majority of the committee on local government is mindful of the problems encountered at this time by the counties, and particularly, the larger counties of the state. It has been the intention of the majority of the committee to give to those counties full authority to so modify the governmental machinery as to meet those problems efficiently.

However, the committee is mindful also that to a large extent the county is an administrative arm of the state government.

The differences of opinion that have arisen in the committee are largely on 2 points:

(1) Whether there should be retained in a home rule county the requirement for the election of the sheriff, prosecuting attorney, county clerk, county treasurer and register of deeds; and

---

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

(2) Whether the board of supervisors should be retained as the governing body of the county.

As to the so called constitutional officers, they do not in any important respect carry out policy developed within the county. Their duties are determined by the state legislature and their time is almost completely devoted to carrying out those statutory duties. Not only so, but they are supervised by the state in those activities. The sheriff and prosecuting attorney, as law enforcement officers, are under the direction and supervision of the attorney general and of the governor himself. The county clerk, as an election official, is under supervision of the secretary of state and as a keeper of vital statistics is under the supervision of the public health department, and the sheriff, prosecutor and clerk are all part of the court system, which everyone agrees should not be subject to change in a home rule county. Moreover, all of these officers are audited by the state and their accounts must be uniform. Under these circumstances, it is the belief of the majority of the committee that it is necessary to have uniformity of setup throughout the state, as to these offices.

In addition, the elected sheriff and prosecuting attorney are part of our system for the protection of our personal rights and liberties. It took centuries for our ancestors to win the right to elect these officials. There will never be a gestapo when the principal law enforcement officers are chosen by the people they serve. This is so important that we should never abandon the system of keeping these officers as elected officials. It is the feeling of the majority of the committee too that the county clerk and county treasurer and register of deeds should be directly responsible to the people of the county and not to some appointed official, and that the independence of the treasurer not only from appointing officials but from other officers of the county and being directly responsible to the people is a safeguard that the taxpayers do not wish to give up. He ought not to be appointed by the same person who appoints the auditing officials of a county, as that would be breaking down the proper check and balance system, which we now have.

Of extreme importance to the majority of the committee was the status of these elected officials in each county.

It is the belief of the committee that these officers can be left elected officials and in no way hamper the county in setting up the form of organization it wishes in order to meet its responsibilities under a county administrator or manager or in such other way as it chooses. Generally speaking, the counterparts of these officers in home rule cities are elected officials.

The problems of the big county are like the problems of a city — law enforcement personnel, central purchasing, management of buildings and grounds, public works in all forms, including recreational and other facilities, sanitation and health measures. As to all of these, the proposal recommended will permit a county to meet the problems as it chooses.

There remains a question of the board of supervisors. The proposal includes a named county governing body, providing for a board of supervisors by constitution as constituted by legislative act. This differs from our present constitution only in the fact that the present constitution specifies that each township shall be represented on the county board by a supervisor. Otherwise, the board is now constituted as specified by the legislature, and under this proposal it will be completely constituted as specified by the legislature.

The proposal specifically authorizes a home rule county in its charter to establish a maximum property tax limitation. Probably it would have this authority without this specific provision but including it makes that certain.

It is our opinion that this proposal gives those counties with specific problems the necessary machinery to deal with those problems but does so without disturbing unnecessarily the government of the other counties of the state.

The wording of the proposal follows substantially the home rule provision for cities in our present constitution, and those that will be included in the new constitution. They too have constitutional limitations more numerous than the limitations included in this proposal.

Following is the minority report to Committee Proposal 89 as offered and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Messrs. Allen, Batchelor, Mrs. Cushman, Messrs. Farnsworth, Figy, Follo, Mrs. Judd, Messrs. McCauley, McLogan, Sleder and Tweedie, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following minority report to committee proposal 89:

We propose the substitution of the following language for the language contained in subsections B and C of section b, (lines 5-10 on page 2) of Committee Proposal 89:

A minority of the committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

B. NOTWITHSTANDING ANY OTHER PROVISION IN THIS CONSTITUTION OR IN LAW, FOR THE DESIGNATION OF THE OFFICERS OF THE COUNTY AND THE MANNER OF THEIR SELECTION.

C. NOTWITHSTANDING ANY OTHER PROVISION IN THIS CONSTITUTION OR IN LAW, FOR THE FORM OF GOVERNMENT OF THE CHARTER COUNTY, INCLUDING THE MEMBERSHIP OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS AND THE MANNER OF THEIR SELECTION WHICH SHALL NOT BE BY AN ELECTION AT LARGE.

Messrs. Allen, Batchelor, Mrs. Cushman, Messrs. Farnsworth, Figy, Follo, Mrs. Judd, Messrs. McCauley, McLogan, Sleder and Tweedie, a minority of the committee on local government, submit the following reasons in support of the foregoing minority report, which accompanied Committee Proposal 89:

Committee proposal not home rule:

The committee proposal does not provide true county home rule. "Home rule," by legal definition is "local self government;" that is, the right of the people to determine by charter the form of their own local government.

The committee proposal establishes the structure for "home rule" counties by mandate of the constitution and the general law. Thus, although it does provide acceptable charter making procedures, it removes from that process the very heart of home rule: namely, the right of the people of a county to change the structure of their county government to meet their own peculiar needs.

Without the right to make such determinations, one may venture to predict that the people of few, if any, counties would attempt the arduous task of writing a county charter.

The issue: mandatory uniformity versus home rule:

As indicated in the committee report, the issue between the committee report and the undersigned members on the proposed county home rule provision relates not to the charter making procedure nor to the substantive powers of the county, but only to the structure of the county government.

We would, however, restate the issue. The difference between us is not on what structure a home rule county should have, but on how it should be determined. The issue, in other words, is uniformity mandated by the constitution or general law as against home rule: the right of the people of a county to choose their form of county government for themselves.

Specific points of difference — what the amendments would do:

County officers: The committee proposal requires a home rule charter to retain the constitutional status and election of the prosecuting attorney, sheriff, clerk, treasurer and register of deeds. The amendment permits the people of a county to decide for themselves whether they wish to make all or any of their county officers elective or appointive.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

Board of supervisors: The committee proposal gives to the legislature the power to determine the form and manner of selection of the board of supervisors. The amendment permits the people of a county to decide for themselves whether they wish to keep their board of supervisors exactly as it is or to make it more fairly representative for their particular county and more directly accountable to the voters.

Specific points of agreement — what the amendments would not do:

These amendments would not require any county to attempt to draft a home rule charter if it did not desire to do so. For all 83 counties the committee on local government has proposed exactly the same structure as has been provided in the constitution since 1835. Counties which find this structure still satisfactory need not make use of the home rule provision.

These amendments in no way endanger the usefulness of the county as an administrative arm of the state. The last section of the committee proposal, section d, requires the continuance of all traditional county functions in relation to state administration.

These amendments would not lead to the abolition of cities, villages and townships. These units of government are assured in the general provisions on local government. Their effectiveness, however, within the wider urbanized area would be heightened by the opportunities for coordination and cooperation offered by a responsible and responsive form of county government.

County home rule urgently needed:

Urbanization is the reason for county home rule. Several counties in Michigan today are plagued with areawide problems unmatched by areawide government capable of meeting these problems. The county is big enough to cover most of these metropolitan areas, but the constitution blocks basic adjustment in the form of its government. Without an executive head and without a board of supervisors designed to serve as a representative, policy making body, one can predict that both the people and the legislature will be slow to grant the new powers to the county that would enable it to serve metropolitan needs.

Effective county government in metropolitan areas of concern to the entire state:

Effective county government in metropolitan areas can serve to check the drift of local government away from local and state control. It can encourage industrial growth in the metropolitan community and hence in the state. Effective county government in metropolitan areas offers a bulwark against the removal of government to agencies not responsible to the local voter. The bulging populations of our urban areas must have adequate governmental services. If they do not find the county usable for this purpose, they will be forced to find alternatives. Alternatives accepted with increasing frequency today are special districts and authorities and federal aid. All of these are removed from control by the local voter. Federal aid, in addition, tends to bypass and weaken the state.

Effective area wide government in urban counties is also essential to keep and attract industry and hence to undergird the economic growth of the state as a whole. Absence of such area wide governmental competence, however, will not check population growth. The burden of serving a growing metropolitan population without a corresponding growth in employment will fall on the taxpayers of the state as a whole.

Opportunity of the convention:

The Constitutional Convention of 1908 has come down in history as the initiator of one of the great political experiments of this century, municipal home rule. Under this provision the state of Michigan forged ahead with creative citizen efforts in the development of effective municipal government.

The Constitutional Convention of 1962 can make an equal contribution in the development of the county in the new urban complex. The 2 amendments, designed to provide genuine structural home rule, would make this contribution possible.

Responsibility of the convention:

We urge the acceptance by this convention of the cornerstone principle of our American democracy; namely, the right of local self government, this time applying it to counties. To achieve this, the people of a county through the drafting and adopting of a home rule charter must be given the right to choose election or appointment of their county officers and the right to determine the membership and manner of selection of their board of supervisors. These rights are provided in the 2 proposed amendments. We urge their adoption.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, this proposal will be handled section by section. And as all members of the committee are fully aware, this is the proposal on home rule. It has had a great deal of discussion over the past several weeks. The committee was somewhat divided in its approach to the problem, and the chairman was also in that unusual position.

I would at this time like to yield to Mrs. Judd.

MR. DOWNS: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point of order, Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I believe that there has been a minority report filed. Delegate Hart and I have filed with the secretary and distributed to the delegates last Tuesday a substitute for the minority report specifically amending subsections B and C. I believe, therefore, that what is now in order is the substitute for the minority report and that this should be before the body at the present time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Downs, the committee has acted in the following way. We allow the committee to make the explanation of the section and then ask if there are any amendments to the section.

MR. DOWNS: May I just make a further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman? The amendments we have are to subsections B and C. I think it would be easier to take them up as a unit. Will that be in order after the committee has explained the majority report?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Downs, the minority report is an amendment to section b. Can we dispense with section a before turning to the minority report?

MR. DOWNS: Yes. I was raising this in connection with section b.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to withdraw the direction in which I yielded the floor, and for the moment yield the floor to Mr. Baginski, as this is the majority report.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman and delegates, for the sake of brevity — and I know we are going to spend a lot of time with this — I will call your attention to the comments in Journal 71, pages 462 and 463.

And now I will yield the floor to Mr. Elliott and we will see, as Mr. Powell says, what he has up his sleeve.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Baginski yields to Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I now yield to Mrs. Judd for the purpose of introducing an amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Elliott yields to the lady from East Grand Rapids, Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: I believe there is an amendment, Mr. Chase?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Judd, Mr. Brake and Mr. Arthur Elliott offer the following amendment to Committee Proposal 89:

1. Amend page 1 by striking out all of lines 6 through 22 and inserting the following:

"Sec. a. Any county may frame, adopt, amend, or repeal a county charter in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law, which law may permit the organization of county government in forms different from the form set forth in this constitution. Subject to law, a county charter may authorize the county through its regularly constituted authority to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns.

No county charter shall be adopted, amended, repealed or revised until approved by a majority vote of county electors voting on the question.

The question of electing a charter commission may be placed on the ballot by a majority vote of the total membership of the board of supervisors and shall be placed thereon on receipt of a petition signed by 5 per cent of the registered voters of the county. The charter commission shall be elected by the county electors in accordance with the election laws.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Judd speaking on the amendment.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee of the whole, I rise to speak as an individual—

MR. McCAULEY: Point of information, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, there have been certain minority reports filed in this thing and they are tied in with the majority report. Now, all I want to know is: when we get back to these minority reports, are we going to have to write this thing out, or can we just move, in order that our minority report will make sense, that we refer back to the majority report before it was substituted by Mrs. Judd?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: It is the Chair's understanding that the amendment we are considering is to section a and that the minority reports are amendments to sections b and c.

MR. McCAULEY: But the only point I am making is that the minority report makes no sense if the substitute is adopted, and we don't have our day in court to talk about it. It will be all over.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair finds that regrettable for you, Delegate McCauley, but I don't know how else to rule.

Delegate Judd.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: For what purpose does the gentleman arise?

MR. FORD: Another point of information. As I glance at this amendment, it is not an amendment to section a. It is a substitute for the entire committee proposal. And in discussing it, unless you are going to try and pick out that language which duplicates section a of the majority report, it is going to be impossible. This is not an amendment to section a. It is an amendment to the entire subject matter covered by the minority report as well.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford, the amendment reads, "Amend page 1 by striking out all of lines 6 through 22," which is all of section a, "and inserting the following:". Therefore, the amendment does deal with section a.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Chairman, I rise as an individual to support the proposed substitute for 2 reasons: first, I believe it is extremely important that this convention include in this constitution a provision for county home rule; and secondly, I believe this proposal will have wider acceptance in the convention than any other proposal so far offered.

First, I would like to take a few minutes of the committee's time to discuss what county home rule is and the need for it, since this is the first time the subject has come before the committee. Home rule is the right of the people to determine for themselves that form of government best suited to their local needs. In Michigan history, since 1908, home rule has been in existence for cities, and it has been carried on according to the constitution subject to general law.

Now, county home rule is urgently needed in Michigan. Urbanization is the reason for this. Several counties in Michigan today are plagued with areawide problems unmatched by areawide government capable of meeting these problems. The county is geographically big enough to encompass most of these metropolitan areas, but its structure and its powers require adjustment if it is to meet these new responsibilities.

Effective county government in metropolitan areas is of concern to the entire state, first because it can serve to check the drift of local government away from local and state control, and second, because it can encourage industrial growth in the metropolitan community and hence in the state. Effective county government in metropolitan areas offers a bulwark against the removal of government to agencies not responsible to the local voter. The bulging populations of our urban areas must have governmental services. If they do not find the county usable for this purpose, they will be forced to find alternatives. Alternatives accepted with increasing frequency today in Michigan are special districts and authorities and federal aid. All of these are removed from control by the local voter. Federal aid, in addition, tends to bypass and weaken the state. Effective areawide government in urban counties is also essential to keep and attract industry and hence to undergird the economic growth of the state as a whole. Absence of such areawide governmental competence, however, will not check population growth. Let me repeat that point, please. I think it is something we forget. Absence of such areawide governmental competence will not check population growth. The burden of serving a growing metropolitan population without a corresponding growth in employment will fall on the taxpayers of the state as a whole.

Secondly, I believe that this amendment for county home rule that I am supporting will find wider acceptance in the convention. It is a non self executing provision; that is, statutory implementation is required to permit changes in the present form of county government. The minority proposal from the local government committee is self executing on this point. This is the essential difference between them. This amendment represents a common meeting ground in the legislature. Reliance on the legislature for the implementation of county home rule is consistent with the principle being slowly and painfully accepted by this convention with respect to many aspects of the constitution. It is also in line— though with a difference in degree— with the 1908 provision for municipal home rule.

Further, I find this principle in accordance with the spirit of thinking of various students of the home rule doctrine. For example, the pamphlet, Salient Issues of Constitutional Revision, recently published by the national municipal league— and I believe in our library here— states, "It must be recognized that ideally a constitutional home rule scheme could and should benefit from legislative implementation." Now, we all recognize that in the legislature we seldom have an "ideal" situation. Nevertheless, the transfer of power to execute fully the county home rule provision from the people of a county to their representatives in the legislature still preserves a fair arena in our democratic form of government in which to work for county home rule.

The amendment retains the procedures by which the board of supervisors or the people by petition may place the question of framing a charter on the ballot and may elect a charter commission, together with the requirement of a popular vote for adoption of the charter. This is the safeguard of the voice of the people of a county in the form of their government. In view of these provisions on charter procedure, I interpret the first sentence of the amendment to mean that the legislature may, as it did in the municipal home rule act of 1909, require, permit and prohibit various provisions of a county charter within which limitations a county may frame its own charter.

While genuinely regretting the dropping of the self executing feature of the minority proposal, I recognize the difficulty of writing a fully self executing provision satisfactory to everyone without cluttering it with rigid statutory detail. Under this non self executing provision the many factors that should or should not be included in a charter can be worked out with greater flexibility in the legislature.

The adoption of this substitute calls for the long view on the part of its proponents for the achievement of a form of county government competent to serve metropolitan needs. It is my sincere conviction, however, that this goal can and will ultimately be realized under this amendment. So I support the amendment, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the lady from East Grand Rapids yield to Delegate Elliott?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Delegate Brake.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, Mrs. Judd and ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I think that practically every delegate came to this convention with a recognition that something would be done and should be done in the field of home rule for counties.

There were several proposals introduced, very divergent in their approach. Mr. Buback and Mr. Baginski introduced a proposal. I did. We found that we were very much alike and got together and made them completely alike, and as a net result, we got called some names that were not intended to be complimentary. I didn't lose any sleep over it and I take it Mr. Buback and Mr. Baginski didn't lose any sleep either.

In the committee we were sharply divided. The proposals were discussed. At times the argument got warm enough so that it was very interesting. And finally we 3, with other supporters of their proposal, were able to get the proposal out of committee by a very slender margin. I believe it was 14 to 11. That looked like quite a fight on the floor of the convention. Nobody had changed his mind. Some things changed in the convention that made the outcome very uncertain.

Under those circumstances a practical person compromises, if he can compromise without sacrificing his principles. I told Mr. Buback and Mr. Baginski that I was in a position where I would try for a compromise if others would. I asked nothing of them in the way of changing their position and they asked nothing of me in the way of changing my position. We still think alike. But finally a compromise, concurred in by many of those directly interested, was arrived at, and it is before you in the form of a substitute for the majority report.

It is a compromise. It is not a compromise that sacrifices anybody's principles at all. It does 2 things: it asks the legislature to pass a county home rule act. That is just what the 1908 constitutional convention asked the legislature to do with reference to city home rule, and asked it in almost the same terms. Everybody, I think, agrees to that. No controversy there at all. The other thing that it does is to transfer the forum for this battle from this convention to the legislative halls. If this is adopted, put in this constitution, Mrs. Judd, Mrs. Cushman, Mr. Allen and others who agree with them will meet Mr. Buback and Mr. Baginski and I, or others taking our place but still having our philosophy, before the committee of towns or counties in the house, and municipal corporations in the senate, and I think that will be an interesting meeting too.

You can put up a pretty strong argument that that is just the way it ought to be done. While there are counties with home rule around the country, the pattern is not too well established yet. It is rather new. And the first plan adopted in the legislature may not be the best plan. We may find that there are changes that ought to be made. And even if the plan as adopted is good and very workable, 10 years from now, 20 years from now there may be changed conditions that will warrant a change, and change can easily be made in the legislature as compared with the necessity of bringing about a constitutional amendment. So that may be the right answer.

Anyway, it is a compromise. We propose that the legislature shall lay down the rules under which counties may adopt a home rule charter. There is no controversy, so far as I know, with reference to the 2 second paragraphs which provide that the voters of the county must approve, of course, before a charter is adopted, and provide the method of getting the procedure started either by the board of supervisors or by initiatory petition.

A real compromise is never 100 per cent satisfactory to everybody. That is the nature of a compromise. But this is one where you sacrifice no principle. You simply change the forum. And let me assure you that it was reached not easily, but after a lot of negotiation, a tremendous amount of difficulty and some very, very urgent persuasion. I lost some sleep when a farmer ought to be sleeping, and others did more than I. It is a compromise.

I know that there are supporters on both sides that would like to change some of this, and there are those who have said that if amendments start to succeed, they too will have some. So let me urge all of you on both sides of the controversy, with all the sincerity that I can, if you can possibly do it, let's accept this as it is, recognizing it is a compromise, recognizing that you don't need to sacrifice what you believe, and let's get this over as quickly as we can. Thank you very much. (applause)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment to section a. Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I think you have just seen demonstrated why Mr. Brake has the admiration and respect of all of Michigan.

I would like to suggest, not to belabor the point, that we are standing, in 1962, at the same threshold at which those delegates stood in 1907 and 1908, with a problem which is just as difficult as the one that they had, with the same divisions of thought as they had. And I think that we should all be grateful for the course which they charted for us back then, because with their wisdom and their imagination and willingness to look into the future, they gave to us an instrument within our constitution that made it possible for the legislature as the years have gone by to make changes in the statute which have provided for the needs of the times.

This language which Mrs. Judd and Mr. Brake and I are offering I am convinced does the same thing for the future of our state through the '70s, '80s, '90s and so forth in relation to counties, and I would like to add my voice to those of Mr. Brake and Mrs. Judd in urging the adoption of this in its entirety.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair might announce that there are 2 amendments to be offered to the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott. The first is offered by Mrs. Cushman; the second is offered by Mr. Pellow. Delegate Hodges.

MR. HODGES: My remarks are on the main amendment. If there is an amendment to the amendment, would it be more in order for my remarks to wait?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Would it be agreeable with you, Delegate Hodges, if you waited until the amendments were disposed of to section a before making your remarks?

MR. HODGES: I will yield to Mrs. Cushman for her amendment. Will that be proper?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: If you so desire. The secretary will read the amendment of Mrs. Cushman to the amendment offered by Mrs. Judd and others.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Cushman, Mr. Follo and Mr. McCauley offer the following amendment to the amendment proposed by Mrs. Judd, Mr. Brake and Mr. Arthur Elliott:

1. Amend the amendment after "Sec. a.", by striking out the first paragraph and inserting "Any county may frame, adopt, amend or repeal a county charter to organize county government in form different from the form set forth in this constitution in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law. Subject to law, a county charter may authorize the county through its regularly constituted authority to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment to the amendment. Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: As you can see, my amendment is along much the same lines as the Judd-Brake compromise amendment, and it is because I agree with the things that they have said and with the things that Mr. Elliott has said that I offer it. I offer it because I really believe that it is important for us at this time to offer something that is a real home rule, and I think that this spells it out in a somewhat clearer form than their amendment.

It gives the people of the county, in my opinion, a more definite right to write a county charter that meets their specific needs. I do not feel that this right is adequately protected under the compromise amendment. I want to make it very plain that counties do have this right. I do, of course, keep the legislature in the role of arbitrator where necessary, but I think that there is a difference between my wording and that of the compromise.

I feel that we have to compare what we want to give counties with what we have given cities. Several people have said this. I think the cities are in a different position, constitutionally, from the counties. There is nothing in the Constitution of the State of Michigan that tells a city in any way what its basic form of government should be. In contrast, the counties do have a standard form that we adopted or readopted the other day, and its spells out in some detail the legislative body, the administrative officers and so forth of a county. Because of the fact that we have this in the constitution, I feel it is important to make it plain that a county with home rule should be able to change this form.

I would like to yield to Mr. Follo.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cushman yields to Delegate Follo.

MR. FOLLO: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, this business of county home rule was something that was very close to my heart and has been for a long time. Much of what I am going to say here has been heard over and over again by the members of our committee, and they can plug their ears or go for a walk or something.

It is a long tradition in Delta county also. Years ago, in 1921 and '22, Escanaba and Gladstone adopted city home rule and under it adopted charters which afforded a great improvement over what we had had before. The editor and publisher of our paper at that time was John P. Norton, and many of you who are old in the Republican party will remember that he was a stalwart in that party. John P. Norton wrote editorial after editorial in the Escanaba Daily Press calling for county home rule because he could see how well it worked in the city, and he felt that there was a great need for thoroughgoing county reform as early as the 1920s and the 1930s.

Following that, there has been great interest in Delta county in this county reform, and I want to cite several things that will perhaps indicate that interest. In 1949 we formed a county committee in Delta county of which I was fortunate to be chairman and in which we made a thorough study of county home rule in the United States, and we came to the conclusion that a movement had to start somewhere and we spent for weeks many, many hours framing a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Michigan. Our county board of supervisors was so impressed with this that they endorsed it twice on 2 different occasions and even appropriated $300 to have it printed and circulated throughout the state, hoping that other counties might support it.

This did not happen. It was perhaps too early for it, but at least it indicates that 1 county of moderate population — about 35,000 now, but back then less than 30,000 — was interested in county home rule, and I would venture to predict that it would have a very good chance of passing in Delta county today because of the ground work that has been laid over the years for this.

I feel that the proposal, if left to the legislature, is going to languish there. I feel that we are going to need to do more. We are going to have to allow the people to attempt to change their government. I think that we are not asking for a great deal. We are asking that maybe 1 county at least, maybe 2, would have the chance to try this to see how it would work.

Lord Bryce, the famous British political scientist, once said that there was virtue in the American democracy because states could experiment with various types of government. I would like to see the opportunity afforded to the people of Michigan to attempt an experiment in some of the new forms of county government.

Therefore, I would urge you to support the amendment which has been introduced by Mrs. Cushman, Mr. McCauley and myself.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment to the amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: A question to any of the proponents. Is it intended that this amendment will replace only section a, or is it intended that this will be the total of the county home rule provision?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford yields to Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: This would replace the first paragraph of the Judd-Brake amendment, and then it would be followed by 2 other paragraphs here. That would be all.

MR. FORD: Mrs. Cushman, with respect to this first paragraph, would it fit as well as the replacement to the first paragraph of the majority report? Could, for example, we adopt all of the majority report and adopt yours too if we replaced paragraph a with your paragraph a?

MRS. CUSHMAN: Well, I would have to look that over and make sure. I don't know. I don't have the majority report in front of me.

MR. FORD: What I guess I am really asking, Katherine, is in what way is your language now proposed here as an amendment different from the language proposed in the majority report for paragraph a?

MRS. CUSHMAN: I think it spells out a little bit more clearly that the county can do it in forms different from the forms set forth in this constitution in the other article.

MR. FORD: As I read the language, is it your intention that this would be what we have referred to in the committee as a self executing home rule, in that a county would have the inherent right to have home rule, subject to restrictions, as distinguished from the majority, which says that the legislature may delegate to the county the authority to have home rule?

MRS. CUSHMAN: My understanding of what self executing home rule is is possibly a little different from yours because my idea of self executing home rule is nothing that has yet been introduced in this convention at all. It would require a detailed spelling out. It would require the sort of language that we had in the Cushman-Donnelly delegate proposal, if you remember that. That is self executing. None of it that has been introduced as committee proposals or amendments or anything is self executing in my understanding.

MR. FORD: Well, so that we don't appear to disagree where we agree because we have a different definition for a term, maybe we can find a different term. As I understand your language, the legislature would not make a decision as to whether or not there should be home rule. The legislature is being told that a county has a right to home rule and it has been directed to provide the framework for it.

MRS. CUSHMAN: That is right.

MR. FORD: Whereas the majority reports says that the legislature shall provide by general law for home rule —

MRS. CUSHMAN: May provide, yes.

MR. FORD: May provide by general law, and in fact they would delegate to the county a home rule power, while your provision would delegate that power now, subject to the restrictions the legislature might put on it.

MRS. CUSHMAN: This is the implication that I get from it, I hope.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bessemer, Delegate Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: I have a parliamentary inquiry at this time, Mr. Chairman. I would like to know whether or not if the Cushman amendment is adopted, that will preclude the amendment that I have offered.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: It is the Chair's understanding that your amendment, Mr. Pellow, is at the end, and Mrs. Cushman's is to the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott. It would not preclude yours.

MR. PELLOW: The only point that I raise is that in the event Mrs. Cushman's amendment is adopted or is not adopted, that I will still have a chance to speak upon my amendment, and make the amendment to either Mr. Brake's amendment or Mrs. Cushman's amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: That is correct.

MR. PELLOW: Thank you, sir.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from St. Ignace, Delegate Dell.

MR. DELL: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I was a member of this local government committee and, as Mr. Brake advised you, there was considerable discussion on this particular angle of county home rule. We made a compromise. Now I find that members of our committee are offering amendments. I think we should stick with the compromise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Point of personal privilege.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point.

MR. McCAULEY: In answer to Mr. Dell, I think this question should be answered. There was a compromise arrived at. The 3 members that were on this minority report of the Democratic party did not agree to the compromise, and I think everybody understood that. I perfectly well realize that you have to have the votes to win, and I am not going to be crushed if I lose, but I want to have my day to talk about it, that is all.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the amendment offered by Delegates Cushman, Follo and McCauley to the amendment offered by Delegates Brake, Judd and Elliott to section a. As many as are in favor of the amendment to the amendment will say aye. As many as are opposed will say no.

The amendment to the amendment is not adopted.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Cushman requests a division. Is there support for a division vote? There is support for a division vote. The secretary will read the amendment to the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment by Mrs. Cushman, Mr. Follo and Mr. McCauley is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1095.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment to the amendment. All those in favor will vote aye. All those opposed vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mrs. Cushman, Mr. Follo and Mr. McCauley, the yeas are 27; the nays are 89.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment to the amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the amendment?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Pellow offers the following ing amendment to the amendment:

1. Amend the amendment at the end thereof, by inserting the following paragraph:

"Each county charter shall provide for the election of a county clerk, a county register of deeds, a county treasurer, a sheriff, and a prosecuting attorney, in accordance with the provisions of this constitution.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Pellow amendment to the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, et al. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bessemer, Delegate Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: Ladies and gentlemen of this committee of the whole, I think that we are now coming to the crucial point of this convention, and I bring this up at this time not only to speak for the county elected officials — and before someone rises to their feet and says that I have a vested interest in this because I am serving my third term as prosecuting attorney of Gogebic county — I did not come down to this convention to compromise my views. I did not come down to this convention to get into a private caucus and then, what I firmly believed in, to compromise with others and as a result give away my solemn pledge to my people of the upper peninsula.

Now, Delegate Follo has accurately and so eloquently spoken of the county of Delta. Believe me, ladies and gentlemen of this committee, I too have talked with people from the county, not only of Delta, but the counties of Gogebic, Iron, Dickinson and Marquette, the senatorial district that I represent, and these elected officials — and not only the elected officials but the people of the upper peninsula — believe in grass roots democracy. They believe in the right of the people to govern themselves. They do not believe that we should have a creeping intellectual communism. They do not believe that the legislature should have the power if they so desire to take away the grass roots democracy that our people have fought for on foreign shores.

Now, I say that this question is not only important to the county officials; this question is also important to the basic question that we are soon to approach as to whether or not the state officials shall be elected or appointed, as to whether or not the supreme court shall be elected or appointed, as to whether or not the governor, the state representatives shall be elected or appointed. Or shall we just by proxy give our votes to our legislature and allow them to run our state government? I say to this committee in all seriousness and in all fairness to the people that they should elect fundamental grass roots officials.

At this time I would like to call this committee's attention to the amendment proposed by Mr. Brake — and perhaps if it was passed, the upper peninsula would be beneficiaries thereof — this states:

> Subject to law, a county charter may authorize the county through its regularly constituted authority to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns.

Now, this convention has seen fit to impose a flat rate income tax upon the people of the upper peninsula — that no graduated income tax shall be levied.

Perhaps with this particular provision, in the event that the county may regulate its own affairs and since there isn't any prohibition against legalized gambling in the upper peninsula, the counties of the upper peninsula may be in the position, in order to concern themselves with recreation, to have legalized gambling, and salvage their own destiny. I just throw that out as one question that is posed by this particular amendment.

I would also state to this committee in all seriousness that these various individuals that come up at this time and that are talking so strongly for allowing the people of the counties to govern themselves; did you see which way they voted when they brought up bingo, bango, bongo; when they talked about liquor on Sundays; when they talked about letting the community decide whether or not they should have industrial development?

I say to you at this particular time that if this committee does away with elected officials of the state of Michigan, that in 20 to 30 years you are going to have a massive bureaucracy. Everyone is going to be appointed, feeding at the public trough. The people will have no voice in government, and we may as well give it up right now if that's what this convention wants. And I say to this committee in all seriousness that if this is passed as it is, that I, as one individual delegate representing the thirty-first senatorial district, will go to my people — and I am not bashful to talk to my people — and I am going to campaign against this constitution regardless of party, regardless of the rest, because the basic fundamental principle is the right of government of the people, by the people and for the people.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Will the gentleman from Bessemer yield to the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Binkowski?

MR. PELLOW: I yield to anyone.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: To further immortalize our distinguished delegate from the upper peninsula, I would only like to say "banzai!" (laughter)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from St. Ignace, Delegate Dell.

MR. DELL: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I have every regard for my fellow delegate, Mr. Pellow, from the upper peninsula and I happen to be a county officeholder too from the upper peninsula and could be in the position of fighting for personal interest. In the committee, after many hours of debate on this subject, I am quite willing to accept the compromise. I don't like to use the word "compromise" but, nevertheless, we realize that there are many problems that come in and that is the way that we arrive at everything, through a compromise, and I am quite willing to go ahead and trust the legislature in handling this problem from now on. And I just want to stand here and say I hope you adopt the original amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the Pellow amendment to the amendment offered by Delegate Judd et al to section a. As many as are in favor of the Pellow amendment to the amendment will say aye. As many as are opposed will say no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott to section a?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McCauley offers the following amendment to the amendment:

1. Amend the amendment at the end thereof by inserting the following paragraphs:

"Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the designation of the officers of the county and the manner of their selection.

Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the form of government of the charter county, including the membership of the board of supervisors and the manner of their selection which shall not be by an election at large.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the McCauley amendment to the amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, once again now I think we are back to the original minority report, which can be found on page 528 of Journal 73. I would like to point out to the members of the committee that here we are dealing with the basic heart, the fundamentals of home rule. We are talking about the rights of people in certain counties if they so desire to elect their board of supervisors, to appoint them, take them by raffle, however they want to choose these officials. I think this is a point where we are getting down to the grass roots of government when we are talking about the original minority report. Another thing that we are so very concerned about as far as county home rule goes is the rights of people to determine what elected officers they want, if any.

I would like to repeat from the minority report that the definition of home rule is "local self government"; that is, the right of the people to determine by charter the form of their own local government.

The committee proposal that is before us now, without the amendments, establishes the structure for home rule counties by mandate of the constitution and general law. Thus, it does provide acceptable charter making procedure. It removes from that process, however, the very heart of home rule: namely, the right of the people of a county to change the structure of their county government to meet their own particular needs.

Without the right to make such determinations, one may venture to predict that the people of few, if any, counties would attempt the task of writing a county charter.

The issue presented before us here today is mandatory uniformity versus home rule. As indicated in this report, the issues between the committee report and the report that I am presenting now on proposed county home rule provisions, relates not to the charter making procedures nor to the susbtantive powers of the county, but only to the structure of county government.

We would, however, like to restate the issue. The difference between us is not on what structure a home rule county should have, but on how it should be determined. The issue, in other words, is uniformity mandated by the constitution or general law as against pure home rule: the right of the people of a county to choose their form of county government for themselves. That is the issue that is directly before you and that we should confine ourselves to today.

I certainly appreciated Mr. Brake's remarks and I know that they were made in all sincerity and maybe it would be better to discuss this in another forum. However, coming from Wayne county and the area that I represent, I know what my chances would be in the other forum.

I say to you, ladies and gentlemen, that we in counties that want home rule, pure home rule, want the right to determine whether or not our supervisors should be elected or appointed, the right to determine whether or not we should have a sheriff, we should have a prosecutor, we should have a register of deeds. These are the items that should be discussed and should be passed upon by the persons at the grass roots level.

Therefore, ladies and gentlemen, I would urge the adoption of the amendment. And if we are talking about strict home rule, I think that this is going to give the people of the counties the permissive right to determine exactly what they want and what they think is in the best interests of their people.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the McCauley amendment to the amendment. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Stanton, Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I had intended to say nothing more during this debate, but I can't quite resist. I think there is no reason in the world to think that the legislature will be less sensitive to the rights of the people and to the protection of those rights than are we here. That is part of their business. And they go back to the people every 2 years in order to make sure that they are going to be sensitive to those people's rights. We have debated back and forth many times on how much you should trust the legislature. All this does is to transfer the question to the legislature. And I am sure they will be as sensitive as we are in the protection of those rights.

Now, one other thing, Mr. McCauley. I served 8 years in the legislature and have been around it a great deal since. I have never had any reason to think that somebody from Wayne county was prejudiced in that legislature, that he didn't have as good a chance as somebody from my county or Mr. Pellow's county or any other county.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: In reply to Mr. Brake, I would just like to say I agree with your statements, Mr. Brake, but the only difference is that you have the votes and we in Wayne county have not. That's it.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, so that there will be no misunderstanding, I think it should be made perfectly clear that the approach to this problem is the identical approach that we took in the area of cities almost 60 years ago. There is not, by the purpose of this amendment, any desire on the part of myself as maker to prevent at any time in the future, once the legislature has adopted the enabling legislation, the counties from adopting the type of charter that they want.

I would bring to your attention that this does one thing that I think is extremely essential: it gives the flexibility for the future to the legislature so that if there are needs in the future for modifications in enabling legislation, it can be easily done. There was no thought here, Mr. McCauley, on my part but what the legislature will adopt the proper legislation which will allow the people of the county to have complete self determination in this field that you have just spoken of.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: My final comment is this: if we in Wayne county and in the urban counties want exactly the same type of government we have today — the sheriff, the prosecutor, the register of deeds and so on — if the people of Detroit want to continue with appointed members of the board of supervisors, just defeat these amendments and we've got it made for the next 50 years.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the amendment by Mr. McCauley to the amendment offered by Delegate Judd, et al, to section a. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McCauley's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1098.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the McCauley amendment to the pending amendment. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment to the amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the Judd-Brake-Elliott amendment to section a?

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment —

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, this was distributed to the delegates Tuesday. It is 2½ pages. I would respectfully move that except for the introduction, the part on the yellow sheets be considered read and printed in the journal to save the time of the committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, it will be so ordered.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment proposed by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs is:

1 Amend the amendment offered by Mrs. Judd and others, after the word "limitations" by striking the balance of the amendment and inserting "as follows:"; so that the language will read, "Sec. a. Any county may frame, adopt, amend, or repeal a county charter in a manner and with powers and limitations as follows:"; then the printed material that Mr. Downs is talking about.

Following is the balance of the amendment:

"1. The prosecuting attorney shall be nominated and elected as provided by law.

2. The county sheriff shall be nominated and elected as provided by law.

3. Other existing county officials may have their functions merged or altered or unchanged, including the establishment of an elected or appointed county executive head, as determined by the county charter.

4. Employees performing ministerial and executive functions shall be hired under a civil service system, provided the chief executive and deputy of a department may be exempt if so provided by the charter. The judicial system shall not be altered by the charter.

Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the form of government of the charter county, including the membership of the legislative body (now called the board of supervisors) and the manner of their selection which shall be as follows:

1. Members of the county legislative body shall be nominated and elected by the people, provided that elected local officials may serve on the county legislative body by virtue of their office, as determined by the county charter, if each such local official represents approximately the same number of people.

2. Such nominations and elections shall include nominations by direct party primary and elections in a general election as provided by law.

3. Members of the county legislative body shall be elected from areas as nearly equal in population as practicable, or elected at large, as determined by the charter. More than 1 county legislator can be elected from the same area, providing each such legislator represents approximately the same number of people. The number of county legislators shall be determined by the charter.

4. The county legislative body shall keep a public journal of its activities, record by yeas and nays the final votes on all policy decisions, record all other votes by yeas and nays on the demand of 1/5 of the members elect, meet publicly unless public security demands otherwise, and establish rules for operation consistent with the public good.

5. The charter commission preparing for the change to this form of county government shall be nominated and elected on a bipartisan basis with proportional representation reflecting the votes of the respective candidates running from each political party. Nominations shall be in a direct primary. Members of the charter commission shall be elected from districts providing approximately equal representation of people, or at large. The number of members shall be determined by the charter petition.

6. The electors shall be able to initiate a charter commission under these standards by petitions signed by 5 per cent of the registered voters and approved by a majority voting thereon. The petitions for creation of a charter commission may be in any form consistent with this constitution and shall be self executing without the requirement of any additional state legislation. The people shall be able to rescind or amend their action by the same process.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Vice President Downs.

MR. DOWNS: There is a simple explanation, and I shall try to be as brief as I can so as to not prolong the debate. I would like to say here, though, at the outset that what we are doing is something different from what we have done so far in our convention. We are establishing a new form of government on a permissive basis for the people of a county. And I think in our last few days' deliberations we have found it is extremely difficult to change, alter or patch what has grown up over a period of time. So I think that if there is anything that really challenges our imaginations, it is to start a new form on a permissive basis so it is done properly and so that the convention 10, 20, 30, 40 years from now does not have to try to patch up what we are doing. This is why I think there is particular urgency to use our fullest abilities to think ahead and do a constructive job.

What this amendment by Delegate Hart and myself does is establish several principles of home rule. You know, everybody is for home rule just like we are for the flag and for motherhood, but I think it comes down to how we define it. The amendment that we have, first of all means that the new form is permissive. It is permissive by the voters in the county. It does not take any legislative action whatsoever. And, as our attorney friends say, it is self executing. This point I want to make very clear. These amendments would provide that the people of any county could have home rule by starting their petitions, and they would not need any additional legislative action.

Now, what this also does — and this is common with most home rule provisions — is to a large extent combine the legislative and executive functions of government. This is somewhat similar to the parliamentary system of England and of the Ontario legislature. I think that when we give these broad powers, we need to be sure that due responsibility will be maintained, and therefore we have the freedom of the people to start their home rule system, but limitation to the framework in which that freedom can be exercised.

The first limitation is that the law enforcement officials of the county must be elected by and directly responsible to the people. This means the sheriff and the prosecuting attorney. I believe there is historical justification for this.

The next provision is that those employees who are of a ministerial and executive function must be hired under a civil service system with reasonable provisions for exemptions of heads of agencies. I think this is important, because if we are going to grant a county the home rule principle to merge what are now elected executive officials such as the treasurer, the clerk, the register of deeds and so on, if we are to allow the county to reorganize that, I believe that we should have the protection that the individuals employed under that setup will be under a civil service system.

Finally, and the important thing, is the kind of legislative body we have. And Miss Hart and I do not use the words "board of supervisors" here because we find then we think of the past board of supervisors instead of the future concept of a county legislative body with limited executive powers. We provide in this that the county legislative body must be elected by the people and no appointed members can serve. The size of the body would be left entirely to the determination by the people through their charter commission. The nominations and elections would be on the direct primary and 2 party system. We believe that this is important, because our tradition of American government shows that our government operates best where we have a combination of a party responsibility and the individual candidate's responsibility. Therefore, the concept of 2 party responsibility is established.

The third point we make on this legislative body, this new one to be organized, is that so far as practical, the members should come from districts equal in population. We are not rigid as to how this is done. If a small county wants to elect a county legislative body of 10 people at large, they could do that. If a larger county wants to say that the elected mayor of a city within that county would automatically serve on this county legislative body, that could be done, and it might mean there would be 2 or 3 from a city who would either be the existing council members or an election of the persons as determined by the charter itself.

And another point we make — I think this is important: that this county legislative body would keep a journal of its proceedings and recorded roll call votes. These standards of public record are similar and taken from the standards we now use in the state legislature. And I want to remind the delegates that we are not saying leave everything up to the legislature. The present constitution — and I assume our future one — will call for specific provisions whereby there are recorded roll call votes, journals of activities and so on. This also requires public meetings of the legislative body unless public security demands otherwise.

Then, finally, the matter of the charter commission itself. Because this is self executing, we provide not how many should be on the charter commission, but the members should be elected either at large or on a basis as near equal in population with proportional representation. This would mean that if a county, for example, had a charter commission of 15 people and 1/3 of the votes were Democrats, there would be 5 Democrats and 10 Republicans on that charter commission. Then the commission itself could draw up any form of government not inconsistent with these provisions and other provisions of the constitution.

The judiciary system would be preserved and the charter commission would not be allowed to involve itself in the judicial system.

Now, as far as how this would be initiated, it would mean that 5 per cent of the registered voters could initiate petitions for a charter commission. There is nothing magic about that figure and certainly we would not object to its being changed. And then a majority of the voters would need to vote on it.

So what this does, we believe, is follow sound principles of having people choose their own form of government within a framework of a responsible elected system of government. We think this is particularly true to have a framework for home rule, because it is intimated that there will be additional powers given over what our county legislative bodies now have.

I appreciate the chance of presenting this. I am sorry this was not done the first thing in the morning, and I do hope the delegates will give this their serious consideration and thought, and I hope that you will vote according to what you believe is best in this matter.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Garden City, Delegate Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Hart-Downs amendment for an entirely different reason and one which will take a little while in exposition, and I hope you will bear with me since the hour is late. If you will recall, it was mentioned by Mr. Elliott, I believe on 2 occasions, and once by Mr. Brake, that what the principal compromise terminology would do in effect would be simply to transfer the problem to the legislature and also to put the legislature substantially in the same position it was in when we initiated the city home rule provisions back at the turn of the century and it apparently worked out well then and it should work out well now.

I suggest that this is really not true, because ½ century of lifemanship has transpired in our society and in the state of Michigan, and that ½ century has wrought tremendous changes and has given us some very serious matters to consider in the future. I will attempt to delineate, I think, what is the chief difference between the idea of granting complete power without restrictions to cities back at the turn of the century and the similar idea of granting similar power to the counties in this day and age.

Now, the essential difference is this. When cities in the state of Michigan in the historical process were granted home rule, government, even in the larger cities, was a matter over which people had some particular degree of self determination. We were not at that time in the era of the IBM. We were not at that time concerned with the statistical problems that result from large numbers of people. We were, rather, concerned with the fact that we had problems and they were represented through individual people. It was entirely possible in those days to say in an individual city: we will have a city manager — or we will have a council — or we will have a strong mayor or a weak mayor — or any of the other number of infinite varieties of city government. And you could make it an effective form of government because it would still be close to the people and would meet the needs of the people, and therefore you could give the cities carte blanche at the turn of the century and say: run your cities as you wish — because it was possible then to run your cities as you wish and it was possible for reasonable people, acting in concert, to actually do something worthwhile, because the problems were not that complicated.

Now we are living in the days of expertise, and in the future this particular phenomenon of our society will become more and more pronounced, more and more pronounced. It is obviously — and I think all of us realize it now — impossible for the average man, what I would call, say, an intelligent layman observer, to walk into the city-county building in Detroit or any other large city and know exactly how his government functions. And I think it is equally impossible for an individual who has been employed even, in a high capacity within such a large city for several months to actually gauge the tremendous problems that he has to face in order to make intelligent decisions, especially in regard to the future.

So instead of saying in 1962 we will give to the counties carte blanche for anything that they would like to do, and knowing, therefore, that if this occurs the tendency will be for the expert and for the managerial staff and for that particular strata of administrators within our local governments to rise to the top and to perpetuate their idea of how cities should run on a statistical basis — I think this would be an error. What we have to do, even though it is regrettable, even though it goes against the concept of the pure county home rule, in which you say "Here is your county; do what you want with it" — what we have to do at this juncture — and I hope that I am sounding like a conservative in these words — is return the mechanism of our large political entities within the state of Michigan to the more grass roots level so that the people will be able to protect themselves.

Now, I am not definitely in accord with the fact that the prosecutor and the sheriff shall be elected. I don't consider necessarily that their positions are any more sacrosanct than any other officials within the county. But the principal point is this. We must, however unwillingly, have the foresight to burden the pure home rule concept and temper it with a little idea of grass roots control by the people themselves. You can no longer give, say, the county of Wayne or the county of Kent or Genesee county or any of the other large counties pure county home rule as you gave back to the cities at the turn of the century because the same problems do not exist. The scope of problems is completely beyond the ken of normal elected officials, and if the structures of local government fall increasingly, as they actually must, into the hands of the statistical administrators, then I think we are going to lose the real popular control over our local form of government.

And for that reason I support the Hart-Downs amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I want to rise to support the Hart-Downs amendment and my reasons, again, are a little bit different than Tom's as he explained them and I guess a little bit different than Ted's.

One thing I want to make clear. For some time in this convention on the local government committee we had a division that was so severe that people actually were on the verge of losing friendships of some importance to them over the emotion that was generated by this question. I felt that there was no issue that caused as much concern to me about the attitudes of my fellow delegates, people that I considered friends that I had to differ with. There was nothing that compared to this. And how we could solve this problem has been a dilemma to many of us because there are so many points of view, and I would wager that if we took all 144 delegates and had them write, in not more than 25 words, a definition of home rule, we would get 144 different concepts. So we have to start off on the assumption that not all of us are talking about the same thing when we are talking about it. It is not the kind of thing that you can define with sufficient clarity so that we always know that when I am arguing for home rule or against it, I am really disagreeing with one who seems to be on the other side.

Now, this compromise that is talked about, which takes that form in this amendment, is a compromise between some certain individuals on the committee. And I want to make it clear that I took no part in that compromise and I don't endorse it, nor do I criticize the attempts of the people who brought the compromise about, nor do I criticize their motives. But I want to suggest to you that maybe what looks like a compromise here isn't really a compromise at all.

Mr. Brake said a practical person will compromise when he can do so without sacrificing his principles, and I thought that Mr. Brake and I at one point agreed on a couple of rather basic principles that have now been compromised right out the window, and one of the very basic principles is that I have no particular affection for the concept that all county officials have a vested interest that has to be protected. I don't represent any county officials. I have no aspirations toward becoming one and I don't know that I could even say that the county officials in my county are even personal friends. But there are 2 county positions that have a tradition and a history behind them that make me, as a lawyer, very apprehensive about tinkering with them and tinkering with their manner of selection. That is the prosecutor and the sheriff.

Now, Ted said he didn't understand why they were different or he didn't see that they were different than the other county officials. Well, I submit that they are different and they are different in the same way that the judges of our courts are different from the other county officials.

One of the questions that you are going to have to face later in the convention is a question of whether you would allow your judiciary to be appointed or whether you want to retain the right to elect them, and the principal focal point of this question is that historically we have come to the position in this country where the people demand the right to select the person who is going to sit in judgment of their rights.

In the same manner, in the formation of our present government, a very significant step was taken in this direction in 1215 at Runnymede Meadow when they sat down and said to bad Prince John, "We're not going to stand for the way you've been running things in the past. We want the right to determine for ourselves a good many of the things that you have been determining." All of you have a copy of the magna carta, the blue volume that was given to us at the beginning of the convention. One of the things that you will find running throughout is that when they referred to the people who enforced the King's laws, they constantly took care to see that the persons enforcing those laws would be selected by the people against whom they were being enforced or for whose benefit they were being enforced. The second thing that they were very careful to preserve unto themselves was the right to choose some form of local judiciary, someone to administer the law. Now, at that point in history there was no prosecutor. He is a more modern part of our system. But the prosecutor is an important and integral part of the whole system of justice and people's rights. The sheriff occupies a position that is not identical with a chief of police or a municipal law officer comparable to a chief of police, and the judiciary is a part of this system. It has been suggested to me, for example, that one reason why you might not agree that people like myself who feel that they have a constitutional right to elect the people that deal with the enforcement of the law at this level should not insist on this for the sheriff because, after all, he is just a chief of police. I want to point out one distinct reason why he is not just a chief of police. You cannot under the laws of this state be sentenced to serve any time in a city or municipal jail, but many people every day in this state are sentenced to serve time in a correctional or detention facility — down in Wayne county we have the county jail and then we have the Detroit house of correction — which is basically throughout this state an institution, the county jail that is controlled by an elected official.

There are many functions that the sheriff performs in Wayne county that are identical to and identical with every other county in the state. The manner of serving process, the manner of performing his duties is no different within the city of Detroit than it is in Berrien county or in the upper peninsula. The books of this state are full of statutes that define, modify and handle the powers and duties of both the sheriff and the prosecutor, and they don't say that in all counties except counties of such and such population, the sheriff or the prosecutor shall do thus and so. They say the sheriff and the prosecutor shall do thus and so.

And when you read that statute, you know who they are talking about. You know what kind of an officer they are talking about. You don't have to take a quick check and find out whether it is a home rule county that they are talking about or a county with over half a million people. The functions that these 2 people perform cannot, and in my opinion never should, be any different in Wayne county than they are any place else in the state of Michigan.

And I urge upon you that you and I have a constitutional right to guarantee ourselves that however well meaning the people who would promote a change might be, they never are in a position to take these principal law enforcement officers away from an election by the people and a direct responsibility to the people. Imagine, if you will, any political party or group, whether they are nonpartisan citizens for Wayne county or whatever you want to call them, or whether they are Democrats or Republicans or whatever party label they might choose to adopt, getting control of county government under a circumstance where they could adopt a charter which would not only permit them to appoint all of the administrative officers but would allow them to have the appointment and removal power over a principal part of the whole system of justice in that county.

Now, would you for one minute suggest sacrificing on the altar of this sacred home rule principle the courts by saying that in the county of Wayne, for example, a charter commission ought to be able to devise a different judiciary system and a different method of picking judges than they have in the rest of the state? Would you be willing to take a chance on the fact that in your county, instead of having an elected circuit judge, a charter commission could, in a wave of good government feeling, decide that it would be better to appoint that judge, or to have him appointed by the board of supervisors? I don't think anybody here would agree to that, but I submit that you are saying that you would be willing to permit a principal part of the justice system to be handled in just this manner.

Now, there isn't any reason for us to kid each other and beat around the bush about what the real issue is in this home rule, and has been, the real divisive issue. When we talk of home rule concepts, there are some differences of opinion. For example, no one has said anything about the taxing power of this home rule county. If the 15 mill limitation goes out the window, then I don't suppose we have any more to worry about with respect to this, but if the 15 mill limitation finds its way into this constitution or continues, then we have to face the question of whether these proponents of pure home rule really mean it, because when we asked them in the committee, "Would you allow a county to have taxing power, other than that which a normal county has, when it becomes a home rule county?", their answer was "No." One of the most influential or best publicized delegates in this convention had before us a proposal which specifically prohibits a home rule county from being exempted from the 15 mill limitation.

Now, doing this, and recognizing that you are going to create an animal without taxing power, what is it for? Is it to perform services? And if it is, how does it perform services in addition to what it performs presently if you give it no additional taxing power? Really, what some of these proponents of the pure home rule are talking about is what they call structural home rule, and by that they mean that they want the people of the county to have the right to change the governmental structure, the name of the officers, the powers of the officers, but not to change the governmental functions of a home rule county. And I submit that the only thing that you would have with this kind of pure home rule would be a county with officers with different names, picked in a different manner than they are now picked, but with no powers different than they presently hold.

A compromise was made and people signed their names to this compromise who were diametrically opposed on all of these issues that I have mentioned to you. And here is why I don't think it really is a compromise. As John McCauley has said, all that this intends to do is get rid of a hot potato in this convention by shifting it over to the legislature. In so doing, the members of both sides of this compromise are looking for 2 different results.

The people who support the Allen-Judd point of view — and I am not trying to single them out, because they have many people supporting them; I suggest this is a representative part of one group in the local government committee — apparently feel that if they trust the legislature to establish the structure of the county with respect to the question of whether the present constitutional county officials shall continue to be elected or not, that they can muster enough influence in the halls of the capitol building to cause the legislature to adopt a home rule provision that would permit the abolition of the constitutional officers.

On the other hand, Mr. Brake and his people very obviously went for this compromise because they think that they have enough influence in the halls of that capitol building over there to prevent the legislature from adopting a statute for county home rule that would permit the abolition of the present county officers.

Now, I am pointing fingers and I have a great deal of respect for the people whose names I have used, and I don't in any way intend to impugn their characters or to suggest anything but the highest motives. They are, in their way, attempting to get for the people of Michigan who seem most important in their considerations what they think is best for them. But I suggest to you that you are being fooled slightly if you think that this compromise is really a compromise, because all it is doing is getting us away from making the decision, and shifting it to the capitol building, and it is entered into by 2 groups of people who think that they have over there an opportunity to get what they want in county home rule and might not be able to get what they want here.

It apparently has been indicated to some people in this convention that there is a sufficient feeling in one direction or another on these issues so that the only hope they have of saving their position is really to save it over on capitol hill because they have lost hope here in this convention. I think that everybody in this room has some idea as to whether or not there have been discussions in groups other than on this convention floor that might lead people to believe that principal parts of this issue might have been resolved by political parties. I think it is a terribly unfortunate situation when we find ourselves in a position in this convention with anything as important and vital as this issue, with anything that has taken as much time and study as this issue has in the convention to come up with what is called a compromise, when we know really it isn't a compromise at all but it is a way to avoid some controversy that might to some people be embarrassing.

Some of the compromisers have still a third reason for entering into the compromise or for supporting the compromise, and that is that in the Tom Downs-Adelaide Hart formula of county home rule there isn't any question that every county in this state will have the right, from the day that this constitution is adopted, to start right out then with county home rule. But under the compromise proposal and under the amendment that Mrs. Cushman presented, which is almost identical, you find yourself in a position where if the legislature never agrees to a form of county home rule, there won't be any county home rule, because until such time as the legislature enacts a home rule statute, there isn't county home rule. There is nothing self executing about this provision.

So maybe this falls again into the hands of the people who say, "Really, what we are saying when we say we want to shift it to the legislature is that over in the legislature, if we don't get what we want, we can bottle it up in a committee for so long that in fact there will never be home rule, and we don't have to worry about whether the county officers are going to be eliminated or not." And I suspect that there is a possibility that the legislature will be in no better position to agree on what county home rule should be than we are right now, and that this issue could stay over there for years with good men tried and true, laying aside all politics and personal gain, still unable to make a decision because it is a knotty problem and it has a lot of prejudices built into it. The Downs-Hart amendment would say to the people of any county in this state, "Whether the legislature acts or doesn't act, you can go ahead and frame a charter, and at least as to the extent of the provisions in this amendment, you can have county home rule."

It is going to be urged here that you shouldn't adopt this Downs-Hart amendment because it is restrictive. Let's see which is really restrictive, the one that says that you have this as an absolute right, county home rule, or the one that says if and when the legislature ever gets around to adopting a home rule statute, you will then have it.

And then one final comment. John McCauley touched on it when he said there are some of us who are fearful that if we have to go into the arena of the legislative committee, that our views from Wayne county may not be heard. I don't think that John and I agree on this entirely, but I think that I could demonstrate to you very quickly that we have statutes galore on our books which have a population formula in them, and they might just as well say that in Wayne county, thus and so will happen. They don't say that. They say ". . . in counties of 1 million. . . ." They used to say ". . . in counties of 500,000. . . ." Then the 1960 census brought another couple of counties into the picture, so now they are revising all these figures up to 1 million, and I am fearful of a double standard that has pervaded much legislation coming into this county home rule picture, where that legislature might in its wisdom adopt a county home rule statute that said, "In counties where home rule is adopted, all county officials shall remain as presently provided for in the constitution, except in counties of over 1 million the county officials may be elected, selected, appointed or abolished in such manner as may be provided by the charter." And this is one of the clear and present dangers I see to leaving it to the legislature. I don't want my county or your county or anyone's county treated differently than the others when we are talking about county citizenship, and I don't think that a big county or a little county has any different interests in this matter.

And I ask you to support the Downs-Hart amendment because it is the only way that we can make a clear cut exposition to the people that we really honestly believe in county home rule and that we also honestly believe in protecting certain basic rights in the administration of justice.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate Hart and Vice President Downs to the amendment offered by Mrs. Judd, et al, to section a. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Flint, Delegate McLogan.

MR. McLOGAN: Mr. Chairman, I did want my day in court on this important matter but I don't want my day to be in the middle of the night, and in view of the hour, I will pass.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate McLogan passes.

The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegate Hart and Vice President Downs to the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott to section a. The secretary will not read the amendment. The reading was dispensed with by unanimous consent. As many as are in favor of the amendment offered by Delegate Hart and Vice President Downs will say aye. As many as are opposed will say no.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division is requested. Is there support for a division vote? There is adequate support for a division vote. All those in favor of the amendment offered by Delegate Hart and Vice President Downs to the pending amendment will vote aye. All those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 33; the nays are 80.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment to the amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the amendment offered by Delegate Judd, et al?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. T. S. Brown offers the following amendment to the amendment:

1. Amend the amendment, first paragraph, after the first "county charter" by striking out "in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law, which law may" and inserting "to"; and after "constitution.", by striking out the words "subject to law,"; so the language will read:

> Sec. a. Any county may frame, adopt, amend, or repeal a county charter to permit the organization of county government in forms different from the forms set forth in this constitution. A county charter may authorize the county through its regularly constituted authority to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Garden City, Delegate Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, working with the terminology that I very frankly understood from several delegates was the terminology that the majority members wished to pass, and attempting to interpose my particular idea of county home rule and give it a more puristic approach, I simply deleted the words which would limit or otherwise delineate the type of county home rule that any particular county could have. And then in reference to the phrase "subject to law," of course I think it is well understood that any county home rule provision initiated by the people in charge of the county would have no effect if it were contrary to general state law or the constitution or to any other superior document. It is very simple. It provides for what might be called a puristic county home rule, and it is self executing.

I was much impressed by what Bill Ford said. I think that we here have put as much study into this matter of county home rule, whether or not we shall have it, what type we should have and so on, as our best members in our legislature could possibly put in, and I don't think it is advisable for us at this time simply to give the matter to the legislature, because vested interests on both sides of the political fence in the state of Michigan will then begin to act as they have always acted in the legislature, and I think we here very frankly are a more logical body to determine, with less vested interest represented, just exactly what type of county home rule we are going to have. We are actually the people assembled, and I don't think that the legislature in its finest hour can say that much.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the amendment offered by Delegate T. S. Brown. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brown's amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment offered by Delegate T. S. Brown to the amendment. As many as are in favor of the Brown amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division vote is requested by Delegate Brown. Is there support? There is sufficient support. As many as are in favor of the Brown amendment to the pending amendment will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. T. S. Brown, the yeas are 26; the nays are 81.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment to the amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. T. S. Brown offers the following amendment:

1. Amend the amendment, last paragraph, after "electors" by inserting "by partisan ballot"; so that the last sentence in the last paragraph will read, "The charter commission shall be elected by the county electors by partisan ballot in accordance with the election laws."

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Garden City, Delegate Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Those of you who voted nay on the last amendment I proposed must recognize this as the last dying gasp of the point of view that we have been proposing here this afternoon. If this passes, I think it will be sufficient in the light of all the circumstances, because it will guarantee at least that the people by partisan ballot in any county will have a right to pass upon the actual workings out of their particular form of county home rule. In those counties that are conservatively oriented, I am sure the conservatives will win, and the reverse is also true, and then if we, in acquiescence to the best wishes of our particular political orientation, do ourselves a disservice in voting upon ourselves the wrong kind of charter, then, of course, we hold ourselves only to blame. But I do think that the matter should be decided on a partisan basis.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I won't belabor this point because I think it is obvious, according to the record, that the majority here have made up their mind and therefore this is just a complete silence on their part and there will be no changes. I would just like to go on record, though, as favoring the Brown amendment.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee of the whole is the amendment offered by Delegate T. S. Brown to the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott to section a. As many as are in favor of the Brown amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division vote is requested. Is there support? There is support. As many as are in favor of the Brown amendment to the pending amendment will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the Brown amendment, the yeas are 41; the nays 70.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment to the amendment is not adopted. Are there any further amendments to the amendment?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hodges offers the following amendment:

1. Amend the amendment, first paragraph, after "by general law,", by inserting "provided such law is uniform for all counties,"; so that the language will read:

> Any county may frame, adopt, amend, or repeal a county charter in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law, provided such law is uniform for all counties, which law may permit the organization of county government in forms different from the form set forth in this constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. Chairman, many people from my area have been discussing what I would probably consider a parade of horribles of what might happen, they envision, based on their experience with the current legislature and the possible one that might come out of this convention.

All we ask here — and I don't think this is asking too much — is that if a law giving home rule is enacted by the legislature and to the degree it gives it, that it is uniform on all counties. This would answer and would make me feel much more at ease in voting for the amendment if I felt that there could not be an exception made of Wayne county on any type of issue, whether it is partisanship, nonpartisanship, elected officials or what, and that we would have our day in court.

It seems to me that this is a simple provision. It doesn't change the basic intent of the amendment. It just allows for fair play for all the counties alike, and with the legislature as it is presently constituted, I think that this is not a guarantee that is at all unreasonable.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Hodges amendment to the amendment.

MR. HODGES: I request a division vote.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Hodges requests a division vote. Is there support? There is support. As many as are in favor of the Hodges amendment to the amendment will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the Hodges amendment, the yeas are 39; the nays are 68.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment to the amendment is not adopted. The question is on the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott to section a of Committee Proposal 89.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin offers the following amendment to the amendment:

1. Amend the amendment, following the last paragraph, by inserting a new paragraph to read as follows:

"The legislature shall by general law, for counties adopting home rule powers, limit the rate of general property taxation for municipal purposes, and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Each such county is hereby granted power to levy other taxes for public purposes subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the purpose of this amendment is simply to assure that home rule counties will have home rule taxing powers and to do just as we have done for home rule cities. The language is actually exactly the same. It is just to make sure that the legislature understands that once a county has adopted a home rule charter, it is also to have home rule taxing powers.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the Austin amendment to the amendment.

MR. HOXIE: May we have it read again, please?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the Austin amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the Austin amendment to the amendment. As many as are in favor of the Austin amendment will say aye. As many as are opposed will say no.

MR. AUSTIN: Division, please.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Austin requests a division vote. Is there support? There is support. All those in favor of the Austin amendment to the pending amendment will vote aye. All those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the Austin amendment, the yeas are 42; the nays are 65.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment to the amendment is not adopted. Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I would like to direct a question. Are we back now on the principal amendment?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is the adoption of the amendment offered by Delegate Judd, et al.

MR. FORD: I would like to direct a question to each of the 3 proponents of this amendment. In view of the fact that all 3 of you voted against Mr. Austin's amendment to give a county home rule taxing power, is it to be assumed that it is not your intention that a county should have, when it adopts home rule, any taxing power different than it has as a standard county?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Ford, we are leaving that and all other questions to the legislature. And when I agree to a compromise, I mean that, nothing else.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question now is on the amendment offered by Delegate Judd, et al, to section a of Committee Proposal 89. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: Before we go to this vote, Mr. Chairman, I wanted to say that I am mighty proud of the fact that today I was able to be consistent all the way through. I don't like this idea of breaking completely with my principles. I never will. And I hope that never again in my life shall I ever see good men broken as some of them have been in this convention and today or last night.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the amendment.

DELEGATES: Division.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: A division vote is requested. Is there support? There is support. As many as are in favor of the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott to section a will vote aye.

MR. DOWNS: Parliamentary inquiry. May a person abstain from voting in the committee of the whole?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Downs, it is the understanding of the Chair that the rules of the convention also apply to the committee of the whole as far as applicable.

MR. DOWNS: I wish to announce I may reserve my right to abstain.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Vice President Downs wishes to abstain.

MR. FORD: A parliamentary inquiry, if I may.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: State your point.

MR. FORD: The text I have in front of me indicates that this is what we would be voting on as an amendment to Committee Proposal 89. It was my understanding that before we could vote on the committee proposal or amendments thereto, we first had to vote on the minority report if one was filed, and I believe the minority report does cover the same subject matter as this amendment. I think that we are entitled to have the minority report disposed of, which happens to have some of the same signers as this amendment, but isn't identical.

Unless all of the signers of the minority report are willing to withdraw it, I think we have the right to have it considered.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford, we are considering an amendment to section a. The minority report concerns sections b and c.

MR. FORD: Well, I want to ask the Chair if he has a copy of this in front of him. This was distributed to us. It says, "Amend lines 6 through 22 by striking it out and inserting . . ." Then at the very bottom it says: "Amend page 2, lines 1 through 14, by striking all of section b." How much of this are we voting for?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Ford, the Chair does have that, and the last sentence on the sheet is an amendment to section b. It will be considered as a separate amendment. All we are concerned with right now is the amendment to section a, the 3 paragraphs on the sheet.

MR. FORD: All right. Now, are we amending section a of the committee report or section a of the minority report?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Section a of the committee report.

MR. FORD: Then why are we amending the committee report before we vote on the minority report?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Because the minority report is concerned with sections b and c. Presently the committee is concerned with section a, the amendment to that section.

The question is on the adoption of the amendment. As many as are in favor will vote aye. As many as are opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment to section a offered by Mrs. Judd, Mr. Brake and Mr. Arthur Elliott, the yeas are 79; the nays are 24.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Madar.

MR. MADAR: I just wanted to explain my vote, because I believe that this will be known all over the state, and all I have heard is about true home rule. This amendment does not give true or strict home rule. I read editorials, newspaper accounts, and I only hope and pray that the Detroit News, the Detroit Free Press and the other newspapers print this like they did everything else, and lay the blame for not getting strict home rule where it belongs — on the Republican party.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section a?

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman, I just want to make a brief statement and then I will make a motion. I don't want to be put in the position of being the one to move that we rise or that we adjourn, but we have been here now for almost 4½ hours, and it is a little hard after you sit for 4½ hours to concentrate and to keep up with what is going on. I notice that, looking around the hall, people are getting drowsy. Many of them have left. A few of them have been asleep, and it just seems to me with the time we put in this morning and a 4½ hour stretch this afternoon that this is enough, and at this time I would like to move, Mr. Chairman, that the committee do now rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Marshall moves that the committee of the whole do now rise. As many as are in favor of the motion will say aye. Opposed, no. The Chair is in doubt. As many as are in favor of the committee rising will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

Delegate Brown, for what purpose does the delegate arise?

MR. T. S. BROWN: A matter of personal privilege, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Can you wait until the vote is tallied?

MR. T. S. BROWN: Yes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the motion that the committee rise, the yeas are 59; the nays are 54.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The motion prevails. The committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, Vice President Romney assumed the Chair.]

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Thank you, Mr. President. I just wanted to make some remarks, which if the matters contained in the committee of the whole are not recorded in the journals and the remarks contained when we rise are, will not necessarily make any sense.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Brown, the secretary informs me that remarks are not in order until we hear a report on the work conducted in the committee of the whole. I will recognize you as soon as we have done that.

Delegate DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain matters on which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 88, A proposal pertaining to metropolitan areas; and reports this committee proposal back to the convention with an amendment, recommending that the amendment be agreed to and the proposal as thus amended do pass.

Following is the amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "government" by striking out the period and "Under such general law such units of local government shall have power:" and inserting a semicolon and "which general law shall authorize such units of local government among other things:".

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Those in favor of the recommended amendment vote aye. Opposed?

The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Boothby offers the following amendment to Committee Proposal 88:

1. Amend page 2, line 13, by striking out "consent of" and inserting "approval of a majority of the electors voting thereon in"; so that page 2, subdivision 3, beginning at line 11, will read:

> (3) To transfer to each local unit of government or combination thereof functions and responsibilities or both upon the approval of a majority of the electors voting thereon in each unit of government involved.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. President, I would like to call for a record roll call vote.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Is the demand seconded?

SECRETARY CHASE: Seventeen.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Not a sufficient number. Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: It is very apparent from what has already happened here today that we are going to have a whole series of amendments. We saw what happened last night, and I think everybody is about as tired as they ought to be for one day, and I wouldn't want to face the challenge of getting up here again, the way I feel about the manner in which this decision was made.

I would like to have your cooperation when I move that we adjourn until tomorrow morning.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the motion that we adjourn. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed?

The motion prevails. We are adjourned until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

[Whereupon, at 6:35 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 9:30 o'clock a.m., Friday, February 16, 1962.]

EIGHTY-FIRST DAY

Friday, February 16, 1962, 9:30 o'clock a.m.

PROCEEDINGS

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention will come to order.

The invocation this morning will be delivered by the Reverend Forest Friese, Pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Roseville. Reverend Friese comes at the invitation of Delegate McCauley.

REVEREND FRIESE: Almighty God, heavenly Father, Thou hast commanded Thy people to pray and Thou hast promised to hear their prayers; therefore hear us, O Lord, as we come unto Thee with hearts that are filled with joy and thankfulness for the many temporal and spiritual blessings that Thou hast so generously bestowed upon us, our families, our churches and our nation. Hear our prayers of thanks, O God, and keep us thankful lest by word and by deed we become ungrateful and thankless and Thou in Thy justice withhold Thy gracious blessings and cause Thy consuming wrath to descend upon us. Humbly and repentantly our hearts and voices request that Thou wouldst not look upon our weaknesses, our frailties and our shortcomings and because of them deny our prayers. Instead, O God, cause Thy mercy to descend upon us, and Thy forgiving grace to embrace us.

Heavenly Father, without Thy blessings and benediction we can do nothing, therefore shed Thy strength and wisdom upon those who have met here in order that all may be mindful of the seriousness of the obligations they have assumed and inspire us to give of ourselves unselfishly so that our time and our gifts and abilities may be used in Thy service for the good of our fellowmen and in behalf of our beloved state.

O Thou Giver of all wisdom, guide and keep us so that Thy will may be done and protect us so that selfishness, greed and indifference may never control our actions or our deliberations. Give us the wisdom to see that which is right, the courage to speak that which is beneficial, and the conviction to hold fast to that which is honest, just and impartial.

O Lord God heavenly Father, we are as grass that is present today and withered and gone tomorrow, but since our work and deliberations may affect coming generations, shower us with Thine omniscient help, crown us with Thine unfathomable wisdom, and guide us with Thine almighty strength so that all may be done in harmony with Thy gracious will and for the benefit of mankind.

These and whatsoever other things Thou wouldst have us ask of Thee, O God, grant them unto us for the bitter sufferings and death of Christ, Thy beloved Son, our Lord and Savior, so that we may do Thy will and some day hear Thee say, "Come, Thou good and faithful servant, enter the kingdom that I have prepared for Thee." Hear our prayers and answer them, O God. Amen.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All those present will vote aye. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the roll.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Messrs. Garvin and Mahinske, from today's session; and Mr. Nisbet, from the session of today and the sessions of next week, because of company business that was arranged 2 years ago.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, the requests are granted. I hear none. It is so ordered.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Garvin, Goebel, Gust, Mahinske, Nisbet and Nord.

Absent without leave: Messrs. Krolikowski and Norris.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, the unexcused absentees will be excused from today's session. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and they are granted excuses.

[During the proceedings, the following delegates entered the chamber and took their seats: Messrs. Krolikowski, Garvin, Gust and Norris.]

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: No reports filed, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: The items on the second reading have been postponed until Monday.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no resolutions on file.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: Under the order of unfinished business, the president lays before the convention the report of the committee of the whole. Committee Proposal 88, A proposal pertaining to metropolitan areas; was reported last evening with an amendment, which amendment has been agreed to. Pending the reference of the proposal to the committee on style and drafting, Mr. Boothby offered an amendment, which is now pending.

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1105.]

The yeas and nays were demanded, but were not supported.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered by the delegate from the seventh district,

Mr. Boothby. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no other amendments pending to the proposal, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Committee Proposal 88, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 88 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The legislature shall have power to establish in metropolitan areas such additional forms of government or authorities with such powers, duties and jurisdictions as the legislature shall deem necessary.

Wherever possible, said additional forms of government or authorities shall be designed to perform multipurpose functions rather than a single function.

Sec. b. The legislature shall provide by general law for the exercise of local government by 2 or more counties, cities, villages, townships or districts, or any combination of 2 or more of such units of local government; which general law shall authorize such units of local government among other things:

(1) To enter into contractual undertakings or agreements with one another or with the state or with any combination thereof for the joint administration of any of the functions or powers which each local unit of government would have the power to perform separately;

(2) To share the costs and responsibilities of functions and services with one another or with the state or with any combination thereof which each local unit of government would have the power to perform separately;

(3) To transfer to each local unit of government or combination thereof functions and responsibilities or both upon the consent of each unit of government involved;

(4) Jointly to cooperate with one another and with state government and intergovernmental agencies;

(5) To lend their credit in a manner prescribed by law in connection with any publicly owned undertaking authorized herein.

Any other provision of this constitution notwithstanding, an officer or employee of any of said units of government or subdivision or agency thereof may serve on or with any governmental body established for the above purposes and shall not be required to relinquish his office or employment by reason of such service.

SECRETARY CHASE: Also, as part of the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President, under unfinished business, the committee of the whole reports back to the convention Committee Proposal 85, A proposal to provide that public utilities may use public property with consent of local authorities and a limitation on the length of franchise. The committee of the whole reports the proposal with 2 amendments, recommending the amendments be agreed to and that the proposal, as thus amended, do pass.

Following are the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole:

1. Amend page 1, line 7, after "corporation" by inserting a comma and "public or private,".

2. Amend page 1, following line 20, by inserting a new section to read as follows:

"Sec. c. Any county, through its legislative body, shall have the authority to enter, or to intervene in any suit or certificate proceeding involving the service, charge or rate made by any privately owned public utility furnishing services or commodities to rate payers within the county.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon concurring in the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendments are adopted.

Committee Proposal 85, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 85 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. No person, partnership, association or corporation, public or private, operating a public utility shall have the right to the use of the highways, streets, alleys or other public places of any county, city, village or township for wires, poles, pipes, tracks or conduits, or other utility facilities, without the consent of the duly constituted authority of the county, city, village or township; or to transact a local business therein without first obtaining a franchise from the city, village or township. The right of all counties, cities, villages and townships to the reasonable control of their highways, streets, alleys and public places is hereby reserved to said local units of government.

Sec. b. No franchise or license shall be granted by any municipality of this state for a longer period than 30 years.

Sec. c. Any county, through its legislative body, shall have the authority to enter, or to intervene in any suit or certificate proceeding involving the service, charge or rate made by any privately owned public utility furnishing services or commodities to rate payers within the county.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole, Mr. President, also had under consideration Committee Proposal 89, had considered several amendments thereto, and had come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: General orders of the day. The Chair recognizes the delegate from Kent, Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of several items upon the order of general orders.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no.

The ayes have it, and the motion prevails. Mr. DeVries will preside.

[Whereupon, Mr. DeVries assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The committee will come to order. When last the committee met, it was considering Committee Proposal 89, A proposal pertaining to county home rule; and had completed consideration of section a.

For last previous action by the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 89, see above, page 1091.

The secretary will read section b.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section b.

[Section b was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1091.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott, for the committee explanation.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I think it is proper at this time to inform the Chair that there is a minority report that takes precedence over an amendment offered by Mrs. Judd, Mr. Brake and myself.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The secretary will read the minority report amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Pursuant to the minority report of Messrs. Allen, Batchelor, Mrs. Cushman, Messrs. Farnsworth,

Figy, Follo, Mrs. Judd, Messrs. McCauley, McLogan, Sieder and Tweedie,

Mr. McCauley offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2 by striking out lines 5 through 10 and inserting:

"b. Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the designation of the officers of the county and the manner of their selection.

c. Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the form of government of the charter county, including the membership of the board of supervisors and the manner of their selection which shall not be by an election at large.".

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wyandotte, Delegate McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I think I spoke on this at sufficient length yesterday, and at this time, if there are no objections by the other proponents of the minority report, I would like to withdraw it, but will be back again when the committee rises.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Without objection, the minority report amendment will be withdrawn. I hear none; it is withdrawn. Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 89?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Judd, Mr. Brake and Mr. Elliott offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, lines 1 through 14, by striking out all of Sec. b.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the amendment. As many as are in favor of the amendment offered by Delegates Judd, Brake and Elliott will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Are there any further amendments to section b of Committee Proposal 89?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any further amendments to the body of Committee Proposal 89? If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 89, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 8 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Exclusion Report 2035, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 6, regarding jury commissioners.

Following is Exclusion Report 2035 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee on local government recommends that article VIII, section 6 of the present constitution be excluded from the new constitution.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Exclusion Report 2035:

The legislature has the power and has provided for jury commissioners. The constitutional right of a referendum is no longer an issue, and the section is not needed. The committee on judiciary concurs in this.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, we will now have a series of 6 exclusion reports. Different members of the committee on local government will make the explanation in this regard. In calling upon the first gentleman, who will handle Exclusion Report 2035, I would just like to make it perfectly clear how much admiration and respect I have gained in knowing this man through the last 4 months. He has been most helpful in making the work of the committee on local government function as smoothly as it has. I refer to one of our vice chairmen, Mr. Buback.

I yield to Mr. Buback at this time.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Buback.

MR. BUBACK: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, thank you very much, Mr. Elliott, for those kind words. This is being deleted, because it is now provided by statute. It is in the statute, and we would ask the committee to delete this from the constitution. This gives more flexibility to the legislature, and it is now provided by the legislature. We recommend that this be deleted from the constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is on the adoption of the exclusion report. Are there any amendments to the exclusion report? If not, it will pass.

Exclusion Report 2035 is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 9, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Exclusion Report 2036, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 10.

Following is Exclusion Report 2036 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee on local government recommends that article VIII, section 10 of the present constitution be excluded from the new constitution.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Exclusion Report 2036:

The limitations on taxation in this section were established at a time when there was no general limit on the property tax. Delegates to the 1907-1908 constitutional convention believed that county boards of supervisors should not have complete discretion in deciding how much could be spent annually on public buildings or bridges. With the adoption of the 15 mill limitation, this section became, in practical terms, meaningless. Changes in article X, section 21, being recommended by the committee on finance and taxation and in which the committee on local government concurs, will continue to restrict county taxing powers, and if these or similar restrictions are included in the constitution, article VIII, section 10, is unneeded.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pleasant Ridge, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I would like to yield to Mr. Brake to give the explanation on this particular exclusion report.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, one disagreeing with the action of the convention the other day might have a little fun here if you are not too closely on your toes, but I guess it would be better not to do it.

This section reads like this:

The board of supervisors of any county may in any 1 year levy a tax of 1/10 of 1 mill on the assessed valuation of said county for the construction or repair of public buildings or bridges, or may borrow an equal sum for such purposes . . .

This exclusion was approved by both the committee on local government and the finance and taxation committee. But when it was approved, the 15 mill was assumed to be staying in the picture. Now it is out of the picture. And unless the legislature were to act, the county board of supervisors could levy enough tax in one year to build a new courthouse, or borrow a like amount without the vote of the people. Now, I'm not worried. I have worked with boards of supervisors enough so that I have confidence in them. If you are worried, the action is up to you. As far as I'm concerned, this can go on to the committee on style and drafting, as was originally planned. I have told you what the result is.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to the exclusion report? If not, it will pass.

Exclusion Report 2036 is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 10, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Exclusion Report 2037, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 11.

Following is Exclusion Report 2037 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee on local government recommends that article VIII, section 11 of the present constitution be excluded from the new constitution.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government submits the following reasons in support of Exclusion Report 2037:

The section is unneccessary since all powers authorized by it are also covered by section 8 and legislation passed thereunder which the committee recommends be retained without change, or by a new section on intergovernmental relations which will permit counties to act in conjunction with one another. The Michigan department of public welfare agrees with the viewpoint expressed here.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to Mr. Baginski.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. Chairman and delegates, section 11 deals with the right of the county to build hospitals and infirmaries for the support of the indigent and the unfortunate. It was the feeling of the subcommittee on counties that sufficient powers were granted under section 8 and that section 11 could be excluded.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to the exclusion report? If not, it will pass.

Exclusion Report 2037 is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 11 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Exclusion Report 2038, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 15a, regarding drainage district bonds.

Following is Exclusion Report 2038 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee on local government recommends that article VIII, section 15a of the present constitution be excluded from the new constitution.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Exclusion Report 2038:

The section will be unnecessary and should be excluded if the finance and taxation article includes a provision that public corporations and public bodies shall have power to borrow money and to issue their securities evidencing debt, subject to constitutional and statutory limitations. Drainage districts would be covered under such a general provision. The report to the convention of the committee on finance and taxation contains language which accommodates this problem. (See Committee Proposal 49.)

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. Batchelor.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to Delegate Batchelor.

MR. BATCHELOR: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, first of all, I would like to give a couple of lifetime observations. I noticed when I was a young boy running off to go swimming that little boys threw the most sticks at the trees that had the most apples on them. And another one: that in the band you hear the loudest and the most noise, most of the time, from the bass drum. The reason for that is it's hollow. (laughter)

This is Exclusion Report 2038, to be found in Journal 71 on page 493. This concerns article VIII, section 15a, which reads as follows: "Any drainage district, established under provision of law, may issue bonds for drainage purposes within such district."

[The supporting reasons were read by Mr. Batchelor. For text, see above.]

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to Exclusion Report 2038? The gentleman from St. Clair Shores, Delegate Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to direct a question to the committee. I come from a county that has a very serious drainage problem. We are in the process now of trying to correct these things, and we do have many, many drainage districts currently created, and some contemplated. I feel that I must have some assurance for my county, so that we can resolve our problems, that this will not be predicated on an "if-come" basis. I feel that the action that I take now should not be dependent on a possible action of the committee on finance and taxation. I must have some assurance, before I vote affirmatively on this exclusion report, that we will have the means in our county to set up the districts in the event the committee on finance and taxation does not provide the relief as pointed out by the presenter of this report.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Snyder yields to Delegate Batchelor.

MR. BATCHELOR: Well, I'm sure I will have to yield to the chairman of the finance and taxation committee.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Batchelor, will you yield to Delegate Van Dusen?

MR. BATCHELOR: Yes.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Snyder, I can give you the precise assurance which you request. Bond counsel for the Macomb county drain commissioner has recommended this exclusion.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: My question has been very well answered. I have no reason to doubt Mr. Van Dusen.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to the exclusion report? If not, it will pass.

Exclusion Report 2038 is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 12 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Exclusion Report 2039, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 24.

Following is Exclusion Report 2039 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee on local government recommends that article VIII, section 24 of the present constitution be excluded from the new constitution.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Exclusion Report 2039:

The committee proposes to add language to a revised version of section 20 which will authorize the legislature by general law to control the conditions under which a city or village may give security for loans made in connection with municipal utilities. With such a provision in section 20, cities and villages could use mortgage bonds as provided by law. No currently outstanding municipal bonds are dependent upon section 24 for their validity, and the section is unneeded. The committee on finance and taxation concurs in this recommendation.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. Tweedie.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the gentleman from Port Huron, Delegate Tweedie.

MR. TWEEDIE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the present article VIII, section 24 of the constitution provides for the issuance of mortgage revenue bonds for public utilities. It was the unanimous decision of the committee on local government that this provision be excluded from the present constitution, due to the fact that in 1933 the revenue bond act, public act 94, as amended, provided a method of financing public utility revenue type financing, and all public utility revenue financing is now done under this provision. We recommend that the present article VIII, section 24, be eliminated from the constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to the exclusion report? If not, it will pass.

Exclusion Report 2039 is passed. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 13 on the calendar, from the committee on local government, by Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman, Exclusion Report 2040, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 31.

Following is Exclusion Report 2040 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee on local government recommends that article VIII, section 31 of the present constitution be excluded from the new constitution.

Mr. Arthur Elliott, chairman of the committee on local government, submits the following reasons in support of Exclusion Report 2040:

Section 31 has proved to be cumbersome and has rarely been used for that reason. The committee on local government has proposed a new section providing more flexibility in the establishing of metropolitan units of government. The few metropolitan districts now operating under section 31 will be protected by the general saving clause of the new constitution.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, I yield to Mr. Sharpe.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott yields to the gentleman from Howell, Delegate Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. Chairman, the committee on local government recommends the deletion of this section for the reason that we have agreed to insert a more modern and liberal section on metropolitan government. Therefore, this section will no longer be needed.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Are there any amendments to the exclusion report? If not, it will pass.

Exclusion Report 2040 is passed.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Ladies and gentlemen, you have just completed in the committee of the whole the work on local government. As chairman of this committee, it has given me tremendous pleasure the last several weeks to work with these 26 other men and women, each of whom is very dedicated to his task.

As you well know, this committee met many evenings and on at least 2 weekends in order to complete its work. We feel that with the completion of this work in the committee of the whole, subject to what is done in the general session, that we have presented to the state of Michigan a local government article which will meet all of the requirements that the people laid down when they sent us here on October 3: first, that it strengthens the present units of local government; and secondly, that it takes a broad look into the future and lays down in this constitution provisions which will accommodate the needs of the next several decades. The last 2 proposals with which the committee of the whole has worked I'm sure will accomplish the latter purpose. Both Committee Proposal 88 and Committee Proposal 89 do look to the future. They are proposals which do not just accept the present as it is, but which are prepared to meet whatever the units of government may need in 1970, 1980, and so forth.

And so it is with the concurrence, I know, of each of the members of this committee on local government that we thank you for your careful attention to our problems and to the problems of all of us for the last 4½ days. We hope that we will resolve the balance of our problems, if we have any still to be resolved, rather quickly when I now ask the committee to rise.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question before the committee is a motion by Delegate Elliott that the committee of the whole do now rise. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mr. Elliott a question through the Chair.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: You may, if the gentleman cares to answer it.

MR. FORD: Mr. Elliott, we have had some discussion about the fact that in our committee we at one time unanimously adopted a provision to provide for consideration in the future of annexation and incorporation procedures, particularly with respect to boundaries being a judicial question in this state, so that the courts could in fact review these procedures. And although the committee was unanimous on this aspect of it, we did have considerable disagreement on an additional factor of requiring a referendum. The question now is by what manner can we bring this before the convention if we at this time rise and pass on from the local government section?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott, will you temporarily withdraw your motion to rise? Because this motion is not debatable.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I will.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Ford, as you know, I'm keenly aware of the problem, and as anxious as you and others to find a solution for it, if we can. I have talked independently with other members of the committee.

It was my feeling that there would be no reason at all, Delegate Ford, why we couldn't, as a committee, meet as often as possible in the next few days to see if we could find a point of agreement on this particular subject. If we could, then when the local government article comes back to the convention on second reading, under certain sections which I have checked out with research and drafting, it will be possible for an amendment to be offered which will accommodate the problems which you and I are both aware of.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: The only problem that we have is that at this point annexation as such is a new matter, and it could very readily be argued by anyone who wants to stop us that annexation procedures and this question in its entirety is not germane to any other section that up until now we have adopted. And my question is: by what procedure do we properly get this before the convention should we now pass on from local government?

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: Delegate Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Ford, apparently there could probably be an argument, because I'm sure there's been an argument on every point; and I'm not a lawyer. However, in asking the counsel of lawyers on this question, they pointed out that we have a proposal which involves the consolidation of townships; and that there were some other proposals that involved various units of government; and that these would be germane, and it would be possible to offer an amendment if there was one offered.

Furthermore, let me say this. I feel completely confident, Mr. Ford, that if our committee can arrive at a decision which is harmonious and unified, that there will be no problem in asking the convention, if it were absolutely necessary, to make some provision for us to do this. The only problem that would be confronting us would be if we run into the same difficulty which we have had on the 3 occasions that we have tried to meet the problem within the committee itself.

MR. FORD: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN DeVRIES: The question is now upon the motion of Mr. Elliott that the committee of the whole do now rise. As many as are in favor of the motion will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails and the committee will rise.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, Vice President Hutchinson resumed the Chair.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention will be in order.

The Chair recognizes the delegate from Kent, Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration certain items on which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Exclusion Report 2035, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 6, regarding jury commissioners; Exclusion Report 2036, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 10; Exclusion Report 2037, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 11; Exclusion Report 2038, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 15a, regarding drainage district bonds; Exclusion Report 2039, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 24; and Exclusion Report 2040, A report recommending the exclusion of article VIII, section 31. It reports these exclusion reports back to the convention without amendment, and with the recommendation that the reports be adopted.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, the several exclusion reports will be adopted, and referred to the committee on style and drafting.

There is no objection. They are adopted, and Exclusion Reports 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039 and 2040 are referred to the committee on style and drafting.

For Exclusion Report 2035 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1108.

For Exclusion Report 2036 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1108.

For Exclusion Report 2037 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1108.

For Exclusion Report 2038 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1109.

For Exclusion Report 2039 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1109.

For Exclusion Report 2040 as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 1110.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 89, A proposal pertaining to county home rule. The committee of the whole reports the proposal back to the convention with the following amendments, recommending the amendments be agreed to, and the committee proposal as thus amended do pass:

1. Amend page 1 by striking out all of lines 6 through 22 and inserting the following:

"Sec. a. Any county may frame, adopt, amend, or repeal a county charter in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law, which law may permit the organization of county government in forms different from the form set forth in this constitution. Subject to law, a county charter may authorize the county through its regularly constituted authority to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns.

No county charter shall be adopted, amended, repealed or revised until approved by a majority vote of county electors voting on the question.

The question of electing a charter commission may be placed on the ballot by a majority vote of the total membership of the board of supervisors and shall be placed thereon on receipt of a petition signed by 5 per cent of the registered voters of the county. The charter commission shall be elected by the county electors in accordance with the election laws.".

2. Amend page 2, lines 1 through 14, by striking out all of Sec. b.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon agreeing to the amendments made by the committee of the whole. The Chair recognizes the delegate from Wayne, Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I move that action on this recommendation be postponed until after the committee on legislative organization has reported to the committee of the whole.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion made by the delegate from Wayne, Mr. Downs, to postpone.

MR. DOWNS: May I speak on the motion, Mr. President?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: You may speak on the motion.

MR. DOWNS: The reason for this motion is a very simple one: that under the proposal that is now before the committee, the entire action is left up to the legislature as to whether or not home rule is authorized.

Some delegates were afraid this offered too much on home rule. Personally, I am afraid it offers too little. And I would like to take this opportunity to compliment a very good friend and hard working delegate, Mr. Brake, because I believe that he very properly pointed out yesterday afternoon that what we were doing was shifting the battle arena from here to the legislature. Personally, I do not like to think of us acting in terms of an arena. But I do wish to point out that another term that might be used is you might say we were passing the buck.

But I am inclined to believe that if this matter can be acted upon only if the legislature authorizes something, that until we know we have a legislature that represents the people, the so called county courthouse gang will have no trouble at all in having their friends and cronies in the legislature see that nothing is done.

And I therefore plead with the people who have spoken for home rule: if you want home rule, postpone action until we know what kind of legislature there is that will act upon home rule. If you want nothing but a political document that will sound good but mean nothing, then vote for this as it stands.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Oakland, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President and Vice President Downs, I'm somewhat concerned and disturbed. After the local government committee has worked as hard as it has over the last several months, I think that to make these kind of charges is completely out of keeping with the temper and the desires of this convention.

Now, let me point out to you that what we have done here is not pass the buck — and I would say that Mr. Brake would be the first one that would defend the position that this was not a buck passing operation at all. But what we have done here is take exactly the same steps in the area of county home rule as our predecessors did in 1907 and 1908 in the area of city home rule. In addition to that, as Mr. Downs will remember, we have actually adopted the type of proposal that was recommended by these groups who have been interested in sound constitutional procedure for some time, one of them being the league of women voters, the other being the committee on a sound constitution.

This is not and was never intended to be passing of the buck. I have heard Mr. Downs say on other occasions on this floor that if we have confidence in the legislature, let's show confidence in the legislature. I think it just makes a great deal of difference upon which side of the issue he now wants to speak.

I personally feel that it would be injurious to the efforts of this convention, it would be injurious to the work that has been done over the last 4 months, and it would certainly be injurious to the work that has been done in the last 4½ days to try to relate what we have done here in the committee of the whole and in convention to subsequent action of this delegation.

I would again reiterate: this is home rule. This puts it in exactly the context that I sincerely believe should be the context in which we find it. This puts it in exactly the context which I, as an individual delegate, came to this convention prepared to see happen, for which I'm grateful. I would urge the defeat of this motion.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Wayne, Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in support of the motion made by Vice President Downs. I have repeatedly said in committee hearings and throughout this convention that many of the questions and problems that we were being called upon to vote on were related not indirectly, but directly to the question of legislative reorganization; as to what type of a legislature we were going to have, as to whether it was going to be a truly representative body.

I was interested in listening to Delegate Elliott's remarks about his concern. There are many of us that are concerned, too, about the fact that the local government committee labored many long hours in drafting a proposal on local government to submit to this convention. We are concerned, after laboring all these many hours, that nothing was done in the committee or accomplished. It is rather obvious at this point, I think, that a few people got together just in recent hours or days and decided what type of a proposal they were going to have, reached the so called compromise that Delegate Brake talked about yesterday, and then pressure was applied to the Republican caucus to adopt it.

Now, we talk about confidence in the legislature. I'm interested in Mr. Elliott's remarks in this area also. I believe I have heard Mr. Elliott and other members — and I have done so — talk about how certain things should be left up to the legislature. But this is one that I do not believe should be left to the legislature. I believe that we should set the framework and the guidelines for true home rule in the constitution.

I might suggest also, in closing, Mr. President and delegates of the convention, that we might put a sign upon the wall each morning: "Today we trust the legislature; tomorrow we don't trust them" — and then we will know what days we do and don't.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Wayne, Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I just want to correct an impression which I don't believe Mr. Elliott really intended to make, which was that the league of women voters had approved the present provisions in here. This is a question on which the league has not approved any specific pieces of legislation or constitutional matter, and whether they would be for or against this particular provision, or for something perhaps of a different nature, is something that I don't believe any of us here could say at the present time.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the motion to postpone, the delegate from Delta, Mr. Follo.

MR. FOLLO: Mr. Elliott, if what you say is true, I would like to know why certain members who supported the original majority proposal have come to some of us who supported the minority proposal and said, "Well, we've got you licked now"?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion of Mr. Downs to postpone further consideration of the report of the committee of the whole until after the committee of the whole has reported on the matters pertaining to legislative organization. On the motion to postpone, all those in favor of the motion will say aye. For what purpose does the delegate arise, Mr. Kuhn?

MR. KUHN: Mr. President, I rise in opposition to Mr. Downs' statement that we should wait until after the legislative organization is through to see what type of legislature we might have. I'm convinced that we couldn't get a better type of legislature than we have here in constitution hall. And I must say that I have to agree with him that as far as I'm concerned we are buck passing, and home rule is dead, and I don't see any reason to prolong it.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion of Mr. Downs to postpone. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion does not prevail.

The question is upon agreeing to the committee amendments. On that question, all those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The committee amendments are adopted.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President —

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: I don't know whether I am in order or not, but this is on article VIII, and because this did come up in committee and I was promised that there would be some action taken on it, and I heard none here, I want to make sure before we dispense with article VIII that there is some record of it in the proceedings of the convention. I submitted a proposal which would, in essence, make the public utilities commission act in that they would not permit the use of expenditures on lobbying, on advertising, and on public — well, anyway, on trying to coerce and make the public feel good about public utilities —

MR. WANGER: Point of order.

MR. MADAR: — be not used —

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Madar, a point of order has been raised.

MR. MADAR: I know. But until you say something, I think I should just keep on going.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: I will recognize the gentleman for the purpose of raising his point of order.

MR. MADAR: When you say so, I stop.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Wanger, what is your point?

MR. WANGER: Mr. President, my point of order is that Mr. Madar's remarks are not germane to the matter which is pending before the convention: namely, home rule.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Well, at the moment the Chair would rule that there isn't anything before the convention. The convention has concurred in the committee reports, and the Chair has not yet referred the matter to the style and drafting committee, because the Chair is informed that there are further amendments on the desk. But no amendment has been presented.

MR. WANGER: Then, if there's nothing pending before the convention, then no remarks of any kind whatsoever are in order.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, the gentleman from Wayne may proceed.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President, I move that we recess for 10 minutes.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion to recess for 10 minutes. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion does not prevail.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Madar.

MR. WANGER: I register an objection, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Wanger objects.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I would like to rise to a point of order. There is nothing on the floor at the present time, and I believe that I have a right to bring up something so that we can have something on the floor. This is a point of information, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair would like to make it clear that perhaps the Chair was in error in stating that there was nothing on the floor. (laughter) The question properly before the body now is the reference of the committee proposal having to do with county home rule to the committee on style and drafting. And I would ask the gentleman to at least so phrase his remarks that he will bring them within the reference of that question.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I think we'll do that. However, I would like to comment on nothing being on the floor.

MR. HIGGS: I object.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Higgs objects.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I object to continuing these remarks unless they are applying to that question. I'm sure Mr. Madar will find plenty of opportunity to make remarks.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Higgs moves that we proceed in the regular order of business. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion prevails. The secretary will read the next amendment.

MR. IVERSON: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Iverson.

MR. IVERSON: Mr. President, it seems quite evident that the minority party would like a 10 minute recess for a caucus, and I would be glad to suggest that we grant it.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Do you so move, Mr. Iverson?

MR. IVERSON: If they desire it.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, there is no intent for a recess for a caucus. We do not have a unit rule. If the chairman of the majority caucus would like to have a recess for 10 minutes, I have no objection.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, I was just going to comment on Mr. Iverson's remark. The minority party will ask for caucuses itself when it so desires.

I have a point of personal privilege at this time.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman will state the point.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, since the beginning of this convention members of the minority party have been accused of bloc voting. In truth, this is not the case, and every Democrat here knows it. On very few occasions has the Democratic delegation voted as a bloc, and the record will so show. And practically every Democratic caucus has been open to the press, and the press can substantiate this. However, as of recent date, the opposite does not seem to be true. It has been rumored—and I think the facts on the floor yesterday substantiated the charge — that the majority party was acting under the unit rule, and had ordered its people not to make any remarks on the floor. The members of the Democratic delegation put out many worthwhile amendments, which were not even considered, and their ears were closed to them. If this is to continue, Mr. President, I see no need for the minority party participating. If the decisions in this convention are to be written in the Republican caucus rather than on the floor of this convention, then it would seem to me that there is no possible use for the members of the minority party to continue to participate in this convention. And if I'm wrong in these remarks, I would like the chairman of the Republican caucus to tell me so.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: A point of personal privilege.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman will state it.

MR. STERRETT: I have attended the Republican caucuses. I have not been ordered to vote in any manner or way. I have voted as I saw fit, and I'm sure that every other Republican in this room will be able to say the exact same thing.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from Kalamazoo, Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: A point of information, Mr. President. Mr. Downs mentioned a unit rule. I'm a Republican, and I don't understand that rule. Will he explain it to me? (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I can explain the unit rule in a negative way. A unit rule is not the way the Democrats vote here. We can't even get unanimity on motions to adjourn.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, do I understand that the question before the house at the moment is whether or not to refer a certain proposal to style and drafting?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: That is the question. But there are amendments on the desk, which amendments must be disposed of ahead of such reference.

MR. FARNSWORTH: I move the previous question, with the full understanding that we will dispense with all the amendments that are on the desk; that the question go right on down to the amendments.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Do I understand the delegate to move the previous question upon all amendments, so there could be no debate upon any of those amendments?

MR. FARNSWORTH: That is correct.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Is the demand for the previous question supported?

The demand is not supported. The question is upon the reference of this proposal to the committee on style and drafting, pending which the Chair is advised there are amendments on the desk.

The Chair would like to have the next amendment presented.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, following the last line, by inserting a new paragraph to read as follows:

"The legislature shall by general law, for counties adopting home rule powers, limit the rate of general property taxation for municipal purposes, and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Each such county is hereby granted power to levy other taxes for public purposes subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment offered by Mr. Austin, the Chair recognizes Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, in drafting our home rule provisions for cities we saw fit to include a specific section for general taxing powers, giving the legislature the right to limit these powers. If we are to provide home rule for counties, it would seem appropriate to recognize the need for such powers in our home rule provisions, and not leave it entirely up to the legislature to determine what home rule taxing powers counties are to have.

I would like to move that this amendment be added to the amendment that was already passed, and that we have a record roll call vote on it.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Austin's amendment, of course, is without any motion to add it to another amendment. The amendment is adopted as part of the proposal, upon which amendment Mr. Austin demands the yeas and nays. Is the demand for the yeas and nays supported? The demand is supported. The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Austin, upon which a recorded roll call vote has been supported. The secretary will again read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment, upon which a record roll call has been supported. All those in favor —

Are you desiring recognition, Mrs. Cushman?

MRS. CUSHMAN: Yes.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The lady from Wayne, Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I have a question for Mr. Austin. What do you mean by "adopting home rule powers?" Do you mean adopting home rule or adopting home rule powers?

MR. AUSTIN: Are you referring to counties?

MRS. CUSHMAN: Yes, "for counties adopting home rule powers."

MR. AUSTIN: Well, actually, it should be "home rule." "Home rule" would be sufficient. We don't need the word "powers." That was rather hastily drawn, and I would assume that it would be straightened out in style and drafting if it were passed.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Well, that makes a difference.

MR. AUSTIN: As far as I'm concerned, the word "powers" could be deleted. It's the sense of it that I would like to get. I think the delegates understand what it is that we are trying to accomplish.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, Mrs. Cushman's amendment to Mr. Austin's amendment will be treated as though Mr. Austin had offered his amendment originally in that form, by striking out the word "powers."

The secretary will now read the amendment as revised.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment now reads:

1. Amend page 1, following the last line, by inserting a new paragraph to read as follows:

"The legislature shall by general law, for counties adopting home rule, limit the rate of general property taxation for municipal purposes, and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Each such county is hereby granted power to levy other taxes for public purposes subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, all those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Hanna?

MR. W. F. HANNA: Personal privilege.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Will you please wait until the vote is taken.

MR. W. F. HANNA: I will wait.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas — 69

Anspach	Greene	Perras
Austin	Habermehl	Pollock
Baginski	Hanna, W. F.	Powell
Balcer	Hannah, J. A.	Prettie
Barthwell	Hart, Miss	Radka
Binkowski	Hatcher, Mrs.	Rajkovich
Bledsoe	Higgs	Rush
Brown, G. E.	Hodges	Shackleton
Brown, T. S.	Hood	Shanahan
Buback	Judd, Mrs.	Sharpe
Butler, Mrs.	Kelsey	Snyder
Cushman, Mrs.	Lawrence	Staiger
Dade	Leibrand	Stamm
Davis	Leppien	Sterrett
Dehnke	Lesinski	Stopczynski
Donnelly, Miss	Liberato	Suzore
Douglas	Madar	Tubbs
Downs	Marshall	Turner
Durst	McCauley	Walker
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	McGowan, Miss	Wilkowski
Faxon	McLogan	Wood
Follo	Murphy	Young
Ford	Ostrow	Youngblood

Nays — 61

Allen	Gadola	Plank
Batchelor	Gover	Pugsley
Beaman	Haskill	Richards, J. B.
Bentley	Hatch	Richards, L. W.
Blandford	Heideman	Romney
Bonisteel	Howes	Rood
Boothby	Hoxie	Seyferth
Brake	Hubbs	Shaffer
Conklin, Mrs.	Hutchinson	Sieder
Cudlip	Iverson	Spitler
Danhof	Karn	Stafseth
Dell	King	Stevens
DeVries	Kirk, S.	Thomson
Doty, Dean	Koeze, Mrs.	Tweedie
Doty, Donald	Kuhn	Upton
Elliott, A. G.	Lundgren	Van Dusen
Erickson	Martin	Wanger
Everett	McAllister	White
Farnsworth	Millard	Woolfenden
Figy	Mosier	Yeager
Finch

SECRETARY CHASE: The yeas are 69; the nays are 61.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is adopted.

The Chair recognizes the delegate from Muskegon, Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. President, I wondered if Mr. Hodges wanted to borrow my glasses, so that he could see the board and note that at least I and a couple of other Republicans were not bound by any unit or party rule. He was busy reading the paper, and I don't know whether or not from his remarks today he is so nearsighted that he could not see the board, because this is the same way I voted yesterday, and I don't see any party line vote on the board.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman from Macomb, Mr. Snyder, arise?

MR. SNYDER: Mr. President, I suggest that we get on with the business of the convention.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Pellow offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, following the last line, by inserting a new paragraph to read as follows:

"Each county charter shall provide for the election of a county clerk, a county register of deeds, a county treasurer, a sheriff, and a prosecuting attorney, in accordance with the provisions of this constitution.".

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen demands the yeas and nays on the amendment. Is the demand seconded? There is a sufficient number up. The demand is supported.

The Chair now recognizes Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I ask that the question be divided, so as to separate each county official. The reason is that some of us may wish to have an elected prosecutor, but not treasurer, and I think we should be able to record our vote.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Point of order, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Does the proponent of the motion have to be present?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The proponent of the amendment should be present. Is the proponent present? If not, the amendment is not in order at this time. We will proceed then to the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "The prosecuting attorney shall be nominated and elected as provided by law."; so that the language will then read:

Sec. a. Any county may frame, adopt, amend, or repeal a county charter in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law, which law may permit the organization of county government in forms different from the form set forth in this constitution. The prosecuting attorney shall be nominated and elected as provided by law.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I demand the yeas and nays, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen demands the yeas and nays on the amendment. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported.

The Chair now recognizes Mr. Downs on the amendment.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I shall speak very briefly on this. I might say, parenthetically, I sympathize with the President. I am glad the difficulties have passed around. (laughter)

I think that in the state of Michigan we have been unusually fortunate, as a people, in having dollar honesty in government, and I say this as applies to our law enforcement officials of both parties in all counties in state government. I believe that one reason for this is that we have had the historic principle that the prosecuting attorney is directly answerable to the people by an election.

I think that those who want more administrative county home rule are perfectly proper in their approach, but I feel we should have the prosecutor directly responsible to the people. I think this is particularly true because under the amendment we adopted this morning we could have a situation where a board of supervisors, with a majority of appointed members, could in turn secretly appoint a prosecutor — and I hope this would not happen. But I think that this amendment will preserve integrity of government, and I urge its support.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Downs.

The secretary will read the amendment once more.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The yeas and nays upon the amendment have been ordered. All those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary suggest that perhaps some of the difficulty in getting both lights on is caused by too quick a switch from one to the other. (laughter) If in using your voting station you will move to the neutral spot, and pause for just a second, and then move to the other, I think this will eliminate the difficulty we have been having.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas — 53

Austin	Gadola	Murphy
Baginski	Greene	Ostrow
Balcer	Hanna, W. F.	Perras
Barthwell	Hannah, J. A.	Prettie
Batchelor	Hart, Miss	Pugsley
Binkowski	Hatcher, Mrs.	Radka
Boothby	Hodges	Richards, L. W.
Brown, G. E.	Hood	Snyder
Buback	Hoxie	Stopczynski
Butler, Mrs.	Kelsey	Suzore
Dade	Krolikowski	Thomson
Donnelly, Miss	Lawrence	Walker
Douglas	Leibrand	Wilkowski
Downs	Leppien	Wood
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Lesinski	Yeager
Faxon	Liberato	Young
Follo	Lundgren	Youngblood
Ford	McGowan, Miss

Nays — 74

Allen	Haskill	Richards, J. B.
Andrus, Miss	Hatch	Romney
Anspach	Heideman	Rood
Bentley	Higgs	Rush
Blandford	Howes	Seyferth
Bonisteel	Hubbs	Shackleton
Brake	Iverson	Shaffer
Conklin, Mrs.	Judd, Mrs.	Shanahan
Cudlip	Karn	Sharpe
Cushman, Mrs.	King	Sleder
Danhof	Kirk, S.	Spitler
Davis	Koeze, Mrs.	Stafseth
Dehnke	Kuhn	Staiger
Dell	Madar	Stamm
DeVries	Marshall	Sterrett
Doty, Dean	Martin	Stevens
Doty, Donald	McAllister	Tubbs
Durst	McCauley	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	McLogan	Tweedie
Erickson	Millard	Upton
Everett	Mosier	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	Plank	Wanger
Figy	Pollock	White
Gover	Powell	Woolfenden
Habermehl	Rajkovich

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment proposed by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 53, the nays are 74.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "The county sheriff shall be nominated and elected as provided by law.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered. Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I simply rise to demand the yeas and nays, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen demands the yeas and nays on the amendment. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported. The question is upon the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs.

MR. FORD: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I rise to support this amendment. I talked at great length yesterday afternoon. I wished that someone had told me that the decision had already been made before I took the floor, and we all could have had our dinner at a more reasonable time last evening. I outlined yesterday the reasons that I very sincerely believe indicate the need for a constitutional guarantee of an election of the entire justice system in this state.

I submit to you that regardless of the quality of our judges and the quality of our bar and the quality of people in law enforcement at all levels, the one thing that stands like a wall or a foundation and protects us from the kind of graft and scandal that many other states in this country have experienced from time to time is the independent, elected, responsible system of justice from the one side to the other — the election of judges, the election of the chief law enforcement official of the county, the election of the chief law enforcement official of the state, and the election of the key person whom we have just passed over, the prosecutor. It's too late for him now. But I submit if there's one protection that we have against any group or political organization or any single person taking over the law enforcement agencies of this state to the extent that the kind of organized crime that existed in the '30s in other places got into our sister states, but did not get into this state, it is the election of these people.

I urge very strongly that we preserve in the hands of the people the election of those persons who are charged with the obligation of protecting their individual rights and, if you will, in arresting us when we violate someone else's rights.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: When the Reeve of the Shire of Nottingham was not elected by the people of Nottinghamshire, this led to the arrival on the scene of Robin Hood. And I think that this particular premise is still true today.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from the twenty-eighth district, Mr. Hubbs.

MR. HUBBS: Mr. President and members of the convention, I would like to briefly object to the remarks made here on the present voting, for this reason: I intend to vote no on each one of these propositions, and I'm going to tell you why — not that I'm against electing these people. If it gets right down to it, I'm in favor of electing every officer that it is possible to elect in my county who serves the people in any capacity whatsoever.

However, what I am voting no on here today is whether we should put this into the constitution or whether we should not. The provision that we have made for county home rule and local government leaves it to the legislature to decide whether these people shall be elected or whether they shall not be elected, and I am not voting on that proposition today. I am voting on whether we shall put it in the constitution or whether we shall not, and I intend to vote no on each one of these for that reason, although I'm in favor of electing local officials.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from Washtenaw, Mr. Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: I find that things have a habit of bothering me lately. I am wondering if there is any parallel — and, if not, will somebody explain the difference. Would we be better off if the head of the state police and our municipal police chiefs were elected instead of appointed?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oakland, Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: I have a question of Mr. Hubbs, if I might, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: If the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Hubbs' remarks left me in doubt as to whether he is or is not going to vote his conscience, or if his cage has just been rattled a little. Which is the case, Mr. Hubbs?

MR. WANGER: Point of order, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: What is the point of order, Mr. Wanger?

MR. WANGER: That the remarks of the speaker are clearly relating to personalities, which is entirely out of order in this convention.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Yes. The Chair will advise the convention that the delegates should refrain from indulging in personalities.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President, as long as there is this possibility present in the minds of any of the delegates present, I would withdraw my question.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The delegate from Oakland, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I move the previous question.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Elliott moves the previous question. Is the demand for the previous question supported?

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, I rise for a point of personal privilege.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: It is out of order now.

The demand for the previous question is seconded. Now, all those in favor of ordering the previous question will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The previous question is ordered. The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Downs and Miss Hart, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1115.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The yeas and nays have been demanded.

For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Marshall?

MR. MARSHALL: I wish to announce my intention of abstaining, Mr. President, and state my reasons.

I am for electing these officials. I am opposed to leaving it up to the legislature or to freezing it into the constitution. I think the people with the pure home rule status should have the right to determine which officials, if any, they want to have remain elective. Therefore, I am abstaining from voting.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

For what purpose does the delegate from the twenty-fourth district arise?

MR. LEIBRAND: To explain my vote, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: You may do that as soon as the vote is announced.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—43

Austin	Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Murphy
Baginski	Erickson	Ostrow
Balcer	Ford	Perras
Barthwell	Greene	Pugsley
Batchelor	Hart, Miss	Radka
Binkowski	Hatcher, Mrs.	Richards, L. W.
Bledsoe	Hodges	Snyder
Boothby	Hood	Stopczynski
Brown, T. S.	Hoxie	Suzore
Buback	Kelsey	Walker
Butler, Mrs.	Leibrand	Wilkowski
Dade	Liberato	Wood
Douglas	Lundgren	Young
Downs	McGowan, Miss	Youngblood
Durst

Nays—81

Allen	Haskill	Rajkovich
Andrus, Miss	Hatch	Richards, J. B.
Anspach	Heideman	Romney
Beaman	Higgs	Rood
Bentley	Howes	Rush
Blandford	Hubbs	Seyferth
Bonisteel	Iverson	Shackleton
Brake	Judd, Mrs.	Shaffer
Brown, G. E.	Karn	Shanahan
Conklin, Mrs.	King	Sharpe
Cudlip	Kirk, S.	Sieder
Cushman, Mrs.	Knirk, B.	Spitler
Danhof	Koeze, Mrs.	Stafseth
Davis	Krolikowski	Staiger
Dehnke	Kuhn	Stamm
Dell	Lawrence	Sterrett
DeVries	Leppien	Stevens
Donnelly, Miss	Madar	Thomson
Doty, Dean	Martin	Tubbs
Doty, Donald	McCauley	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	McLogan	Tweedie
Everett	Millard	Upton
Farnsworth	Mosier	Van Dusen
Faxon	Plank	Wanger
Figy	Pollock	White
Gover	Powell	Woolfenden
Hannah, J. A.	Prettie	Yeager

SECRETARY CHASE: On the second amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 43, the nays 81.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

The Chair recognizes the delegate from the twenty-fourth district, Mr. Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: I wish to explain my vote. I am in favor of electing all presently elected county officials, and if we have them in there one at a time, that's the way we can do it.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: I believe I might just as well be on record, too. I am in favor of electing these officers. I believe in giving the people the right to decide whether they should. And I will do my utmost to make sure that that does get into the charter on a partisan basis.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "County officials other than the prosecutor and sheriff may have their functions merged or altered or unchanged, including the establishment of an elected or appointed county executive head, as determined by the county charter.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered. The Chair recognizes the sponsor of the amendment, Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I believe this is a very simple amendment that provides, with the exception of these 2 offices, that a county charter could make any administrative and legislative combination it wanted. The executive head of a county could be elected, as the mayor is, or could be appointed by the county legislative body. I believe it does set some standard.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered. All those in favor will say aye.

MR. DOWNS: I demand the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays on his amendment. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported. The amendment will again be read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered, and the yeas and nays have been demanded. All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—27

Austin	Downs	Lesinski
Baginski	Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Murphy
Barthwell	Faxon	Rush
Binkowski	Follo	Stopczynski
Bledsoe	Greene	Suzore
Brown, T. S.	Hart, Miss	Walker
Conklin, Mrs.	Hatcher, Mrs.	Yeager
Dade	Hood	Young
Douglas	Lawrence	Youngblood

Nays—96

Allen	Gover	Plank
Andrus, Miss	Hannah, J. A.	Pollock
Anspach	Haskill	Powell
Balcer	Hatch	Prettie
Batchelor	Heideman	Pugsley
Beaman	Higgs	Radka
Bentley	Hodges	Rajkovich
Blandford	Howes	Richards, J. B.
Bonisteel	Hoxie	Richards, L. W.
Boothby	Hubbs	Rood
Brake	Iverson	Seyferth
Brown, G. E.	Judd, Mrs.	Shackleton
Buback	Karn	Shaffer
Butler, Mrs.	Kelsey	Shanahan
Cudlip	King	Sharpe
Cushman, Mrs.	Kirk, S.	Sleder
Danhof	Koeze, Mrs.	Spitler
Davis	Krolikowski	Stafseth
Dehnke	Kuhn	Staiger
Dell	Leibrand	Stamm
DeVries	Leppien	Sterrett
Donnelly, Miss	Liberato	Stevens
Doty, Dean	Lundgren	Thomson
Doty, Donald	Madar	Tubbs
Durst	Marshall	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	Martin	Tweedie
Erickson	McCauley	Upton
Everett	McGowan, Miss	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	McLogan	Wanger
Figy	Millard	White
Finch	Mosier	Wood
Gadola	Perras	Woolfenden

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 27, the nays are 96.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "Employees performing ministerial and executive functions shall be hired under a civil service system, provided the chief executive and deputy of a department may be exempt if so provided by the charter.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered. Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I believe that the amendment we adopted this morning gives the possibility of broad powers to a new form of government. I believe that the people and the employees should have the protection of civil service which this provides.

I demand the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays on the current amendment. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported.

The Chair will request that the board be cleared. There has been some question. The amendment will again be read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—36

Austin	Follo	Madar
Baginski	Ford	Marshall
Balcer	Greene	McCauley
Barthwell	Hart, Miss	McGowan, Miss
Binkowski	Hatcher, Mrs.	Murphy
Bledsoe	Hodges	Snyder
Brown, T. S.	Hood	Stopczynski
Buback	Kelsey	Suzore
Dade	Krolikowski	Walker
Douglas	Lawrence	Wilkowski
Downs	Lesinski	Young
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Liberato	Youngblood

Nays—91

Allen	Gadola	Prettie
Andrus, Miss	Gover	Pugsley
Anspach	Hanna, W. F.	Radka
Batchelor	Hannah, J. A.	Rajkovich
Beaman	Haskill	Richards, J. B.
Bentley	Hatch	Richards, L. W.
Blandford	Heideman	Romney
Bonisteel	Higgs	Rood
Boothby	Howes	Rush
Brake	Hoxie	Seyferth
Brown, G. E.	Hubbs	Shackleton
Butler, Mrs.	Iverson	Shaffer
Conklin, Mrs.	Judd, Mrs.	Shanahan
Cudlip	Karn	Sharpe
Cushman, Mrs.	King	Sleder
Danhof	Kirk, S.	Spitler
Davis	Knirk, B.	Stafseth
Dehnke	Koeze, Mrs.	Staiger
Dell	Kuhn	Stamm
DeVries	Leibrand	Sterrett
Donnelly, Miss	Leppien	Stevens
Doty, Dean	Lundgren	Thomson
Doty, Donald	Martin	Tubbs
Durst	McLogan	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	Millard	Tweedie
Erickson	Mosier	Upton
Everett	Perras	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	Plank	Wanger
Faxon	Pollock	White
Figy	Powell	Yeager
Finch

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 36, the nays are 91.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "The judicial system shall not be altered by the charter.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, some time yesterday there was discussion as to whether or not there was an intent to affect the judicial system. I believe I am correct in stating that the proponents of the amendment said there was not such an intent. However, I draw the attention of the delegates to the word "government" in the third line of the amendment we adopted this morning, which permits the organization of county government in forms different from the forms set forth in this constitution. I suggest that we adopt this amendment to be very sure that the so called home rule amendment will deal only with the legislative and executive and not with the judicial functions.

I demand the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, Mr. Downs demands the yeas and the nays. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Downs, under our municipal home rule the functions of the court are taken care of separately by the legislature, and I don't think that there is anything that would be granted in the amendment as it now stands which could affect the judiciary independently. In other words, I don't think that this is needed. It doesn't give any more protection than is already there.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. President, I would be inclined to agree with Mr. Allen. The judicial article, if adopted, at least for the so called major courts, would provide constitutional status, and will undoubtedly set up the method by which the judiciary will be selected. If the amendment is concerned with the courts as we now know them as inferior courts, I suggest that the home rule provision as it has related to cities does not in any way hinder this particular development. The county courts, as you might know them, as being the circuit court and the probate court, will have constitutional status.

I see no way that the amendment we have adopted for county home rule could in any way affect what is constitutionally provided. As to the inferior courts, or the courts of limited jurisdiction, the committee has adopted a provision where this will be left to the legislature. This then would be consistent with the amendment that has been adopted by this convention. I would not support the amendment.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The delegates will kindly clear the board. The yeas and nays have been demanded. The question is upon the amendment of Mr. Downs.

The secretary will again read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1117.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—41

Anspach	Erickson	Liberato
Austin	Faxon	Madar
Baginski	Greene	Murphy
Balcer	Hanna, W. F.	Perras
Binkowski	Hart, Miss	Radka
Bledsoe	Hatcher, Mrs.	Shanahan
Bonisteel	Hood	Sharpe
Boothby	Hoxie	Snyder
Buback	Kelsey	Stopczynski
Dade	Kuhn	Wilkowski
Dehnke	Lawrence	Wood
Douglas	Leibrand	Young
Downs	Leppien	Youngblood
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Lesinski

Nays—79

Allen	Hatch	Rajkovich
Andrus, Miss	Heideman	Richards, J. B.
Batchelor	Higgs	Richards, L. W.
Beaman	Howes	Romney
Bentley	Hubbs	Rood
Blandford	Iverson	Rush
Brake	Judd, Mrs.	Seyferth
Brown, G. E.	Karn	Shackleton
Butler, Mrs.	King	Sieder
Conklin, Mrs.	Kirk, S.	Spitler
Cudlip	Knirk, B.	Stafseth
Cushman, Mrs.	Koeze, Mrs.	Staiger
Danhof	Krolikowski	Stamm
Davis	Lundgren	Sterrett
Dell	Marshall	Stevens
DeVries	Martin	Suzore
Doty, Dean	McCauley	Thomson
Doty, Donald	McGowan, Miss	Tubbs
Durst	McLogan	Turner
Elliott, A. G.	Millard	Tweedie
Everett	Mosier	Upton
Farnsworth	Plank	Van Dusen
Figy	Pollock	Walker
Finch	Powell	Wanger
Gadola	Prettie	White
Hannah, J. A.	Pugsley	Yeager
Haskill

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of this amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 41, the nays 79.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "Members of the county legislative body shall be nominated and elected by the people, provided that elected local officials may serve on the county legislative body by virtue of their office, as determined by the county charter.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President and fellow delegates, this provides that the members of the newly formed legislative body need to be elected by the people. I believe this is very important, because we are giving additional powers to this new form of government, and at some place I hope we have direct responsibility to the people.

I urge its adoption, and I demand the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported. On the amendment, the Chair recognizes Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, just so that the position is perfectly clear, what Mr. Downs is doing is freezing into the constitution, step by step, various portions of what he calls home rule, but which I think would actually take away from the people their right of home rule. All I'm suggesting is that the provision that you have before you without the amendment does give to the legislature the right to establish any controls that they feel necessary at the time. It gives them the provision to make, by correcting legislation, changes as the future comes along. And in those areas where they do not restrict, the people have the complete right of selection, which is what I think we're really after.

I urge the defeat of the amendment, and I move the previous question.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Elliott moves the previous question. Is the demand for the previous question supported? The demand is supported. The question now is: Shall the main question now be put?

MR. FORD: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman arise?

MR. FORD: A parliamentary inquiry. I took the floor as Mr. Elliott was talking. He looked over at me, and he knew that I was on the floor when he moved the previous question. I want to know whether this is possible. Is it possible, if I'm the lucky fellow who gets recognition first, to look around and see who is likely to take me on, and then move the previous question and stop the debate?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: It is in order Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I just wanted it to be made eminently clear that I believe, Art, that this is what you did.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is: Shall the main question be put? All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion prevails. The previous question is ordered. The yeas and nays on the amendment have been demanded.

The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—43

Austin	Faxon	McGowan, Miss
Baginski	Follo	Murphy
Balcer	Ford	Richards, L. W.
Barthwell	Greene	Shanahan
Binkowski	Hanna, W. F.	Sharpe
Bledsoe	Hart, Miss	Snyder
Boothby	Hodges	Stopczynski
Buback	Hood	Suzore
Cushman, Mrs.	Hoxie	Walker
Dade	Kelsey	Wilkowski
Donnelly, Miss	Leibrand	Wood
Doty, Donald	Leppien	Yeager
Downs	Lesinski	Young
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Liberato	Youngblood
Erickson

Nays—80

Allen	Hatch	Prettie
Andrus, Miss	Hatcher, Mrs.	Pugsley
Anspach	Heideman	Radka
Batchelor	Higgs	Rajkovich
Beaman	Howes	Richards, J. B.
Bentley	Hubbs	Romney
Blandford	Iverson	Rood
Bonisteel	Judd, Mrs.	Rush
Brake	Karn	Seyferth
Brown, G. E.	King	Shackleton
Butler, Mrs.	Kirk, S.	Shaffer
Conklin, Mrs.	Knirk, B.	Sieder
Cudlip	Koeze, Mrs.	Spitler
Danhof	Krolikowski	Stafseth
Davis	Kuhn	Staiger
Dehnke	Lawrence	Stamm
Dell	Lundgren	Sterrett
Doty, Dean	Madar	Stevens
Durst	Martin	Thomson
Elliott, A. G.	McCauley	Tubbs
Everett	McLogan	Turner
Farnsworth	Millard	Tweedie
Figy	Mosier	Upton
Gadola	Perras	Van Dusen
Gover	Plank	Wanger
Hannah, J. A.	Pollock	White
Haskill	Powell

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 43, the nays are 80.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "Such nominations and elections shall include nominations by direct party primary and elections in a general election as provided by law.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, Miss Hart and I put this towards the end. We are past the halfway mark on the amendments. We had thought that the noncontroversial ones would be adopted, and this was thrown in here thinking there might be some controversy on this. This provides for the election of county legislative officials under our 2 party system. I know that some people argue that the people in a community should be allowed to have nonpartisan government. I think that there can be some theoretical merit to that argument. Our feeling is that party nomination and election with the direct primary gives the party responsibility, plus the right of the individual citizen to make the final decision.

I urge the adoption, and demand the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays on the amendment. Is the demand supported? There is a sufficient number. The demand is supported, and it is so ordered.

The Chair now recognizes the delegate from the seventeenth district, Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, I don't want to engage in debate at this point, but I do want to make this one point. We are voting on a number of amendments which, if any of us who are voting no on these this morning were in the legislature, we would be voting yes on. At least, this would be true in my case.

Specifically, if this were being voted on in the legislature and I were a member of that body, I would be voting to permit the county to establish a civil service system under its home rule activity, to elect its board of supervisors or legislative body by the people, to retain the sheriff and the prosecutor, and to elect its officials by a party system of election. These are all matters which I would favor in county government. I think it should be made crystal clear that as far as I, myself, am concerned, I am for these things, and I believe as far as many of the other delegates are concerned they are for these things, too; and that the negative votes this morning are simply and solely a vote in favor of sound home rule in the same form as it was provided for the cities in 1908 by giving the legislature the opportunity to pass upon these matters and to provide an adequate home rule act. I think it's important that the public understands that this is the significance of these votes this morning.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The lady from Wayne, Miss Hart.

MISS HART: Mr. President, if Mr. Downs and I had the same voice in the legislature that Mr. Martin has, I'm sure we would agree with him.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from Mackinac, Mr. Dell.

MR. DELL: Mr. President, in regard to Mr. Martin's remarks, I just want to say "amen."

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Downs. The secretary will again read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—38

Austin	Gover	Madar
Baginski	Greene	Murphy
Balcer	Hanna, W. F.	Perras
Barthwell	Hart, Miss	Richards, L. W.
Binkowski	Hatcher, Mrs.	Sharpe
Boothby	Hodges	Snyder
Buback	Hood	Stopczynski
Dade	Hoxie	Suzore
Doty, Dean	Kelsey	Walker
Downs	Leibrand	Wilkowski
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Leppien	Young
Erickson	Lesinski	Youngblood
Ford	Liberato

Nays—81

Andrus, Miss	Hannah, J. A.	Prettie
Batchelor	Haskill	Pugsley
Beaman	Hatch	Radka
Bentley	Heideman	Rajkovich
Blandford	Higgs	Richards, J. B.
Bonisteel	Howes	Romney
Brake	Hubbs	Rood
Brown, G. E.	Iverson	Rush
Butler, Mrs.	Judd, Mrs.	Seyferth
Conklin, Mrs.	Karn	Shackleton
Cudlip	King	Shaffer
Cushman, Mrs.	Kirk, S.	Shanahan

Danhof	Knirk, B.	Sieder
Davis	Koeze, Mrs.	Spitler
Dehnke	Krolikowski	Stafseth
Dell	Kuhn	Staiger
DeVries	Lawrence	Stamm
Donnelly, Miss	Lundgren	Sterrett
Doty, Donald	Martin	Stevens
Durst	McCauley	Tubbs
Elliott, A. G.	McGowan, Miss	Turner
Everett	McLogan	Tweedie
Farnsworth	Millard	Upton
Faxon	Mosier	Van Dusen
Figy	Plank	Wanger
Finch	Pollock	White
Gadola	Powell	Yeager

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 38, the nays are 81.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "Members of the county legislative body shall be elected from areas as nearly equal in population as practicable, or elected at large, as determined by the charter. More than 1 county legislator can be elected from the same area, providing each such legislator represents approximately the same number of people. The number of county legislators shall be determined by the charter.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, this is one of the longer ones — 3 sentences. I shall again try to be brief in explaining it. This would provide that the county charter could set the number of members of the county legislative body. It would provide that the people would come from districts as near equal in population as possible. The ones from a city could be elected at large or from separate districts, provided approximately the same number were represented. In a sense, perhaps this should belong in legislative organization. We are trying to get reapportionment at a small scale in the unicameral legislative body of counties.

I urge its support, and demand the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported. The question is upon the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs.

The secretary will again read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—34

Austin	Follo	McCauley
Baginski	Ford	McGowan, Miss
Balcer	Greene	Murphy
Barthwell	Hart, Miss	Snyder
Binkowski	Hatcher, Mrs.	Stopczynski
Bledsoe	Hodges	Suzore
Buback	Hood	Walker
Butler, Mrs.	Kelsey	Wilkowski
Dade	Krolikowski	Yeager
Downs	Lesinski	Young
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Liberato	Youngblood
Faxon

Nays—82

Andrus, Miss	Hannah, J. A.	Powell
Batchelor	Haskill	Prettie
Beaman	Hatch	Pugsley
Bentley	Heideman	Radka
Blandford	Higgs	Rajkovich
Bonisteel	Howes	Richards, J. B.
Boothby	Hoxie	Richards, L. W.
Brake	Hubbs	Romney
Brown, G. E.	Iverson	Rood
Cudlip	Judd, Mrs.	Rush
Cushman, Mrs.	Karn	Seyferth
Danhof	King	Shackleton
Davis	Kirk, S.	Shaffer
Dehnke	Koeze, Mrs.	Shanahan
Dell	Kuhn	Sharpe
DeVries	Lawrence	Sieder
Donnelly, Miss	Leibrand	Spitler
Doty, Dean	Leppien	Stafseth
Doty, Donald	Lundgren	Stamm
Durst	Madar	Sterrett
Elliott, A. G.	Martin	Stevens
Erickson	McLogan	Tubbs
Everett	Millard	Turner
Farnsworth	Mosier	Upton
Figy	Perras	Van Dusen
Finch	Plank	Wanger
Gover	Pollock	Woolfenden
Hanna, W. F.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 34, the nays are 82.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "The county legislative body shall keep a public journal of its activities, record by yeas and nays the final votes on all policy decisions, record all other votes by yeas and nays on the demand of 1/5 of the members elect, meet publicly unless public security demands otherwise, and establish rules for operation consistent with the public good.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, fellow delegates, this language is taken largely from the present constitution, and what the committee of the whole has recommended for standards in the state legislature. I think that when we are going to have a newly formed county legislative body, we should see that it has at least the same standards of public meeting, recorded roll call votes, as we have set for the legislature. There has been much talk about confidence or lack of confidence in the legislature. We do seem unanimously agreed that there should be in our constitution standards of public activity and recorded roll call votes. I call upon the delegates to establish the same standards for the new form of county government that is being established.

I demand the yeas and nays, and urge the support.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays on the amendment. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported. The question is upon the amendment of Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, which the secretary will again read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, all those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the votes.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—39

Baginski	Faxon	Madar
Balcer	Ford	Murphy
Barthwell	Greene	Plank
Binkowski	Hart, Miss	Richards, L. W.
Bledsoe	Hatcher, Mrs.	Shackleton

Brown, T. S.	Hodges	Snyder
Buback	Hood	Stopczynski
Butler, Mrs.	Hoxie	Suzore
Dade	Kelsey	Walker
Douglas	Leibrand	Wilkowski
Downs	Leppien	Wood
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Lesinski	Young
Erickson	Liberato	Youngblood

Nays—76

Allen	Hanna, W. F.	Pugsley
Andrus, Miss	Haskill	Radka
Batchelor	Hatch	Rajkovich
Beaman	Heideman	Richards, J. B.
Bentley	Higgs	Romney
Blandford	Howes	Rood
Boothby	Hubbs	Shaffer
Brake	Iverson	Shanahan
Brown, G. E.	Judd, Mrs.	Sharpe
Cudlip	Karn	Sleder
Cushman, Mrs.	King	Spitler
Danhof	Kirk, S.	Stafseth
Davis	Krolikowski	Staiger
Dehnke	Kuhn	Stamm
Dell	Lundgren	Sterrett
DeVries	Martin	Stevens
Donnelly, Miss	McCauley	Thomson
Doty, Dean	McGowan, Miss	Tubbs
Doty, Donald	McLogan	Turner
Durst	Millard	Tweedie
Elliott, A. G.	Mosier	Upton
Everett	Perras	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	Pollock	Wanger
Figy	Powell	Woolfenden
Finch	Prettie	Yeager
Gover

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 39, the nays are 76.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "The charter commission preparing for the change to this form of county government shall be nominated and elected on a bipartisan basis with proportional representation reflecting the votes of the respective candidates running from each political party. Nominations shall be in a direct primary. Members of the charter commission shall be elected from districts providing approximately equal representation of people, or at large. The number of members shall be determined by the charter petition.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, this provision spells out how a charter commission would be set up. It provides for bipartisan representation. It means, for example, if a county were to have a 9 member charter commission, and one party got 5/9 of the vote and the other 4/9, the one with 5/9 would have 5 members, and the other 4. I believe that this assures the 2 party participation and guarantees more broad citizen activity in developing a charter commission.

I urge its support, and demand the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays. Is the demand for the yeas and nays supported? The demand is supported. On the amendment, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President and members of the convention, by this time it should be crystal clear that the proposal as adopted by the committee of the whole would, by any stretch of the imagination, give a much wider latitude of home rule than the amendments collectively that have been offered to us here by Mr. Downs and Miss Hart.

I would call your attention to the fact that they proposed that you must elect a prosecutor, that you must elect a sheriff, that you must have civil service, they told you how to choose your board of supervisors, they are attempting to tell you how to keep the records of your board, and now they are going to tell you exactly how to elect your charter commission. Now, I submit to this convention that what they have left, had these amendments been adopted, is that they would give the local people a choice as to exactly what they would do with 3 things: the clerk, the register of deeds, and the treasurer. Now, I would only say that the committee proposal gives a much wider latitude of home rule than these various amendments would have had they been adopted. I'm against the adoption of this amendment.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, all those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—25

Baginski	Downs	Krolikowski
Balcer	Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Murphy
Barthwell	Greene	Snyder
Binkowski	Hart, Miss	Stopczynski
Bledsoe	Hatcher, Mrs.	Suzore
Brown, T. S.	Hodges	Wilkowski
Buback	Hood	Young
Dade	Kelsey	Youngblood
Douglas

Nays—91

Allen	Gover	Pugsley
Andrus, Miss	Hanna, W. F.	Radka
Batchelor	Haskill	Rajkovich
Beaman	Hatch	Richards, J. B.
Bentley	Heideman	Richards, L. W.
Blandford	Higgs	Romney
Boothby	Howes	Rood
Brake	Hoxie	Seyferth
Brown, G. E.	Hubbs	Shackleton
Butler, Mrs.	Iverson	Shanahan
Conklin, Mrs.	Judd, Mrs.	Sharpe
Cudlip	Karn	Sleder
Cushman, Mrs.	King	Spitler
Danhof	Kirk, S.	Stafseth
Davis	Koeze, Mrs.	Staiger
Dehnke	Kuhn	Stamm
Dell	Leibrand	Sterrett
DeVries	Leppien	Stevens
Donnelly, Miss	Lundgren	Thomson
Doty, Dean	Martin	Tubbs
Doty, Donald	McCauley	Turner
Durst	McGowan, Miss	Tweedie
Elliott, A. G.	McLogan	Upton
Erickson	Millard	Van Dusen
Everett	Mosier	Walker
Farnsworth	Perras	Wanger
Faxon	Plank	White
Figy	Pollock	Wood
Finch	Powell	Woolfenden
Ford	Prettie	Yeager
Gadola

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 25, the nays are 91.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, first paragraph, after "constitution.", by inserting "The electors shall be able to initiate a charter commission under these standards by petitions signed by 5 per cent of the registered voters and approved by a majority voting thereon. The petitions for creation of a charter commission may be in any form consistent with this constitution and shall be self executing without the requirement of any additional state legislation. The people shall be able to rescind or amend their action by the same process.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment. The Chair recognizes Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I wish to advise the delegates that this is the last of the Hart-Downs amendments. (applause) Thank you. I wish also to say that this is really the heart of the whole question, and the difference between the majority report that was adopted this morning and the amendments of Delegate Hart and myself.

The previous speaker, Mr. Farnsworth, without going into the details, was absolutely correct in saying that our amendments would set certain standards for having home rule. We think those were good standards. But what this amendment does is say that the people can have home rule without any additional legislative action, or it would be what we call self executing. This amendment will provide that the electors themselves in a county can initiate home rule and can complete the elective process by having a charter commission, and the charter presented to the people, and so on. If we really want county home rule, the people of that county should make the decision without having the people in the entire state and the legislature, and how it will be composed we do not yet know, decide whether or not they can have home rule. The majority proposal provides for an unlimited form of home rule, but no assurance there ever will be any. This amendment provides that the people in a county, by themselves, if 5 per cent initiate the petitions, can start the ball rolling for home rule, and the people in the other 82 counties cannot prevent that from happening.

I therefore say that for the people who really want home rule, this is a self executing proposition. And where we now stand, with all the criticism we have of the present proposal, of being afraid it might go too far, we can avoid the situation of the legislature not moving at all by adopting this amendment, which will permit the individual voters to start the ball rolling for home rule. I say to the delegates here: if you really want the people to have home rule, then support this; because this is the only amendment before this body at present that will permit the individual voters in a county to have home rule without the necessity of legislative action. Thank you.

I demand the yeas and nays.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays. Is the demand supported? There is a sufficient number. The Chair recognizes the delegate from the seventeenth district, Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, I simply want to expand on my earlier comments. As I have sat here and listened to these amendments offered — and this comment that I'm going to make I have not indulged in, and I hope I won't have to indulge in again in this convention — but I think the performance that has been going on here this morning is a completely phony political performance, and that these amendments are not offered in good faith; that the sole purpose of offering them is to enable the minority party at some point in the forthcoming political campaign to be able to issue a broadside or a sheet of paper on which they will say the majority party is against this, that and the other thing on which we have been voting this morning.

MR. WALKER: Point of order, Mr. President.

MR. MARTIN: It is a significant performance, and I want to put it on the record.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. WALKER: A point of order.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: What is the point?

MR. WALKER: It appears to me that if I were guilty of attacking a person individually, I would say that Mr. Martin were certainly guilty, and I would like to object to the remarks on the grounds that they are a direct attack on Mr. Downs and Miss Hart, and I personally take offense to them.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Well, the Chair didn't hear any delegate's name mentioned in the remarks, so it is not well taken.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I rise to a point of personal privilege.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs is recognized for the purpose.

MR. DOWNS: Was the previous speaker impugning the motives of either Miss Hart or myself?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, the remark was not directed to Mr. Downs or Miss Hart. The remark was directed to the general performance, which I assume comes from a Democratic caucus of some sort, as a matter of Democratic policy.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, on a matter of personal privilege, I wish to rise and say that Miss Hart and I developed these amendments. They were developed in all sincerity to assure that individuals would get the right of home rule, and not be limited within what we consider a reasonable governmental standard.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the lady from Wayne, Miss Hart.

MISS HART: I'd like to add to what Mr. Downs has said that these are not caucus decisions. Mr. Downs and I take complete responsibility for the amendments that have been offered. We are happy to do so. And let Mr. Martin make any implication that he cares to. It's of complete indifference to us.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, back a few weeks ago I told Mr. Follo, I told Mrs. Cushman and I told several others that I was for a purely strict self executing home rule. I also told this — and went on record — to Mr. Popa of the Detroit News, telling him the same thing. This morning, if anyone noticed here, I have not voted each and every time with Mr. Downs and Miss Hart. I have on occasion voted with them; on other occasions I voted against their amendments. When it meant that we would not get self executing home rule, I would vote against it. When it meant we were getting it, or that it would assist, I voted for it.

I certainly don't like Mr. Martin's remarks any more than anybody might have liked any that I made, but I can take it as well as I can give it. I've seen in my 34 years with the Republican party Mr. Martin and others do the same thing. Let's not be so pure, Mr. Martin. You've done just as much, and worse.

MR. IVERSON: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Iverson.

MR. IVERSON: I move the previous question.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The previous question has been moved.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I was on my feet.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: I recognize that, but the Chair recognizes a preferential motion, and it is up to the body as to whether or not the previous question is ordered. Is the demand for the previous question supported? The demand is supported. Now, the question is: Shall the main question be put? All those in favor say aye. Those opposed will say no. The previous question is ordered. The yeas and nays have been demanded. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1121.]

MR. KING: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. King?

MR. KING: A point of parliamentary inquiry. Did you recognize the person who sought to move the previous question when there were other people on their feet?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: I did because he made the motion, which was a motion of preference.

MR. KING: Did he make the motion with your recognition? Upon your recognition?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: I recognized the gentleman for that purpose. I heard the motion made.

MR. KING: Thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas — 37

Austin	Follo	Marshall
Baginski	Ford	McCauley
Balcer	Greene	McGowan, Miss
Binkowski	Hart, Miss	Murphy
Bledsoe	Hodges	Pollock
Brown, T. S.	Hood	Snyder
Buback	Kelsey	Stopczynski
Dade	Krollkowski	Suzore
Donnelly, Miss	Kuhn	Walker
Douglas	Lesinski	Wilkowski
Downs	Liberato	Young
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Madar	Youngblood
Faxon

Nays — 82

Allen	Gadola	Pugsley
Andrus, Miss	Gover	Radka
Anspach	Haskill	Rajkovich
Batchelor	Hatch	Richards, J. B.
Beaman	Heideman	Richards, L. W.
Bentley	Higgs	Romney
Blandford	Howes	Rood
Bonisteel	Hoxie	Shackleton
Boothby	Hubbs	Shanahan
Brake	Iverson	Sharpe
Brown, G. E.	Judd, Mrs.	Sieder
Butler, Mrs.	Karn	Spitler
Conklin, Mrs.	King	Stafseth
Cudlip	Kirk, S.	Staiger
Danhof	Knirk, B.	Stamm
Davis	Koeze, Mrs.	Sterrett
Dehnke	Leibrand	Stevens
Dell	Leppien	Thomson
DeVries	Lundgren	Tubbs
Doty, Dean	Martin	Turner
Doty, Donald	McLogan	Tweedie
Durst	Millard	Upton
Elliott, A. G.	Mosier	Van Dusen
Erickson	Perras	Wanger
Everett	Plank	Wood
Farnsworth	Powell	Woolfenden
Figy	Prettie	Yeager
Finch

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offred by Miss Hart and Mr. Downs, the yeas are 37, the nays are 82.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from the twenty-first district, Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I rise to a point of personal privilege.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MARSHALL: I wish to answer Delegate Martin. I am not going to get into any personalities whatsoever. On this particular question that he raised and said was purely a political maneuver on the part of Mr. Downs and Miss Hart, and even further, on the part of the Democrats, from the beginning of this convention — and I want to make this emphatically clear — I have been in favor of pure and sound home rule. I have worked hard within the Democratic group trying to get the differences within the minority party here resolved. I have talked to Delegate Allen on several occasions on what we could do to accomplish this and give the people the right of home rule, and at the same time not get involved in a long, drawn out debate. Delegate Allen can question me on this if he wants to, or deny it. I have talked to other people in this convention. At this very moment I am not too popular among the Democrats on this issue, because I happen to believe very strongly in home rule and the right of the people to determine. And I resent the remarks, in all due respect to Delegate Martin, which inject the political question into this discussion. I am going to continue to fight to try to obtain home rule — pure home rule — to the best of my ability, and I respect the rights of others who have a different viewpoint on this subject than I.

I think we should not have mentioned — if we are going to start mentioning who is playing politics and who is not in this convention, then I think we ought to have a debate on it and talk about it, and not have one individual delegate get up and accuse one group of this type of maneuver. And if there's any politics in this convention at this time, and if there has been any politics in this convention, and if there will be any partisan politics in the future, I think I will leave it to the good judgment of the people of the state of Michigan as to who is and who is not playing politics with this constitutional convention.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Barthwell.

MR. BARTHWELL: I rise to get a point of parliamentary information completely clear in my mind. Since I'm one of the nonlawyers and since I'm one of the delegates who have not used many of their words, I don't want to be shut out of the opportunity and privilege of using them when I get ready to use them.

It is my opinion that I heard the Chair state that in order for a delegate to get the floor, he had to be recognized, and wait until he is recognized through the Chair. If this is so, I think if the Chair displays any degree of fairness in recognizing delegates in some order as to how they applied for the floor, I think then that a delegate who is standing up at the proper time and is polite enough to wait for the Chair should get the privilege of saying what he has to say on the question. I would just like to know if I'm right in this opinion or not.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair would answer the gentleman in this way. I'm sure that every delegate in the Chair has always tried very hard to be fair in this matter and to recognize delegates in the order in which he saw them seeking recognition on the general question for debate.

However, it is always in order for a delegate to make a motion which has priority. Now, when a delegate makes a motion for the previous question, that doesn't automatically mean that the previous question will be ordered. It's the body itself that determines whether the previous question will be ordered. And that decision is made when the Chair asks, "Shall the main question now be put?" If the body should say no at that point, the previous question would not be ordered, the debate would continue, and the Chair would continue to recognize delegates on the general debate in the order in which he saw them seeking recognition.

This is rather a large hall, and the seats are arranged in a semicircle, so that unless the presiding officer keeps reminding himself that he has to look way over to the side, I know that once in a while it's a little bit more difficult for delegates on the far side of the room to get the same recognition as those in the middle. I, on my part, have always tried to remember that — to keep looking over to the sides as well.

There has never been any intent on my part to show any preference among delegates in general debate. However, the body has a right to proceed in the order of business; and the Chair feels that it has the right to recognize preferential motions. If that were not true, the body would not ever be able to proceed until all possible debate was exhausted. Sometimes it may be the will of the body to move at a faster rate than that. Therefore, the Chair does not believe he was in error in recognizing Mr. Iverson to make a motion for the previous question, even though there were other delegates on the floor seeking to debate.

The decision was not the Chair's; the decision was the convention's, as a body, as to whether or not debate should be cut off at that time, as I have explained before. I hope this will answer the gentleman.

MR. BARTHWELL: Mr. President, does each of the delegates have a right to make such a motion without being recognized by the Chair?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair must recognize every delegate. No delegate has the floor without recognition from the Chair. The Chair, however, will recognize delegates who make preferential motions.

The Chair recognizes the Delegate from Oakland, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, I would like to put us back in focus, if I may, for just a moment. We have spent now 5 days, starting with Friday of last week, on local government. We are nearing the completion. As I understand it, there are no other amendments on the desk.

SECRETARY CHASE: Yes, there are.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Oh, are there? Well, I will make this comment, anyway. I in no way feel that the action today of the amendments as offered by Mr. Downs and Miss Hart was anything other than an attempt to present a point of view which they subscribe to. I recognize, and am thankful, that they made those points of view perfectly clear. I think the action of this convention in the defeat of those amendments to this date is an indication of the procedure which the convention wishes to follow in this very, very serious area. This action was not on partisan lines. As I watched the board on each record roll call vote, while the preponderance of votes might have been for one party or another, there were members of both parties voting on both sides of the issue.

I would like to bring to the convention's attention that we are about to reach a milestone of good activity — one which will help the state of Michigan for years to come. I thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Saginaw, Mr. Turner.

MR. TURNER: I rise to a point of personal privilege. If the attitude continues as it is at this point, I will take some time and threaten with rhyme. (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes Mr. Brown of Wayne.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President, at the conclusion of yesterday's activities I was about to make a point of personal privilege, which I deferred until today. That point is simply this. In order to further clear the air, in light of the conversation that has just ensued, I should like to apologize if any members of my political party have acted in an untoward manner in regard to anyone else, or this body as a whole. But I should also like to say this: that what has personally disturbed me about yesterday afternoon's actions, not so much about this morning's, is this one particular observation. I think it would be fruitful if we would look into this particular matter.

Yesterday afternoon, when we — it happened to be that we were all Democrats — were proposing a series of amendments and alterations and such concerning county home rule, I got the very definite impression that we were faced with what I would call a conspiracy of silence. Now, whether or not this was a conspiracy, whether the motives were pure, or impure, or mixed, or whatever the situation was I think is immaterial to the cause.

If you take any body who happened to identify with a particular belief, whether they were talking about partisan matters or whether they were talking about nonpartisan matters, such as county home rule, and this body goes through on our floor some 2 or 3 hours of debate, and they present every possible facet, every possible reasonable compromise, and hold themselves open to anything that will put the stamp of approval of this body on their particular philosophy, and they are not graced with a response from the majority voters on that particular matter, then they begin to feel that something may have been decided in advance; that silence means that they are unwilling to listen.

Now, I would suggest this — and I hope that this is always true for all of us. If I say something that you don't agree with, I hope that everyone who disagrees will stand up and tell me why they disagree. But if I say something in 10 different forms over a period of 2 or 3 hours and it happens to be a matter of great import to certain groups in this convention, and we are not graced with the dignity of a response, then I cannot help but feel that something is wrong.

And I think for the benefit of the progress of this convention both sides should adhere to the philosophy that we will no longer be treated to any sort of obvious conspiracy of silence. Now, when I say "conspiracy of silence," I don't mean that it is necessarily conspiratorial. It just works out that way. And it looks bad, and does not engender good faith in bipartisan cooperation.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the delegate from the fifteenth district, Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I rise to address a question to the chairman of the committee on local government. Is it the gentleman's intention to complete action on the pending amendments this morning, Mr. Elliott?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: As I understand it, Mr. Bentley, we are nearing the completion. Would the secretary inform me how many amendments there are on the table?

SECRETARY CHASE: There are 6 presently, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: The problem we have before us is that we are nearing the completion of this work, and there are reasons why we would like to finish this up before the afternoon session. I would urge the convention to bear with me for just a few moments and see whether or not these amendments can be accommodated. If they cannot, then I would urge that we recess.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, since I am reserving the floor, would the gentleman answer another question? In the event that the gentleman is not able to complete action on the pending amendments this morning, is it the gentleman's intention to pass over those amendments, or request that they be passed over until later?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: It is my intention to request that these amendments be passed over until later, unless we complete them this morning. That's why I'm so anxious for this group to stay in session for a few more moments and see if we can dispose of the amendments that are before us.

MR. BENTLEY: I thank the gentleman.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford has offered the following amendment —

MR. MADAR: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Point of information. Some time ago there was a motion passed here that the delegation or the convention would make recommendations to the legislature. I am wondering whether a recommendation that I made in the local government committee and which was approved for recommendation to the legislature would be acted upon; and I would certainly like to know that it would be included in the journal, so that action will be taken. Because unless I get some information on it now, I don't know just when I am going to bring this up. For instance, my proposal at the time was that the proposition go to the legislature that the public utilities not include the costs of public relations, lobbying and advertising to be used in basing rates.

Now, is that so? Would those recommendations be made to the legislature?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: To whom do you direct your question, Mr. Madar?

MR. MADAR: To the Chair, because the motion was made here and passed; and it was also approved in the local government committee that action would be taken on it.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair is entirely unable to answer. The Chair is not informed about the particular proposition, nor what the committee on local government has —

MR. MADAR: Then I would like to ask the chairman of the local government committee if action will be taken.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, it is our intention to bring to the convention at some later date a list of recommendations which we will urge be sent on to the legislature, and we will have sessions in committee to make final decisions on those items, just as we have made final decisions on others.

MR. MADAR: Then, Mr. President, it will be made a matter of record that this will be brought up in the future?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: It will show in the verbatim record of the convention.

MR. MADAR: Thank you, Mr. President.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, last line, after "laws" by inserting a colon and "Provided however, No county charter or provision thereof shall be in derogation of or otherwise diminish the rights, powers or duties of any municipality within said county".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes Mr. Ford upon his amendment.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, this did have a very brief consideration as a part of one of the delegate proposals that appeared before the local government committee. I think that it becomes apparent, because we shouldn't lose sight of the fact in discussing home rule, that we are talking about home rule that is going to lap over another form of home rule that has been given recognition and has a long tradition in the state.

Although I have most frequently been talking in the area of townships, I also represent 3 cities as a delegate to this convention. They are downriver cities, and I'm sure that they would be very much concerned about the possibility of a charter being adopted which would include them in the territory of its operation and which would in any way be in derogation of the inherent powers of local self government that they have as chartered communities. I would anticipate by the growth of our community that the other communities that I now represent will have home rule charters in the foreseeable future. It is entirely possible and very likely that with the status of this as it is now we are talking about the possibility of home rule as something a long, long time in the future.

We, by the action of the convention, have adopted a form of non self executing home rule, and left the situation so that the legislature may take some time to decide this matter. When they do, I think that in adopting any legislation to implement home rule, they should have clearly before them the intention of this convention that when we are talking about county home rule we are talking about a way of facilitating countywide performance of services that can best be performed on a countywide basis, and that we are not talking about a form of government which is intended to replace local home rule, whether we are talking about cities, villages or townships; that we are talking about something similar to what one of the delegates attempted the other day when he put in an amendment suggesting that metropolitan government would be of a nature of a service government, rather than a functional government to replace the functions of local units within it. This is the purpose of the amendment.

It might be argued that it is a restriction on the legislature, but I think that it's more in the nature of a direction to the legislature to safeguard in the implementing legislation the rights of the communities that will be located within the chartered unit known as a charter or home rule county.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment of Mr. Ford. Those in favor will say aye.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Kalamazoo, Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: In reply to the point made by Mr. Ford, I come from a city, and we are not concerned about this. You will notice that in the first paragraph the powers given are not completely self executing, are not completely broad; and that the first 2 sentences say that a county may frame its charter, with powers and limitations to be provided by general law. And then, in the second sentence, it starts, "Subject to law, a county charter may authorize . . ." and so on. So we have restrictions which the legislature may impose. I would be afraid that if this were adopted it would be too restrictive.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes Mr. Brown, of Kalamazoo.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. President, I move the previous and primary question.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Brown moves the previous question upon the amendment. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported. The question is now: Shall the main question be put? All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The previous question is ordered. The question now is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Ford. The secretary will read the amendment.

MR. FORD: I would like to ask for the yeas and nays, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: And Mr. Ford demands the yeas and nays upon his amendment. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All those in favor of the amendment offered by Mr. Ford will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas — 26

Baginski	Follo	McGowan, Miss
Binkowski	Ford	Murphy
Bledsoe	Hart, Miss	Snyder
Brown, T. S.	Hatcher, Mrs.	Stopczynski
Buback	Hood	Suzore
Dade	Hubbs	Walker
Douglas	Kelsey	Wilkowski
Downs	Marshall	Youngblood
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	McCauley

Nays — 85

Allen	Finch	Pugsley
Andrus, Miss	Gadola	Radka
Anspach	Gover	Rajkovich
Balcer	Haskill	Richards, J. B.
Barthwell	Hatch	Richards, L. W.
Batchelor	Heideman	Romney
Beaman	Higgs	Rood
Bentley	Howes	Rush
Blandford	Hoxie	Seyferth
Bonisteel	Iverson	Shackleton
Boothby	Judd, Mrs.	Shanahan
Brake	Karn	Sieder
Brown, G. E.	King	Spitler
Butler, Mrs.	Kirk, S.	Stafseth
Conklin, Mrs.	Knirk, B.	Staiger
Cushman, Mrs.	Koeze, Mrs.	Stevens
Danhof	Kuhn	Thomson
Davis	Lawrence	Tubbs
Dehnke	Leibrand	Turner
Dell	Leppien	Tweedie
DeVries	Lundgren	Upton
Donnelly, Miss	Martin	Van Dusen
Doty, Dean	McLogan	Wanger
Doty, Donald	Millard	White
Durst	Mosier	Wood
Elliott, A. G.	Perras	Woolfenden
Farnsworth	Powell	Yeager
Faxon	Prettie	Young
Figy

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Mr. Ford, the yeas are 26, the nays are 85.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

Mr. Brown of Kalamazoo.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. President, it is my intent to move the previous question on all pending amendments. It has been interpreted that way, so I would so move at this time.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Brown of Kalamazoo moves the previous question upon all pending amendments. Is the demand supported? It is supported, 10 or more delegates having indicated support. The question now is: Shall the main question be put? All those in favor will say aye.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Hoxie?

MR. HOXIE: I would like a division on the question.

MR. KING: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. King?

MR. KING: I make a preferential motion to limit debate to 5 minutes on all these amendments.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The motion is in order. Mr. King moves to limit debate to 5 minutes on each pending amendment.

MR. KING: No, on the total.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the total?

DELEGATES: No.

MR. KING: All right; on each. (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. King moves that debate upon each of the pending amendments be limited to 5 minutes. All those in favor of the motion to limit debate will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion to limit debate is not adopted. The question now is upon the previous question. The previous question has been supported. The question now is — and Mr. Hoxie demands a division — is the demand for a division supported? The demand is supported. The question now is: Shall the main question be put? All those in favor will vote aye. All those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the motion for the previous question, the yeas are 58, the nays are 56.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The motion prevails. The previous question is ordered.

MR. HOOD: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. HOOD: I would like to be recorded as voting no.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair regrets that the gentleman was too late. The vote has already been announced.

MR. HOOD: Mr. President, I was downstairs when the bell rang, and I came upstairs with posthaste dispatch, but I couldn't make it; and if it would be in order, I would like to cast a nay vote. I think we do have a provision that requires one minute, and certainly I don't believe that one minute elapsed between the time the bell rang and the time the machine was locked.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Hodges?

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, I move to reconsider the previous motion.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Hodges moves to reconsider the vote by which the previous question was ordered. All those in favor of reconsideration will say —

MR. HODGES: I demand a division.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: — upon which motion Mr. Hodges demands a division. Is the demand for a division supported? The demand is supported. The machine will be cleared. All those in favor of reconsidering the motion for the previous question will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

Mr. Downs, for what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. DOWNS: When the vote is recorded, I wish to rise for a parliamentary inquiry.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All right.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the motion to reconsider, the yeas are 67 and the nays are 52.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The motion to reconsider prevails. The question now is upon the motion to order the previous question on all pending amendments. The question now is: Shall the main question be put? Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I rise for my parliamentary inquiry. Is a request for a division the same as a recorded roll call vote?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: No, Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Would I be in order to demand the yeas and nays and a recorded roll call vote on this?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: You would be.

MR. DOWNS: I so do.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs demands the yeas and nays on ordering the previous question on all pending amendments. Is the demand supported? It is supported. All those in favor of ordering the previous question upon all pending amendments will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas — 58

Allen	Everett	Powell
Andrus, Miss	Farnsworth	Prettie
Batchelor	Figy	Richards, J. B.
Beaman	Finch	Rush
Blandford	Gover	Seyferth
Bonisteel	Hanna, W. F.	Spitler
Boothby	Haskill	Stafseth
Brake	Hatch	Stamm
Brown, G. E.	Higgs	Stevens
Butler, Mrs.	Hubbs	Stopczynski
Danhof	Iverson	Thomson
Davis	Karn	Tubbs
Dehnke	Kirk, S.	Turner
Dell	Knirk, B.	Tweedie
DeVries	Koeze, Mrs.	Upton
Doty, Dean	Lundgren	Van Dusen
Doty, Donald	Martin	Wanger
Douglas	Millard	White
Elliott, A. G.	Mosier	Yeager
Erickson

Nays — 63

Austin	Hart, Miss	Perras
Baginski	Heideman	Pugsley
Balcer	Hodges	Radka
Barthwell	Hood	Rajkovich
Bentley	Howes	Richards, L. W.
Binkowski	Hoxie	Romney
Bledsoe	Judd, Mrs.	Rood
Brown, T. S.	Kelsey	Shackleton
Buback	King	Shanahan
Conklin, Mrs.	Kuhn	Sharpe
Cushman, Mrs.	Lawrence	Sieder
Dade	Leibrand	Snyder
Donnelly, Miss	Leppien	Staiger
Downs	Lesinski	Sterrett
Durst	Liberato	Suzore
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Madar	Walker
Faxon	Marshall	Wilkowski
Follo	McCauley	Wood
Ford	McGowan, Miss	Woolfenden
Gadola	McLogan	Young
Greene	Murphy	Youngblood

SECRETARY CHASE: On the matter of ordering the previous question, the yeas are 58 and the nays are 63.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The previous question is not ordered.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, at this time I would like to move that we recess until 2:00 o'clock this afternoon.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Madar moves that the convention stand in recess until 2:00 p.m. Pending the putting of that motion, Mr. Madar, the secretary advises that he has requests for absences from the afternoon session. May we handle those first?

MR. MADAR: Oh, that's all right. Certainly I would be glad to have that done. I'll give them a chance to go home if they want to.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McAllister requests leave from the afternoon session to take care of a legal matter that has been pending since May of last year; Messrs. Radka, Dell, Habermehl and Lundgren ask to be excused from the afternoon session to fulfill an evening television engagement at Charlevoix at 7:00 p.m.; Father Dade and Mr. Suzore request to be excused from Monday's session; and Mr. Baginski requests leave from the afternoon session.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Is there objection to the granting of any of these excuses? The question is upon granting the several excuses requested. Is there objection?

If not, the several requests for absence will be granted, and it is so ordered.

The gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Madar, moves that the convention stand in recess until 2:00 o'clock p.m. this afternoon. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no. The Chair is in doubt. All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the question of taking a recess, the yeas are 59, the nays are 61.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The motion does not prevail.

The Chair recognizes Dr. Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. President, I rise to a point of personal privilege for the purpose of making a comment.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: You may proceed, with unanimous consent.

MR. ANSPACH: This person went into a western union office and said, "I want to send a telegram."

The clerk said, "To whom?"

He said, "To myself."

"What's your name?"

"John Brown."

"Where do you live?"

"452 Green Street, Cleveland, Ohio."

"What do you want to say?"

He said, "La-la-la-la-la-la-la-la-la."

He said, "You're entitled to 10 words."

"What else do you want me to say?'

"What about another la?"

"No," he said, "I think that would be ridiculous." (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McCauley, Mrs. Cushman, Messrs. Marshall and Follo offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 6, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the committee proposal and inserting:

"The legislature shall provide by general law that the electors of any county shall have power and authority to initiate, frame, adopt, amend or repeal a county charter and therein authorize the county through its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, and shall limit their rate of taxation notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this constitution.

A. No county charter shall be adopted, amended, repealed or revised until approved by a majority vote of county electors voting on the question.

B. The question of electing a charter commission may be placed on the ballot by a majority vote of the members elect of the board of supervisors and shall be placed thereon on receipt of a petition signed by 5 per cent of the registered voters of the county. The charter commission shall be elected by the county electors in accordance with the election laws on a partisan basis.

Sec. b. Under general law each county charter shall provide:

A. For the selection of judicial officers of the county as provided in article VII of this constitution.

B. Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the designation of the officers of the county and the manner of their selection.

C. Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the form of government of the charter county, including the membership of the board of supervisors and the manner of their selection which shall not be by an election at large.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment so offered. The Chair recognizes Mr. McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. President and members of the convention, I realize we have had a long and arduous day, and I'm certainly not going to take up much of your time. However, I would like to remind you that this gets to the basic issue of what we have been talking about here for 2 days. The 2 issues before us — the real issues before us — are the selection of the county board and the selection of the officials in the county.

If you will notice, the first paragraph, and I might say the first paragraph down to section b, is almost exactly what we have termed for many weeks in local government the "3 B" proposal. There has been one change where we are adding the partisan basis for the election of the charter commission. But let me say this. As far as the first paragraph is concerned, this is just about the same as what city home rule has, but you will notice that we have added — and this has been adopted by the convention — a provision to take care of any financial problems that a home rule county might get into.

If the 15 mills stays out, this language at the end possibly wouldn't be necessary. However, if it pops back in, we are going to have to divide certain moneys for home rule counties to operate on over and above the 15 mills. However, Mr. Austin's amendment did take care of that, and it is not too relevant at this time.

You will note that the second paragraph contains the language as to how the charter will be adopted, who will vote on it — and that's the majority of the county electors voting on the question. The next paragraph has to do with the election of the charter commission itself; how it might be initiated by the supervisors, and then a percentage of the electors in the county.

The very next section has to do with the amendments — the amendments that we feel are so necessary for true county home rule. They must be read under the language as stated there, "Under general law each county charter shall provide." Now, this is the important language. It shall provide "For the selection of the judicial officers, as provided in article VII of this constitution." The charter shall also provide, "Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the designation of the officers of the county and the manner of their selection." The last paragraph, under general law each county charter shall provide:

> Notwithstanding any other provision in this constitution or in law, for the form of government of the charter county, including the membership of the board of supervisors and the manner of their selection which shall not be by an election at large.

The reason for the last 3 words is that a lot of smaller communities are concerned that the larger ones might attempt to gobble them up. This is providing for a districting, so that the smaller individual communities would have some protection along those lines.

It is the feeling of myself and the proponents of this amendment that this solves all of the problems. We are taking care of the elected officials by leaving it up to the county to decide what they want, and also the type of government and the selection of the board of supervisors.

I urge the adoption of the amendment.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I have the greatest admiration for Mr. McCauley and a great fondness, and I am sorry that I have to speak in opposition to his amendment. But I do, and I urge that you do not adopt it.

I would like to yield the floor to Mr. Follo.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Follo.

MR. FOLLO: Much was said here this morning about a unit rule. And yet everything that happened yesterday seemed to point to the fact that there was an understanding in the Republican party. Here is your chance to show us that there is no unit rule, there is no understanding. This is true home rule. This is why we are putting it up here. I hope that a few of you, at least, will vote for it.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Elliott, for what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I had the floor. I yielded to Mr. Follo.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: I understood you yielded the floor.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: No, just to Mr. Follo.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All right. The Chair will so recognize you then.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Ladies and gentlemen, I would like to urge that this is not necessarily any truer home rule than what you now have adopted to this point. It's just a procedure that follows, and I would urge that this amendment be defeated, and move the previous question.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Elliott moves the previous question.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Is the previous question supported?

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I was waiting.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The demand is supported. The question now is: Shall the main question be put?

For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Marshall?

MR. MARSHALL: I was waiting to be recognized, and Delegate Elliott knew that, and is attempting to apply the gag rule to me. As one of the supporters of the amendment, I wanted to make a brief statement on it. But I guess I'm out of order, since he has moved the previous question.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The demand for the previous question has been supported.

For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Kuhn?

MR. KUHN: A preferential motion.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: What is your motion?

MR. KUHN: To limit debate to 10 minutes on this amendment.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Kuhn moves to limit debate to 10 minutes upon this amendment. All those in favor of limiting debate will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion does not prevail. The question now is: shall the main question be put? All those in favor of the previous question will say aye. Those opposed will say no. The Chair is in doubt. All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the question of ordering the previous question, the yeas are 67, the nays are 51.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The previous question is ordered. The question is now upon the amendment, which the secretary will now read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McCauley, Mrs. Cushman, Messrs. Marshall and Follo have offered the following substitute for the committee proposal:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1127.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Binkowski?

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. President, if a record roll call vote has not been so requested, I request it.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Binkowski demands the yeas and nays upon the amendment. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported, and it is so ordered.

Mr. Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: May I, under rule 67, I believe, abstain from voting? I do not understand what I'm voting on. That is the reason given under the rule.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered and just read by the secretary. All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Marshall?

MR. MARSHALL: I rise to a point of personal privilege, to make a statement, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: As soon as the vote is announced.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas — 40

Allen	Faxon	Marshall
Austin	Follo	McCauley
Baginski	Ford	McGowan, Miss
Balcer	Greene	Murphy
Binkowski	Hart, Miss	Snyder
Bledsoe	Hatcher, Mrs.	Staiger
Brown, T. S.	Hodges	Stamm
Buback	Hood	Stopczynski
Cushman, Mrs.	Kelsey	Suzore
Dade	Krolikowski	Walker
Donnelly, Miss	Kuhn	Wilkowski
Downs	Liberato	Young
Durst	Madar	Youngblood
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy

Nays — 74

Barthwell	Haskill	Richards, L. W.
Batchelor	Hatch	Romney
Beaman	Heideman	Rood
Bentley	Higgs	Rush
Blandford	Howes	Seyferth
Boothby	Hoxie	Shackleton
Brake	Hubbs	Shanahan
Brown, G. E.	Iverson	Sharpe
Conklin, Mrs.	Judd, Mrs.	Sleder
Cudlip	Karn	Spitler
Danhof	King	Stafseth
Davis	Kirk, S.	Sterrett
Dehnke	Knirk, B.	Stevens
Dell	Koeze, Mrs.	Thomson
DeVries	Leppien	Tubbs
Doty, Dean	Lundgren	Turner
Doty, Donald	Martin	Tweedie
Elliott, A. G.	Millard	Upton
Erickson	Mosier	Van Dusen
Everett	Perras	Wanger
Farnsworth	Powell	White
Figy	Prettie	Wood
Finch	Pugsley	Woolfenden
Gover	Radka	Yeager
Hanna, W. F.	Richards, J. B.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. McCauley and others, the yeas are 40 and the nays are 74.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from the twenty-first district, Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I just want to go on record here and make a few remarks concerning the action just taken. I worked with Delegate McCauley on this last night and this morning. As I have said previously, I believe in home rule. I believe in the people having the right to determine. I was laboring on this under some extreme pressure from certain sources that I don't care to divulge. I resent the fact that the gag rule was applied. The delegate from Bay City announced that he did not want to vote because he did not clearly understand the amendment.

I do not believe that we are acting in a very intelligent way when here is a substitute proposal which in my considered and humble opinion offers to the people the right to determine for themselves. I don't believe a better or more encompassing home rule provision could have been written.

Then, I find myself unable, standing on the floor when Delegate Elliott moved the previous question, to have an opportunity to explain the amendment. I'm not going to bore you with explaining it now, because the decision was made.

I only want to remark in closing that the proposal that was adopted by the committee is not in any sense of the word a home rule provision. It is merely a provision designed and planned to pass the buck to the legislature, and to mislead the people into thinking that they had a home rule provision.

I would hope that we will not again get into a provision on something as important and as serious as this of applying a gag rule to the delegates, particularly when some delegates are laboring under a terrific burden to start with, where in my case I felt that I should have had the opportunity to explain my reasons — all of them — for supporting this amendment, paragraph by paragraph.

I'm not concerned too much about the pressure and what the people think who are giving me the devil about supporting this thing, but I do resent, and I do not think it is in the best interests of the people of this state on something this serious, to have the chairman of the local government committee get up and apply the gag rule and cut off debate, and vote on an amendment without having the right to explain it.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Faxon?

MR. FAXON: A point of personal privilege, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes you for that purpose.

MR. FAXON: Thank you. I have kept silent for the last few days, but I think this has been a very unfortunate day here, and I think it is the very low point of the convention, when we are going ahead and treating amendments, no matter what our dispositions toward these amendments are, in the summary fashion which we have just seen.

We have people who have worked for many months and who have worked hard on these things, and I sat in on the local government committee, and I'm aware of the time and effort that they've spent on it. We have been proposing these amendments on the floor, and then I've watched to see that there's no opportunity for the delegates to discuss these things. We never did discuss this business of county home rule on the floor.

We have spent hours discussing other proposals of a much less important nature than this — not just hours, I think days — and we came to county home rule yesterday, and I had read the reports in the journals, and this is what I was going on. It came to county home rule yesterday, and it was late in the afternoon, and all of a sudden there was no discussion.

We were coming up with no county home rule, or we were coming up with putting it in the hands of the legislature, and there was no discussion of this thing. There was no discussion of what Mr. McCauley had just put in. And I think it is most unfortunate for Mr. McCauley or for any person who has pending amendments to come now and to have people say: "We have already decided ahead of time. We are not even going to consider these amendments. We don't want to hear the discussion on them. Just read it and vote and get through with it."

This is a deliberative body. I'm just shocked to think that people who are elected as delegates to a convention, who come here to deliberate on questions, are willing to handle things in such summary fashion as to completely dismiss the will of any group of members or delegates who wish to propose something.

We have 5 more pending amendments, and I think that pushing it this way, with no time for a break — we didn't have a break at 10:30; it's over 3 hours of straight meeting — and 1, 2, 3, let's get it over with. This is not doing a service to the people of the state. It is not doing a service to yourself to sit here now and just want to get it over with because you don't want to hear any more about it.

I would like, therefore, to move at this time, considering the fact that it is over 3 hours and the people haven't eaten lunch that are being asked to handle this, to recess until 2:00 o'clock.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Faxon moves that the convention stand in recess until 2:00 o'clock p.m.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, a preferential motion.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: State the motion.

MR. MADAR: I believe it's a preferential motion. I want to move that we adjourn until Monday afternoon at 4:00 p.m.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Yes, the motion to adjourn is in order. All those in favor of adjourning will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion does not prevail.

MR. MADAR: Division, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Is the demand for a division supported? There is a sufficient number up. All those in favor of the motion to adjourn will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the motion to adjourn, the yeas are 32, the nays are 84.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The motion does not prevail. The question is upon the motion of Mr. Faxon that the convention stand in recess until 2:00 o'clock p.m. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no. The Chair is in doubt. All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the motion to recess until 2:00 o'clock, the yeas are 61, the nays are 58.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The motion prevails, and the convention stands in recess until 2:00 o'clock p.m.

[Whereupon, at 12:45 o'clock p.m., the convention recessed; and, at 2:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

The convention will be in order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention is still considering the report of the committee of the whole. We are considering amendments to Committee Proposal 89.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hodges offers the following amendment:

1. Amend the first paragraph after "by general law,", by inserting "provided such law is uniform for all counties,"; so that the first sentence of section a will read:

> Any county may frame, adopt, amend or repeal a county charter in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law, provided such law is uniform for all counties, which law may permit the organization of county government in forms different from the form set forth in this constitution.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, I trust that after the break, probably with a little bit of food all of us are in a little better humor than we might have been a while ago, including myself.

I offer this amendment in all seriousness. It was offered on the floor last night, and was voted down. However, afterwards, after a discussion with some delegates who had voted against it, the considerations seemed to be that there was not too much opposition to it. I think all I might want to do now is explain the purpose and intent of it. I am truly hopeful that this would help remedy some of the fears that persons such as myself might have over what is going to be the provision in the new constitution. My purpose is not to say that every county must have the same type of government; merely that the enabling legislation for that shall be uniform, so that the legislature cannot pick and choose in terms of counties as to what types of enabling legislation it is going to allow.

Quite frankly, we have talked — and I don't want to engender this into a partisan aspect again — of the problem of the legislature. Many of us from Wayne county are fearful — at least some of us are — that the forces for total home rule, in their zeal for it, along with nonpartisanship, may clash in the legislature with the forces of the status quo, and that the compromise that would be effected would be one which would except a county such as Wayne from the provisions of counties other than the large metropolitan ones.

I offer this in the hope — I think it is a fair play type of thing — that if we are going to turn it over to the legislature, at least we will not let the legislature pick and choose as to what they are or are not going to allow as between counties. This is not to say in any way that the counties couldn't have different home rule if the legislature saw fit to entitle counties to have total home rule; then it would be so for all counties. If they were to say there should be certain restrictions, such as election of certain officials, or any other restrictions, those restrictions would apply uniformly.

I ask for the support of the convention for this amendment.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oakland, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, Mr. Hodges, I am sure that what Mr. Hodges says, he says with the greatest of sincerity. And it is with some reluctance, because I recognize this sincerity, that I rise in opposition to this amendment. I feel that this is something that may in the future be wise for us not to have in the constitution. We are trying to give the legislature here the flexibility of action to meet the demands of not just 1962, 1963, as we see it, but for at least the next several decades. As Mr. Hodges well knows, with the changing pattern of our state as we now find it, there can easily be reasons in the future where it might be wise for the legislature to make in their laws certain deviations from a standard in order to accommodate the needs of various sections of our state.

For that reason, and because I feel that we by no means defeat uniformity by the defeat of this amendment, I urge that it be rejected.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the lady from Kent, Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. Elliott has already expressed most of what I intended to say. But I might remind the convention that there is a provision in the constitution, and probably will be again, against special acts. This makes it almost necessary for everything the legislature does to apply uniformly to every county, unless they classify counties by population, as they have done in the past, and in many ways this is desirable.

I recognize Wayne county's fear of being singled out as different, and I sympathize with it. I might suggest that the New York constitution, in their provision against special acts, says that in classifying cities or counties there shall be at least 3 units in each classification. If we had something like this it might give Wayne county a little company.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: On the amendment again, Mr. President, from Mr. Elliott's remarks I think there is some confusion as to what I really intend. It is not that Wayne county should not perhaps have a structure totally different from any other county in this state. It's merely to the degree that you are going to allow the people self determination. What I'm getting at is the self determination should be the same for the people of Wayne county as it should be for the people of Berrien county or any other county. Not that their government should be the same. But if the legislature is to put certain restrictions on them, that those restrictions be uniform; or free it up to allow the people to decide. It's only a question of uniformity of degree, not of the type of government.

I think that this would solve at least in my mind, and I think maybe other delegates' minds, the fear — and it's genuine — that we have for this provision that is going to be enacted.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Hodges, which the secretary will again read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hodges' amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1129.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Those in favor of the amendment will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

MR. HODGES: Division.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: A division has been called for. Is the demand for a division supported? The demand is supported. Those in favor of Mr. Hodges' amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of Mr. Hodges' amendment, the yeas are 42, the nays are 75.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from the twenty-first district, Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I rise to a point of parliamentary inquiry.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MARSHALL: I noticed this morning and for several days now — and I think with an assist from Delegate Bentley — that we've gotten off into the congressional procedure of one speaker yielding the floor to another. I have been unable to find anything in the rules — in our own rules — on this, nor have I been able to find anything in Mason's Manual. Now, what this does — I can see yielding for the purpose of a delegate asking a question. We started out in our procedure with the presiding officer recognizing the people as they rose and asked for recognition. Then he would list the names, and would call on them in order. Now, we've gotten off into a practice — and I think with an assist from Mr. Bentley, from his having served in congress so long — and in my opinion I do not believe this is covered in our rules or in the manual.

What this does, so it will be clear for the record, is allow a committee chairman to have a great deal of control over the debate on the floor, and the trend that it will take, by yielding from time to time to various speakers that may rise, permitting certain speakers to speak, even though there are others who have asked to be heard. I merely ask the question now, to get to the point of parliamentary inquiry: is this permissible under the rules of the convention?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: In answer, the Chair will advise the delegate that according to Mason, and the Chair reads from section 95 of Mason's Manual, "A member having the floor in debate may, without objection, yield it for questions and explanations connected with the subject before the house." Now, that means that if there is objection to this process of yielding, it will be out of order.

MR. MARSHALL: Thank you, Mr. President.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. T. S. Brown offers the following amendment:

1. Amend the first paragraph, after the first "county charter" by striking out "in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law, which law may" and inserting "to"; and after "constitution.", by striking out the words "Subject to law,"; so the language will then read:

> Any county may frame, adopt, amend or repeal a county charter to permit the organization of county government in forms different from the form set forth in this constitution. A county charter may authorize the county through its regularly constituted authority to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. T. S. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President and fellow delegates, we have been through this particular proposition yesterday afternoon. I'm sure you are all aware of the extent of my remarks at that time. This is another version of pure county home rule, except that it is couched in the terminology of the compromise agreement that you apparently agreed to in advance. It simply deletes mention of provisions or limitations that the legislature may place upon a county desirous of home rule.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Brown.

MISS DONNELLY: Will you read it again?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All right. The secretary will read it again.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brown's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment so read. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendment is not adopted.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Are you demanding a division?

MR. T. S. BROWN: May we have a recorded roll call vote, Mr. President?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Brown demands a recorded roll call vote. Is the demand for a recorded roll call vote supported?

SECRETARY CHASE: There is a sufficient number up.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The demand is supported. Those in favor of Mr. Brown's amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no.

For what purpose does the gentleman from Ingham rise, Mr. Wanger?

MR. WANGER: An inquiry as to whether or not we can have a roll call vote after we have already taken the vote.

I would think a division might be in order, but I ask whether or not, after the vote has already been taken on a matter and when a roll call could have been required prior thereto, but was not, if afterwards we can go back and have a roll call.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The demand is in order, Mr. Wanger. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—28

Austin	Ford	McCauley
Barthwell	Garvin	Norris
Binkowski	Hart, Miss	Snyder
Bledsoe	Hodges	Staiger
Brown, T. S.	Kelsey	Suzore
Dade	Krolikowski	Walker
Douglas	Liberato	Wilkowski
Downs	Madar	Young
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Marshall	Youngblood
Follo

Nays—90

Allen	Finch	Pollock
Andrus, Miss	Gadola	Powell
Anspach	Gover	Prettie
Balcer	Gust	Pugsley
Batchelor	Hanna, W. F.	Rajkovich
Beaman	Hannah, J. A.	Richards, J. B.
Bentley	Haskill	Richards, L. W.
Blandford	Hatch	Romney
Bonisteel	Heideman	Rood
Boothby	Higgs	Rush
Brake	Howes	Shackleton
Buback	Hoxie	Shaffer
Butler, Mrs.	Hubbs	Shanahan
Conklin, Mrs.	Iverson	Sharpe
Cudlip	Judd, Mrs.	Sleder
Cushman, Mrs.	Karn	Spitler
Danhof	King	Stafseth
Davis	Kirk, S.	Stamm
Dehnke	Knirk, B.	Sterrett
Dell	Kuhn	Stevens
DeVries	Lawrence	Tubbs
Donnelly, Miss	Leibrand	Turner
Doty, Dean	Leppien	Tweedie
Doty, Donald	Lundgren	Upton
Elliott, A. G.	Martin	Van Dusen
Erickson	McLogan	Wanger
Everett	Millard	White
Farnsworth	Mosier	Wood
Faxon	Perras	Woolfenden
Figy	Plank	Yeager

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Mr. Brown, the yeas are 28, the nays are 90.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted. Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: I rise to speak as a matter of personal privilege. In connection with the vote just taken, lest it be thought of as a vote against real home rule, I would like to comment that in an effort to accomplish this, the wording which Mr. Brown had, removed the legislature not only on the form part, or the structure, but completely removed it on the powers. So that had it passed, we would have had county home rule with powers of their own choosing, and not subject to any legislative restraint. Even municipal home rule doesn't do this. Even municipal home rule is subject to law.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Brown?

MR. T. S. BROWN: Point of personal privilege, Mr. President. We covered that point, I believe, yesterday afternoon, Mr. Allen, in which I indicated that I felt that no county, just by its own volition, can pass any kind of a charter which is in derogation of the general state law anyhow. We are all subject to state law at all times.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair would like to state that in the opinion of the Chair a great deal of freedom is being taken with this phrase "personal privilege." The Chair will say that with only a few exceptions the remarks heard today under points of personal privilege have not been proper points at all. The Chair, however, will not raise the point of order, because unless somebody else objects, the Chair is willing to go along. But simply because all of these remarks will be printed in the verbatim journal, they will not be printed in the daily journal.

The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. T. S. Brown offers the following amendment—

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: May I interrupt for just a moment? Would the Chair be kind enough to give us a good definition of what personal privilege is?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: I think that perhaps the secretary can do that very ably.

SECRETARY CHASE: "Questions of privilege" is found in Mason's Manual, sections 220 to 222. Section 220 deals with, What is a question of privilege

1. Questions which relate to the body or to its members in such a manner as to effect proper functioning of the body are questions of privilege. It is necessary that these questions be under the immediate control of the body. They relate to the rights and privileges of the body or to any of its members in their official capacity or to the comfort and convenience of the body or its members in the performance of their official duties. . . .

3. Questions of privilege are of 2 types: they may relate to the privilege of the entire body, which are known as questions of "privilege of the house," and questions of privilege which relate to a member, which are known as questions of "personal privilege". . . .

Then:

Section 222. Questions of personal privilege

1. Questions affecting the rights, reputation and conduct of members of the body in their representative capacity are questions of personal privilege.

2. Questions of privilege of a member must relate to a person as a member of the body or relate to charges against his character which would, if true, incapacitate him for membership, and he is not entitled to the floor on a question of personal privilege unless the subject which he proposes to present relates to him in his representative capacity. . . .

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: It is the opinion of the Chair that a true personal privilege matter is a situation in which a member has been personally attacked, either on the floor or off of it, in his representative capacity.

MR. HODGES: Point of information, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I just wanted some clarification on the remark you made about what goes in the journal and what does not. The other day there were some remarks made and they were included in the journal. I know in the one case they were requested to be included in the journal, but I don't think they were in other cases. I wonder what the determination is as to which remarks will be and which remarks won't be.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair announced that in the opinion of the Chair these matters, since they would be printed in the verbatim journal, would not be printed in the daily journal. If the body desires to direct otherwise, a motion would be in order to so direct.

MR. HODGES: I don't want to belabor the point, Mr. President. My only point is that this is somewhat different than the action taken the other day, and I just thought that in terms of uniformity we should have a uniform action.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Well, Mr. Hodges, the Chair will announce that I recall that I made such a statement the other day, which is admittedly a legislative practice, where we do not have a verbatim journal.

The secretary reminded me a few minutes ago that since we did have a verbatim journal, we could be saving some of the taxpayers' money if we didn't print these again in the daily journal. And, if that is agreeable with the body, we will follow the latter suggestion henceforth.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. President, I would like to have a point of information, also, please.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Richards, of Marquette.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: I was wondering: we made a decision the other day. I realize how important it is for us to continue on with this discussion on local government, but the fact is that we went on record that at 2:00 o'clock Friday afternoon we would discuss this post budget. Is that discontinued now?

Maybe a change of diet would do us all some good. I don't know. I would like to get a ruling on that, please.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The ruling is, Mr. Richards, that the matter was postponed to the 2:00 o'clock session, according to the records, and not to a particular time certain. The matter would be next in order after the present matter is disposed of. The Chair will recognize Dr. DeVries, if you desire to speak —

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: I would go along then with the diet we have.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All right.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. T. S. Brown offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, last paragraph, after "electors" by inserting "by partisan ballot"; so that the last sentence in section a will read, "The charter commission shall be elected by the county electors by partisan ballot in accordance with the election laws."

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes the delegate from Wayne, Mr. T. S. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President and fellow delegates, again, as yesterday, I am concerned here with the apparent trend of events which would allow the legislature to set up different standards for home rule in different counties, and which would otherwise not necessarily limit the legislature to doing anything they wanted to in regard to the particular counties that wanted home rule. Now, since I know Wayne county better than the other counties in the state, I do fear that this possibly will happen. If the legislature is considering a county home rule conversion, they will most likely look to certain powers in Wayne county when they establish their law. Now, I am not at all certain — and this is true for both parties — that the people who will be attempting to influence the legislature in a particular home rule act for Wayne county will necessarily represent the best interests of all of the people in Wayne county. The legislature, as Bill Ford said yesterday, will eventually be plagued by the "in" group — whatever the "in" group has to represent — and the machine aspects of bossism, in Wayne county, as in every other county.

I suggest that the ultimate way to safeguard this is to provide the people on a partisan and on an ideological basis an opportunity to veto the whole process if anything should go wrong. Now, every county in the state of Michigan now elects its officials on a partisan basis, and I think ultimately that the vote of the people in any individual county ought to be a partisan vote, as reflected on the members of the charter commission.

And with this, I think, despite all that might possibly happen, if it happens, and if our fears are well grounded and various things do happen, the people in the individual counties would ultimately be able to say we are electing a charter commission based on party ideology, and we are therefore ready to accept the consequences.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Brown of Wayne. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no. Mr. Brown, of Wayne.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I'm sorry, Mr. President. I request a recorded roll call vote, please.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Brown of Wayne demands the yeas and nays upon his amendment. Is the demand supported?

SECRETARY CHASE: There's a sufficient number.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The demand is supported. Judge Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: Will the secretary read the amendment once more, please?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The secretary will read again.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brown's amendment is:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment. All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted?

MR. MADAR: Point of information, Mr. President. I do want to ask for the vote of those who have not been excused for this afternoon's session, and I just want to know what procedure I've got to go through to get this. It is my contention that if anybody wants to go away in the afternoon session, they should get permission.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The rule of the convention upon this matter, Mr. Madar, is quite interesting. (laughter) It does not apparently permit anybody to demand anybody's vote. On the other hand, it carries the admonition and the requirement that: "No delegate shall be entitled to abstain from voting in any roll call unless he shall have stated his intention to abstain before the voting starts." But it doesn't say that anybody can demand his vote.

MR. MADAR: Okay.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—41

Austin	Garvin	McCauley
Balcer	Greene	McGowan, Miss
Barthwell	Hanna, W. F.	Murphy
Binkowski	Hart, Miss	Norris
Bledsoe	Hatcher, Mrs.	Perras
Brown, T. S.	Hood	Shanahan
Buback	Hoxie	Sharpe
Butler, Mrs.	Kelsey	Snyder
Dade	Lawrence	Suzore
Douglas	Leibrand	Walker
Downs	Leppien	Wilkowski
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Liberato	Young
Erickson	Madar	Youngblood
Ford	Marshall

Nays—80

Allen	Gover	Rajkovich
Andrus, Miss	Gust	Richards, J. B.
Batchelor	Hannah, J. A.	Richards, L. W.
Beaman	Haskill	Romney
Bentley	Hatch	Rood

Blandford	Heideman	Rush
Bonisteel	Higgs	Seyferth
Boothby	Howes	Shackleton
Brake	Hubbs	Shaffer
Brown, G. E.	Iverson	Sleder
Conklin, Mrs.	Judd, Mrs.	Spitler
Cushman, Mrs.	Karn	Stafseth
Danhof	King	Staiger
Dehnke	Kirk, S.	Stamm
DeVries	Knirk, B.	Sterrett
Donnelly, Miss	Koeze, Mrs.	Stevens
Doty, Dean	Krolikowski	Tubbs
Doty, Donald	Kuhn	Turner
Durst	Martin	Tweedie
Elliott, A. G.	McLogan	Upton
Everett	Millard	Van Dusen
Farnsworth	Mosier	Wanger
Faxon	Plank	White
Figy	Pollock	Wood
Finch	Powell	Woolfenden
Follo	Prettie	Yeager
Gadola	Pugsley

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Mr. Brown, the yeas are 41, the nays are 80.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Binkowski, on behalf of Mr. Pellow, offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, after the last line, by inserting a new paragraph to read as follows:

"Each county charter shall provide for the election of a county clerk, a county register of deeds, a county treasurer, a sheriff, and a prosecuting attorney, in accordance with the provisions of this constitution.".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, earlier this morning I thought that our distinguished delegate from the upper peninsula should have the opportunity of having his day in court. However, considering the mood of the convention at this particular time, it seems that perhaps we should move on. As someone has already commented, we are probably in the process of writing a stop watch constitution, so I think that "banzai" will have to give way to "la-la-la," and I hereby withdraw the amendment.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Binkowski withdraws the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no other amendments on the desk, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Committee proposal 89, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 89 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. Any county may frame, adopt, amend, or repeal a county charter in a manner and with powers and limitations to be provided by general law, which law may permit the organization of county government in forms different from the form set forth in this constitution. Subject to law, a county charter may authorize the county through its regularly constituted authority to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns.

No county charter shall be adopted, amended, repealed or revised until approved by a majority vote of county electors voting on the question.

The question of electing a charter commission may be placed on the ballot by a majority vote of the total membership of the board of supervisors and shall be placed thereon on receipt of a petition signed by 5 per cent of the registered voters of the county. The charter commission shall be elected by the county electors in accordance with the election laws.

The legislature shall by general law, for counties adopting home rule, limit the rate of general property taxation for municipal purposes, and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Each such county is hereby granted power to levy other taxes for public purposes subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or law.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from Oakland, Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I request of the convention unanimous consent to make a brief statement.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and you may proceed.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Thank you very much.

MR. MADAR: I'm objecting.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, 31 delegate hours ago—

MR. MADAR: I objected.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Objection is heard.

MR. WANGER: May we ask what the statement concerns, Mr. President?

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Yes. I intended to give a few kudos where they belong within my committee, including Mr. Madar. (laughter). I would like the privilege of doing this. I feel that it's in order, and I would like for Mr. Madar to withdraw his objection.

MR. MADAR: Point of personal privilege, Mr. President. I don't need any kudos for having done anything here. The people are paying me for doing my job here.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Does the gentleman object, Mr. Madar?

MR. MADAR: I will let him speak, even though he wouldn't let the rest of us speak on other matters.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Madar withdraws his objection.

MR. MADAR: I want that in the record, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Oh, it will be there. (laughter).

MR. MADAR: I mean my comment, Mr. President, that I will let him speak, even though we couldn't speak on matters of importance.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The house will be in order, please. The delegate from Oakland, Mr. Elliott, is recognized by unanimous consent.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I hope we haven't taken any of the edge off the remarks which I now intend to make. Thirty-one delegate hours ago we began the discussion of local government. Since that time we have been primarily involved in discussion while in the committee of the whole, which has allowed for free and full discussion and debate on every issue of local government.

We have now, at least, completed one of the steps along the way to introducing into the constitution of 1962 the language which will be entitled "Local Government."

As chairman of this committee, I would like to again, for the record, thank each and every one of you for your considered and careful deliberation of the items which have been before you. I think when you realize that as chairman I had felt that the subjects that we had to discuss might involve discussion of 7 hours of debate, and I find today, on Friday, at 20 minutes of 3:00, that they have involved 31 hours and 40 minutes, that you will all be assured that you have had an opportunity to see and to hear all sides of the question.

I would like to tell you why you have had before you and have just passed on to the committee on style and drafting what I consider one of the milestones of this convention in an article of local government which will do for the state of Michigan in the next many decades the job that the people of Michigan sent us here to do. I think the reason for this is because you have had a committee of 27 men and women dedicated to the proposition of resolving their differences. True, some of those committee members have felt compelled to make statements which were in opposition to the majority opinion here on the floor during the committee of the whole. This I'm proud that they did, because I feel that it is only proper that they should have the opportunity of expression here, and that each of you should know at least to some limited degree the problems as we met them within our own committee down in room A over the 4 months which have just previously passed.

I would like to also point out that with the exception of one or two areas which I shall not try to identify, almost every proposal that came to the floor was introduced to the floor by a unanimous vote — or if not a unanimous vote, at least it was substantially so. Therefore, it proves again that 27 men and women of various sections of this state and with varying political views, and with varying experiences in government, were in a position to listen carefully to the arguments on all sides of the question and arrive at conclusions that they felt were the best for all.

In these deliberations I have had the pleasure of working with 2 vice chairmen who have given me, as I have mentioned to you before, complete support and loyalty. No one could have had any 2 people who have supported the position of the chairman and have tried to move this committee in a deliberative and orderly manner than Mr. Buback and Mr. Figy. And to them we all owe a considered debt of gratitude.

Now, the remaining members of my committee each are entitled to a word of praise, because each of them in their own way made substantial contributions to the work that we did. And I have these here generally in alphabetical order, and not in order of their importance at all.

Mr. Allen served as a subcommittee chairman on metropolitan government and intergovernmental relations. He had on his committee men of rural background, as well as Mrs. Cushman, who had a metropolitan background. Together they forged language which I think will give to the metropolitan areas of our state and to all areas of our state an opportunity for future control of the problems as they arise within the framework of the local government as we now see it, and I am very grateful for the leadership which he gave us in that regard.

Mr. Baginski gave invaluable assistance in the area involving charitable institutions, and other areas that were so related, because his background was one that made it possible for him to bring to us information which otherwise we would have had difficulty in obtaining.

Mr. Batchelor, with his experience and his great familiarity with the problems of annexation, made us keenly aware of the problems that are presented to townships and to the cities in this particular area, and made other substantial contributions as he went along.

All of you know, of course, of Mr. Brake's history in government and the fact that he would be able to make a contribution to any one of the 9 or 10 substantive committees which we have in the convention — as I'm sure sure so would the other members of our committee. But to him I owe a particular debt of gratitude because he was able to take us out of the morass of indecision at times when the clarity of his point of view moved us in the direction of positive action.

Mrs. Cushman had a complete awareness of the problems of metropolitan areas. She served, as did Mr. Gover, on the subcommittee on eminent domain. She was untiring in her research, and the material which she furnished to us was certainly valuable in our work.

And along with her, of course, we had the able support of Mrs. Hatcher, who likewise recognized the problems of metropolitan government, and thus helped us meet those problems as we went through our activities.

Mr. Dell had a tremendous familiarity with the problems of rural communities, having served as a county official for many, many years. He, too, helped us in our deliberations.

Mr. Farnsworth was unique in that he had both a city view as well as a rural view, and he served as the coordinator on our committee of all delegate proposals, and eminently speeded the committee's actions.

Mr. Finch and Mr. Gover presented the township problem to us in a way that made it perfectly clear that there were needs there, as there were in every other form of local government. And their consistency in their approach to meeting those township problems — along with others; I'm not limiting it to these men alone — are certainly an indication of why our township sections came out as strongly as they did.

Mr. Follo, who happens to be of a different political faith than I, but whom I have found an eminently fine gentleman and one of strong character and standards, served as committee chairman on the miscellaneous items that were before our committee on annexation. He was consistently helpful in all fields of our deliberation, looking not to what was best for himself or his community, but to what was best for the state.

And I don't believe that we could have functioned nearly as well as we did if we hadn't had Mr. William Ford on the committee. He had a background of the highly urbanized township that was necessary to be expressed within our committee, and he expressed it most forcefully, and gave us an opportunity to become fully aware of those problems. His knowledge of the law as it applies to local government was helpful also.

Mrs. Judd served as chairman of the subcommittee on counties. This had the greatest number of sessions. She and her committee worked many long hours when all of us were home in our respective districts, completing their work so that we could have the proper deliberations.

Now, Mr. Madar also made a contribution, and I want you men and women of this convention to know that in my judgment there are things in this article on local government which would not have been there if it hadn't have been for Mr. Madar's assistance. (laughter) And that is not said in levity, but with great sincerity. I have never taken exception to a person who has a point of view and sticks with it until he finds that he is overwhelmed by the majority. Mr. Madar's position was made crystal clear in the committee, as he has made it crystal clear on the floor, and despite anything that anybody might think to the contrary, I am most grateful for what he has done in our committee, and the comments that he made during the 4 months he served with us.

Mr. John McCauley, who is a former mayor of Wyandotte, served as chairman of the committee on cities and villages, and his committee has made a significant breakthrough, I believe, in the area of city government, for which all of the people of our state who live in cities and villages should be most grateful.

Ed McLogan has a big job ahead of him. He is chairman of reports to the legislature. He has served most ably on the committee for counties, and I'm sure became Mrs. Judd's right arm in this particular area.

Mr. Radka served as committee chairman on townships, and he helped, along with the other men that I have mentioned, in formulating and strengthening the provisions of township government.

Now, I'm nearly through, but let me just take a moment and have your attention, please, because I think these people each need to be singled out.

J. Burton Richards and Les Richards were 2 of our more quiet members on the committee. They were content to listen and to meditate, but when they did speak, they made a positive contribution to the efforts within which we were engaged, and they contributed equally as well, although the committee records will not show that they may have spoken quite as often as some of the others.

Mr. Sharpe could have been identified as having supported many different positions with the committee. I only point out that the language that we now have in the constitution in regards to the problems of dams and streams and so forth are a direct responsibility of his concern for this particular matter and making the committee aware of the problems.

Mr. Sleder, of Traverse City, served as chairman of the public utilities committee, and I am sure that you all recognize that we have made substantial changes there, and that the people of our state will have an opportunity to speak in those areas where before it was not granted them, for sure.

Mr. Suzore is the clerk of Lincoln Park, and he brought to the committee much experience as a result of that service and other service within the communities in that particular section of our state.

Now, I would like to speak a moment about Jim Thomson, because, unfortunately, during the time that we were in our greatest deliberations Mr. Thomson was home ill. But, at the very beginning of the convention, when he was able to be with us, his background in county government was most helpful to each and every one of us. And I'm only sorry, Jim, if you're here in the room today, that you were not able to be present at all of our deliberations; because I'm sure that we would have come to a speedier conclusion on some of the points that we discussed if we had had you with us.

Finally, and last — and I'm grateful to each of you for your consideration in giving me this time — I would like to speak about another member of our committee who was one of our quiet members, Mr. Tweedie. I would just like to say that he, too, made his contributions quietly, but when he made them he made them with force.

Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I want to tell you that it's been a real thrill and experience for me to have served you these 4 months in these particular deliberations. I could not have done it, and the actions that you have taken here could not have taken place, if it hadn't been for the help of the 26 members that served on this committee with me. I thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from Oakland, Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President, I rise to ask that the remarks not be printed in the daily journal. I say this with no malice or anything toward Mr. Elliott. But with the convention costs as they are of roughtly $2400 per session hour, 11 minutes would come to roughly $440, and I think it is unnecessary to expend any more of the taxpayers' money. And although I think this is very nice and very good, and I think Mr. Elliott deserves a lot of kudos for his fine performance, I don't think we ought to spend any more of the taxpayers' money.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Walker, the Chair advises the gentleman that neither the remarks of Mr. Elliott nor the remarks of Mr. Walker will appear in the daily action journal. They will appear in the verbatim journal.

Pursuant to order previously made, the convention will now return to the order of reports from standing committees; and the Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move that Resolution 70 and the amendments thereto be passed over until Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the motion, all those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion prevails, and it is so ordered.

The gentleman from the twenty-first district, Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I just want to make a few brief remarks. I want to compliment the distinguished chairman of the local government committee for the wonderful remarks that he made. Knowing Art as I do, and having a lot of respect for him and his ability, both in business and politically, I realize that he was serious and earnest when he made these remarks.

I don't want this remark that I'm going to make now to be taken too seriously, however. Now that he has buried me under home rule, and the other Democrats on the committee, being the strong and stalwart gentleman that he is, and believing strongly in his political faith, I think he must believe in the old adage that the only good Democrat is a dead one, so now he eulogizes us. (laughter) With that, I will relinquish the floor. I will go home tonight, where there is true home rule. (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The next order of business is general orders of the day. The Chair recognizes the delegate from Ionia, Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of the committee proposals on general orders.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion made by the delegate from Ionia, Mr. Powell. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion prevails. The delegate from Ionia, Mr. Powell, will preside.

[Whereupon, Mr. Powell assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The committee will be in order for the consideration of committee proposals under the item of general orders. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Page 2 of the calendar, Item 1, from the committee on education, by Mr. Bentley, chairman, Committee Proposal 98, A proposal pertaining to the educational institutions of the state. Replaces sections 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 10 and 16 of article XI.

Following is Committee Proposal 98 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. THE LEGISLATURE SHALL APPROPRIATE FUNDS TO MAINTAIN THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN, MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY, WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY, EASTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY, CENTRAL MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY, WESTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY, NORTHERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY, MICHIGAN COLLEGE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY, FERRIS INSTITUTE, GRAND VALLEY STATE COLLEGE, AND OTHER EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION ESTABLISHED BY LAW. THE LEGISLATURE SHALL BE GIVEN AN ANNUAL ACCOUNTING OF ALL INCOME AND ALL EXPENDITURES BY EACH OF THESE EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

Sec. b. THE REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN AND THEIR SUCCESSORS IN OFFICE SHALL CONSTITUTE A BODY CORPORATE KNOWN AS THE REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN; THE TRUSTEES OF MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY OF AGRICULTURE AND APPLIED SCIENCE AND THEIR SUCCESSORS IN OFFICE SHALL CONSTITUTE A BODY CORPORATE KNOWN AS THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY OF AGRICULTURE AND APPLIED SCIENCE; THE GOVERNORS OF WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY AND THEIR SUCCESSORS IN OFFICE SHALL CONSTITUTE A BODY CORPORATE KNOWN AS THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS OF WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY. THE RESPECTIVE BOARDS SHALL HAVE THE GENERAL SUPERVISION OF THEIR RESPECTIVE INSTITUTIONS AND THE CONTROL AND DIRECTION OF ALL EXPENDITURES FROM THE INSTITUTION'S FUNDS; THEY SHALL, AS OFTEN AS NECESSARY, ELECT A PRESIDENT OF THE INSTITUTION UNDER THEIR RESPECTIVE SUPERVISION WHO SHALL BE THE PRINCIPAL OFFICER OF THE INSTITUTION, BE AN EX OFFICIO MEMBER OF THE BOARD BUT WITHOUT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, AND PRESIDE AT MEETINGS OF THE BOARD. THE BOARDS OF EACH INSTITUTION SHALL CONSIST OF 8 MEMBERS WHO SHALL HOLD OFFICE FOR 8 YEARS AND WHO SHALL BE ELECTED ACCORDING TO LAW. VACANCIES SHALL BE FILLED ACCORDING TO LAW.

Sec. c. OTHER INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION CREATED BY THE LEGISLATURE HAVING AUTHORITY TO GRANT BACCALAUREATE DEGREES SHALL EACH BE GOVERNED BY A BOARD OF CONTROL WHICH SHALL BE A BODY CORPORATE; SHALL HAVE GENERAL SUPERVISION OF THE INSTITUTION AND THE CONTROL AND DIRECTION OF

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

ALL EXPENDITURES FROM THE INSTITUTION'S FUNDS; SHALL, AS OFTEN AS NECESSARY, ELECT A PRESIDENT OF THE INSTITUTION UNDER ITS SUPERVISION WHO SHALL BE THE PRINCIPAL EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE INSTITUTION, BE AN EX OFFICIO MEMBER OF THE BOARD BUT WITHOUT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, AND PRESIDE AT MEETINGS OF THE BOARD. EACH BOARD OF CONTROL SHALL CONSIST OF 8 MEMBERS WHO SHALL HOLD OFFICE FOR 8 YEARS AND WHO SHALL BE APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR IN A MANNER SIMILAR TO OTHER EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS AS PROVIDED IN THIS CONSTITUTION. VACANCIES SHALL BE FILLED IN LIKE MANNER.

Sec. d. THE LEGISLATURE SHALL PROVIDE BY LAW FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT OF PUBLIC COMMUNITY AND JUNIOR COLLEGES, WHICH SHALL BE OPERATED BY LOCALLY ELECTED BOARDS. THE LEGISLATURE SHALL PROVIDE BY LAW FOR A STATE BOARD FOR PUBLIC COMMUNITY AND JUNIOR COLLEGES, WHICH SHALL ADVISE THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION CONCERNING GENERAL SUPERVISION, PLANNING FOR SUCH COLLEGES AND REQUESTS FOR ANNUAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR THEIR SUPPORT. THE BOARD SHALL CONSIST OF 8 MEMBERS WHO SHALL HOLD OFFICE FOR 8 YEARS AND WHO SHALL BE APPOINTED BY THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION. VACANCIES SHALL BE FILLED IN LIKE MANNER. THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION WILL BE AN EX OFFICIO MEMBER OF THIS BOARD WITHOUT THE RIGHT TO VOTE.

Mr. Bentley, chairman of the committee on education, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 98:

Sec. a. This section requires the legislature to appropriate funds to maintain all state supported institutions of higher education, including those presently having constitutional status. Other institutions are specifically mentioned by name in this constitution for the first time. Northern Michigan College becomes Northern Michigan University and Michigan College of Mining and Technology has its name changed to Michigan College of Science and Technology. There was some sentiment within this committee for omitting all specific reference to these institutions by name but the majority opinion was that to provide adequate constitutional and legal protection as well as for reasons of prestige, they should be referred to by specific title. All of the state supported institutions are required to give an annual accounting to the legislature of all income and all expenditures.

Sec. b. This section replaces sections 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 10 and 16 of the present constitution and combines them into one section. The governing boards of the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University are placed on an equal basis so far as the supervision of their respective institutions and the control and direction of all expenditures from the institution's funds are concerned. There is a provision in each case for their choosing a president of the institution as is now the case with them. All 3 boards are to be equal in size, which enlarges those of Michigan State University and Wayne State University from 6 to 8 members. Such members are all to be elected for 8 year terms according to law and any vacancies in these boards are likewise to be filled by law. This section reaffirms the constitutional status of the 3 major state institutions and places them on an exactly equal footing with respect to their governing boards, presidents, etc. It was approved unanimously by the committee.

Sec. c. This section confers constitutional status on all other institutions of higher education which are now in existence or which may hereafter be established. The provisions relative to their boards of control, presidents, etc., are similar to the provisions for the 3 institutions named in Sec. b. Members of these boards of control, however, are to be appointed by the governor in a manner similar to other executive appointments as provided in this constitution.

Sec. d. This section requires the legislature to provide by law for the establishment and financial support of public community and junior colleges to be operated by locally elected boards of control. A majority of this committee wished to have included in the constitution reference to a separate state board for the purpose of providing special emphasis to this rapidly growing segment of our educational system. The recommendation is in line with the John Dale Russell report, Higher Education in Michigan. To quote Russell:

> It is coming to be recognized that the community or junior college is something different from the other units of the public school system. It is not just a glorified high school, neither is it just an inferior or downgraded college. It has a distinct and unique place of its own in the public school system. As such — it deserves the kind of supervision at the state level that can best be furnished by an agency which does not have its main focus of attention on the elementary and secondary schools.

It should be emphasized that the creation of this special board does not violate the concept of unity and coordination which we have attempted to establish through a new and enlarged state board of education. Rather, the board is essentially advisory to the state board of education, operating within the total framework of the board. It would not cause the creation of a different office of education. Placing the superintendent of public instruction as ex officio member on this board will further assure that all of the facilities and staff of the superintendent of public instruction will be available to the board to assist them administratively and clerically.

Of course, the committee realizes that the state board of education has power and authority to appoint advisory groups when needed. It is expected that the board will appoint committees of outstanding citizens from time to time which would advise it in planning and coordinating any of the areas of education.

Following is the minority report to Committee Proposal 98 as offered and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Messrs. Faxon, T. S. Brown, Kuhn and Mrs. Conklin, a minority of the committee on education, submit the following minority report to Committee Proposal 98:

A minority of the committee recommends that the following be excluded from the constitution:

Committee Proposal 98, page 3, line 2, delete from "The legislature . . ." through rest of section.

Messrs. Faxon, T. S. Brown, Kuhn and Mrs. Conklin, a minority of the committee on education, submit the following reasons in support of the foregoing minority report, which accompanied Committee Proposal 98:

The minority members of this committee first wish to call the attention of the delegates to the first action which this committee took regarding junior colleges. On Friday, January 26, the majority of the members voted in favor of the language which is now being offered as the minority report. It is for this reason that we are using the supporting language which the chairman of our committee originally prepared to deal with this section under discussion.

We believe that the statement made by our chairman on this subject states adequately the feelings that were then expressed in the committee and we wish to support these statements at this time.

Delegate Bentley, chairman of the committee on education, prepared the following report in support of our substitute proposal:

This section requires the legislature to provide by law for the establishment and financial support of public community or junior colleges to be operated by locally elected boards of control. A strong minority of this committee wished to have included in the constitution reference to a separate state board for the purpose of supervising these colleges to provide the legislature with annual reports on their operations, to request annual appropriations for their support and to allocate among them all funds appropriated. The majority of this committee, however, decided that it was unnecessary to create a separate board for such purposes, believing that an enlarged state board of education could and should adequately perform such functions. However, the committee realized the growing importance of these institutions in the field of higher education. There are now 17 community colleges in Michigan and it is anticipated that this number may expand to 30 or 40 within the next several years. At that time their enrollmment may well exceed that of the total number of all state educational institutions who have constitutional status. The committee, therefore, decided to recommend to the state board of education that it either include overall supervision of these colleges among its own functions or, preferably, request the legislature to create by statute a separate coordinating community college board for such purposes. The committee also decided to encourage coordination and cooperation among the community and junior colleges on a voluntary basis, perhaps by some organization such as now exists among the other state supported institutions of higher education (council of state college presidents).

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

In further consideration of reasons other than those already mentioned dealing with this problem, we have only to look at the language under consideration. The state board of education has within its powers the authority to create any such boards as it may deem necessary in order for it to carry out its functions adequately. This is implicit in the language dealing with the state board of education. The language establishing the state board of education is as follows:

> There shall be established a state board of education which shall provide leadership and supervision over public education including adult education and instructional programs in state institutions other than colleges and universities. In addition, it shall serve as the general planning and coordinating body for all public education in the state and shall provide advice to the legislature and to the people as to the amount of state support required.

It can be observed that in this language establishing the state board of education, that junior and community colleges are included. In order to maintain consistency here, it is our feeling that the total problems and the total view of education should rest with the state board of education and not constitutionally assigned to another board. This is not only in keeping with sound administrative policy, but is also in keeping with recommendations made by the present superintendent of public instruction.

It might further be observed that the entire section dealing with junior colleges might not be included in the constitution at all and that they would still come under the state board of education. It is our feeling that a recognition of the junior and community colleges is necessary since the committee has recognized so many other important areas of education.

The statement which we recommend satisfies 2 of the important requests made to our committee by the junior colleges themselves, the first of these being that "the legislature shall provide by law for the establishment and financial support for public and junior colleges" and the second being that these colleges be operated by locally elected boards. Certainly no member of the committee can be accused of not showing concern for junior colleges in proposing and adopting this language.

We furthermore feel that the creation of a constitutional board to advise another board is unprecedented in Michigan constitutional history and probably equally unprecedented in American constitutional history. It is our feeling that this is not a constitutional matter. It presently is found within the scope of the state board of education. It is implicit within the powers of the proposed state board of education so that the addition of any language establishing a board would only serve to create confusion and dissension within educational ranks.

The whole purpose to the establishment of a state board of education as has been unanimously proposed by this committee was to give to education a single board that could look at educations' entire needs. To constitutionally establish a board for junior colleges is, in our opinion, demonstrating lack of faith not only in the legislature, but also in the ability of the state board of education to administer this department adequately.

In summation, we may observe the following:

1. The establishment of a state board with specific functions to advise is not a constitutional subject of concern.

2. Recommendations for the establishment of such a board are to be found in Chairman Bentley's supporting statements for this proposal.

3. This proposal meets the need of recognition of the importance of junior and community colleges without setting up another faction of state educational administration.

4. The power to handle this subject has already been delegated to the state board of education. Therefore, it would seem best to leave it to their discretion as to how they might best perform their duties.

5. It is our feeling that the constitution should have within it flexibility and that locally elected boards controlling junior and community colleges should be free to enter into any type of association which might meet their needs. A proscription into the constitution of a specific board for this purpose is to deny to these people their free rights as American citizens.

[Section a was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1135.]

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, we now begin our consideration of the final proposals from the committee on education. The first proposal, 98, which the committee of the whole has before it, is that one dealing with higher education. I would state frankly that it would be my hope that we can finish action on this proposal this afternoon. If the quantity as well as the quality of the debate does not so permit, we will of course move that the committee rise at a reasonable hour.

With respect to the first 3 of the 4 sections of the particular proposal, the first section being the one the secretary has already read, there were differences of opinion within the committee, and I understand there may be amendments offered; but the final action of the committee with respect to these first 3 sections was unanimous on the final vote. On section d, the fourth section, there is a pending minority report, signed by a bipartisan group of 4 members of the committee, which will be offered, of course, when that particular section is reached.

At this time, Mr. Chairman, before proceeding any further, I would like to make one brief statement to the distinguished gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Marshall, who referred to me earlier with regard to the idea of yielding.

I wish to assure the gentleman that although I am retaining the floor at the present time for the purpose of yielding briefly to other members of the committee, to make further explanations with regard to this first section, and then yielding for questions, it is not my intention — and I'm sure the intention of no other member of the committee on education — to retain the floor unduly, or to terminate debate, and I can assure the gentleman that if he has any remarks of his own on this part or any other part of the education proposals, I would be happy to assure him that he will have ample time to do it.

I will yield to you for comments, if you desire.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman, I accept the explanation of my distinguished colleague from Owosso, with no comment whatsoever.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, the first paragraph which the secretary has read on the section of higher education deals with the constitutional status of the 10 state supported institutions of higher education which are specifically referred to herein. For a further explanation of this particular section, I yield to the gentleman from Ann Arbor, the chairman of the subcommittee on higher education, Mr. Bonisteel.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes Delegate Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. Chairman, Chairman Bentley and fellow delegates, I don't think there is too much to be said about section a, which has been read by the secretary. But in order that you might be fully informed, I am going to cite to you that page 475 of the journal contains the language which has just been read by the secretary, and also the other sections which have been described by Chairman Bentley.

The only comment that I care to make at this time on section a would be this: that under the provisions of section a, it requires of these educational institutions that the legislature shall be given an annual accounting of all income and all expenditures by each of these educational institutions. And, if my memory serves me correctly, this is the language which was used by the legislature when it created Wayne State University, and it is the legislative language pertaining to Wayne State University insofar as the accounting is concerned, and the committee unanimously adopted that language.

I think, Mr. Chairman, that that's all I care to say on this section. I would hope that it would be passed. Because I can't see anything in there which would indicate any reason why it should not be.

As to the specific naming of these educational institutions, by tradition they deserve perpetuation, I believe, in the constitution. In addition to that, I would say those people who have contributed so greatly to the establishment of Grand Valley State College, they too should be given a place in the sun, if that's the way we wish to look at it — and that's the way I do look at it.

I would suggest, Mr. Chairman, that this be adopted without further comment, if it's the desire of the delegates.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I think I should point out, in addition to the remarks of the gentleman from Ann Arbor, that at the request of 2 of the institutions named herein, we have changed their name. The institution at Marquette, Northern Michigan, has been named herein as Northern Michigan University; and the institution at Houghton, the Michigan College of Science and Technology, was designated by that name at the request of the president and the governing board of that particular institution.

Mr. Chairman, I am sure that Mr. Bonisteel and I would be happy to answer any questions with respect to this paragraph. I understand there is a pending amendment at the desk. After answering questions, we will be happy to yield the floor to the offerer of the amendment, for the purpose of offering it.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Does Mr. Bentley yield to the gentleman from Grand Rapids?

MR. BENTLEY: I will.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Bentley, Mr. Chairman, section a provides in the last sentence, "The legislature shall be given an annual accounting of all income and all expenditures by each of these educational institutions." It provides further over in section b that the control and direction of all expenditures from the institutions' funds shall be in the respective boards.

I don't want to offer an amendment, but I did want to indicate that after some discussion with some members of the committee, I felt it would be desirable to offer to amend the proposal which we now have pending before the convention with respect to the legislative auditor, to provide that the legislative auditor, if he is approved, shall have the right and authority to make post audits — not pre audits in any sense of the word, or in any sense control of the actual process of expenditure, but post audits — of the financial and fiscal affairs of the institutions. I don't think there is any objection to this, and I only propose it because where the institutions have constitutional status of this sort, there can develop a question as to whether an official of another branch has the authority to make the sort of audits which the legislative auditor will be authorized to do.

I simply state this by way of explanation, hoping that there will be no objection from the committee to this procedure.

MR. BENTLEY: Well, Mr. Chairman, the procedure outlined by the chairman of the committee on executive branch is, so far as I know, satisfactory to the committee on education.

Mr. Chairman, I will be glad to yield to the delegate from Ludington, Mr. Plank.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Plank.

MR. PLANK: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Bentley, I'm wondering about the advisibility of naming those universities in this section. It seems to me that you might cover not only the ones that exist today, but the ones that might be brought in in the future — the next 50 years or so — if you include them in a phrase but not necessarily list them by their names.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I would suggest to the delegate from Ludington that he might wish to reserve his comment on this until the pending amendment at the desk is offered since it deals with this particular subject.

Mr. Chairman, before yielding the floor, if there are no further questions, I would like to make a unanimous consent request at this time. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that when the distinguished member of our committee, the gentleman from East Lansing, Dr. Hannah, speaks on this proposal, that he be permitted, if he so desires, to speak out of order and speak on either Committee Proposal 98 or Committee Proposal 47, since he will not be able to be with us next week, when we will be considering Committee Proposal 47 on the floor. I ask unanimous consent that when he does address the committee of the whole, that he be able to speak out of order in this fashion.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Is there objection to the request? If not, it is so ordered.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I will be glad to yield the floor to the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Faxon, for the purpose of offering an amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 7, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the line and all of lines 8 through 13 and "by law" in line 14 and inserting "The legislature shall appropriate funds to maintain those institutions of higher education established by law or in this constitution.".

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Faxon.

MR. FAXON: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, this is no great burning issue, but it is something which you ought to be able to realize is an alternative to the present committee report. I want it known I supported the present committee report, but this was brought up in the committee, and I was always very delighted when one of the other members of the committee here, Mr. Brake, would tell us about the alternatives that were available. And, in so doing, we at least know that there is an alternative here. Now, the alternative is, namely, whether we feel it is good constitutional practice to name the institutions.

In section b of this proposal we are naming the University of Michigan, Wayne State University and Michigan State University. The question here is, in writing a document that we hope will survive for many decades, and perhaps 50 to 100 years, whether the naming of institutions in some way may date the document, or whether we might better leave this to the matter of specification by the legislature in terms of the names, or not. I realize that in the committee when this came up it was a very close vote, 9 to 8, for leaving the present sentence. So I want at least the members of the committee of the whole here to be aware of the alternative, and to call to their attention certain items that were brought out with regard to the naming. In the old constitution it says:

> The legislature shall maintain the University, the College of Mines, the State Agricultural College, the State Normal College and such state normal schools and other educational institutions as may be established by law.

That of course was back in 1907 and '08. Today we know that the state normal colleges are now universities, the College of Mines is now a college of science and technology, and the State Agricultural College is now a major state university. So in the naming of the schools in the old constitution, we tend to look back at this section as showing what the passage of years does to this particular section.

Now, I would suggest this, and I just toss this out to you for your consideration, it's possible within the next 50 years that new colleges and universities may be established. It's possible that present institutions which are named as colleges may become universities. Is it advisable, realizing the way technology and time changes, to name these institutions and thus, when later colleges or institutions are established, to have them feel that they, too, would want to get into the constitution and get their name in it? Or would we be better off leaving the 3 large institutions named as in section b, and leaving the rest to the establishment of the name by law, and leave it out of the constitution?

This is mainly the question. It just deals with the first sentence. It is no burning issue. They are still provided with their status. The universities themselves have said that they don't mind whether it is in or out; but they were concerned with having their status as constitutional universities. So I simply propose this to the members of the committee for their consideration.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, in reply to the gentleman from Detroit, I would say that his remarks were substantially correct, with the exception of the last. That was when he said the universities did not mind whether they were specifically named or not. I think I can assure the members of the committee of the whole that the testimony we had from the representatives of the other 7 institutions of higher education indicated they were unanimous in that they wanted to be named in the constitution, for a variety of reasons.

The question of prestige, as the committee on education stated in its accompanying report, was of course present, but there were also important constitutional and legal arguments for specifically naming each of these institutions in the constitutions. And I would like either the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Mr. Bonisteel, or the gentleman from Mount Pleasant, Dr. Anspach, to comment on the constitutional and legal protection that specific reference to these institutions affords them.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes Delegate Anspach, of Mount Pleasant.

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I am willing to defer to Mr. Bonisteel, because he is an attorney. It has been said many times on this floor by various delegates that they were not attorneys. I am not an attorney either. But in discussing this matter with several legal authorities, including Mr. Bonisteel, he thinks there is merit in retaining the names in the constitution, from the standpoint of trusts and endowments and gifts which will come to an institution.

This has no bearing upon the constitution but is an illustration. Several years ago in our county a will was probated, leaving some thousands of dollars to the educational institution, but the institution was not named. After some legal procedure and some discussion with the heirs to the estate, it was finally determined by the court that the institution at Mt. Pleasant was the institution named. Now, I know, as I said when I started, this has nothing to do with the constitution particularly, except that it does bear on the point that when a definite name has been given, it does have some legal significance.

From the standpoint of prestige, I know that this perhaps is not a great argument. The one I just mentioned I think is valid, and legal authorities would have to determine whether it is or not. I can't. But I have been so advised. But, from the standpoint of prestige, I know we have an educational system in the state of Michigan which is the envy of many. I'm aware of the fact that many states do not name the institutions of higher education in the constitution. I remind you that Michigan goes back many years, and our educational system is significant.

The University of Michigan is one of the great universities of the world. It is named in the constitution, of course, because it is necessary in determining or specifying how the board of control shall be established. This is true in the cases of the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University, so they are mentioned. The others are not mentioned, as such.

Now, the fact that the University of Michigan has been named in the constitution, while this is not true in many other states, has created a point of envy on the part of those states which have educational institutions that are not so named. I was in another state a week ago and discovered that many of the people there looked with envy to the University of Michigan because of the prestige. There is something about this matter of constitutional mention that seems to give a bit of prestige. The University of Michigan, going way back to the very beginning, has it. I think we would like to be in the company of these individuals at the University of Michigan and others. This matter has been discussed by the various presidents of the colleges and the alumni, and they are very much interested in seeing, as a matter of pride, that their institution be mentioned.

However, all of this goes back to the point, number 1, of legal significance, which I think is a very important point. The other is a matter of feeling, and not a matter of law.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question before the committee is the Faxon amendment. Delegate Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, if there is any one matter that has been brought up to me during the time that I have been a delegate in my return trips home, it has been this matter of constitutional status; this matter of having these colleges — and, of course, up there, Michigan Tech and also Northern Michigan — mentioned in the constitution. The people up there take this very seriously. They are very much in favor of having these colleges named in the constitution; of gaining for these colleges constitutional status.

I would like to urge you to give this support.

As a matter of fact, Michigan Tech was, in effect, named in the Constitution of 1908. In article XI, section 10, it is called the College of Mines. Now, there is only one college of mines, the one at Houghton.

I'm in favor of having them all mentioned; I think without question they all desire this. The testimony has been to this effect. As a matter of fact, at the first of the hearings which we had in the upper peninsula, being in December, it was very obvious that this was a very important matter. I have a desk full of material pertaining to this very thing.

Now, if we were to delete the reference, for example, to the College of Mines, to use a specific example, we would actually be going backwards. Because it is mentioned as that in article XI, section 10.

So again I urge you to support this first section, which includes these institutions in the constitution by name.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: May the Chair comment that it has listed 3 delegates now: Delegates Plank, Wanger and Miss Hart, and sees 2 others rising. The Chair will recognize Delegate Plank.

MR. PLANK: I think I would like to ask a question of Dr. Anspach. It just doesn't seem to me like the reasons he gave are important enough to keep these words in the constitution. There must be something else — and if there is something else, I would like to know what it is. Otherwise I'm going to have to vote against it. Because it just doesn't seem to me that we ought to add those words in there unless there is a good reason for it.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Possibly these other speakers will bring out these points. If not, we will ask somebody for a definite answer. The Chair will recognize Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman —

MR. BENTLEY: Does the gentleman desire to have his question replied to either by Dr. Anspach or myself?

CHAIRMAN POWELL: He did not so specify, and the next person to speak is a very able attorney, so I passed by. I will, however, yield the floor to anyone desiring to make a direct answer to Mr. Plank, if there is such.

MR. PLANK: On the contrary, Mr. Chairman, I did ask Dr. Anspach this question.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair is sorry; The Chair didn't so construe it. Dr. Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Plank, as far as I'm concerned, I have given you the 2 reasons as I see them. The important one, as I stated when I closed my remarks, number 1, there may be some legal answers here. I can not answer from the standpoint of legal interpretations. From the standpoint of being mentioned, the second is merely a matter of feeling, that's all. So that's the only thing I had.

I'll say this, while I'm speaking. Sections b and c, as far as the constitution is concerned, are much more important than section a.

There is a feeling here, as has been pointed out by Mr. Heideman, and I think Mrs. Butler is asking for the floor, on the part of the institutions for being named in the constitution because there is a tradition for this, and as I said a while ago it may not be a valid reason, but it's a reason. There is a distinction which has grown up over the years since 1835, '36, that period, when the constitution provided for a university. The University of Michigan has been in over this period of years, and this tradition has grown, and there is a prestige that has gone with it. There is a sense of pride from the standpoint of institutions of higher education today. And there is a feeling on the part of the others that they would like to be in their company. That's the only answer I can give you. Plus the one from the standpoint of the legal aspects. Now, that may not be satisfactory to you, but it is satisfactory to me.

We feel the same way about this as you did, sir, about your television industry.

MR. PLANK: I'm glad you brought that up, because I'm going to offer an amendment on second reading to take out all reference to press, radio, and TV, because I don't think they have any place in the constitution. And that's why in this case I feel the same.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair will recognize Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, it is with the greatest of good will for these educational institutions that I speak in favor of the pending amendment. I have 5 comments to make in support of Mr. Faxon's amendment in this regard.

The first is that it is undoubtedly true that we're going to have many colleges in Michigan, in addition to those which we have at present, and if we list all of the present institutions in the constitution now, it is only right that as soon as those are created, that they be added; and that will in future years, with increasing enrollments, require many additional amendments to the constitution, and I think we ought to try to avoid that.

Secondly, I think by freezing these names into the constitution we are going to create another constitutional problem when those institutions and those who so rightly support them desire to change the name of the organization which they support. Ferris Institute, for example, may at some time desire, quite rightly, to change its name. Some of the other universities which are listed may find that in this very rapidly growing and changing world some other name will better express the meaning and purpose of the institution. And, therefore, additional amendments and the trouble which we know they entail will be required in order to accomplish what I think should rightly be left either to the institution itself or to the legislative enactment governing it.

The third comment which I would like to make is this: that I do not believe that specifically naming these institutions in this section gives them any substantial additional constitutional protection over what Mr. Faxon's amendment would give them. Because, obviously, they would clearly be institutions of higher education under his amendment. It has been suggested, however, that there is sometimes difficulty in the area of the law of trusts caused by the fact that the institution is not named accurately in the will which leaves a testamentary trust. This may at some times be a problem, but I suggest that merely by putting the name in the constitution of the state is not in most cases going to solve this particular problem. Because the name in any case should be widely known to the supporters of the institution, and should be available in the statutes.

My fourth comment is this: it has been stated that many people wish to have all of the institutions of higher education named in the constitution, and that they desire this. Well, I do not believe that the people who are connected with these organizations will base their judgment of the constitution on this issue — on whether or not their names are included in the document.

Finally, I would like to in part echo Mr. Plank's remarks with regard to the question of prestige. I think when we talked about this subject in connection with radio and television media, we used the word "recognition," and actually in a greater or lesser sense the 2 words mean the same thing. I don't think that these educational institutions need to be mentioned in the constitution to preserve or further the great prestige which they have already throughout this state. And I think that the technical difficulties and other difficulties which would be caused by including them would outweigh any imagined additional prestige throughout the citizenry which putting them into the constitution might create.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the lady from Detroit, Delegate Hart.

MISS HART: Mr. Chairman, when I came to this convention I determined to try to distinguish between shooting at mice and shooting at elephants. It seems to me that at this particular moment we are shooting at mice. The history of education in the state of Michigan is a proud one. It seems to me that if these institutions that have lived so long in this state are eager to be named in the constitution, we really have no good reason for not sparing them a paragraph.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair now recognizes Mrs. Butler.

MRS. BUTLER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I rise to support Mr. Heideman's remarks about Michigan College of Science and Technology. This school started out as a mining school, and for many years it had "mining" in its name. At this time it is a misnomer, and our people at the college feel that many students who would enroll in Michigan Tech are misled by the "mining" because it's a very small department now — the smallest.

Michigan Tech is today one of the largest technical schools in the state, and we see no reason why it cannot have constitutional status. It is a school of great dignity, and a school that has served the area and the state and the nation for a long time, and I hope that the delegates will see fit to name Michigan College of Science and Technology in the constitution.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: A few moments ago the committee, by unanimous consent, gave priority to Delegate John Hannah, and the Chair sees he now desires recognition. The Chair recognizes Delegate John Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I don't want to belabor this point, but I would like to speak briefly as chairman of the council of state college presidents, which is the organization that includes all of these institutions that you are talking about. I would be doing less than I should as their chairman if I didn't reiterate the points that have been made by Mr. Bonisteel, Mr. Bentley and Mr. Anspach; that this may seem trivial to some of you, but it's very important to them.

Reference has already been made to the distinguished record of the University of Michigan, one of the great universities of the world, and no small part in making it possible for the University of Michigan to be what it is was the fact that it was given constitutional status in the first constitution, and that its board of control was a constitutional corporation, co-equal with the legislature. The founding fathers way back in the early days of this state determined that partisan politics and universities and colleges should be separated as widely as possible. And that isn't the issue in this section.

In 1850 it was the constitution that created the institution that I have the honor to preside over. It was the Constitution of 1850 that provided that at the earliest practical moment that institution should be created, and its definition was provided for.

Now, these other institutions have been named in various ways, as have been indicated: the College of Mines, the State Normal College, and other normal colleges. If Mr. Plank or Mr. Faxon or Mr. Wanger are concerned because we are taking too much space in the constitution, if they will compare the total number of words in the document that is before you with the total number of words in the present constitution, they will find that by combining the descriptive words for the University of Michigan, Michigan State and Wayne State dealing with all 3 of them in single paragraphs, the total will be shorter.

It means much to these institutions. And, gentlemen, I think there is no reasoning on the other side that is equal to the importance that this has in their eyes.

I can't believe that Mr. Faxon is very serious about his feeling. I can't believe Mr. Wanger is. I just think there are so many more important things for us to take our time with that I hope you will approve the committee report as it is before you.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair is going to grant another delegate recognition out of order. The Chair thinks he has a smile on his face. Delegate Leslie Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: I was going to ask, Mr. Chairman, for a point of personal privilege. The explanation was made as to how you classify under that, and I think today I have the right classification to make these comments. You may have noticed that a page walked in here just now and he was carrying a cake with 16 candles on that cake.

We do realize that as we sit here as a group, oftentimes our feelings do get a little disturbed and we have a little animosity toward each other. But also we recognize the fact that after we do leave this convention the friendships and fellowship we have for one another will be greatly appreciated, and there are occasions I think that in our lifetime we value very, very highly.

Today one of our very fine delegates whom I have become acquainted with and whom I respect very highly — and I think you will all agree with me — is celebrating her birthday, Miss Marjorie McGowan. (applause).

[Delegates joined in singing "Happy Birthday" to Miss McGowan.]

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate McGowan.

MISS McGOWAN: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm very grateful to you for your kindness, and thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Bentley, did you seek recognition?

MR. BENTLEY: Merely to reemphasize and reecho what has already been said by the committee of the whole on this subject by such distinquished speakers as Dr. Hannah, Dr. Anspach, Miss Hart, Mr. Heideman, Mrs. Butler, and the others who have been moved to speak in support of the committee proposal.

I ask for the defeat of the pending amendment.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: A while ago the Chair thought possibly Delegate Everett wished to speak. Do you now?

MR. EVERETT: Mr. Chairman, I want to rise to support Mr. Faxon's amendment. I'm not without pride for our colleges. I attended Michigan State. I have a son who is attending Michigan Tech.

I do think there might be some possible fault, however, if we name these, and I think Mr. Heideman has illustrated it. Back in the Constitution of 1908 this was the College of Mining. Now it is not. We propose to put another name on it, and possibly that name will change. I don't think this is a serious difficulty, but I think maybe in yielding to local pride we may have saddled some of these schools with names which will change when the constitution won't change, and I think Mr. Faxon's suggestion is a better one.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: I've been rushing around, and didn't hear all the debate, except on the loudspeaker. I would like to add this, however. Of course, I'm very interested in Eastern Michigan University. I recall that during the depression, when funds were scarce, when teachers were looking for work, and the enrollment was falling off, there was a lot of discussion about the possibility of closing then the Michigan State Normal College, now Eastern Michigan University.

And, if my memory serves me right, the discussion about closing it stopped when they found out that the constitution provided for that institution. Since that time, of course, the wisdom of keeping it open has been amply demonstrated.

But there was a real possibility at that time that Michigan State Normal would have been closed by the action of the legislature had it not been in the constitution. Coming from Ypsilanti and having attended the school, I urge you to keep its name in the constitution.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the lady from Highland Park, Delegate Ann Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I would simply like to state that in my opinion it is not the inclusion in this constitution that has made the universities which we have discussed great. They did this in spite of this. I believe they will continue to do so. I believe that the statement that the inclusion of these names will aid them legally is obviously incorrect. Michigan College of Mines would have inherited whatever it got under whichever name Mr. Heideman called it, or Mrs. Butler called it, for it was named years ago, and reached its greatness under that term.

This inclusion to me is unnecessary. Under the argument, these great colleges and universities exist, and we have also put in a brand new one. We don't know if it is going to be great or not. We certainly hope so, but these words will not do it. I support Mr. Faxon's amendment.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Iverson.

MR. IVERSON: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if I might ask the chairman of the committee a question. I wonder if the committee gave any thought to some language which might permit the change of the name of a university already mentioned in the constitution without the necessity of changing the constitution itself?

MR. BENTLEY: In reply to the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Chairman, I might say that the committee did consider this possibility, but was unable to resolve satisfactorily any constitutional language which would so permit a change.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Mr. Bonisteel, did you desire to answer that question?

MR. BONISTEEL: Yes. I started to answer it because, Mr. Chairman, Chairman Bentley probably will remember that I had discussed with him the question a day or two ago of a potential amendment which we might wish to introduce — we are not sure yet. It is not only in connection with this, but it is in connection with some other items which have been suggested to the committee.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Wanger has been seeking recognition. Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: I have just 2 brief points, Mr. Chairman. The first is this: the university in East Lansing, now Michigan State University, and the University of Michigan, as well, did not become great because their names were mentioned in the constitution, but rather because they were given powers and immunity in the constitution. That's a great difference. Under Mr. Faxon's amendment the powers and immunities given by this constitution to these educational institutions are preserved. It is only their names which are specifically left out.

Now, my second comment is more in the nature of a question, and it is this: do I understand correctly from the debate that the names of these universities or institutes as they are listed in section a are not in every case the same names which those institutions have at the present time? In other words, is there a change of a name of any institution which is incorporated into section a?

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield for a reply, that is correct. As I pointed out, we have made at the request of the 2 institutions concerned the changes in the names of the institutions at Marquette and Houghton.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: There are 2 or 3 things going through the Chair's mind right now. May the Chair say them casually, and then we will proceed. One is that Delegate Mrs. Butler is standing, desiring recognition, and I imagine she will not speak very long. Another thing that is going through my mind is that the hour has arrived when, normally, in an average day we would take a recess. But today we got started late, and it's Friday afternoon, so unless there's a request, I am not assuming that we'll have a recess.

The next thing on my mind is that, as we all know, Dr. Hannah will not be with us next week, and we gave him permission to speak not only on this proposal, but on a later proposal from the committee on education. And I think before too long we should hear him, because I see we are continually losing delegates here. They are picking up their dolls and departing, and so on.

May I call on Delegate Mrs. Butler.

MRS. BUTLER: It won't take me but a minute. I just wanted to say that not only the board of control and the faculty at Michigan Tech, but a large number of the alumni have requested this change in constitutional status. We in the upper peninsula are very anxious for it, and feel that our college deserves it.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Theodore Brown, do you wish recognition?

MR. T. S. BROWN: Yes, sir. As a member of the education committee, I thought perhaps at this juncture we could synopsize what has gone on to date. Actually, in law, there is no reason for the maintenance of the names as the committee report would indicate, because, as has already been mentioned, those powers from whence the universities derive their protection are enumerated in the Faxon amendment. It's simply a question of nostaliga. Our committee is rather nostalgic, as opposed to some other committees, and perhaps this was their predisposition.

It reminds me of the comment that I made during the debate on this matter, in which I said: "if you had 2 statements: (1) President Nisbet, Ted Brown and other delegates will receive a paycheck on the thirtieth of this month; and (2) President Nisbet and other delegates will receive a paycheck on the thirtieth of this month; and you asked me which statement I preferred, I would naturally say I preferred the first one. I think the matter is just about that simple.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair is wondering if we have exhausted the argument. Are we ready to vote on this? The question is on the Faxon amendment. You are all clear on the content of it. As many as are in favor of it signify by saying aye. Opposed, say no.

The amendment is not adopted.

MR. HODGES: Division.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: There is a request for a division. Is the demand for a division supported? It is. Those in favor of the Faxon amendment vote aye. Those opposed, vote no. Has everyone now voted that desires to vote? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Faxon, the yeas are 24, and the nays are 68.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The amendment is not adopted.

In harmony with our action taken earlier in the afternoon, the Chair is going to call on Delegate John Hannah for any remarks that he might have relative to this or other proposals.

The Chair will recognize Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I was going to suggest — and this is entirely at the discretion of Dr. Hannah, of course — that I think it would be more appropriate if he should speak after we have read section b of the proposal, which specifically refers to the institution which he so ably heads.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Is that agreeable, Dr. Hannah?

Then if there are no further amendments, this section will pass.

Section a is passed. The secretary will proceed with the reading of section b.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section b.

[Section b was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1135.]

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, in section b, in which we have combined the existing sections of the present constitution into one section relating specifically to those institutions sometimes known as the "big 3," the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University, we have only made 2 noteworthy changes from the present constitutional language. We have enlarged the governing boards of Michigan State University and Wayne State University from 6 to 8 members, and given them 8 year terms, to correspond with the number of the regents of the University of Michigan. We have secondly provided that any vacancies in those governing boards shall be filled by law, instead of, as now, by gubernatorial appointment.

At this time, Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to the delegate from Ann Arbor, Mr. Bonisteel, who has 3 minor amendments to offer to this particular section. I would ask that they be read and considered en bloc, and then I think it would be appropriate at this time, as I said earlier, to hear from the delegate from East Lansing, Dr. Hannah.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes Delegate Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. Chairman, if you will note, on page 1, line 20, after the words "Michigan State University," striking out the words "of Agriculture and Applied Science." That's on page 1, line 20. On page 2, line 1, after the words "Michigan State University," by striking out the words "of Agriculture and Applied Science." Then, on page 2, line 9, through some mistake, after the word "principal," the word "executive" was left out, and the word "executive" should be in. In other words, the committee is suggesting that section b be amended as stated.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bonisteel offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 20, after "University" by striking out "of Agriculture and Applied Science"; and page 2, line 1, by striking out "of Agriculture and Applied Science"; and in line 9, after "principal" by inserting "executive".

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is on the amendment. Dr. Hannah has been recognized.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I appreciate the great courtesy of the committee, and I'm afraid that you have been misled, because I have no speech to make at this time. I would like to speak in favor of this section, and then take the opportunity to speak very briefly on the state board of education that you are going to have before you on Monday when you consider Committee Proposal 47.

Now, the proposal that is now before you, this section b, with the exceptions that have already been noted, is essentially what you have in the present constitution. The board of trustees of Michigan State is increased from 6 to 8, and the board of governors of Wayne State University is increased from 6 to 8. There was no division in the committee. There isn't any question but there is gain if the boards in control of these institutions have considerable stability. And it was in an effort to bring together the 3 institutions so they could be treated equally that we moved in the direction of putting them all at 8. The board of regents of the University of Michigan now has 8 members for 8 year terms, and the other 2 have 6 members for 6 year terms.

Now, I know there have been some questions raised in the minds of some delegates with reference to this matter of electing these boards for the 3 big universities and the appointment of those for the other 7 institutions. The question has been raised as to whether or not it's desirable to have this difference. I should only like to comment, with all of the conviction possible, that I think it's of the greatest importance that you maintain the election of the boards of control of the 3 large universities. It gives the boards an independence that they would not have were they appointed by the governor, and this at times could be important.

Now, some questions were raised by Miss Donnelly, and the point was made that the institutions were poor or good not dependent upon their names, but because of deserved reputation. Well, I'm sure that that's true, but there is no gainsaying the fact that the University of Michigan and Michigan State — and now, only in recent years, Wayne — but the 2 institutions that have had this status for a long period have had a degree of independence unsurpassed anywhere and equaled in only a few states: the University of Minnesota, and in a very few other places. And certainly I hope that no delegate is giving serious consideration to changing this one.

Now, the point I would like to make is the one that has to do with coordination. When you come to study Committee Proposal 47, if you haven't already studied it, you will find that there is a recommendation before this group from the committee on education that there be an elected state board of education of 8 members and the governor: a total of 9 — 8 elected members, plus the governor — serving 8 year terms, nominated by the party conventions, and elected by the people. And this state board is given the responsibility for appointing the state superintendent; but this isn't the item I want to speak to. The item I want to speak to is the authority that that board is given to coordinate all of the publicly supported education from the preschool kindergarten clear through the high schools, the colleges and the universities.

There has been a good deal of discussion in the press to the effect that this state sorely needs some sort of enforced coordination of our institutions of higher education. We now have a council of state college presidents, and the boards in control of the 10 institutions have set up a new coordinating council, and it is hoped that it is going to succeed. But there is always the possibility that it may not. And if you approve the recommendation in Committee Proposal 47, the state board of education has the opportunity to coordinate, to give direction, to advise the legislature and the people of this state on the needs for education at all levels, including the most advanced levels, and — the key words — to advise with reference to the financial needs.

Which means, of course, that this state board of education, if it wants to, will be able to take over a very important role not only from the standpoint of coordinating programs and passing judgment on where new institutions should be created, whether 2 year junior colleges might appropriately become 4 year colleges, whether programs on existing institutions might be instigated that are not there now; but they can go beyond that, of course, and determine what the relative financial needs are of these various institutions.

Now, I take it, Mr. Chairman, you're getting ready to adjourn pretty soon. That was the point I would like to make, and I regret I'll not be here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday; and I certainly hope that the committee will go along with the education committee's recommendations with reference to the state board of education. And of course I sincerely hope that you're going to go along with this section b.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: May I ask just a question of Dr. Hannah? I think he has answered the question. But you personally have gone over the provisions that we have submitted here in this report, and you are in entire agreement with the program and plan as outlined? I'm sure you said that, but in order to make no mistake about it —

MR. J. A. HANNAH: I have no reservations at all. I signed the report for you, and I speak for the recommendations as they are, for the committee.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman, I would like to have one or two matters cleared up in my mind. I'd like to ask Dr. Hannah a couple of questions through the Chair, if I may.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Yes.

MR. HOXIE: Dr. Hannah, one of the questions I would like to have you clear up, at least for me, remembering back, of course, that your very splendid institution was originally conceived as a land grant college — you can correct me if I'm in error — and there were certain federal funds made available at that time, and I believe through the years and even at the present time the university receives funds of that nature. I may be incorrect, but I think that is the case. The question in my mind is, if you do receive those funds as a land grant college, is there any danger that by adopting the amendment recommended by Mr. Bonisteel, striking the words "of Agriculture and Applied Science," that that would in any way jeopardize any funds that you may be receiving presently from the federal government?

MR. J. A. HANNAH: The answer is no, sir. The Michigan State University is the land grant college for Michigan, and it is too late on a Friday afternoon to go into any extended dissertation. When these land grant colleges were established by act of the congress and then acquiesced in, in the various states, by the legislature, the land grant colleges received first of all 30,000 acres of land for every member of the congress divided among the states on the basis of their representation. The understanding was that the lands were to be sold and the money invested and the interest used for the purpose, and so on.

Now, 24 of the states came up with a single university — an integrated university and land grant college. The University of Illinois, the University of Minnesota, the University of Wisconsin, the University of California, and so on.

Before Alaska and Hawaii became states, there were just exactly 24. The division was just half and half; there were 24 with a single integrated state university, and there were 24 that had separate state universities and land grant colleges. That was true in Michigan, in Indiana, in Iowa, Washington, Oregon, most of the states in the south, and so on.

There is nothing in the name — and of course there is no real change in the name. The point that Mr. Hoxie is referring to is that the institution is known now by statute as the Michigan State University of Agriculture and Applied Science. Of course, in fact, it is known by everyone excepting those that read legal documents as the Michigan State University. And that is the term which we prefer. It is more descriptive.

And I should make the point that there is nothing unusual about the development of the institution in East Lansing. These land grant colleges, which originally were agricultural and mechanical colleges in all of the states where they exist, have become rather complete universities, as you know, Pennsylvania State University, Purdue, Cornell, Iowa State, Washington State, Oregon State, Colorado State, and all of the rest of them.

MR. HOXIE: The other question, Dr. Hannah. I recall, as a member of the legislature — I can't remember how many years ago it was — that the name was changed, and at that particular time I recall that some of our agricultural groups felt very strongly about retaining the words "of Agriculture and Applied Science." I'm wondering, have the feelings of those folks, who at that time felt very strongly, been considered in deleting the words "of Agriculture and Applied Science"?

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Yes, it has been considered. But I don't think I would be honest if I said that 100 per cent of the farm people in the state are enthusiastic about the idea. They have no substantial objection. I think if they had their way, of course, they would probably have preferred the first name.

When the college was created originally in 1855, it was the Agricultural College of Michigan. Then it was the Michigan Agricultural College. Then it was the Michiagn State College of Agriculture and Applied Science. And then it was the Michigan State University of Agriculture and Applied Science. And from this time forward we hope it will be known as the Michigan State University.

It has been discussed with them. They have not raised substantial objection, but they are not enthusiastic about it.

MR. HOXIE: Thank you. I raised the question for the benefit of our chairman.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair has 3 delegates on the waiting list: our vice president, Tom Downs; Mrs. Cushman; and Miss Ann Donnelly. So unless any one of them expects to ask a question about the pending matter, the Chair will call on them in that sequence. The gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, I wish to express my wholehearted agreement with the concept of the constitutional status of our great universities, and particularly electing the boards of the 3 universities. I believe that Michigan's tradition in education is one that is a proud one, a history that is fine, and I hope that this will continue that independence and growth of our educational system.

There is one question I would like to ask perhaps the chairman of the committee, Mr. Bentley, if he is willing to go into it a little more in detail. Mr. Bentley, you did mention that one of the changes — and it's the last sentence of section b — was that in case of a vacancy, the appointment would be filled, I believe, as provided by law. The present constitution, as I understand, particularly on the University of Michigan and Wayne, provides that if there is a vacancy in the governing board, the governor shall make an appointment to fill that until the next election. I wondered, Mr. Bentley, if you would go into detail on the reasons for that change, and if you think it would be well to go back to the language in the present constitution.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield for the reply — it is rather curious that the constitution makes no provision insofar as I can see for filling the vacancies on the board of trustees at Michigan State, but as the gentleman has stated, does provide for gubernatorial appointment to fill the vacancies on the board of regents at the University of Michigan and the board of governors at Wayne State.

In specific reply to your question, Mr. Downs, the committee felt that it would be better to leave up to the legislature the matter of filling these particular vacancies; whether by appointment, perhaps, by the other members of the boards, whether by continuing appointment by the governor, or whatever other manner the legislature in its wisdom and discretion would see fit to provide, rather than to tie down as the existing constitution does the question of appointment.

Therefore, we felt that since we desired to continue these boards on an elective basis — which you have so thoroughly supported, and rightfully so — I believe that we should allow the legislature the discretion to determine the manner in which any vacancies, if they should occur, be filled.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, I didn't want to ask this afternoon, because it's too late, if this is the afternoon that we trust or don't trust the legislature, (laughter) but I did feel that there had been a historical certainty in the governor making the appointment. I wondered if the committee felt that there had been anything that hadn't worked out soundly in having the governor make the appointment?

MR. BENTLEY: Well, I certainly don't think that the committee ever intended to cast any reflection on the method presently in the constitution for filling vacancies, but did prefer the discretion of the legislature. In this particular case may I say that the committee did place confidence in the legislature to do the right thing.

MR. DOWNS: My conservatism suggests that we continue with the appointment by the governor, inasmuch as that has proved satisfactory. I have no specific amendment. I just wanted to hear from the chairman on this, and appreciate his answer.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair will recognize the lady from Dearborn, Delegate Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Thank you. I have a question of the chairman of the committee. I note that you have increased the size of 2 of the university boards from 6 to 8. Having in mind the fact that we already elect perhaps as many or more education officials than other states, I wonder whether this isn't going to pose an important burden on the voters of the state? I don't think there is any particular value in having uniformity for the sake of uniformity. Michigan State and Wayne have been getting along with 6 on their board. I just wondered why they wanted to increase it.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Would some member of the education committee care to answer that? Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: I take it, Mr. Chairman, that the lady is questioning the fact that we are increasing the present number of elected officials?

MRS. CUSHMAN: That's correct.

MR. BENTLEY: We are also, I might remind the lady, increasing their terms, so we still will provide for only 2 every 2 years, as is presently the case.

MRS. CUSHMAN: What is the purpose of the change?

MR. BENTLEY: The change in the number, or the change in the terms?

MRS. CUSHMAN: The change in the number.

MR. BENTLEY: To put the governing boards at Michigan State and Wayne State on an equal footing with the board of regents of the University of Michigan, as Dr. Hannah so eloquently explained earlier.

MRS. CUSHMAN: As I said, to me, uniformity for the sake of uniformity is of no particular value.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the reason is a simple one. There is gain, first of all, in having the longer term. The average person coming to a board of trustees knows very little about it. It takes him at least 2 years to learn what it's all about. You understand, this is a nonpaid position; it takes a good deal of time. They meet at least once a month, and sometimes several times a month. They get 10 cents a mile to and from Lansing, and their dinner if it happens to take a dinner hour, and no compensation whatever. There is gain from the point of view of the longer term that gives more experienced service the latter years of the term.

A more important point, however, is that with winter vacations being what they are, it is often difficult on a 6 member board to find the time when there aren't at least 3 of them out of the state. It's easier to get 5 of 8 than it is to get 4 of 6.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Mr. Bonisteel, do you wish to add anything?

MR. BONISTEEL: No, Mr. Chairman. I think that Dr. Hannah's remarks will suffice. There is another reason for the 8, but I don't think it is necesary to go into that at this time.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The lady from Highland Park, Miss Ann Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I just wish to correct an impression that I apparently gave to the president of one of the great universities and the former regent of another by speaking as I did on the first paragraph. My comment meant that I didn't think that listing them by name created their powers or helped them. I do think the rest of this is very vital for their continued strength and freedom, and I very thoroughly and wholeheartedly support it. I just wish to correct this erroneous impression which was apparently created in their minds.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The delegate from Detroit, Mr. Barthwell.

MR. BARTHWELL: Dr. Hannah made my point.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Knirk.

MR. KNIRK: Chairman Powell, I would just like to say a word to what Mr. Hoxie had to say. Being a graduate of Michigan State University, I would like to say, first of all, that I definitely recommend the change in the wording and the approval of the proposal as presented by the committee. I think that we in agriculture are very, very proud and justly so of our Michigan State University's position within this nation, and I think that definitely just the name of Michigan State University is becoming to our university, and therefore, as one person in agriculture and a graduate from there, I certainly hope that you folks will favor this proposal.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The delegate from Detroit, Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the committee proposal. In so doing, I would like to make a few observations from experience. I concur in the idea that an enlarged board and an increased number of years would serve a very useful purpose. My experience with boards of education — and this is no reflection upon any of the extant boards — is that many of them become a rubber stamp for the presiding officer. And unless they have the kind of time necessary to fully familiarize themselves with the tasks — and many of them are complicated — you do have a situation where the staff begins to run the policy makers, and I think that does not serve the best interests of the state.

The big problem, it seems to me, is to get those who are constitutionally elected to actually perform their job of formulating policy. And if this kind of formulation is an assist to the attainment of that objective, I think it ought to be supported. I don't know whether there ought to be additional language to reinforce that objective, but I certainly would concur in the idea that you do need more time and you do need more people; and I'm sorry to note that there is the difficulty on the basis of pragmatic experience of getting the number of people necessary to formulate that policy.

But we ought to recognize that there has been some delinquency on the part of some of the boards in not being fully up to their job. By "up" to it, I mean that there is a kind of skill, experience and technique that is necessary that hasn't been true in many respects in the state.

I would like to concur in the majority report.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is on the Bonisteel amendment. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bonisteel has offered the following amendment:

[The amendment was again read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1142.]

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is on the amendment as just read by the secretary. All in favor signify by saying aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: I understand there is another amendment to this section at the desk, which may be a little more controversial. In view of the hour, the weather reports and other factors, I move the committee do now rise.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is on the motion of Delegate Bentley that the committee do now rise. All in favor signify by saying aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, Vice President Hutchinson resumed the Chair.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention will be in order. The Chair recognizes the delegate from Ionia, Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration a proposal, on which the secretary will make a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 98, A proposal pertaining to the educational institutions of the state; has adopted an amendment thereto, and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, the convention will return to the order of motions and resolutions in order to introduce a resolution for reference to the committee.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Wanger, Baginski, Prettie, Mrs. Koeze and Mr. Powell offer

Resolution 74, A resolution to respectfully request the Michigan legislature to take such action as may be necessary to provide that the constitutional amendment proposed in enrolled house joint resolution "G" of 1961 will not be submitted to the people at the same time as the work of the constitutional convention.

Following is Resolution 74 as offered:

Whereas, It is probable that the work of the convention will be submitted to the people for adoption or rejection at the November, 1962, general election; and

Whereas, The legislature in 1961 adopted house joint resolution "G" proposing an amendment to section 40 of article V of the state constitution to authorize the legislature to provide for the general revision of the statutes; and

Whereas, Said house joint resolution "G" further provides that said amendment shall be submitted to the people at said election; and

Whereas, The submission of the work of the convention and said proposed amendment at the same election would create confusion and uncertainty which would result in a less effective expression of the will of the people upon the work of the convention; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Michigan legislature is respectfully requested to take such action as may be necessary to provide that the constitutional amendment proposed in enrolled house joint resolution "G" of 1961 will not be submitted to the people at the same time as the work of the constitutional convention; and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary transmit a copy of this resolution to the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives of the Michigan legislature.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The resolution is referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following announcement, Mr. President: a meeting of the committee on style and drafting will be held Monday, at 2:00 o'clock p.m.

We have the following requests: Mr. Woolfenden asks to be excused from the sessions of Monday and Tuesday to attend a meeting of the house of delegates of the American bar association in Chicago; Mr. Stafseth requests excuse from Monday's session due to a commitment made previous to this convention; Dr. Hannah asks leave from the sessions of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week; and Mr. Suzore requests to be excused from Monday's session.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, the several requests will be granted. The Chair hears no objection, and they are granted. The delegate from the eighteenth district, Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, for whatever it is worth, I understand from the latest weather report that the roads in southern Michigan are very hazardous. I thought perhaps some of the delegates might be interested in that.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The delegate from the fifth district, Mr. Faxon.

MR. FAXON: Mr. President, I wonder if I could have something straightened out with regard to next week. Is it the intention of the convention that on Monday we will go to second reading, or will this be passed until we have completed the proceedings of the committee of the whole on first reading?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: That, of course, is up to the convention; and as of the present time the order of second reading has been passed only for this week. So that unless further decisions are made, the order of second reading would be in order on Monday.

MR. FAXON: Is Mr. Van Dusen here to comment? I would like to ask Mr. Van Dusen through the Chair what the plans are.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The delegate requests of the chairman of the committee on rules to inform him as to the intention next week on the order of second reading. Do you intend to go on to the order of second reading next week?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I certainly think that until the report of the committee on education has been completed, it would be in order to pass the order of second reading; and at this time I will move that the order of second reading be passed for Monday.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The motion is to pass for Monday next the order of second reading. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed?

The motion prevails.

Are there any further announcements? If not, the Chair recognizes the delegate from Genesee, Mr. Millard.

MR. MILLARD: Mr. President, after a hard day I think I have a very popular motion. I move we adjourn.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion to adjourn. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion prevails. The convention stands adjourned until next Monday at 4:00 o'clock p.m.

[Whereupon, at 4:15 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 4:00 o'clock p.m., Monday, February 19, 1962.]

EIGHTY-SECOND DAY

Monday, February 19, 1962, 4:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention will come to order.

The invocation today will be delivered by Father Thomas McCarthy of St. Dominic's Church of Detroit.

FATHER McCARTHY: O ineffable Creator, who in the greatness of Thy wisdom hast perfectly fashioned and ordered all the parts of our universe, graciously assist these assembled delegates to fashion and order the laws of the state of Michigan.

Realizing our own inabilities, we have, nevertheless, set upon the task of revising the laws of our state. Enable us, we beseech Thee, to perform this task with patience and wisdom and courage. Let the light of Thy divine wisdom cast upon our minds a ray of Thy splendor, so that we may dispel the twofold darkness in which all men are born: that, namely, of sin and ignorance. Let us neither seek to please nor fear to displease but Thee alone.

May all the delegates discharge the duties of their respective stations with honesty and ability. Encourage them always to have due respect for virtue and religion; grant that they may form all laws in justice and mercy and, by so doing, will restrain vice and immorality.

Grant that these laws may preserve the peace, promote happiness, increase industry and useful knowledge, and perpetuate to all the blessings of equal liberty. We pray that the laws framed at this constitutional convention will lead all men to Thee, the true goal of our life here on earth. We earnestly seek these blessings in the name of the triune God: the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Amen.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The secretary will take the roll. All those present will vote aye. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and take the roll call.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Messrs. Baginski, Beaman, T. S. Brown, Dean Doty, Habermehl, Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. McAllister, J. B. Richards, Stopczynski and Wilkowski, from today's session; Mrs. Butler, Miss Donnelly and Messrs. Karn and Page, indefinitely, due to illness; Mr. Suzore, from tomorrow's session; and Mr. Pellow, from today's session and from the balance of this week.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Baginski, Beaman, T. S. Brown, Mrs. Butler, Mr. Dade, Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Dean Doty, Habermehl, J. A. Hannah, Karn, Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. McAllister, Nisbet, Page, Pellow, J. B. Richards, Stopczynski, Suzore, Wilkowski and Woolfenden.

Absent without leave: Messrs. Batchelor, Bledsoe, Krolikowski, Leibrand and Youngblood.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, those absent without leave will be excused from the session. The Chair hears no objection and they are so excused.

[During the proceedings, the following delegates entered the chamber and took their seats: Messrs. Batchelor, Bledsoe, Dade, Dean Doty, Habermehl, Krolikowski, Leibrand, Stopczynski, Youngblood and Mrs. Koeze.]

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Reports from select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar for today.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Van Dusen offers Resolution 75, A resolution to amend Resolution 45.

Following is Resolution 75 as offered:

Resolved, That Resolution 45 be amended as follows:

(1) Amend section 4 by striking out "February 21" and inserting "March 7".

(2) Amend section 6 by striking out "March 9" and inserting "March 16".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The resolution is referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar today.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: General orders of the day. The gentleman from Ionia, Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President, I move the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for consideration of the proposals on general orders.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion made by the gentleman from Ionia, Mr. Powell. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion prevails and the gentleman from Ionia will preside.

[Whereupon, Mr. Powell assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The committee will be in order, and the secretary will refresh our memory as to just where we were at the time when we arose on Friday afternoon.

SECRETARY CHASE: Page 2 of your calendar, item 1, from the committee on education, by Mr. Bentley, chairman, Committee Proposal 98, A proposal pertaining to the educational institutions of the state. Section a had been considered and passed. Section b had been read and an amendment offered by Mr. Bonisteel had been adopted.

For last previous action by the committee of the whole on Committee Proposal 98, see above, page 1135.

Mr. Downs now offers the following amendment to section b:

1. Amend page 2, line 13, by striking out "Vacancies shall be filled according to law.", and inserting "The governor shall fill board vacancies by appointment. Any such appointee shall hold office until a successor has been nominated and elected as prescribed by law.".

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, after the session Friday, I had the opportunity to confer briefly with the chairman of the education committee. The intent of this is to provide that if there is a vacancy, the governor can fill it, but presumably the vacancy would run along until the next election. You get into a technical question how to best define that and the research department came up with this language.

I would be glad to yield to the chairman of the committee, who kindly laid this over until today by his agreement, and I believe this does carry out the intent that we discussed Friday afternoon prior to adjournment.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Detroit was kind enough to discuss briefly with me this amendment following the session of last Friday and, while obviously I have been unable to contact all members of the committee on education, those members whom I have contacted could see no objection in the gentleman's amendment and, speaking for myself and those members whom I was able to approach, we are willing to accept the amendment; although, as I say, I cannot speak for the entire membership of the committee, not having been able to contact them after it was drafted.

MR. DOWNS: Thank you, Mr. Bentley.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is on the Downs amendment. Are you ready to vote? If so, all in favor signify by saying aye. Opposed, no.

The ayes have it and the amendment is adopted. Are there further amendments to section b?

MR. DOWNS: Thank you, Mr. Bentley.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: If there are no further amendments to the section, it will pass.

Section b, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read section c.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section c:

[Section c was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1135.]

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, the section the secretary has just read is that section which confers constitutional status upon the other 7 state supported institutions of higher education which have been named in section a.

I think it would be appropriate at this time, Mr. Chairman, for me to yield to the gentleman from Mt. Pleasant, a former president of one of these institutions, for whatever remarks he may care to make and for him to answer any questions thereupon; so I yield to Dr. Anspach.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair will recognize Delegate Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, as pointed out by Chairman Bentley, this section confers upon or grants the other 7 state institutions constitutional status. For a period of years these institutions have been operating with various types of boards — it, also, of course, creates boards for these various institutions — the 4 former state teacher colleges then became state colleges of education; now 3 of them universities, limited universities, and one a state college — and operated under the state board of education. They would now operate, if this is passed, under independent boards consisting of 8 members to be appointed by the governor. Staggered terms, of course, are set by whatever time that he sets, the reason for this being the fact that all of the colleges and universities have grown extensively to be rather large. There are now about 25,000 students in these 4 state universities and colleges involving many millions of dollars in annual appropriations and millions of dollars in capital outlay.

The state board of education, because of all its other duties and responsibilities, has not had the proper amount of time that should be given to this sort of management and control; so, therefore, the time is here when these 4 schools formerly under the state board of education should have their own boards and be governed and controlled by those boards so that proper planning and control might be given to each one of the institutions.

Now the other institutions, Ferris Institute, Michigan College of Mining and Technology and Grand Valley College, which has been created, all have independent boards now appointed by the governor. Therefore, they will all have uniformity in that all the boards for all the 7 institutions will be appointed by the governor and consist of 8 members to control the entire administration of each one of the schools.

Now, someone may ask why appointment by the governor here, and election in the case of the 3 other major institutions. In the first place, you already have established here the system of appointment in that, as I recall, as I mentioned, Ferris Institute has a board appointed by the governor, Michigan College of Mining and Technology is the same way, and Grand Valley State College has its board appointed by the governor. So, therefore, we join this group in having the boards appointed by the governor, which we think in Michigan is quite satisfactory.

I might also point out here, while I am on the whole matter, that the plan or the idea of granting these various colleges and universities the privilege of having independent boards has the approval of Dr. John Dale Russell; in his report he recommended it. Also, of course, it is cited in Mr. Dunbar's booklet put out by the citizens' advisory committee. It has the approval of the Michigan education association. It has been endorsed by the association of superintendents of the state. It has the endorsement of the council of college and university presidents. It has the endorsement of the private colleges of the state. It also has the approval of the American association of university women, the farm bureau, and others. Therefore, Committee Proposal 98, section c, merely follows the pattern which has been established in the way of rights and privileges and sets up independent boards for the control and direction of these institutions.

I hope that you will pass this section of Committee Proposal 98.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Are there any amendments to section c? Delegate Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, I don't have any amendment but I do have a question, if I may pose it through the Chair, of Dr. Anspach. I note in Committee Proposal 98, on line 11 and again on line 24, that the principal executive officer is given the duty of presiding at meetings of the board, in both cases, and I think that constitutes an addition or a change from the 1908 constitution.

If, indeed, the boards are policymaking authorities and if, indeed, the constitutional power for the formulation of policy on the part of these respective boards is intended, why the power of the appointed officer to act as the presiding officer?

Doesn't that in some way deemphasize the policymaking function of the elected members of the policymaking board — the board of regents or board of governors or whatever they are called?

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Anspach, do you care to answer?

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Norris, I can partially answer it in this way: this section follows section b, which is the procedure in connection with the University of Michigan and the other 2 major universities. At the present time the president presides without vote. This was put in for purposes of uniformity.

The statement which you have just made was also made by Dr. Russell in the Russell report. I think he makes a statement similar to yours. As far as this section is concerned, it merely follows — and that is the only reason that I can see — it merely follows what has already been in practice at the University of Michigan and at the other 2 schools.

I would yield to Mr. Bonisteel, who has been a regent at the — a member of the board of regents at the University of Michigan for some 18 years. He has seen it in practice. He perhaps can answer your question better than I can, sir.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Norris, I think probably the answer to your question is this: constitutionally, this has been the law from 1908. There is a good reason why the president of the University of Michigan or of Michigan State or of Wayne State University should be the presiding officer and ex officio a member of the board without vote. In the first place, he is the chief administrative officer. He is the one who has under his jurisdiction and control all matters which are brought before these boards for consideration.

Then I think there is another reason which experience will prove and dictate and that is that having it the chief executive officer of an educational institution such as we are discussing here is to the advantage of the institution itself; because, if a board elects its own member, then we would have a 7 man board presided over by the eighth man with the power to vote; and, this way, it seems to me that it keeps from the elected members of the board any feeling they might possibly have as to who of the 8 members should feel that he would be entitled to preside over the board; and I think in the executive sessions this is very desirable.

Now, they do have a system which I think is also very valuable and that is the system whereby the board itself elects one of its own members as chairman of the committee of the whole and when the board goes into session as a committee of the whole, it usually goes into session as committee of the whole solely with the members of the board who are elected; and the chairman elected to preside over the committee of the whole is from among their own members, who, at that time, may discuss matters of policy separate and distinct and apart from administration; and we have found that this dual system has worked very, very well indeed, and I would highly recommend that we continue to carry on in this manner because I believe that there are other ways that could be discussed, but I believe that what I have said to you here points out something which you wouldn't experience unless you had gone through it yourself.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The gentleman from Taylor, Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: I would like to ask a question. Beginning on line 24 is the sentence that reads, "Each board of control shall consist of 8 members who shall hold office for 8 years and who shall be appointed by the governor — " and this is the language which the question relates to, "—in a manner similar to other executive appointments as provided in this constitution." As a lawyer, I have real, serious doubts as to what this means; perhaps you could tell us.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, in reply to the question of the gentleman from Taylor, if he will yield to me for that purpose, we did not feel that we were in a position, Mr. Ford, to specify exactly how these appointments should be made in view of the fact that in the executive article, and possibly in other articles of the proposed constitution, this question will be recurring. Therefore, we included this language merely to indicate our own conformity to whatever other methods of appointment and confirmation might be established by these other committees and approved by the convention in its wisdom.

I would assume that when the entire subject of executive appointments and approval — legislative, senatorial, what you will — has been decided upon by the convention that the committee on style and drafting will thereby act to make them uniform throughout the document, but we did not feel that we wanted to establish a precedent, since I believe we are the first section coming up dealing with this question of executive appointments, and, therefore, we tried — and I am making no justification for the language insofar as the lawyers are concerned — we tried to indicate that we were ready and satisfied to concur in whatever other form of appointment and confirmation might be decided upon by the convention with respect to related proposals.

MR. FORD: If I might continue with the question — the second question is: assuming for the moment the possibility of provisions similar to the 1908 constitution or the retention of the provisions where in some instances we have the executive appointments under circumstances where, by legislation, advice and consent has been imposed as a condition, as opposed to the governor's power to fill vacancies without advice and consent; assuming that we had 2 types emerge, which would you say would be similar to the manner otherwise provided in the constitution — with or without advice and consent?

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is not going to get me to commit myself on that because, as I repeat again for the gentleman's information, as far as the committee on education is concerned, we felt that whatever other manner of appointment and confirmation might be decided upon by the convention, we were perfectly willing to have it apply with respect to the appointments to the governing boards of these 7 institutions. If the gentleman will excuse me, I do not think that the committee took a position in this matter and, therefore, I do not feel that I could speak for the committee. We are willing to have whatever other procedure is worked out, whether in the executive article or any other article; we are perfectly willing to have our section so redrafted as to conform to them.

MR. FORD: I don't want to seem too tenacious on this, but is it a fair assumption that your committee is willing to let some other committee recommend the manner of appointment as to these 4 boards?

MR. BENTLEY: There are 7 boards, Mr. Ford. In reply to your question, I would say that consistency, I believe, is the jewel — which I hope that we will practice in this convention — I hope that it will be the principal jewel in the crown of the committee on style and drafting — and we are willing, to answer you specifically, to let some other committee and, of course, in the final analysis, the convention itself determine what form for appointments and/or confirmations as the entire group may decide on. We are willing to concur in that.

MR. FORD: Well, one final question. Assuming that there are those of us who would like to have a definite decision as to how this appointment is to be made, how would we know whether we were flying in the face of the feeling of the committee, if you are unwilling — surely, there must have been some discussion. Now, isn't it a fair question to determine whether the sense of your committee feeling is that advice and consent should be present or should not be present? This is really what I am trying to find out; because I think, rather than leaving these things hanging in hope that style and drafting will write the constitution for us, we ought to make a decision now while we have the chance.

I have great faith in your committee, and I assume you must have had a discussion. I would like the benefit of their collective wisdom on just how this appointment should be made.

MR. BENTLEY: Well, Mr. Chairman, in reply to the gentleman's question again, if I may be permitted to make such a reply, we did discuss within the education committee, Mr.

Ford, the current proposal, for example, within the committee on executive branch to the effect that the appointment would require senatorial disapproval, I believe, within 60 days; otherwise it would stand. To the best of my recollection, the committee on education indicated that if the convention decided on that procedure for the appointments under the executive branch proposals, they were willing to accept them. If the convention, for example, should decide to remove all question of approval or disapproval by one or other of the legislative bodies, I think we would be willing to accept that; but we did not feel, very frankly, as I recall the discussion, that we wanted to be the ones to try to establish a precedent in this matter.

Again, respectfully, I would suggest that you accept our language which indicates a willingness to concur in whatever else the convention may do with respect to other proposals, and let us wait for further discussion on this subject until the proposals from the executive branch, at least, come up on this matter.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegates, there are 3 delegates who have sought recognition and, unless their comments bear specifically on the questions raised by Delegate Ford, the Chair will call upon them in the order in which it recognized them, and would call upon the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Delegate Martin —

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, before I yield the floor finally, I wonder if I might have the indulgence of the Chair to permit us to write out an amendment here. I trust that if there is no further discussion, we might pass on over this section —

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair assumes you will have time. All these 3 other delegates want to speak. Pardon the Chair for not recognizing you again, but a little while ago you said your final question was thus and so, and so the Chair assumed that that wound up your desire for the floor.

The Chair will recognize the delegate from Grand Rapids, Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, with respect to Mr. Ford's question, the committee on executive branch is recommending that appointments of this nature and others be with the advice and consent of the senate. By advice and consent of the senate, they so define it to mean that this will be that an appointment will be subject to rejection by the senate within 60 legislative days from the date the appointment is made.

This is the recommendation which the committee on executive branch will make. If it is necessary at this time, of course, we would have to propose an amendment along that line, if Mr. Ford is going to propose some amendments along some other line. It seems to me Mr. Bentley's suggestion is a good one: that we go ahead and pass this language which is general at the present time and decide this question when we come to it on the executive branch article.

MR. BENTLEY: Will the gentleman yield, Mr. Chairman?

MR. MARTIN: Certainly.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, while I certainly am not going to say that Mr. Ford has no right to offer an amendment along the lines which he is discussing — because, obviously, he does — I do think, Mr. Chairman, that since this question will undoubtedly arise at the time the executive branch proposals are considered, whether there is a minority report of which I am one of the signers — there are other minority opinions, I am sure, within the committee and within the committee of the whole, as far as that is concerned, on this particular proposal, which Mr. Martin has outlined, and I wonder, since we do have in this proposal from the committee on education an agreement reflecting the understanding of the committee on education that whatever the final decision of the committee of the whole and the convention is on this particular subject, we are perfectly willing to abide by it, I wonder if Mr. Ford is anxious to participate in a discussion at this present time on a matter which is inevitably bound to arise again. That is my only question.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Are you yielding the floor, Delegate Martin?

MR. MARTIN: Yes, I have said all I want to say, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Ford, do you have something to add?

MR. FORD: Does Mr. Bentley want an answer, or was that a statement rather than a question?

CHAIRMAN POWELL: I took it as a statement, but if you care to answer —

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, it was merely an expression of hope, nothing more.

MR. FORD: Well, I will make the expression of hope that I trust Mr. Bentley is jesting when he suggests that it is not in order to precipitate discussion on an item that is going to be as important as this one.

I am somewhat alarmed to see a committee that has been dealing with education and that knows more about the immediate problems of the boards that we are here creating — understanding that we are creating a new constitutional animal — that is unwilling to put itself on the line with the recommendation for one kind of an appointment or another. It makes me just a little bit queasy, as a member of the minority group here, as to what kind of decision is going to be reached and in just what manner when a principal, primarily important committee in this convention is unwilling to take a position; and I say that I look with jaundiced eye upon this approach if this is going to be typical of how we are going to solve the important problems in this convention.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

MR. FORD: Gladly, Mr. Chairman.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I made it very specific that I did not consider any amendment along Mr. Ford's thinking out of order at this time; I merely expressed the hope that it would not arise to prolong this particular discussion at this particular time.

I might further remind the gentleman that, as I recall, this particular section and the language therein was agreed upon unanimously by all the members of the committee on education, both the so called minority and the so called majority; although I might add that within our committee we have not used those expressions very often, I can assure the gentleman of that; and, although I have no wish to avoid the discussion of this matter, if Mr. Ford feels inclined to insist upon initiating it, I merely hope that we can reserve this particular discussion for a later time in the deliberations of the committee of the whole.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lansing, Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to address a question to Mr. Bonisteel.

MISS HART: Is this on the Ford amendment?

CHAIRMAN POWELL: There is no amendment on the floor, Miss Hart.

MISS HART: Is it on the Ford question?

MR. WANGER: If the lady desires to speak on that point, I would be happy to yield to her for that purpose.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Miss Hart.

MISS HART: Thank you very much. I just wanted to make clear — I know that the chairman of the committee understood this. I think I for one on the committee — I am sure there are others — felt very strongly against the provision for advice and consent on the appointment of board members, so that while we agreed to the wording as it stands now, we did not agree to the principle; and I want to make this very clear: that if it comes out as advice and consent, I for one would object loudly.

MR. BENTLEY: But, Mr. Chairman, the lady will agree, I am sure, that we did indicate by this language that we felt that discussion of this particular issue should arise when our executive committee proposals start to come up rather than at the present time.

MISS HART: I do agree, Mr. Chairman. I just wanted to make myself very clear on this point, because I have made myself clear at every opportunity and I don't want to lose this opportunity to speak, also.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes again the delegate from Lansing, Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: This question, Mr. Chairman and Mr. Bonisteel, is on a different subject, and this question applies to section c and I think also equally to section b. It is this: at present the constitutional sections relating to Wayne and Michigan State say that these boards of regents or trustees, in addition to having the supervisory control of their institutions, et cetera, shall also perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law. That is in the present constitution regarding Michigan State and Wayne.

Now, I notice here that nowhere in Committee Proposal 98 is that phrase used; so that while, as far as section c goes, all institutions of higher education created by the legislature and having authority to grant baccalaureate degrees will, of course, have the independence which they deserve, however, they will not be able to exercise any additional powers whatsoever, which the legislature might wish to confer upon them. I would like to ask why.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. Chairman, well, I don't know that I get the import of the question, but if Mr. Wanger will look at the provisions relating to the University of Michigan as to the powers which it has, he will find that the same powers that the University of Michigan has are the same powers that have been given to Wayne State University and to Michigan State. That is why that language is as it is, because we have taken the language which has been proven over the years as being most helpful in the growth of the University of Michigan. It was the unanimous opinion of our committee and all the members of our committee that that language should be the language adopted for the use of those institutions.

MR. WANGER: I can appreciate that the language has probably worked very well for the University of Michigan and, therefore, that there should be probably no objection in applying the same language to the other great universities in our state. However, section c deals with institutions of higher education which are not yet created, the nature of which it might be presumptuous of us to predict at this time. I would wonder, therefore, if it might not be desirable to consider adding to section c the language that the "boards shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law" to give sufficient flexibility for educational institutions in the future to develop.

MR. BONISTEEL: Well, I can see no objection to that added section, proposal, or language to section c if Mr. Wanger would like to have it added. I think that they have all the authority and power by virtue of the type and kind of an institution they are at the present time to carry on, but, at the same time I would be willing, as far as I am concerned — I cannot speak for anybody else — but if they want to add "such other duties as shall be prescribed by law," it would be perfectly satisfactory to me.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: There are some other people wishing to speak but, possibly, if you care to speak directly to this question of Mr. Wanger's — Delegate Barthwell, is this the case?

MR. BARTHWELL: Yes.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: You may proceed.

MR. BARTHWELL: I am a member of the education committee, Mr. Chairman, and I am of the opinion that for all institutions of higher learning in this state that we should give them identical constitutional authority, and we think that this is in the best interests of the schools' development. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: There are no amendments sent in as far as the Chair is aware. Maybe they are being prepared. The next delegate whom the Chair noticed was the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I believe here that we are making or tending to make an error of equating a university with a regular branch of the executive arm of government; although I do not now intend to debate the advice and consent concept in the strictly executive branch of government. But I am concerned that, on the one hand, we give these institutions constitutional status — with which I am in wholehearted agreement — and then, on the other hand, we say that their policy making body shall be selected in the same manner as other executive departments.

Now, I am very much for seeing in the regular executive branch of government that the governor has the control and the responsibility; but I feel in the constitutional bodies we should see that they are, so far as feasible, separate from the other branches of government with reasonable controls and regulations such as accounting for financing and gifts, et cetera, which we have clearly added under section a. I just wish to draw the delegates' attention to the fact that I do not believe in either theory or practice we should consider a university or an institution of higher education in the same category as a regular administrative branch of government.

The other question I have — and perhaps the chairman of the committee or some other member could answer it — is whether or not there has, historically, been any problem on confirmation of appointees of existing educational institutions that require confirmation. Perhaps I could phrase the question by asking if the committee inquired into that and if they have received any information or statistics on that subject.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, in reply to the gentleman, the committee, to the best of my knowledge, did not inquire into this subject. The committee, again to the best of my knowledge, was not aware of any particular difficulty in this field and I am unable to enlighten the gentleman further, although I would be happy to yield the floor or to allow the gentleman to yield to anyone who might have more detailed information on this subject; but I do not recall, at least in the full committee on education, that that particular subject was up for discussion.

MR. DOWNS: All right. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ypsilanti, Delegate Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I have two matters, the first one more or less beside the point. I understood that this convention has more or less gone on record as being against discrimination, but when I arrived today I found certain standards in front of some of the mikes but this one in front of me doesn't have one. (laughter) I will be glad to accept the apologies of the administration committee, or whoever it is, and assume that the matter will be corrected.

Seriously, I would like to speak in support of the committee proposal here and point out a couple of matters that maybe have not been mentioned fully. I assume that every private college in the state: Alma, Albion, Hillsdale, Hope, and so forth, all have their separate administrative boards, boards that are concerned solely with the welfare and well being of those institutions; and of course this proposal of the committee, in giving such boards to the 7 universities and colleges that haven't had them, seems to be a step forward.

Now, as far as Eastern Michigan University is concerned, I discussed this matter of appointment, election of the board, with President Elliott. His attitude is simply this: he feels perfectly confident that the governor will appoint members of the board that would be qualified, who would be — maybe because of their proximity to the school, maybe because of their former relationship — people who would be dedicated to the interests of the institution. As far as election is concerned, that would be perfectly satisfactory, except that the chances are if it were a statewide election that the people would not be as well advised as to the qualifications of the members as the governor would be.

If you will just give us a board down at Eastern, we don't care too much how we get it; so we feel confident that by election, by the governor alone, by the governor with advice and consent, or any other way, it would inure to the benefit of the institution, and that if it is by appointment that the method that will be prescribed will get good, competent people as members of the board.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Hancock, Delegate Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Just in answer to Delegate Downs' query, there has been question, there has been difficulty with respect to confirmation. I think there is some at the present time in connection with an institution which is in my bailiwick; so that there is just an answer for the record, as a matter of accuracy: there has been question.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the roving delegate, Delegate Binkowski, who will speak from there. (laughter)

MR. BINKOWSKI: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to address a question not only to the chairman of the committee but also to all the former state legislators who are present. It seems to me that I have read about this problem from time to time, and I think that this particular problem should be resolved here and now. Perhaps I am not bringing it under the right order, Mr. Bentley, so you will correct me; but in section 16 of our present constitution pertaining to Wayne State University, evidently the legislature thought that it was necessary to add this concluding sentence, "The legislature shall be given an annual detailed accounting of all income from whatever source derived and all expenditures by Wayne State University." So my question for you, Mr. Bentley, as well as those legislators, is: have we resolved this problem satisfactorily?

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, does the gentleman refer to the last sentence of section a that we have already passed over?

MR. BINKOWSKI: No, Mr. Bentley. I am referring to the last sentence contained in section 16 of article XI in the 1908 constitution, as amended in 1959, as the mandate contained in section 16 to Wayne State University that they shall give "an annual detailed accounting of all income from whatever source derived and all expenditures . . . ."

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, in reply to the gentleman from Detroit, if he will yield to me for that purpose, the gentleman will recall that in the last sentence of section a, a sentence which applies to all 10 of these institutions, we stated, "The legislature shall be given an annual accounting of all income and all expenditures by each of these educational institutions."

I can answer the gentleman, Mr. Chairman, however, the fact is that the question of the words, which he may or may not be referring to, "from whatever source derived", was debated in the committee on education and it was felt that, as I recall, we should not try to impose upon these institutions an obligation to necessarily render a report of income derived from sources other than public. Now is that what the gentleman is referring to, specifically?

MR. BINKOWSKI: Yes, Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: I think I would yield to the gentleman from Ann Arbor, Mr. Bonisteel, to comment on that question, because he has probably had more experience in the matter of accounting for income from so called private sources than anyone else here. I wonder if the gentleman from Detroit would yield to Mr. Bonisteel to comment on that particular matter?

MR. BINKOWSKI: Yes, by all means.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, in answer to the delegate's inquiry, I might add that here is a typical illustration of the accounting and budgetary information which is furnished to the state legislature and to the committees of the state legislature, including some statistical measurements of instructional activity in the selected schools and colleges: the sizes of classes, the capital outlay budget, agency requests and needs for 5 year periods, University of Michigan financial report of 1961, year ended June 30 — these are all done voluntarily, you understand — this wasn't the provision as related to the University of Michigan — and, in addition to that, they have had all types of information — the budget office, and I have here a technical letter, which is too long to read but which is indicative of the type and kind of thing that you were talking about. Now, if this is a matter which relates to public funds and tax money, a detailed breakdown of that is desirable and I think the present language is sufficient to do it.

For your information, I might add that at all times, each one of the universities — and, I assume, those that are now being created — will submit to and give to the proper authorities of the state legislature and other officers of the state, complete breakdowns of all the income which they receive and all the expenditures of that income. So that I don't think there has been a withholding of any information of any kind whatsoever. On the other hand, to do what you would suggest should be done, namely, that a complete breakdown in certain areas be given, might be to our disadvantage. I think I can illustrate that. Just a minute. Right now these universities are doing a tremendous amount of work for the federal government. At the present time, some top secret work is going on and this money is being turned over to these institutions for research in these areas. As a matter of fact, some of this is so secret that I have been fingerprinted I can't tell you how many times to make sure that I would not divulge any of the things, any of the information which might come to me through my office as a regent at that time; and I might add for the benefit of the delegates here that, had I had all the access to the information which they were talking about, I would not have understood it anyway. (laughter)

But anyway, no matter how you look at it, these funds come into the University of Michigan, and I might say this: that we right now have a $30 million space research program in operation at the University of Michigan. Now, it certainly would not be within, I don't think, the authority of the state to require a detailed breakdown and detailed submission of the information relating to the expenditure of this fund or the areas in which the funds were expended. I would say to you that the income from the grants which might be received from the government — the $30 million — could be, surely; but the expenditures could be classified in certain areas but not detailed.

I think the present system has worked very satisfactorily, and I think that if we attempt to move from that by trying to place some restrictions on this — let me give you another illustration. We have received several million dollars for work in the field of philosophy. A man in Indiana has a foundation and he wants this work to be carried on. He does not necessarily want it to be carried on as a matter of public procedure, but he does want it carried on. He wants a report of the money which was given to the university, and which it does give to the people of the state of Michigan and which is made available to the members of the legislature and other public officials with which the governor is included, as to the way this money is invested. Sometimes these gifts are related to certain areas in which the giver wishes these moneys to be retained in a trust fund, and to go into all those details would seem to me to be a mistake.

There has been no attempt, so far as I know, at any time by any of the institutions to hide the egg, so to speak, but they have been forthright and very frank in their presentations. If you want to, you can look at these books which I held up here a moment ago which will show you all of the things I have been talking about, but not broken down to the nth degree for some of the reasons I have given.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Are you still wishing to retain the floor, Delegate Binkowski?

MR. BINKOWSKI: Just for a few comments, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Bonisteel, I hope that my question will not be misconstrued; as I attempted to preface the question, these are things which I have just read about. I am not a former legislator and I never worked for these various state universities. I raised the question because it appeared to be a problem in the past. If the former legislators here present are satisfied with this language, if it will help or will once and for all settle the problems, then I certainly will be satisfied.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Do you wish recognition, Delegate Barthwell?

MR. BARTHWELL: Mr. Chairman, I would just like to say to Delegate Binkowski, again, as a member of the committee, to me "all income" meant all income; we did not say public income or private, we said "all income"; so I think that means all income, Delegate Binkowski.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair wondered how long Regent Goebel would remain seated. Delegate Goebel.

MR. GOEBEL: Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman. I would like to speak to Mr. Binkowski's question. I have been a regent but a very short time at the University of Michigan, but I did have the pleasure of a week ago accompanying the senate appropriations committee to the university and spent a day with them, came back with them, and inquired of all of them whether or not they had all the information, financial and otherwise, that they wanted, and they all were very ready to say that they had received all of the information that they needed with regard to the university, not only on financial matters but on the other matters that were of concern to them. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: May we now proceed to the consideration of the pending amendments that have been filed with the secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 20, after "funds;", by inserting "shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law;".

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: No.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Any comment from a member of the committee or other delegate?

Delegate Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: I would like to respectfully suggest that the language is not necessary in this particular case.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I completely concur in the remarks of the gentleman from Hancock. We felt that this language is completely unnecessary; that, obviously, if the legislature wanted to create by statute new duties for these institutions, they would be empowered to do so. We ask that the amendment be voted down.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair suggests the secretary read this particular clause, here, as it would be with the Wanger amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: In section c, the language would then read, beginning on line 15:

> Other institutions of higher education created by the legislature having authority to grant baccalaureate degrees shall each be governed by a board of control which shall be a body corporate; shall have general supervision of the institution and the control and direction of all expenditures from the institution's funds; —

then the insertion of the Wanger amendment:

> — shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law; —

then:

> — shall, as often as necessary, elect a president of the institution under its supervision who shall be the principal executive officer of the institution, be an ex officio member — and so forth.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: I must disagree, respectfully, with Chairman Bentley's interpretation of section c as it stands now, because I believe without the insertion of such a clause as I have proposed and which I understood was agreeable at the time I offered it, that the legislature would under no circumstances be able to prescribe any additional duties whatsoever. As I said previously, I thought it wise that they should have such powers, so that in the future the development of educational institutions would not be impeded.

This section c applies to any educational institution which includes those which might be created in the future. It seems to me it does not behoove us to just limit them completely to a set of powers in the constitution and forbid the legislature to ever increase those.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Bentley has retained the floor.

MR. BENTLEY: Just to comment, Mr. Chairman. We have adopted insofar as possible the language of the existing constitution, and I might point out to Mr. Wanger that if his amendment would prevail — which I hope it does not —it would still specifically exempt the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University, because section c does not apply to those 3.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me, to the contrary, that the present constitution with respect to Michigan State and Wayne State University does provide specifically what my amendment would create here. So it seems to me that this is in keeping with what the present constitution has provided for Wayne and for Michigan State. My amendment, of course, does not apply to Wayne and Michigan State, because of their unique circumstances as being our big 3 great universities, historically so; but it seems to me with respect to these others, and particularly those created in the future, that this flexibility is desirable.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Detroit, Delegate Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: I want to take issue with Delegate Bentley as to the effect of this language. I am not taking any position on the language; I just want to straighten him out on the effect of it. Without this language, there is very, very little that the legislature could do about a constitutional body such as you are about to create. There are cases here relating to the University of Michigan, where there was no such language, in which the court said that the legislature — you will find it in the blue book here, on page 431:

> Whether the provision in Laws 1855, page 232, that there should always be at least one professor of homeopathy in the department of medicine of the university was repugnant to Constitution 1850, article XIII, which conferred upon the regents the power of general supervision of the university, query; the court being equally divided . . . under Constitution 1850, . . . the regents had direct and exclusive control of the university; and public acts 1895, 257, attempting to compel the discontinuance of the existing homeopathic medical college at Ann Arbor, and the reestablishment thereof at Detroit, was void.

So without this language the constitution gives each of these universities unlimited power without restriction or without change by the legislature.

As a matter of fact, if it wasn't for the addition of the last line in your section a, the universities would not even be required to account for their funds, because they have exclusive jurisdiction and control of the expenditure of their funds.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. Chairman, I wish to rise in opposition to the amendment and support the position taken by Chairman Bentley. I believe that our historical language giving the governing body of the university general supervision has proven to be very well understood and giving them the responsibility. I think at times we forget that Michigan has a tremendous tradition of a great state with dedication to public education both in the high schools as well as in our universities. Part of this has been because people have supported the concept of education and part because our universities have, in the large, had their constitutional independence.

I strongly support section b, which expands that constitutional independence to other institutions of higher education. I believe this is a step forward. I think that these should be kept as a separate entity of government. I am afraid that if we start saying their duties can be added by legislative action, we may have a little act here and a little act there and the first thing we know the tail may be wagging the dog. This system has worked out historically, and I urge our retention of the original language that the chairman has supported.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: If the Chair might digress just for a moment, Delegate Lawrence called attention to certain examples of discrimination around here. Apparently, we have a very clear reflection of the pending amendment on the one wall, but it looks as though that one over there on the other wall is pretty vague. The Chair does not know whether that is true from where you sit or not. Delegate Wanger.

MR. WANGER: I think perhaps, Mr. Chairman, that Mr. Downs misconceives my amendment because, to the contrary of what he has said, my amendment puts back into the constitution what has been there all the time with respect to Wayne and Michigan State. The committee deleted it and it came out of the committee with that deleted. I merely suggest that with respect to the institutions dealt with in section c that we should put back this traditional historical language which no one on this floor has complained has caused the educational institutions involved any difficulty whatsoever and which, again, I say would be wise to retain for flexibility, particularly for institutions which are not even created at this date and which would be involved.

The second point I would like to make, I think, is that if I understood Delegate Ostrow's comments correctly, I do not completely agree with his interpretation. It seems to me that adding this language would in no way allow the legislature to invade the boards' general supervisory authority of the institutions and the control and direction of all expenditures from the institutions' funds. This is the independence and the power which such educational institutions rightfully deserve with respect to their curricula and their other academic activities. My amendment would merely enable them to be endowed with additional duties.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: We have now had considerable discussion of the Wanger amendment. Can we bring ourselves to vote thereon? If there is no further discussion, those favoring the Wanger amendment signify by saying aye. Opposed, no.

Apparently, the noes have it.

DELEGATES: Division.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Division is requested. Is the demand seconded?

SECRETARY CHASE: Not a sufficient number up.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Not a sufficient number up. There are further amendments on the secretary's desk; getting deeper all the time. Proceed.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 26, after "governor" by striking out "in a manner similar to other executive appointments as provided in this constitution"; so that the language will then read: "Each board of control shall consist of 8 members who shall hold office for 8 years and who shall be appointed by the governor. . . ."

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Ford, do you wish to say anything? This matter has been discussed in various ways earlier in the afternoon. Delegate Ford.

MR. FORD: The only thing I can say in support of the amendment is that this is one of the methods of selecting a board and I, as one delegate, before I vote to create 8 member constitutional bodies throughout the state, would like to know how those bodies are selected, and this is one way of arriving at a decision on just what we are creating here, who is going to pick these people, who is going to be responsible. Are we going to have the responsibility placed in the hands of someone who is elected by all of the people?

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Will the gentleman yield for a question as to the extent of his amendment? I would like to ask the gentleman to interpret his amendment for me, thus: if the Ford amendment should prevail, does the gentleman intend then that there will be no legislative action required insofar as the governor's appointment was concerned?

MR. FORD: With respect to these particular people, no.

MR. BENTLEY: Thank you. I oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Martin, did you wish to speak?

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, since Mr. Ford has offered his amendment, I would rise to oppose the amendment. I have an amendment on the secretary's desk which will provide that such appointments shall be subject to advice and consent of the senate, as is the case with other executive appointments, as proposed in our executive branch article. The amendment would leave the last sentence of the paragraph, which is "Vacancies shall be filled in like manner." I believe his amendment strikes that out, does it not, Mr. Ford?

MR. FORD: No. I think the secretary read it as though it did, but I only strike line 27.

MR. MARTIN: I see. Well, in any event, the simple question here is whether the governor is to make appointments without any legislative consent whatsoever or whether there should be this element of review attached to these appointments as well as to other executive appointments. I feel that no different policy should be followed here than is being proposed with respect to all other executive appointments.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: May we have the last part of section c read, so there is no question before we vote?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford's amendment is as follows:

1. Amend page 2, line 26, after "governor" by striking out "in a manner similar to other executive appointments as provided in this constitution"; so the language would then read:

> Each board of control shall consist of 8 members who shall hold office for 8 years and who shall be appointed by the governor. Vacancies shall be filled in like manner.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is on the Ford amendment. All in favor signify by saying aye. Those opposed, no. The Chair declares it lost.

DELEGATES: Division.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: There is request for division. Is the demand seconded?

SECRETARY CHASE: Sufficient number up.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: A sufficient number up. Those in favor of the Ford amendment, signify by voting aye. Opposed, no. Have you all voted? Hurry, hurry, hurry — coming on the run. The secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Ford, the yeas are 32, the nays are 80.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Martin offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 26, after "governor" by striking out the balance of line 26 and all of line 27 and inserting "subject to advice and consent of the senate."; so the language will read:

> Each board of control shall consist of 8 members who shall hold office for 8 years and who shall be appointed by the governor subject to advice and consent of the senate. Vacancies shall be filled in like manner.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I think the amendment is self explanatory. I do want to add this fact, however: that the committtee on executive branch in its Committee Proposal 71, has a paragraph which reads as follows:

> Appointment by and with the advice and consent of the senate when used in this constitution or in statutes in effect or hereafter enacted shall mean appointment subject to disapproval by a majority vote of the members elect of the senate if such action is taken within 60 legislative days after the date of such appointment.

It simply requires, in other words, that the senate act rather than simply let the matter lie there indefinitely. We believe that this is a fairer provision. This is not a part of the amendment, but I thought that the delegates should know that this is a part of the proposal of the committee on executive branch.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. MARTIN: Certainly. Yes.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, it was my understanding that the gentleman was going to offer this as an amendment to the Ford amendment and not to be voted on separately. Now, since we are going to have to discuss this entire matter again when the executive branch proposal comes up, and since the defeat of the Ford amendment retains the present language which will allow all appointments to conform to whatever the committee or the convention decides to do when executive branch proposal arises, and, thirdly, because there are those of us on the executive branch committee who have a minority position on this particular matter and there may be other minority positions, I wonder if the gentleman would consider withdrawing his amendment and deferring this matter until the time when the executive branch proposal comes before us, and we can properly deliberate and debate on this subject without having to repeat everything that may be said at this time.

MR. MARTIN: This is entirely satisfactory with me, Mr. Chairman, Mr. Bentley. That may expedite matters. For that reason, I will withdraw this amendment tonight, since you prepared the other one.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Martin withdraws his amendment.

Do you seek the recognition of the Chair, Mr. Downs?

MR. DOWNS: Yes. I still wish to ask Mr. Martin — I think the question is still germane — does he believe that the constitutional educational body should be put in the same status as regular executive departments of government for the purpose of advice and consent?

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Downs, I do not see any fundamental difference between this type of appointment and other types of appointments. It does seem to me, and I think to the other members of the committee I have been working on, that some legislative consideration should be given to these appointments and that this is a healthy check and that the governor should take this into account in making his appointments to the educational bodies just as well as to any other kind of body.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley, did you wish to comment further?

MR. BENTLEY: No.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Hart.

MISS HART: Mr. Chairman, I am a little bit disturbed about the constant reference to committee. I think if we are going to talk about committee, we need to talk then about the majority opinion and the minority opinion, because the minority made itself quite evident as to how it felt; and so, I hope that we will talk now of majorities and minorities in these reports and not give the impression that it was a unanimous decision on the part of the committee. I am sure that Mr. Martin did not intend to do that.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Martin amendment has been withdrawn. The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Allen offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 24, after "and" by inserting "may"; so that the language will read:

> . . . shall, as often as necessary, elect a president of the institution under its supervision who shall be the principal executive officer of the institution, be an ex officio member of the board but without the right to vote, and may preside at meetings of the board.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Kalamazoo, Delegate Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. Chairman, this matter pertains to the problem of whether or not the president of the university shall or must act as presiding officer at meetings of the board, or whether the board can use its discretion and have a presiding officer from among the members of the board.

Now, on the big 3 universities, the practice has grown up and the constitution has provided that the presidents actually preside, and I think this is very fine. It is the way tradition has developed, and they have developed their own system. Under paragraph b, I feel there is no need to make any change; but under paragraph c, we are dealing with the other 7 schools. Now, of these 7 schools — one of them is very new, Grand Valley is not finished yet — of these 7 schools all but 2 have been, of course, under the state board of education, but 2 of them, Michigan College of Mines and Ferris, have had a separate board; and I think it is interesting to note that on these 2 schools where there has been a separate board the president has not presided. The presiding officer has come from the appointed board members. So that if, in section c, we leave the language as it is, "shall", that he shall preside, what we are doing is that we are reversing the tradition that has grown up at Ferris and at Michigan College of Mines.

Now, secondly, I wonder about the policy of having the president be the presiding officer. I think it is all right on the large schools, but take your own boards of education at home: does the president of the board of education preside? Or does the superintendent of public education? Of course, the superintendent of public education does not. Or, if you take city government, does the presiding officer of the city elective body, the mayor, preside, or does the city manager? Of course, it is someone from the policymaking board, the mayor.

Now then, thirdly, I would point out that in the John Dale Russell report, Russell argued that it would be wiser for each governing board to choose its chairman or presiding officer from among its own members rather than to have the president of the college or university be the presiding officer.

Therefore, we can accomplish this same result by inserting the word "may" rather than having it in effect "shall"; so that the schools can develop their own practice. Some schools may want the president to preside; other schools, like Ferris and Michigan College of Mines, may wish to continue their tradition of having someone from the appointed board preside. The purpose of this amendment is to lay this policy decision squarely before you. Personally, I think it is better to leave some flexibility and leave a choice, so that the president does not have to preside in the case of these other institutions.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Chairman Bentley, do you care to comment?

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I dislike to disagree with my good friend from Kalamazoo, but I must say that we deliberately adopted the language which is pertinent, as he has admitted, to Michigan, Michigan State, and Wayne State, with respect to the other 7 institutions. It was done, so far as I know, at their request. I believe they all preferred the language that we have in the present proposal. So far as I know, the problem was not discussed to any great extent, at least within the committee on education, and I would have to ask that the Allen amendment be voted down.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is on the Allen amendment. Delegate Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, I just want to call the attention of the delegates to another amendment, which I have offered, which carries out in part the intent of Mr. Allen but goes one step further. I have suggested that the board "shall" elect one of their number as chairman — and not merely make it a question of "may", and that is an alternative before this committee with regard to a policy decision on this matter. I just wanted to call to the attention of the delegates that there will be an amendment along that line.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is now on the Allen amendment. Delegate Stevens from Detroit.

MR. STEVENS: I may be wrong on this, but I always supposed that one important reason that the president presides in these 3 institutions is that he does not have a vote. He, therefore, is a nonvoting presiding officer or a mere moderator rather than having somebody who has a vote preside. It seemed to me that was important.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Delegate Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mr. Bentley a question, if I may. If this person were absent for any reason, either illness or out of town or something, and it was required that he "shall" preside at meetings of the board, would it be possible for the board to meet, in effect; or would this interfere with the efficiency of the operation?

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: I would have to ask someone who actually has headed one of these institutions, Mr. Yeager, to comment on this. I don't know whether Dr. Anspach could make a comment on that matter or not. I would assume that the language means just what it says and would require his presence there; but in the event, for example, you had a governing board desiring to meet and the president is ill, I don't know whether or not it could still go ahead and meet or not.

I will yield to Dr. Anspach, the gentleman from Mt. Pleasant.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Bentley, inasmuch as Mr. Bonisteel operated such a board for 18 years where this situation might have arisen, I think his answers would have more validity than mine. I will yield to him.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Delegate Anspach yields to Delegate Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, in answer to the question, I would say that this does not prevent holding a meeting. It merely means, and it has been our experience over the years, that in the absence of the president either on account of illness or for some other reason, the vice president or whoever is the next executive officer presides, because, after all, his absence doesn't change the action of the board. The board members are the ones who vote. They cast the vote. This is merely a matter of presiding; so I think there is no question of legality, or no question of postponement by reason of the absence of the president.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is now on the Allen amendment. All in favor signify by saying aye. Opposed, no.

It sounds as though the amendment is defeated.

A DELEGATE: Division.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: Division is requested. Is the demand supported?

SECRETARY CHASE: Sufficient number, 12.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: A sufficient number up. Those in favor of the Allen amendment will signify by voting aye. Opposed, no. One minute has now elapsed. The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote. The secretary will announce the result of the voting.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Allen, the yeas are 51, the nays are 60.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The amendment is not adopted. Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee do now rise.

CHAIRMAN POWELL: The question is on the motion by Delegate Bentley that the committee do now rise. All in favor, signify by saying aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, Vice President Hutchinson resumed the Chair.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention will be in order. The Chair recognizes the delegate from Ionia, Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the committee of the whole has had under consideration part of one committee proposal of which the secretary will make a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 98, has considered several amendments thereto, and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on style and drafting will meet tomorrow, February 20, at 7:30 p.m. Mr. William B. Cudlip, chairman.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet tomorrow, Tuesday, immediately after the afternoon session. Richard C. Van Dusen, chairman.

The following announcement: will all the delegates who can do so after the session this evening please remove their cars from the parking lot so that the parking lot can be cleared of snow during the night. (applause)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: What is the pleasure of the convention? The Chair recognizes the delegate from Oakland, Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, I move that this convention do now recess until 8:00 p.m.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon recessing. All those in favor say aye. Those opposed say no.

The motion prevails, and the convention stands in recess until 8:00 p.m.

[Whereupon, at 5:35 o'clock p.m., the convention recessed; and, at 8:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

The convention will be in order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Pursuant to a previous order of the convention, the first item of business this evening will be the further consideration of Resolution 70, and the secretary will announce the item of business.

SECRETARY CHASE: Under the order of unfinished business, the president lays before the convention Resolution 70, A resolution of the constitutional convention establishing a budget for post constitutional convention expenses. This resolution was submitted by Mr. DeVries, on behalf of the committee on administration; has been reported out of committee with 2 recommended amendments and was postponed until today.

For Resolution 70 as offered, see above, page 986.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the delegate from Kent, Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, may I suggest the secretary read the 2 amendments offered by the committee and that we take action on those.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee reported the resolution with 2 amendments:

[The amendments were read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 1024.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is on agreeing to the amendments recommended by the committee on administration to the resolution. On those amendments, the Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, as we explained last week Tuesday, the first amendment strikes the words "80 page" because we don't know what the number of pages will be in the address to the people. The second merely inserts on page 599 the words "10 cents a mile." That should be self explanatory, at least on the second amendment.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the committee amendments. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendments are adopted.

The question is upon the adoption of the resolution as amended. Upon the resolution the Chair again recognizes Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, this resolution supplements the one that was passed earlier by the convention, Resolution 65. That resolution set up the functions and duties of the post constitutional convention commission and also made it bipartisan. I believe it passed unanimously.

This budget that you have before you, on page 596 through the 4 or 5 succeeding pages, was adopted unanimously by the committee on administration, the committee on public information and the officers of this convention.

We need action on this budget at this time, because the legislature has requested it. We are not asking the legislature at this time for additional money; what we are asking in a proposed bill is that they give us the authority to transfer funds from one line item to another, from the delegates' salaries line item to the operations line item.

Again, if we can review this — if you will turn to your journal, page 588, and look at the 2 line items, items I and II, and look at the estimated balance in both line items for March 31 and total the 2, you will see that if we adjourn March 31 we shall have about $416,000 left. If we adjourn April 30, we shall have about $190,000 left; and May 15, about $75,000. Then if you will turn to the budget that we are presenting to you, which is on page 596, the first page is a summary, a line item summary, of the detailed explanation which is on the following pages.

If you break down this budget into functions, you find that there are 3 major functions to be performed by the commission. The first function is that of a public information function, and here I will quote to you from the statute regarding our obligations and responsibilities when this convention adjourns. Act 8 of the public acts of 1961, provides that:

> The convention shall before its adjournment prepare and adopt an address to the people of the state explaining the proposed changes in the present constitution and the reasons for such changes and such other matters as the convention shall deem advisable. Not less than 25,000 copies of this address in pamphlet form containing the full text of the revised constitution shall be printed and distributed as the convention shall direct.

The point here is that before an address to the people can be printed and distributed, a majority of this convention must approve that which goes into the address to the people. That would be the basis of the activities of the public information department. Now, for that purpose, under the $333,000 budget being presented to you, $118,000 would be for the public information function. Out of the $118,000, $96,000 would go for the printing and distribution of the address to the people.

Now, the second function that the commission should perform is that of the administration and housekeeping chores, and this would amount to about $71,000. Of the $71,000, $30,000 would go for the restoration of the civic center and for the salaries of the staff in the period immediately following the sine die adjournment.

The third function of the commission is the publication and distribution of the convention record. That includes the action journal and the verbatim debates of this convention, and for that about $126,000 is allocated. Of this $126,000, about $103,000 goes for the convention record.

So there are fixed costs in this budget which we cannot escape, and we have certain obligations, both statutory and constitutional. The constitutional obligation I did not cite, I will read it to you now, comes from article XVII, section 4 of the present constitution, which provides, "The convention shall have power to appoint such officers" and so on, "and to provide for the printing and distribution of its documents, journals and proceedings." This is a constitutional obligation that this convention cannot escape.

Mr. President, I would move the adoption of the resolution, and I would be happy to answer any questions the delegates may have on its adoption.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes the delegate from the fifth district, Mr. Faxon.

MR. FAXON: Mr. President, I am a little bit concerned here about to what extent we read the so called constitutional charter as to what we must do when it comes to the matter of the dissemination of information. Now, I can follow along with the delegates the need for housecleaning and the need for a permanent historical record to be disseminated through the state, to libraries, et cetera. The part that I don't quite follow is the amount which is being expended with regard to the dissemination of information following the adjournment of the convention. Now, while we are still in convention, I would think that we would be able to act upon the question of the address to the people; that is, we ought to be able to know what it is we are saying with regard to the proposed changes that we are going to make in the constitution.

The additional functions beyond our adjournment are the things that concern me with regard to the listing of expenses for that period. Now, I will make a statement on that particular aspect, that is, on the question of the dissemination of information following the adjournment up until the time of the election and, essentially, the use of public money for this particular kind of purpose.

I would like just as a preliminary statement to state that I am fully aware of the fine work which Dr. DeVries has done in the preparation of this report. I was also unable, as a member of the public information committee, to participate at the time that this question was brought before the committee; and so, although I realize that this has the concurrence of that committee, I wish to state that I was not able to be there at that time, and at that time I was thus unable to express the views which I am going to share with you now.

Essentially, I view this in a very conservative way, and I view it conservatively because I see here an area where the state or the moneys of the state are going into a function which has been historically that of private industry or private enterprise: that is, the function of the dissemination of information.

Now, we have here in Michigan historically depended upon the people and organizations of the people to carry forth messages involving government, and what we are doing here is setting up a public information office which will have the responsibility which is similar in many ways to the kinds of responsibility we see such offices assume in other countries where socialism and communism are practiced: that is, the dissemination of information as to what has taken place according to that particular office or commission. I fear the invasion of government into this particular enterprise. I don't know if that sounds inconsistent coming from me, but I think that if Thomas Jefferson were alive today he would equally fear, have concern of this sort as to putting public money into the process of a public information office.

We here in the convention have already agreed to the deletion of a state paper, and we did so with the full idea that this was a practice which was no longer prevalent. Well, this is about as close as you can get to the idea of setting up a state paper, in setting up a state office of public information.

I think that we have had a good experience here in this state in letting people carry the ball and letting private groups, as they have been existing over the past years, carry forth the message of our work. Our responsibility — and I don't deny this — is to prepare an address to the people but as to the distribution of that address and as to the continued information aspects of our job, I think this is a function which has traditionally been in the hands of the people, and I think it should stay there.

I think it would be a mistake for us to endorse the expenditure of sums of money for something that the private groups in the state have fought for and would be willing, if we come forth with a document that meets with their approval, to continue to support. We have groups: the citizens for a sound constitution, the citizens for Michigan, we have different groups — they have not asked money from the state for their function. Why should we attempt to usurp this job now, and to take away from the good citizens of this state the responsibility of showing an interest and concern for the dissemination of information regarding our constitutional convention?

Specifically, then, Dr. DeVries, I would wonder whether those amounts of money which you are proposing that we authorize here regarding the aspects of the office of public information, its costs, the staff, the mileage allowances for people who are working on the staff, whether these expenditures might not be deleted and that we might show to the people of this state a sounder feeling for economy in our own operations here, as we are concerned with the total future of the state. I will yield the floor to Dr. DeVries for an answer.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Do you desire to answer at this time, Doctor?

MR. DeVRIES: Yes, Mr. President. Delegate Faxon, let me say that my fear of creeping socialism is at least as great as yours. If we could make this kind of an arrangement, Mr. Faxon, that all the public relations work being done by the administrative agencies of the state, the thousands of dollars that are being spent by them, and their public information and public relations campaigns should be eliminated, then I will reconsider the committee's position on this matter. What you forget is this: that the convention must approve this address and must approve the constitutional draft and they must approve the accompanying explanation. It has to be done in convention. The way this resolution was worded, you cannot go beyond that which is in the address to the people and the accompanying explanation. Furthermore, a major part of the cost for the office of public information, $97,000 out of $118,000, to be exact, is for the printing and distribution of the address to the people.

I don't think you want to take the position that after we have spent 7½ months on this constitution that we shouldn't let the people of this state know what we have done. I think they deserve a chance and the right to see an explanation of exactly what we have done, and we are required to do this under the statute. So I would be opposed to cutting out anything dealing with the public information budget on that ground. The vast majority of the cost here is for the address and its accompanying explanation and for nothing else.

MR. FAXON: I don't challenge the need for this particular item which you refer to now, nor do I feel that it is necessarily germane that we get involved ourselves in what functions other agencies of the state might perform; we are capable of making our own judgment aside from theirs.

My concern, Dr. DeVries, is with the question, for instance, of mileage to and from Lansing for the staff. Now, this may be a small item, but this is a total part of this office of public information. Now, if what you say is true that all we are going to do is to prepare a draft for the people and then distribute that draft, then I do not see where we need certain expenses which you have outlined here. I would like to yield for the answer to that.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Do you desire to answer that question, Dr. DeVries?

MR. DeVRIES: Yes, Mr. President. Delegate Faxon, you are referring to the $1,000 item for staff mileage; is that correct?

MR. FAXON: Yes, that would be item E.

MR. DeVRIES: Well, that was put in here on the request of the secretary's office because the feeling was that perhaps this printing contract for the convention record might be let out of the city of Lansing. If that were the case, the secretary's staff would be required to travel to and from the printer; and if it turns out that the contract is let in Lansing we will not need the $1,000, but in this case we felt it best to put it in there, so that is why the $1,000 is in there for the staff.

MR. FAXON: I would then ask you this, sir. If we are to look at some of the items, for what reason do we need an executive director? Is his job, then, simply to distribute the proceedings of the convention following adjournment up until the time it is voted on? I see here an item for 7 months at $1,200 a month. Is his job simply one of distribution or does he actually perform any function as to policymaking or additional work? I would like to yield to Dr. DeVries with regard to the staff of this proposed distribution group.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Do you desire to answer the question, sir?

MR. DeVRIES: Yes, Mr. President, I do. Mr. President and Delegate Faxon, on page 598 we list the salaries and wages of the staff at the estimated maximum amount of time they will be on after sine die adjournment, and, because it says the executive director will be on 7 months, it doesn't necessarily mean that he will be on 7 months; he will serve as long as the commission desires. His function is the overall supervision of the commission staff, which, for the first 4 weeks following the convention, will be considerable. It will consist of most of the former staff for periods ranging from 1 week to 4 weeks. He will also be responsible for compiling and transferring convention records, which I think is considerable responsibility, and we want a man here whom we can trust in this position. He will also be in charge of the disposition of convention properties, getting the necessary bids and so on, and he will have the commission correspondence. If it turns out the commission decides that they don't need him, then, after 2, 3, 4, 5 months, he can be discharged. This is not a guarantee of full employment; this is only a maximum estimated time for this particular person and, in every case, on the staff here, these are estimates concerning the amount of time that they will be on following the sine die adjournment. Does that answer your question?

MR. FAXON: That answers that, but I would like to ask this, Dr. DeVries: whether any thought was given in terms of this type of operation being turned back over to the state, just as they had done much of the work preceding it, in terms of the cleaning up; whether it is necessary for us to employ additional people to do what might be done just as well by present employees. We already have within our own convention people who are on leave from state employment. Why is it necessary to hire additional people or to pay these salaries for people who might be available, say through the secretary of state's office, to do the cleaning up? I would like to yield for an answer, and then I have another question.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Faxon, there is no intention of hiring new people. The people you see in this salary schedule are people who are now on the staff and will be retained anywhere from 1 week to 4 weeks and, in the case of the permanent commission staff, perhaps up to 7 months. There is no intention here of hiring any new people. Furthermore, the delegates of this convention have a responsibility as delegates to provide these services after we adjourn. That is part of their responsibility. We acquired this property; we have some responsibility in disposing of it. We also have a responsibility in the address to the people and the printing of our convention records, and a lot of policy decisions will have to be made when this convention adjourns.

It is our feeling — and I am sure it is yours — that the former delegates should have some control over the disposition of the property, the restoration of the civic center, the printing of the records and the address to the people. We feel our responsibilities extend beyond the sine die adjournment. That is the reason for the commission and that is why we will retain part of the present staff.

MR. FAXON: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I have no objection to anything with regard to the printing of the historical record, and I made that quite clear. My only concern is with the additional responsibilities which I am afraid that the public information office may assume after we are no longer here as delegates to act as any check upon that office, realizing full well that there will be a commission operating in our place.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President —

MR. FAXON: First, if I may just make one more note, Dr. DeVries. If the function of the post convention commission is strictly the dissemination of the address to the people, then I fail to see where TV public service slides, artwork and mats for releases, and materials of this sort are in line and keeping with that particular function which Dr. DeVries has stated as our responsibility, and which I have no feeling that we feel we are going to neglect here.

I just point this out and make my final observation which is, namely, that there is room for economizing and for showing a little more concern with the public moneys here in this whole commission and in this whole office, and I would invite the delegates to look scrutinizingly at this budget and to see whether in their own minds some of these expenses are in keeping with the strict responsibility of submitting and disseminating an address to the people dealing with the proposed changes in the constitution. That is all. Thank you.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Do you desire recognition a second time at this time, Delegate DeVries?

MR. DeVRIES: Yes, Mr. President, if I may.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair reminds you that you can speak only twice without unanimous consent, sir.

MR. DeVRIES: I will take the chance, Mr. President. (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All right.

MR. DeVRIES: I am trying to get Mr. Faxon's position clear. It seems to be this: that he does not trust a bipartisan post constitutional convention commission consisting of former delegates, but he does trust the secretary of state to perform our responsibilities once this convention is over. Now, I think I have got that straight. It seems to me that our responsibilities extend beyond the sine die adjournment, and it should best be under the control of a bipartisan commission of former delegates than placed in the hands of a state agency.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Were you seeking recognition, Mr. Barthwell?

MR. BARTHWELL: Mr. President, I just wanted to ask Dr. DeVries a couple of questions. You said that the cost of the printing and distribution of the address to the people would be $97,000?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Barthwell, the total cost for the printing and distribution of the convention record is $103,160.

MR. BARTHWELL: I am interested in knowing who you are going to mail a million copies of the address to the people to.

MR. DeVRIES: Oh, I am sorry. I thought you were talking about the convention record. You are talking now about the address to the people?

MR. BARTHWELL: Yes.

MR. DeVRIES: And your question is to whom are we going to mail them?

MR. BARTHWELL: Yes.

MR. DeVRIES: I will yield the floor to the chairman of the committee on public information, Mr. President, Mr. White.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. White is recognized to answer the question of the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Barthwell.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President and Delegate Barthwell, these will not be necessarily mailed. It is very probable that a good many will be at requests from people who write for them. It is our assumption that a good many of them will be distributed through other agencies and that we will have the cost of the express and freight shipments to groups that want them: the colleges, schools, libraries and other places that would be able to distribute these addresses. We estimate that cost, roughly, at about 2 cents per copy of the million copies. Since there are, as you know, approximately 3½ million voters in the state, we feel that a million is not excessive as far as the number of pamphlets is concerned. Does that answer your question, sir?

MR. BARTHWELL: That answers my question. I am a little bit skeptical, though, about a million copies because, even if there are 3½ million voters, I am of the opinion that some of them belong to the same family; so I am wondering if we are not preparing more copies than is necessary for us to distribute this information to the people.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President, Delegate Barthwell, this is possible. On the other hand, I think you understand the range of costs in printing. It occurred to us that the cost of an extra hundred thousand, for example, of these was not much greater in the original run than the full million would be.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Dr. DeVries, a few more questions, sir, please. Dr. DeVries, your budget is predicated upon the supposition that this convention will adjourn March 31 of this year, is that correct?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Binkowski, it is based on 3 suppositions: March 31, April 30 and May 15.

MR. BINKOWSKI: In other words, regardless of the time which the convention adjourns, you think that the maximum period of time, that the executive director, the secretary, the finance clerk, et cetera, et cetera, will not be operating for any longer than the 7 month period?

MR. DeVRIES: That is my understanding, yes.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Dr. DeVries, I think earlier that you mentioned all these people are presently working on the staff, and I would like to find out who is the executive director presently.

MR. DeVRIES: You are asking me, Mr. Binkowski, who the president of the convention will appoint as the executive director?

MR. BINKOWSKI: No, Dr. DeVries. I think that you said that in answer to Mr. Faxon's question; you said most of these people were on the staff and that we would not have to go outside the convention to hire any additional staff.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Binkowski, it would be my guess that the executive director would come from the present staff. Who the commission will appoint, I don't know. I would assume that he would be one of the present staff members.

MR. BINKOWSKI: But presently we have no such individual as executive director?

MR. DeVRIES: No, sir.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Okay. I talked to you before, Dr. DeVries, in asking whether it would be possible to table this matter for a month, because it is my understanding that it is no longer possible to get a bill through the legislature. It seems to me the deadline for logging in any bills with the legislative research passed last week.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Binkowski, the deadline for the introduction of bills is February 21, which is Wednesday. The reason we need this budget passed now is that the legislature asked us 4 weeks ago for a detailed analysis of our budget report, and the basic thing we are asking the legislature now is not for an appropriation. What we are asking is the authority to transfer funds from the delegates' salaries line item to the other; we cannot use delegates' salaries for expenses for operations.

We still have a March 31 deadline; if we adjourn by then, and we did have the authority, we have plenty of money left in our $2 million appropriation to accomplish these tasks. If we adjourned on April 30, we might need an additional appropriation of around $125,000.

What we are asking the legislature now is not for an appropriation, but we are asking them for the authority to use the funds in the delegates' salaries line item — that is, assuming, now, that we adjourn March 31 — and I have no other evidence to the contrary, although you notice I did plan the budget up to May 15, but that is the cynical pessimist in me.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Dr. DeVries, if this convention does adjourn May 15, 1962 how much more money will the legislature then be asked to actually appropriate?

MR. DeVRIES: If we adjourn May 15, Mr. Binkowski?

MR. BINKOWSKI: Yes, that's correct.

MR. DeVRIES: Well, one thing I did not point out to the convention which I should say parenthetically, and that is that we expect to recapture about $60,000 which does not show on this budget. We expect to recapture about $30,000 from the sale of equipment and $30,000 from the sale of convention records. If we adjourned on May 15, it is my understanding that we would then need about $250,000.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Well, Dr. DeVries, on the basis of that statement, I would like to find out just very roughly how different an analogy would it be if the legislature went ahead and passed a law and then appropriated $¼ million to go and sell it to the people? How different are we than that position right now?

MR. DeVRIES: I am sorry, Mr. Binkowski, I didn't understand your question.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Well, here we are asking the legislature to spend $¼ million of the people's money in addition to the $2 million which we would have spent at that time to go ahead and "sell" a new document. My question is: would it be a valid public purpose for the legislature to go ahead and pass a law and then appropriate $¼ million to go in and sell that law?

MR. DeVRIES: Well, Mr. President and Mr. Binkowski, who is asking the legislature for $¼ million to sell anything? We are asking the legislature for 3 things: first of all, we are asking for authority to transfer funds. I don't think we are going to go to May 15 or maybe April 30; I don't know. The point is we are asking for authority to transfer funds. We are also asking for, or showing them in our budget, that we need $126,000 to publish the convention record and other records. We are saying to them that we need $70,000 for administrative and housekeeping duties to restore, put the civic center back in shape. Then we are asking $97,000 for an address to the people which the legislature required in public act 8 of 1961. So I do not understand your premise that we are asking the legislature for money to sell the constitution. We are asking for authority to do things that we are required to do constitutionally and on the basis of statute.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Well, I think that very few of us, Dr. DeVries, have any quarrel with the preparation of the address to the people and the document itself, and you say this will run approximately $97,000?

MR. DeVRIES: That's correct.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Then how much did you — was the budget anticipated to restore constitution hall and the equipment and so forth?

MR. DeVRIES: The best estimate we have on the restoration of the civic center is $30,000, which comes from the department of administration, but their item for administration and housekeeping is about $71,000. Half of that is for salaries and other services in the month following the sine die adjournment.

MR. BINKOWSKI: But, Dr. DeVries, again, I am sorry, I am at a loss to really find out why either the secretary of state or the department of administration is not quite capable of restoring the constitution hall to the condition that they had put it in originally. We had nothing to do with it in the first instance.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Binkowski, I am at a loss to understand the apparent change in attitude. Now, this convention adopted the resolution, Resolution 65, and all the budget does is implement the resolution — unanimously. The committees on administration and public information — those people present, at least — voted unanimously for this budget, the officers of the convention did; and something happened in the next 10 days that all of a sudden these purposes and these responsibilities are no longer ours. This piques my curiosity. It was a good decision a month ago. It was a good decision 10 days ago. Then it is a good decision today.

MR. BINKOWSKI: But we are not all infallible, and I think it is only proper that we reconsider our actions and we are, I think, at this point reconsidering them. (laughter) I am sorry, Doctor, but the fact that we had decided this previously in Resolution 65 is not sufficient logic to me today to say that we have to continue on with our previous action, if, again, we find out through reevaluation that this was not a necessary item for $30,000 or $40,000 or $70,000 to be spent.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Binkowski, you are entitled to your logic and I to mine. (laughter)

MR. BINKOWSKI: Dr. DeVries, you are not willing to have this matter tabled for 1 month; is that correct?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Binkowski, we promised this information 4 weeks ago. We laid it over for 1 week — first, we laid it over for 1 day on the request of Delegate Hoxie, and then we laid it over until Monday; and we can't put it off any longer. I don't think that I could accede to your request to table this for any additional period of time.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Well, then, if the secretary would read my motion to amend.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Binkowski offers the following amendments to the post constitutional convention commission budget:

1. Amend item I-A., by striking out "Per diem and subsistence of commissioners (15 commissioners, 20 meetings at $30 per diem) .....$9,000.00".

2. Amend item I-B., sub-items 1, 2, 3, 23, 24 and 25, by striking out "7 mo.", and inserting "1 mo."; and sub-items 18, 19 and 21 by striking out "6 mo.", and inserting "1 mo.".

3. Amend item II, by striking out "E. Travel . . . 9,500.00 (Mileage to and from Lansing —
Commission (10 cents per mile) 8,500.00
Mileage — staff ..... 1,000.00)."

4. Amend item II-F., by striking out
"Weekly press mailings ..... 2,380.00".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendments offered by Mr. Binkowski. The Chair recognizes you upon your amendments.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I offer these amendments because, basically, I think that the work of the post convention staff should be able to be completed in 1 month; and, therefore, I think that in the interests of economy the state should not have to expend any more money than is necessary. Now, I am firmly convinced, as many are here, that if we have a sound document, if we have a progressive document, a document which is supported by both political parties, we will have no difficulty in selling it. We will not only have both political parties but we will probably have the farm bureau, the township associations, the chambers of commerce, the unions, the county officials, the newspapers, TV, radio, the league of women voters, et cetera. Therefore, I don't think that we have to expend taxes to go ahead and "sell" the document. I think a period of 6 or 7 months is much, much too long.

On the other hand, it seems to me that we in the minority, for us to approve this type of a budget, are really being asked to buy a "pig in a poke." At this point, I do not know if I, or my colleagues, or my party will be able to support this document. It is much too early. Therefore, I originally intended to have this consideration of the budget tabled; but, since Dr. DeVries did not want it tabled, it seems to me that this is the only compromise possible at this point.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendments offered by Mr. Binkowski, Delegate DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Binkowski, we are not asking for an appropriation to sell the document.

Furthermore, who are the Democrats who are buying the "pig in the poke"? Now, as I compute the number of Democrats on the committees as well as the officers, I come up with anywhere from 10 to 15 Democrats who approved this 10 days ago. Something happened around the tenth of February and then the opinion seemed to shift on the budget.

Now, speaking on the amendments, Mr. President, you intend to strike the secretary of the convention, the assistant secretary of the convention, and the journal clerk. Mr. Binkowski, no matter how you figure it, the minimum duration of activity for that part of the secretary's staff which is retained is 4 months. That is absolute minimum.

And if you want to break down the number of man hours it is going to take to proofread and edit the compiete convention record, I have it right here. I will give you part of it:

Verification and reconciliation of the verbatim typescript, 600 man hours or 15 weeks;

Integration of corrected journal and corrected verbatim journal, 300 man hours or 7.5 weeks;

Galley proofs, 600 man hours or 15 weeks;

First page proofs, 400 man hours or 10 weeks;

Final page proofs, 200 man hours or 5 weeks;

and so on, and so on. There is no way to compute the activity of the secretary's office and come up with anything less, to my mind, than 5 months.

Now if you do not want this convention to prepare its verbatim record, then I suppose, if you went along with the amendment you would strike that out and we would not have any verbatim record of the convention. That is one of our constitutional tasks. We have got to prepare it, we have got to see it published and we have got to see it supervised.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Walker, for what purpose do you rise?

MR. WALKER: A point of personal privilege, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Well, the gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: I feel that as a Democrat delegate here that my honor and one thing and another has been impugned by Mr. DeVries. (laughter) After all, there was some insinuation that there was a change of opinion and the innuendo was it was not a correct change.

I wish to make the statement that I have been in favor of certain portions of this thing from the beginning, but seeing the exact figures, this probably would explain the change on possibly my part and possibly the part of others, but I do feel that we have been wronged through the insinuation that our motives were not lily white.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: In the Chair's opinion the matter is not properly a matter of personal privilege.

The Chair will now recognize Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, it doesn't seem to me that Mr. DeVries ought to have to do all the defending of his budget, which is a very good budget and a very conservative one, and certainly absolutely necessary if the convention is to comply—and when I say the convention, I mean the Republicans and the Democrats in the convention—are going to comply with their constitutional responsibility to see that this document that is addressed to the people is printed and properly distributed.

We had a series of questions here and finally the cat jumped right out of the bag when Mr. Binkowski said, "We are not sure whether we are going to support this or not and we are not going to vote for any money until we are sure that this is exactly the way we want it." Then we really got down to the facts of the matter. So, the real question is just whether we are going to live up to our constitutional responsibilities and provide or try to provide through legislative assistance sufficient funds to do what we are already directed to do, and that is see that the record is preserved, that the address to the people is prepared and that it is properly distributed, and if the minority here are not willing to live up to that constitutional responsibility, then surely the convention is not doing very well. It seems to me we ought to vote on this and vote for it, and I hope the minority will vote for it just as well as the majority.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon Mr. Binkowski's amendments. The Chair recognizes Mr. Sterrett on the amendments.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President, I believe Mr. Faxon had some remarks earlier that would tend to weight the amendments, and I would like to ask Mr. Faxon if he has the journal mailing list.

MR. FAXON: Yes.

MR. STERRETT: Are the people receiving them?

MR. FAXON: Yes, to my knowledge.

MR. STERRETT: Are they reading them?

MR. FAXON: Yes, they are.

MR. STERRETT: And wouldn't public information, as you call a state newspaper, be similar to what you are sending to the people?

MR. FAXON: No, that's a record of the proceedings of the convention, and I think there is a difference to be made between proceedings, which have always been disseminated to the public and to people, even from the congress, rather than a state paper which is not a record but which is news or editorializing or any other number of things that could be done in a—

MR. STERRETT: I am not talking about a state paper. I am talking about the public information that would be given out by the commission at the end of the convention. It would be a consolidation and condensation of facts which would be similar to what you have been sending to the people already; although, however, the people probably have been having a hard time understanding these journals, as I have had comments given to me, and they keep asking me, "Will we get something that will consolidate this and condense it so that we will know exactly what is there?"

MR. FAXON: My objection is not to providing people with information, but the question of fact following the adjournment of the convention is the question that we as delegates will no longer be in a position to judge. I can answer questions that go on now during the proceedings of the convention when I see the people. My concern is afterwards. I don't know that I care to see an agency set up as a factual agency, because every agency clouds itself around this illusion that this is factual information here; and this is what I think everybody in the soviet union believes: that their newspapers are printing factual information. I have no dispute with this. My point is that this is not a function—after we are finished, we should not be in the position of having an agency disseminating information. I think we have normal media and normal means of communication without resorting back to an agency.

I, for instance, believe that there is no better group to disseminate information than we as delegates. I think we have been doing this throughout the whole progress of the convention. I think if we left here with the feeling that this is a good document, we can go back and sell it. I don't need any newspaper articles to comment; or, if it concerns certain areas of my district I can go back there and I can talk to the people. I know them better than the newspapers do. I think we are the best salesmen for the convention document.

I very seriously question the need for an appropriation for an office to go way over into November when we as delegates can do the job—and which is what I think we are expected to do when we are finished.

MR. STERRETT: Well, Mr. Faxon, I am very glad to see that you don't object to public information. I would like to point out that I believe you and the convention are talking about 2 different things, the same as Mr. Binkowski and the convention are talking about 2 different things. Both of you have made the remark, time after time, that there is a selling job. There is not to be a selling job by this commission. This is merely an establishing document of facts.

Mr. Binkowski, I would think that you have not done enough research on this before speaking on the matter, as judged from your amendments that you have given. Now, I thought it was only women's prerogative to change their minds—(laughter)

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. President, I move the previous question.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Cudlip moves the previous question on the amendment of Mr. Binkowski—

A DELEGATE: Division.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: There is demand for division. Is the demand supported? The demand is supported. The question is now: shall the main question be put? All those in—For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. FORD: Mr. President, I would like to ask the Chair how many names do you have listed there who had already indicated, prior to Mr. Cudlip's motion, an intention to talk on this matter?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the amendment itself the Chair had only listed Mr. Farnsworth. The question is: shall the main question now be put? All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

Then the previous question is ordered upon the amendments of Mr. Binkowski. The secretary will read the amendments.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. President, may I ask a question?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose?

MR. BINKOWSKI: May I amend my motion?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Well, no; after the the previous question is ordered here, an amendment can only be—

MR. BINKOWSKI: I was standing, Mr. President; and in compliance with Dr. DeVries'—

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: But the gentleman is out of order, Mr. Binkowski. The previous question has been ordered. The question is upon your amendments. All those in favor of the amendments offered by the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Binkowski, will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendments are not adopted.

A DELEGATE: Division.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: A division has been demanded. Is the demand supported?

SECRETARY CHASE: I count 10.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHNSON: There is a sufficient number. All those in favor of the amendments offered by Mr. Binkowski will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the totals.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendments offered by Mr. Binkowski, the yeas are 31, the nays are 88.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendments are not adopted. The question recurs upon the adoption of the resolution as amended. Several delegates sought recognition upon that question and the Chair will first recognize Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: To hark back to the exchange between Mr. Faxon and Mr. DeVries, may I point to the Michigan tourist council as an excellent example of a state agency cooperating with private business for the betterment of the whole group in handling the whole publicity picture through private enterprise, not through any state agency. The tourist council draws an appropriation of $120,000 per year, which is split between the 4 regional tourist associations: southeastern Michigan, northern Michigan, upper peninsula, I believe, and these organizations are supported primarily by private business.

I think that if we came up with a sound document that we would suffer no shortage, no lack whatsoever, of private enterprise, of civic enterprise, that would back this document and, as I have heard said here, sell the document. I think if we come up with a good document, there would be no problem with it. If I might hark back again to that same exchange, I don't recall any mention made of trust or mistrust of the secretary of state or anybody else.

I, therefore, would oppose the budget as it is written.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair next recognizes Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, fellow delegates, I hope you won't get tired listening to me read off the journal tonight. I can assure you it won't take me any longer than about 4:00 o'clock tomorrow morning. Actually, all I wanted to say is this: that the very first day that we discussed taking over constitution hall you will recall that I said then that it was a lousy spot to be; we should have something bigger. I said we had no responsibility in getting this place, and I didn't want anybody to say that it was my responsibility, any part of it. I voted against it. I am proud of that vote just as I am going to be proud of the vote when I vote against spending all this money.

For 34 years I have listened to the rantings and the ravings of economists economizing; I listened to the rantings and the ravings for several years now — most of it coming through the newspapers — about how there was too much money being spent. You know, it is getting to the point where I believe we are spending too much money. You have finally sold me. I think it was time, after 34 years, you were right. This is just in answer to a comment that was made by Delegate Hatch. I would not want him disappointed.

Now I say that we had no responsibility then and we have no responsibility now in getting rid of this place. There were others got this hall ready — oh, yes, you approved the expenditures of the funds — however, I voted against it. I am also going to vote against the expenditure of moneys to give this back to the city of Lansing—and I have nothing against the city of Lansing or their constitution or, rather, convention hall. I just didn't think it was big enough. I didn't think we could get enough people in here.

There were other things that were wrong. They are so numerous that it would take me too long — and I don't want to be accused of going beyond the March 31 deadline, because I am one delegate that sure wants to get out of here that night. (laughter) I want to be out of here the night of the thirty-first, and I don't want to be here April Fools' day. (laughter) Because I think that the citizens of this state may say after they read some of the things that have occurred here — I mean, if the responsibilities will be carried out by those who are supposed to carry out the responsibilities and tell everything that happened here, everything that has happened in this convention, as it should have been told, believe me, those citizens are going to think that there have been some fools here . . . and they will be right.

Now you are worrying about the dissemination of information. Well, I am too, just as much as you are. Now I think I have been doing as fair a share of my job on that, a fair — fair — share of the job. I haven't turned down a meeting. I have no intentions of doing so. I do believe that there is a certain amount of work that must be done by this group and that we have a certain amount of responsibility. Yes, the dissemination of information is our responsibility. But taking the public information post convention budget, I went along with it. In fact, I voted for it, and if all the committee was there I think it was unanimous. Am I right, Mr. White — Delegate White? Thank you. That night we approved a budget of $129,040. Now that is a far cry from $333,338.16.

You know we have an awful lot of mental people in this state that have to be taken care of, and you know that this difference would go a long ways in taking care of a good many of them. The difference would take care of a lot of other things that a lot of Republicans are saying shouldn't be done and they don't want to spend the money — just about 2 blocks from this place.

Yet over here, you are willing to throw it away. What gives? Is it right for you to throw it away here and not over there? Why don't you start searching your souls? I think you should. It is high time you did. I have watched you here on this floor when you refused to even change a slight word and yet you are willing to spend all kinds of money here. Well, I say bad cess to those of you who want to spend it.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair next recognizes the delegate from Wayne, Mr. Ford, on the resolution as amended.

MR. FORD: I might say that, with the luck of the draw, I find myself in position with a hard speaker to follow. I have some questions that I would like to ask Mr. DeVries. I think Charlie Follo was the one who said the other day here that he felt sorry for any committee chairman or subcommittee chairman who had to present something on the floor because he looked all the world to him like the fellow who stuck his head through the hole in the canvas at a carnival to let people throw baseballs at. With that much sympathy for your position, Walt, I would like to ask you some questions, if you would be kind enough to respond to them.

First of all, there is the question that Jack Faxon talked upon, which I think is one of the things that causes a great deal of concern for many of us who have tried to analyze just what this post convention commission means to us. Is it a fair assumption, Mr. DeVries, that what we are really talking about here is not an extension of the convention activities at all but a commission that would be created by the legislature and would, in fact, be a legislative commission and would only incidentally be made up of former delegates of the convention; they would not be acting in any way, officially or unofficially, as constitutional convention delegates; is that correct?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Ford, the commission will be set up, as it has been, by convention resolution. It will be appointed by the president. It will be bipartisan. And it will have the authority to do the things that the constitutional convention says it can do; nothing more and nothing less. It can only disseminate information about the address to the people, period, which is a statutory obligation of this convention, whether it is 144 delegates or an extension of it as 15. That is the only thing it can do under the statute and the only thing it can do under the resolution we have adopted.

MR. FORD: Mr. DeVries, do any of us have any authority to act in any capacity and vote on anything that is presented to us after this convention finally adjourns, whether it is March 31 or April 15, or whenever it does?

MR. DeVRIES: When this convention adjourns sine die, we are citizens.

MR. FORD: Then if any of us end up on the post convention commission, we will be citizens who were formerly con con delegates; is that correct?

MR. DeVRIES: That is correct.

MR. FORD: Now, another question that comes to mind — I made the amendment motion, I believe, that put the word "bipartisan" into the creation of this commission — and there seems to be a difference of opinion between you and me — I being the maker of the motion and you the person who graciously accepted it — as to what "bipartisan" means. What is your interpretation of the makeup of the 15 man commission on a bipartisan basis, Mr. DeVries?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Ford, right now I am tempted to say 14 to 1, but actually I mean 10 to 5. (laughter)

MR. FORD: I have been waiting to return your quip about the Freudian slip, but that's about as direct a kick in the breadbasket as you could give. (laughter) Well, I want to say, then, for the record, Mr. DeVries, that we still do not agree; because, when we leave this convention we have to remember that there are 2 major parties in the state and that, generally, "bipartisan" means something close to equal representation and this is what the maker of the motion had in mind. Should we get into a question of interpretation, I suppose maybe we could correct that by spelling it out in the resolution.

MR. DeVRIES: Well, Mr. President and Mr. Ford, in that the commission is an extension of the convention, 2 to 1 seems reasonable.

MR. FORD: That depends entirely upon your point of view.

Now, Mr. DeVries, as I look at your budget, which was apparently set up at a time when you and the other persons responsible for its preparation believed that we were going to adjourn on March 31, we would, if the March 31 deadline was met, find ourselves in what might at first appear to be an anomalous condition of deliberating and drafting for 6 months an instrument and then spending 7 months explaining it in one fashion or another to the people. Is that correct?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Ford, the 7 months is an estimate based from March 31 to the election day in November. This is estimated maximum time. I think that when the commission has performed its functions or feels it has, it goes out of existence. We had to make a budget estimate in some way. We had to set a time limit.

MR. FORD: Well, that brings us to the next question. You have made mention several times, Mr. DeVries, to the effect that we unanimously adopted the idea of, the concept of a post convention commission, but — so that I won't improperly suggest something that, because I may have missed it — did you at any time prior to the time that we voted on the concept of a commission indicate a cost any place approaching the amount of money you are now suggesting to us?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Ford, I think what I said was that, to the best of my knowledge, Resolution 65 would outline the functions of the post constitutional convention commission. It was approved unanimously. At that time I did not know what the estimate would be for the 3 functions that I have described here today.

MR. FORD: Then is it fair to say that when we voted on that resolution, we had no idea of what you conceived in the way of expense?

MR. DeVRIES: Would you repeat the question, Mr. Ford?

MR. FORD: Is it fair to say that the members of this convention at the time that they voted on Resolution 65 had no concept of the amount of expense involved?

MR. DeVRIES: I think it is fair to say that the members of the convention knew that it would cost them some money.

MR. FORD: But there was no suggestion of the amount of money. Now, you point out that the function of the post convention commission and the staff that is retained will be a public information function, and I believe you narrowed that somewhat by suggesting that the function of these people would be to disseminate such information as had been agreed upon in the form of an address to the people by the convention prior to adjournment. Is that correct?

MR. DeVRIES: That is correct.

MR. FORD: Now, if that is true, would it be fair to assume that the kind of people necessary to distribute this would be people who would not necessarily or, as a matter of fact, not be called upon to exercise any discretion in the manner of disseminating that information?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Ford, those are the decisions that will be made by the commission. That is why we feel a commission is necessary. That is why we do not want to place this in the hands of the secretary of state, and there are a lot of reasons for that: one, we think there are policy decisions that will have to be made; and two, I think we know now that to turn this over to the secretary of state would cost a lot more money than we have projected in this budget.

MR. FORD: I didn't suggest the secretary of state, Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Any other state administrative agency, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I believe you further said that the function of the commission is not to be a selling job but merely to be an information relaying job. This brings the question: in the formation of this commission, what authority will the commission have to make decisions such as the framing of press releases, explanatory material to explain what the explanation in the message to the people really means?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Ford, the commission will act on the basis of 2 resolutions: one which has been adopted and one which I hope will be adopted. Again I would refer you to page 596. The data to be used by the public information office will be "prepared solely from the official convention record and the committee reports," — period.

MR. FORD: Well, looking at page 596, item 2 — item 1 is the preparation and distribution of the 1 million copies of the official address, there is no question that this convention acting as a convention will have to pass upon the content of that address.

When we get to item 2, this is where some of us pick up a little bit of concern — and I might say that what happened on or about February 10, as you mentioned, could conceivably have some influence on it, but I am not inclined to think that that is of major importance — "The preparation and distribution of informational bulletins to all press media, interested civic groups, educational institutions, etc.

Now, just who would determine the content of these so called informational bulletins that would be distributed under the apparently official cloak of this convention and its commission?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Ford, everything that is cited in that last whereas clause refers to the clause before: "This data will be prepared solely from the official convention record and the committee reports." That's all. It might be a press release or an informational bulletin, say, on finance and taxation, accompanying the committee report. There would be no editorializing; it would just be a matter of fact report of what the convention had done on that section and the reasons for its change from the 1908 constitution or the reasons for the addition of new material.

MR. FORD: All right. Now, would the manner of answering questions from an interested group on something such as county home rule, for example, be by extracting portions from the debates and motions in the verbatim journal or by simply citing the person making the inquiry to that section of the address to the people covering the subject matter involved?

MR. DeVRIES: That is correct; the complementing committee report that went along with the proposal as adopted by this convention, and the official address to the people.

MR. FORD: Then, based on what you have just said, is it fair to assume that in extracting the committee reports, the majority reports would be the rationale or explanation that would be disseminated to the people to supplement the address to the people explaining why we did what we did?

MR. DeVRIES: Well, there is no other basis for an accompanying explanation other than the majority reports. Most of them, as I understand, are bipartisan.

MR. FORD: Item 3: "The production of tape recorded informational bulletins to radio stations". Is it fair to assume that this would cover the same sort of subject matter?

MR. DeVRIES: That's correct.

MR. FORD: And this would be supplemental to and in addition to the subject matter contained in the address to the people?

MR. DeVRIES: Would you repeat that question?

MR. FORD: This could be matter that is supplemental to and in addition to the content of the address to the people?

MR. DeVRIES: No. As I said in the resolution, the public information department is limited to that which is approved in the address to the people and the accompanying committee report on the proposal as it passed; that is all.

MR. FORD: But would they tape the language of the address to the people or the language of the majority report that was read on the floor from the committee explaining the reasons why a certain clause should be inserted or taken out of the constitution?

MR. DeVRIES: I don't know how this would be done technically, Mr. Ford. Maybe Mr. White can explain it.

MR. FORD: Well, really, Mr. DeVries, my question is not as to how it would actually be done, but would it be possible, in your concept of this commission, for them to do this kind of information work — in other words, to give something more than is contained in the address to the people, in the form of a taped speech by one of the staff members, for example?

MR. DeVRIES: No. As I have said again and again, I think, the public information department is limited to the address to the people; that is the proposed constitutional draft, the accompanying explanation, and the committee reports.

MR. FORD: Jumping down to the "Distribution of the documentary film on the work of the constitutional convention;" is the dissemination of that documentary film, in your concept, a part of the address to the people?

MR. DeVRIES: The dissemination of the documentary film as prepared by the 3 universities is intended to explain the operations of the convention. It is something different. There is nothing substantive about this, as I understand it.

Mr. White, maybe you can talk on it better; but, as I understand the film as it is being prepared and edited deals only with the organization and operation of the convention. How we did things, not what we did.

MR. FORD: But this will be edited so as to show parts of the debates on various matters that took place here on the floor?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Ford, well, I do not know how else you would be able to explain the operations of the convention if you didn't have pieces of filmed matter dealing with debate on the floor. Are you concerned about who is going to be in the film? (laughter)

MR. FORD: That is part of my concern, yes. Someone suggested I would be. That is part of the problem. When you indicate that this executive director will handle commission correspondence — this, I think, has been touched upon in Mr. Binkowski's inquiries about his duties — do I take it that this commission which would meet twice a month would actually formulate policy and direct the method of answering the correspondence or would he, on the letterhead of this post convention commission, be able to indicate those parts of the address which are important and those parts which are not?

MR. DeVRIES: He would handle the correspondence and anything else that was determined by the commission.

MR. FORD: There is a newspaper article that was given to many of us today stating that you, Mr. Richard Van Dusen, Mr. Hutchinson and President Nisbet met — and I will quote, if I can find it here — privately with the senate finance chairman, Elmer Porter; the house appropriations chairman, Arnell Engstrom; and the GOP floor leader, to discuss the "problem", to wit: the problem we are discussing here. The newspaper article would indicate that the present plan — apparently the plan arrived at by this group of people — is to tack onto the legislative appropriation bill an amendment, ". . . giving con con power to convert salaries to post convention budget."

The article goes on to say that: "The convention could salvage $144,000 a month for every 30 days between adjournment and May 15. The hope now is to adjourn about April 15. . . ."

Could you indicate what effect this would have upon the proposed budget if this group of apparent leaders in the convention now feel that April 15 is the target date?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Ford, I do not think that the group of alleged leaders feels that April 15 is necessarily the adjournment date. I can quote you a lot of newspaper articles from a lot of different points of view, but I do not think that this group or any other knows when this convention is going to adjourn. I assume, as the eternal optimist, that we are going to adjourn March 31. In planning the budget, I assumed May 15.

MR. FORD: Since this was not a bipartisan discussion, could I ask you: is this an accurate appraisal of the intent of you people representing us in these discussions?

MR. DeVRIES: What accurate appraisal?

MR. FORD: That April 15 now seems to be the logical adjournment date?

MR. DeVRIES: I cannot speak for these other people, Mr. Ford. If you want my personal opinion again, I will tell you I think it is April 1, but I know no better than any of the other 143 people here when we are going to adjourn.

MR. TUBBS: Mr. President, may I ask if Mr. Ford would yield to a suggestion?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Kent, Mr. Tubbs?

MR. FORD: Yes, I will yield to Mr. Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: We are very much interested in your colloquy, Mr. Ford, but it seems to me it might better be carried on in a private conversation. I remind you that, according to the figures we have been furnished, it costs $2,600 an hour to keep this convention going.

MR. FORD: I might have been more moved by that $2,600 figure before I was faced with spending $2,600 an hour to talk about $333,338 of the taxpayers' money. If we can not argue about this — with all the mice we have been shooting around this convention in the last few weeks — when we get down to something that is costing $1/3 million, I submit that it is not a matter for levity, but it is a very serious matter and one that leaves some of us with very serious misgivings when we are going to be asked to vote on this. (applause)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair next recognizes the gentleman from the twenty-first district, Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I will be very brief, Mr. President. I do have one or two questions that I want to ask — I will not use up $2,600 worth though. The reason I won't have to is that the previous speakers have asked most of the questions that I would like to have asked. I would like to ask Dr. DeVries if he can tell us what was done in this respect in 1908.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Marshall, I will tell you what was done, but I don't think you can make any kind of appropriate analogy here. What was done was a contract was made with the secretary of the convention to provide 2 things: the Address to the People and the convention record.

Now in other states they have done similar things. In the state of New York, they had a committee on contingency expenses, I think they called it, which performed these functions after the convention, consisting of former delegates.

I don't think we can make any analogy, though, with the convention of 1908. We have different statutory and constitutional obligations.

MR. MARSHALL: Well, would you say that what we are doing here, then, is approximately the same thing that was done in New York? Did they have to have 7 months? Did they require almost $¼ million post convention expense? Just what was done in New York? You mentioned the state of New York.

MR. DeVRIES: They set up their committee on contingency expenses which made policy decisions about their address, and about their records, and so on, consisting of former delegates. How long it lasted, what it cost, I am sure I don't know, Mr. Marshall. I will check on it if you would like.

MR. MARSHALL: Well, could it not be possible, then, so far as disposing of the convention furniture, cleaning up the convention hall, and turning it back over to the city of Lansing or to the civic center, couldn't this just as well be handled by the state building superintendent, which is a department already created?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Marshall, we would be delighted to turn it over to them, if they volunteered, but it is still going to cost money. It is still going to cost $30,000, and whether we want to do it or the legislature wants somebody else to do it, that is perfectly all right with me. I would just as soon have that off our backs.

MR. MARSHALL: Well, the other question — I will ask this question: why could not the commission, this 15 member commission and the staff be established and named before the budget is adopted?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Marshall, that is up to the president of this convention; whenever he wants to appoint the commission and its staff, he can do so.

MR. MARSHALL: You talk about a bipartisan commission —

MR. DeVRIES: Do you mean to tell me, Mr. Marshall, that it makes a difference who serves on the commission or the staff before we approve the budget? I wouldn't want to bring personalities into this —

MR. MARSHALL: I think if we are going to have a — look Dr. DeVries, I think, absolutely, if you are going to have a 15 member commission that is going to be operating from the end of this convention right up until November, I think it is absolutely important and essential. Now, you mentioned the fact about a 2 to 1 ration as being bipartisan, a bipartisan commission. I ask you to take a look at other state commissions that are established on a bipartisan basis and tell me if those bipartisan commissions are established on a 2 to 1 basis or a 5 to 1 or, I believe, a 14 to 1, as you said. As far as I am concerned, 14 to 1 would be just as well as 2 to 1, particularly as to what has happened up until now.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Marshall, I hope you knew that I was being facetious —

MR. MARSHALL: But not jocular.

MR. DeVRIES: — but not jocular on 14 to 1. This is not a typical state commission. By no definition is this a state agency. This is an extension of the constitutional convention for a limited amount of time and then the commission dies. There is no parallel between this and a state commission, none whatsoever.

MR. MARSHALL: One closing statement, Mr. President, and then I will relinquish the floor. I do not want to ask any more questions. I realize that we all — and I am speaking against the committee report, the resolution. I think it is premature. I think that some of the things that have occurred to date in this convention make it premature. I think we should have had a little better determination on when we are going to end our work, what kind of a document we are going to produce, whether we are going to continue to adopt a document that is only going to pass the buck over to the legislature, continue the more restrictive provisions as in the old constitution.

Now, Mr. Martin raised the point on the floor and I think it should be answered; he said this on Friday and he intimated the same thing here again tonight. I think that we all have a responsibility to the people of the state of Michigan as a whole. I think it is absolutely essential to prepare the message to the people. I think it is essential that it be prepared properly. I think even after the convention ends that it is incumbent upon all of us to go back into our districts and attend as many meetings as we can, and elsewhere in the state where we are invited, to explain to the people what transpired and why it was done and what it was all about.

